"Such people burn up much more food material, so that the net cost of their muscular work is about twice that of normal persons," he said. "This has a definite relationship to the care of such patients, not only under ordinary circumstances but also in connection with preparing them for necessary operation."

Dr. George Blumer, formerly professor of medicine in Yale University, told the convention that infectious jaundice was becoming more prevalent in the United States.

Professor James M. Anders of the University of Pennsylvania urged a more frequent use of water by the physicians. Both cold and hot water applications to the surface of the body have definite effects which can be used in the treatment of disease he said. Professor Anders urged the equipment of every hospital with adequate installations of apparatus for making the fullest use of water in treatment.

In the section devoted to the nose, throat and ear, Dr. H. M. Taylor of Jacksonville, Florida, called attention to the facts which the American Medical profession has accumulated regarding the dangers to the ear following bathing in swimming pools and in the sea.

"Sanitarians have given much attention to disinfecting the water by the use of chlorin," he said, "and by other methods, but there are other factors aside from the contaminated water which may have an influence in producing disturbances of the hearing."

Dr. Taylor recommended that these conditions be given careful consideration by the profession.

In the same section Doctors M. W. Clift of Flint, Michigan, and Burt E. Shurley of Detroit, discussed the latest methods of controlling tonsilitis and of removing the tonsils.

INJURED EYES TERMINATE CAREERS OF TWO BOXERS

ST. PAUL, July 13 (Associated Press).—Mike Gibbons, the middleweight brother of Tommy Gibbons, challenger for the heavy weight crown, known in ring circles around the world as "The Phantom" and Saph McKenna, the bantamweight who was a pocket edition of the elder Gibbons, will never box again because of defective vision.

In his last few starts the Phantom collided with punches which in other days would have whizzed harmlessly by, been blocked with elbow or shoulder, or have been picked off with a glove before well started. It was not until he visited an eye specialist that Mike learned that the sight of one eye was virtually done, due, it is believed, to a loose lace of a glove striking it.

McKenna was recently dismissed from a hospital where he was taken following his last bout with Johnny Ertle, former bantam weight title claimant in which Ertle shaded him and landed a blow which definitely put out of the ring one of the cleverest little boxers ever developed in this section. Physicians declared McKenna's eye would never regain its usefulness.

McKenna, who worked with Gibbons in training, had Mike's style to the last detail. He was not as inclined as the Phantom to stay in close, but showed as well in flashy footwork and speed.

J. P. Morgan's Maid Carries Breakfast to Evicted Woman, Kin of Colonial Mayor

NEW YORK, July 12.—J. P. Morgan's kitchen has provided daily breakfasts for Miss Sarah E. Lodewick, 71 years old, who was evicted from her home on Thursday at 223 Madison Avenue, across the street from the banker's residence, and the trays were carried to the ousted woman while she guarded her personal belongings which were piled up within the court of the white stone house. What member of the Morgan family had observed the woman's plight and had ordered that she be supplied with food, could not be learned.

Early each morning the maid from the Morgan home, carrying a covered tray, emerged from a door on Thirty-Sixth Street, crossed the Avenue and placed the food on a table amid the piled furniture. There Miss Lodewick dined in full view of the passersby.

"Mr. Morgan, or some one in his home, has sent me a breakfast every morning since Thursday," said Miss Lodewick. "This morning the maid didn't return for the dishes, and, fearing that they would be broken or stolen, I took them back myself to a side door of the house. The girl who received the things from me smiled when I called her attention to a note I had dropped into the coffee cup, and said she would deliver it to Mr. Morgan, saying, 'God will bless you for your kindness to me.'"

Miss Lodewick, who declared she was a descendant of Charles Lodewick, Colonial Mayor of New York in 1684, said she was the last member of the family, and rather old-fashioned, so much so that she had not looked properly after her financial matters, but now had an attorney who was tryng to collect money which she claimed was due her on different leases and realty sales.

After a siege of four days in front of the house Miss Lodewick said friends had loaned her small funds with which she had hired movers to take her furniture to a storage place at Thirty-Third Street and Lexington Avenue. Then she got a room temporarily in East Thirty-Ninth Street.

"The only bad day I had here on the Avenue with my things was during the storm on Friday, and the rain ruined my most valuable possessions. One of the articles was an inlaid mahogany table that cost $1,500. I had to take refuge in the house, through the basement door, and somebody sent for the police, who told me I had no legal right to stay here after being evicted.

"I told the Police Captain at the East Thirty-Fifth Street Station that I had been evicted without notice and that I would not leave my effects unguarded. He let me stay."

Want Ad Tips by John T. Bartlett

A SINGLE WORD PUT IN.

When you hand your Want Ad to the Ad-Taker—or phone it—don't hesitate to ask, "Is there any suggestion you can make?" Ad-Takers are at your service. Many hours every week they are in contact with advertisers. They see the copy the experienced Want Ad users turn in—the copy which has a high scoring in results. They have an unexcelled opportunity to learn what gets results and what does not.

An Ad-Taker many times can suggest the addition of a single word—the advertiser, perhaps, has just plain overlooked it—which, put in, will multiply results.

It may seem strange that single words can mean so much. Single words can. One of the questions a veteran Ad-Taker often asks is, "What is your price?" It is surprising how much Ad-Takers know of the prices of things. "I'm ready to sell it very reasonable," perhaps you say.

If you haven't those last two words in the Want Ad, the Ad-Taker is pretty sure to suggest that you put them in. He knows how such words as, "reasonable," "very reasonable," "cheap," in a Want Ad help to get quick results.

Another question Ad-Takers often ask is, "Have you a telephone?" There may be exceptions to the rule, but practically always the owner of a 'phone should give his number in Want Ads. To visit you may mean expenditure of quite a little time by the inquirer. The careful person wishes to phone you first—to learn more about your offering, to make sure you will be in when he calls.

A quoted price, put into a Want Ad at the suggestion of an Ad-Taker, has found buyers in jig-time. "That price, more than anything else," the Ad-Taker explains, "will lead people to buy. Put it into the Want Ad, so readers will know what a real bargain you offer.

Say to the Ad-Taker, as you tender your Want Ad, "Have you any suggestion to make?" He'll be glad to help you.

CAPTAIN HAYES

Pirates of the accepted sort are a hairy set of ruffians, hung about with weapons and redolent of rum and rude oaths. You would not have taken Captain Hayes, "that gentlemanly man," for a pirate. He certainly wore a beard, but it was a nice, silkly, well-combed meticulously trimmed brown beard. He wore the clothes of a gentleman, and he talked the talk of a gentleman. When the dirty work of the profession had to be done (and Captain Hayes was the last man to shirk it) you could always rely on his emulating Mr. Neil Lyon's Joe Golightly and "very politely" stabbing his victim in the spine or pushing him in the brine.

Hardly anyone in Britain has heard of Captain Hayes, but although he was knocked on the head by a mate fifty years ago his name is familiar on every coral island of the Pacific. Many a South Sea island has never heard of Mr. Lloyd George, but none is ignorant of "that gentlemanly man" whose exploits for twenty years set Oceania by the ears.

What he was up to before 1858 I was unable to discover. I don't think anyone in the South Seas knows, for, though refined geniality incarnate, he was never communicative about himself. Anyhow, he landed from the s.s. Orestes at Honolulu in 1858, and early in 1859, equipped with fifty dollars that he had borrowed from a missionary, the Rev. — Damon, he took a passage to San Francisco. A few weeks later he sailed into the little cove of Kahului, on the Hawaiian island of Maui, in charge of a brig bound for New Caledonia. He tried, to pick up a cargo of cattle. Sheriff Treadway promptly rowed out in a little boat and arrested him for having omitted to call first at the Custom-house at Lahaina. Apologizing for having been misled by his mate, he set sail for Lahaina with the sheriff on board. Ten miles out at sea he courteously gave Mr. Treadway the choice of paying his passage on to New Caledonia or rowing home. He chose the latter alternative Captain Hayes leaning over the taffrail and smiling at him as he started. About this time a warrant for Captain Hayes' arrest arrived in Honolulu from San Francisco, where, it appeared, he had stolen his brig and fitted her out without bothering to pay any bills.

The brig never reached New Caledonia. She ran on to a reef outside Wallace's Island, and Hayes, with a boatload of his favorite men reached the Navigators' Isles. He next turned up in Batavia, as captain of a barque, and had loaded cargo of coffee for Europe when the Dutch East India Company got wind of his reputation. He let them unload her, but he stuck to the charter fee.

Presently he sailed into Hong Kong and collected a cargo of Chinese coolies for Melbourne. On the way he heard from a passing ship that a 10 lb. landing tax had been imposed on each coolie. Arrived a few miles off Melbourne, he opened his sea-cocks and hoisted distress signals. Two salvage tugs responded. They found his vessel half full of water, and urged him to leave her. But he persisted that he would stand by the ship and work her in. No sooner had he watched with sweet satisfaction, the tugs disappear landward with all the coolies (each representing a liability of 10 lbs.) than he pumped out the water and vamoosed. Not long afterwards he collected another cargo of coolies from a China port (and the 10 lbs. Australian landing-tax for each), took them to Hong Kong, "wangled" their naturalization in that British Crown colony, and brazenly managed to land them in Australia as British subjects.

A few weeks later Captain Hayes met with an unfortunate contretemps. His mate marooned him on an island. Was Captain Hayes downhearted? Not a bit of it. He "found salvation," and an American mission gave him the command of a schooner. He fared forth on her, threw the harmonium and the Bibles and hymn-books overboard, and returned to luxrative piracy. While bathing on the beach at Guam, however, he was arrested by the Spanish officials and sent for trial at Manila.

Here, when in imminent danger of being garotted for a number of murders and piracies, he managed to "get round" the powerful Roman Catholic hierarchy, became reconverted, and disappeared. He turned up again in San Francisco, again stole a vessel—a smart schooner, the Lotus—and was off again, down to the South Seas.

Captain Hayes was always refined in his methods. When the time came to knock senseless and maroon on a coral island the Frenchman from whom he had bought an interest in the schooner Giovanni Apiani he chose a moment when the hapless fellow was eloquently admiring the loveliness of an atoll past which they were sailing. He then came up softly behind him and tickled him behind the ear with a feather from his wife's hat. As the Frenchman turned, "that gentlemanly man" felled him with a terrific blow on the forehead.

Captain Hayes' career was terminated not by the hangman, the grotter, or the firing-squad, nor yet by sharp or typhoon. A worm turned. He was knocked over the head by a mate driven to desperation by his refinements of brutality.—Bassett Digby, F.R.G.S., in The Manchester Guardian.

A Little of Everything

Gambling.

Do you play the stock market "on margin?" If you do, you should be backing a 10-to-1 shot, in order to get an even run for your money. For 9 out of 10, who gamble in stocks on a marginal basis, lose their money.

Who says so? A high former official of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, New York City. Paste this in your hats, shoestring plungers.

Prices.

Iron and steel prices show a weakening tendency—not enough to need monkey glands, but sufficiently to worry sales managers in other industries who watch the steel game as a weathervane of general business.

When another period of depression comes, prices will hit the toboggan again. How far will they drop? Some experts say prices never will go back to what they were in the old days. We hope not, judging by this letter written in 1779 to John Adams by his wife:

"Corn is sold at $4, hard money, per bushels Linens are sold at $20 per yard, the most ordinary calicos are $30 and $40; broadcloths at $200 per yard; molasses at $20 per gallon; sugar at $4 per pound; tea at $40."

Quadrillions.

Russia has printed so much paper money that the Soviet is six months behind in announcing the total. But from the Bolshevik revolution in 1917, up to the first of 1923, over two quadrillion paper rubles have come from the printing presses into circulation. To write that out, put down the "2" and follow it with 15 ciphers. It's over a million rubles for every man, woman and child on earth.

Children.

In New York City over 17,000 children were mistreated and neglected, in one year, sufficiently to be brought to the attention of the society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Many more thousands were not reported.

When you consider a record like this, which is a black eye on our civilization, you do not wonder that so many children mature into criminals, failures and defectives. Solution of most of our socal problems is in childhood.

Change.

Your success or failure may depend on the way you shake hands, dress or eat, warns Rev. Dr. Lloyd C. Douglas of Akron, Ohio.

Dressing and eating have to do with appearances. They create the first impression and reveal our degree of cleanliness, orderliness and common sense. The handshake expresses character.

We are made or broken by the simple things of life—the "trifling" details—as much as by our abilities. Make a good impression, and we usually get more than a chance or try-out. Remember, the best play is not apt to please the audience if it is staged poorly. Success requires a certain sense of the dramatic—not ranting and forced acting, but the simple touches that please.

India.

Another of the last strongholds of romance and adventure—India—begins succumbing to the steam roller, civilization. We like to think of India as a quaint jungle country of temples, tigers, buried jewels and magicians. But a trade report tells us that India already has 265 cotton mills, swarms of steel plants, a billion dollars worth of irrigation projects under way, and a growing network of government-owned railroads.

JOY IN ONE'S WORK.

The idea of joy in one's work has been often ridiculed, but nevertheless it is fast taking root in the minds of many and proving its value and merit. To-day many things are done, many principles accepted, which were considered absurd or not considered at all a generation ago. To perform the day's work joyfully and joyously may not be possible in cases, without effort, but the fact is being realized more and more that it is very much worth while to develop the habit.

This plan has no limitations of environment. Whether in the home, in the office, in the factory, or at recreation time, you can take cheerfulness and willingness and eagerness with you. The day's burdens are lightened, fatigue is kept at a distance, depression is not given a chance to get you in its clutch. Not only are you good company for yourself, but for others. Your joy in what you are doing surrounds you and spreads to your associates. Disease is not the only thing which spreads.

It has been proved that anger and violent emotion cause for the time being a poisonous condition of the blood which is injurious. It must be equaly true that facing the passing hour with a mouth turned up at the corners and a mind alert for the best aroa the day offers is beneficial. This is a very good world after all, if we but treat it right. And surely if we face our obligations and our work, not with frowns but with gladness, it will give us a more kindly greeting and a helping hand in return.

NOVEL! NOVEL! WHO'LL WRITE THE NOVEL TO SHOCK COUNTRY WITH EXPOSE ON CO-ED LIFE?

MADISON, Wis., July 10.—Now we're going to get the low-down on the American co-ed.

Merciless rays of pitiless publicity are to be focused upon her every movement.

Hergesheimer

Soon we'll have all the inside dope on those over-exaggerated and much imagined "wild parties" at the sorority houses, supposed joy-rides with gridiron heroes and fabled midnight luncheons in Bohemian quarters under the feeble glare of battered lanterns. And we'll learn—Why she drinks "cokes."

Just how she wears such ridiculous hairnets.

And how come she spends so much time before mirrors.

All the shocking details will be exposed ruthlessly.

And Joseph Hergesheimer, the novelist, will be to blame. You see he wants someone to write a book about the fair maidens who bring so much sorrow into the heart of many a university professor.

Indirectly Hergesheimer is giving some yet unsung but promising author the big chance to become one of the most scintillating stars in the literary firmament. He's got the undergraduate life at the University of Wisconsin snooping around ferreting out all these old foibles, and inspiring them to seek additional ones, too.

But said embryo novelist first will have to flirt with death before he "arrives."

The life of the co-ed, Hergesheimer believes, is particularly bright, colorful and racy—but quite American. He's strong for the colloquial novel, the one that springs directly from its creative atmosphere But this book wont spring. It will leap, he predicts confidently.

"It's the sort of thing Sinclair Lewis and F. Scott Fitzgerald have tried to do," he says. "But Fitzgerald spoiled "This Side of Paradise" with that silly ending. It's a result of his youthful philosophy.

And of course the forthcoming novel will have an educational side too. It will acquaint us with the reaction of professors to students, and the reaction of students to professors

The novelist, here recently doing research work in the Draper collection at the Wisconsin Historical Library, has returned to his home in Philadelphia to await receipt of the first manuscripts.

Meanwhile the country is on its toes abiding the debut of the presses to reel off first copies.

HE SMOKED ONE

The auctioneer was endeavoring to dispose of a stock of beautifully labeled cigars, and he grew quite eloquent as he described their virtues.

"In short, gentlemen," he wound up, "you can't get better. I don't care where you go, you can't get better; you can't get better."

"No, you can't get better," broke in a bystander. "I smoked one, and I'm not better yet."

PREPARING REPLY FOR THE GERMANS

LONDON, July 13. Canadian Press. — The Cabinet ministers will be busy for the next few days in completing the draft of the British reply to the German reparations note. The document will be accompanied by a covering note detailing for the benefit of the allies, British Government's view of the whole question and this it is believed will take more time for preparation than the reply itself which according to some reports virtually has already been drafted.

Lobbyists report considerable divergence of views among Parliamentarians on Premier Baldwin's statement. Lloyd George Liberal faction which is the only group that has as yet formally discussed the pronouncement, has condemned it as inadequate.

HERE'S TO THE WOMAN.

By A. C. Chills.

When I was first married, I staked all my cash
On a flier in Steel, but it slipped!
And of every red cent I had put on the thing
I found myself beautifully stripped.
I told my wife Joan, and expected she'd groan.
But instead of a fuss or a pother,
She gave me a hug, and said, "Never mind my dear,
So long as we still have each other."

I worked and I prospered and one day grew rich,
And showered much wealth on my Joan,
And I proudly boasted of houses and cars,
And the fact that I'd earned them alone,
But wife would chide me, as sitting beside me,
I'd ask, "What is troubling you, mother?"
She'd answer, "Why, dear, wealth and fame are small things,
Compared to our having each other.'

Oh, here's to the woman, who through thick and thin,
Will stick to her crusty old man,
Who'll gently abide him, and lovingly guide him,
And bravely help out when she can,
Who never will bicker, whose faith does not flicker,
I'd not change her kind for another,
The woman who cares not for trouble or woe,
So long as "we still have each other."

We spend money to impress others who spend money to impress us.

This school of experience you hear about is a high school.

NEW STYLE IN ALARM CLOCKS

J. P. Davis and family of Toledo, O., were awakened at 5 o'clock the other morning when six freight cars tried to crawl into their ground floor bedrooms. The large tree, tangled around one of the cars, fell across the davenport where Davis and his wife slept. They escaped with slight bruises. The brakeman of the inter urban train was killed. The motorman jumped from his cab when he saw the crash was inevitable.

WATER, LIKE AIR, IS INVALUABLE.

Fails to Change With the Passing of Centuries; Five Great Oceans.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Water is both a necessity and a luxury. We can not do without it. We drink it, we wash in it, we swim in it and we sail on it. It is everywhere about us. Water has not changed with the passing centuries. Like air, it is vitally associated with the life of man, writes Charles Navers Holmes in Science and Invention.

Water is everywhere about us—upon the terrestrial surface, beneath the terrestrial surface, in the air. Upon the terrestrial surface there are, of course, five great oceans, Pacific, Atlantic, Indian, Antarctic and Arctic. These five great salt water bodies approximatel a total area of 140,000,000 square miles, with an average depth of 2 1-3 miles; or a total volume of about 326,000,000 cubic miles. Adding to this the amount of water in lakes and rivers, the total volume of salt and fresh water upon the terrestrial surface approximates 327,000,000 cubic miles.

Water Under Earth

There is a great deal of water beneath the terrestrial surface. There is water in the soil and there are underground streams. However, in all probability neither the soil nor these streams are very deep. It is very likely that there exists extensive reservoirs of water underground, but it is unlikely that the comparatively small amount of water in the soil, and in underground streams and reservoirs, would appreciably increase the vast amount of water upon the terrestrial surface.

And likewise the water vapor in the air is hardly to be considered in estimating how much water our earth possesses. It is true that our atmosphere extends to a height approximatelp 300 miles, but most of its moisture lies below a height of about seven miles. However, the water both beneath the terrestrial surface and in the air adds something to the estimated 327,000,000 cubic miles of water upon the terrestrial surface. Accordingly, we allow for the additional water beneath our earth's surface and in its air, as well as to correct any possible underestimation of the amount of water upon the terrestrial surface, an estimate of the total volume of water which our earth possesses approximates 330,000,000 cubic miles.

Now, let us see what 330,000,000 cubic miles of water really signify.

Total Surface Area

The total surface area of our earth is about 197,000,000 square miles, and, therefore, were our earth's surface wholly uniform, all of the water possessed by our world would completely cover it to a depth of about one and one-third miles. If all of this vast amount of water should ascend into the air and then descend to the terrestrial surface in a deluge of rain, falling everywhere, at the rate of 25½ inches a day, which is reported to have once descended upon a region in India, such a terrific rain would fall continually upon our earth's surface for more than 11 years.

If the Missouri-Mississippi river system were the only river in the world, and were this system to pour its waters into a reservoir vast enough to contain all of the terrestrial water, it would take under conditions of maximum discharge from the Missouri-Mississippi, about 6,700 centuries to fill that reservoir.

And if all of our terrestrial water were to descend upon New York City, not draining off, it would inundate that city under a flood approximately a depth of 1,000,000 miles.

Are Good Standard Stocks Worth Buying

That question is in many persons' minds just now, and the opinion of RELIABLE Brokers is that stocks are really CHEAP, judging from the condition of industrial business. However financial markets have been heavy and traders are discouraged. Is not this the time to buy? Certainly good DIVIDEND PAYERS are remarkably cheap. Phone us or call and we 'll discuss the many questions with you to our mutual benefit.

GAME WARDEN WILL INVESTIGATE CASE

Canal Authorities Required to Leave Sufficient Water For Fish.

Campbellford, July 13. — The article which appeared in the Examiner recently dealing with the death of fish at Healey Falls owing to the turning off of the water from the river to raise the supply in the Trent Canal roused the authorities at Ottawa to action. J. W. Coffey, of that city, district fish and game warden, spent several days in this vicinity as a result of the publication. He made his headquarters at the St. Lawrence Hotel and went out to Healey Falls on an inspection trip, Mr. Coffey stated before he left Campbellford that the officials of the Trent Canal are requested by the regulations to leave sufficient water in the river at all times to assure the safety of the fish no matter what the conditions are in the canal.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: The results of the two temperance referenda in Manitoba must be gratifying to all lovers of freedom and common sense. The first referendum puts the liquor traffic in the hands of the Government, and no one can get liquor who is not entitled to a permit, which all are entitled to until their conduct shows that they are not. The second, the wine and beer referendum, was snowed under, and thus the thin edge of a bad edge was turned off.

The Manitoba compromise of these two cases will also do away with bootlegging there, the greatest curse of any age, and will restore to reasonable people that liberty which decent people are entitled to.

J. H. Burnham.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Mr. R. R. Hall's letter in your issue of yesterday is suggestive of co-operation in the city's progress. This suggestion I endorse, though I am not familiar enough with the salient facts in his power plans to offer an opinion as to its merits. However, I do know of something that, with a little help, would be of tremendous importance to this city, and surrounding country, and that is, the development of the oil areas on all sides of Peterborough. With this object in view, the Central Ontario Oil Co., Ltd., is now drilling near Colborne, Ontario. They are now in a strong flow of gas, estimated by the driller, our managing director, there told me yesterday over the telephone at 100,000 cubic feet a day. They are down some 430 feet, and the driller, an experienced man, says "he never saw better indications" for oil in good quantity.

Practical oil men like Mr. Reeves, of the British Transvaal Oil Co., and Mr. Flint, of Belleville, who has just returned from California oil fields, endorse us. Geologists now believed we will get it. They are now getting it across Lake Ontario, near Rochester. This was all foretold us years ago by Mr. Cowain, Senior, who is advising us where to drill. His system has proven correct without a break for us seven times. He told us before the Northern Development Company started they would not get oil there. His method seems to be unerring. Now, then, with all this proof and much more, is it not worth while for the citizens to join in and give us some much-needed capital? If capital will come in now we can give them, the investors, the benefit of the saving in expenses of selling through brokers, and, as president of the company, I am ready to meet you half way in one big push for the financial benefit of all.

MARMORA WON FROM PETERBOROUGH BY 7-5

Marmora juniors increased their lead on Peterboro by two goals in the lacrosse game played there on Wednesday afternoon. The final score was 7-5 after the home team had led by 5-1 at the half way rest. The Peterobro squad consisted of Jack Lebarr, Johnnie Ward, Curtis, McDonough, Johnston F. Jones, Killoran, O'Toole Dundas and Curtin. Harry Tudhope and Vince O'Connell accompanied the team. The game was clean throughout. The next game will be played here on Tuesday July 24th. Fred Jones played a fine game for Peterboro and Killoran and Alf Johnston were also good. Johnny Ward was with the team and made his presence felt on the defense as did Jack McDonough, who was out for his first game this year.

HAPPY SMILES

Paddy is a serious looking, round-eyed small boy, who is very careful of his shoes. Paddy goes constantly in his bare feet, carrying his little shoes by their tied laces, over his wrist. At an odd moment, he slips on one shoe and goes along with one foot shod and the other bare, but will not wear the two at once. Whether for economy or comfort we do not know, as Paddy kept aloof in a far corner.

Beatrice is a dark-eyed child, and Mary another. Mary loves to take "snaps" of people with the small camera that found its way out to the Camp along with so many other nice things. The children favor the Dutch cut in hair-dresing, that ugly, comfortable, hot-weather fashion of clipping the hair which gives them all a cheerful expression, and the little boys like overalls and Grafton's black and yellow caps, worn at an acute angle.

The new Kiwanis kitchen is a delight to the heart of the housekeeper and a pleasure to enter. Cool and pleasant, with its screened doors and windows, its green paint, applied by the hand of Walter Stocker himself, who spends much of his spare time in and around the camp, looking after and providing small comforts of many sorts, it is a fine adjunct to the camp's conveniences. The four-burner oil-stove has overhead shelves, holding staples of all sorts, the force pump provides soft water in abundance for the enamelled sink, with its galvanized iron splasher, the long green table has a spotless white cover of oilcloth, and the little partioned off storeroom was an attractive place to enter, with its many shelves, and its promise of a pleasant hot-weather menu for the morrow, in an over-flowing pan of freshly-washed lettuce, a crate of oranges, and a pail filled with hulled strawberries, frosted with sugar.

Strawberry shortcake was a portion of the children's dinner on Thursday, and they had lettuce sandwiches for their afternoon lunch. Peanut butter sandwiches are also much liked.

The little things know what the menu for the next day will be, and have great fun anticipating it. They are treated to ice cream on an average, twice weekly, and many other pleasant things come their way, like the drive to Springville that the Kiwanis Club gave them on Monday last, and the twenty-six new bathing suits which have been provided for their daily paddles in the creek.

The little girls go in during the morning, the little boys in the afternoon, The Camp Nurse, Miss Ann Long, has water wings for the children, and is trying to teach them to swim. Paddling about in about twenty inches of water the other day, she was assured by a small cavalier that he would save her, if she were in danger of being drowned!

They are friendly, jolly little souls at the camp, these children, over many of whose homes the hand of illness and trouble casts a shadow, that is certainly not reflected in the faces of the bright little things who swarm in the friendly trucks at night and morning, and play, and eat and swim, in the pretty park. From four to twelve years of age are the 21 little boys and the thirty girls who are at the camp during this three-week period, with five or six extra on some days. They are weighed carefully, and some have gained as much as two pounds during their sojourn. Thirty-five quarts of milk per day, with four pounds of butter and six to eight large loaves of bread, have something to do with the rosy cheeks and the bright eyes of these well-cared for children. Marguerite is like the story-book heroines who have bridges of golden freckles powdered across their noses, and little Johanna's pale face is filling out beautifully. Mary says she used to be much "weaker" last year than this.

In the rest room, there are brown covers on the comfortable little cots, the windows have dainty curtains, and the walls pretty cut-out pictures. The books here are not too plentiful, and those on view show marks of much usage. There is always room for more literature, and for records for the gramaphone, and the toys that the children love.

Among those who have already contributed to the camp this year are: Mr. W. J. Oke, crate of oranges; Mrs. Harry Cameron, ice cream, cake and fruit; Mr. B. Gardiner, ice cream; Mrs. C. G. Graham, ice cream; Mrs. W. Merrill, strawberries; Messrs. Oke and Hagerman, lettuce; Mrs. R. R. Hall, buns, tomatoes and fruit. The members of the Peterborough Chapter of the Graduate Nurses' Association, holding a picnic in the park recently, also gave cake and sandwiches.

HABEAS CORPUS

Process of Law.

The simple affirmative motion for the third reading of the Indemnity Bill in the House of Lords (which received the Royal Assent on the 7th inst.) was changed into a reasoned motion by the acceptance by the Marquis of Salisbury, on behalf of the Government, on the motion of Viscount Grey, of the following addition thereto: "And this House affirms the long-established principle of the Constitution that the Executive should not, without the previous and special authority of Parliament, exercise the power of arrest without bringing to trial by due process of law." The affirmation of an established principle which Viscount Grey's addition to the motion for the third reading of the Indemnity Bill declares itself to be, is in consonance with the genius of constitutional development in Great Britain. Not one of the great political documents, each one of which forms a landmark in our political liberties—the Great Charter, the Petition of Right, the Bill of Rights—gave itself out as the enactment of anything new. All claim to set forth the rights which were already well established. The addition, moved by Viscount Grey, to the third reading motion of the Indemnity Bill is, moreover, yet another evidence of the jealous care for the protection of the right to personal freedom, the assertion of the inviolability of the liberty of the person, and of the principle that no person shall be deprived of his liberty, of which English constitutional history is replete with object lessons.

NEW JUDGMENT IN THE PAYNE TRIAL

APPELLATE DIVISION.

Present: Meredith, C.J.O.; Maclaren, J. A., Magee, J. A.; Hodgins, J. A.; Ferguson, J. A.

Appeal by plaintiff from judgment of County Court of Peterborough of April 19, 1923. Action to recover possession of dwelling-house and for rent.

At trial plaintiff's claim for possession of house was allowed, but claim was dismissed as to furniture therein, and defendant was allowed $1,500 on her counter-claim.

Judgment—Appeal allowed. Judgment appealed from reversed and substituted therefor judgment for appellant for possession of land and chattels and dismissing counter-claim. Respondent to pay costs throughout.

The facts of the case were that Israel Payne, a man over eighty, took his daughter, Hester Payne, to keep house for him at 174 Aylmer Street. Finding conditions unsatisfactory, he then went to live with his nephew, W. K. Payne, on London Street, and his daughter-in-law refused to give up possession of either the house or furniture on Aylmer Street.

His Honour Judge Huycke gave Israel Payne the right to repossess the house, but gave Hester Payne the furniture, and $1,500 damages, with costs.

The Court of Appeal has reversed the judgment in favour of Hester Payne, with costs of both Courts against her.

LOCK WORKS TOP MERCANTILE FOR WHOLE SCHEDULE

Defeated Bankers Last Evening in Best Game of the Series — Won Both Sections.

UNDEFEATED.

By defeating the Bankers by a score of 3 to 2 last evening the Lock Works completed their scheduled games in the Mercantile race without having a single defeat marked up against them. Last evening's game was one of the best of the whole series as the score indicates and Manager Jack Burke's team had to work every minute of the game in order to keep in the lead.

The Lock Works started off strong and bunched every one of their hits in the first frame. With a walk thrown in for good measure and four bunched hits they managed to send three runs home but from the first inning on were held both scoreless and hitless.

Cairns went the whole way for the Bankers and after the first frame was hard to beat. For the remainder of the game but two men got as far as the first sack, and one on an error and one on a walk. The first three men up in the first inning hit safely loading the bases. A wild pitch allowed one man to score but a walk again filled the runways. The next batter fanned but Connors who followed connected with a long single that sent two runs across the pan. From then on Cairns was invincible but he tightened up too late for the damage had been done and the Bankers were unable to overcome the lead.

Ecobichon was the mound artist for the Lock Works. He allowed five well scattered hits and only his team mates errors allowed the Bankers to score at all. In the sixth inning after Hardill had singled over second, three errors, a wild throw to each sack in succession, sent him around with the Bankers first run. Their last run came in the seventh frame when MacDonald dropped a nice single between first and second and Manager Henry, coming up as a pinch hitter followed with a single to short right sending MacDonald to second. He started for third and a wild throw to that sack allowed him to romp home, Henry going to second. Henry took third on the second infield out but bumped into a ragged double play when he attempted to come home on the play.

The pitching honors were even in the matter of strike outs each hurler having eleven. Ecobichon walked one and Cairns two.

MacDonald and Hardill were the batting stars of the game with two hits each in three times to bat.

HEAVY HITTING WINS FOR PETES AT COBOURG ARE LEADING THE RACE

Homers By Wolfe and Collins Responsible For Four Runs in Yesterday's Fixture at Cobourg

PETES WIN BY 8 TO 5.

Home run wallops by Herb Wolfe and Frankie Collins, in each instance with a runner on the sacks played a big part in the 8 to 5 victory over Cobourg in the Lakeshore town with which the Petes celebrated the glorious Twelfth yesterday. The win kept Manager Solomon's squad out in front in the Central League second section race and put them in a position by scoring a decision over Belleville tomorrow to open out a two game margin on their opposition.

Wolfe's homer in the fourth with Heckman on first base broke a 3-3 tie and Collins' circuit crack came with Comolli on the runways and made the game sure for the Petes. Wolfe's hitting was one of the big features of the engagement. The Petes' centre fielder in five trip to the plate punished the opposition heaving to the extent of a home run, a triple and two doubles, a total of eleven bases. Swanston fattened his average with three clean hits and Ansaldo and Comolli helped themselves to a pair.

The pitchers who started the game were Lefty McElroy for the Petes and Derry for the losers and neither went the distance. Cobourg scored a run on McElroy in the first on a walk and a double and Jahren's triple following two singles in the second chased another pair over. Heckman went to the rescue in the third and finished the game in grand style, striking out eleven of the enemy in the last seven innings and blaking Cobourg until the last two frames, when with a good margin to work on he did not have to extend himself. It was his sixth victory over Cobourg in seven starts in the past two seasons and the half dozen wins have come in a row.

Derry lasted until the fourth when Wolfe's homer blasted him off the rubber, the Petes having registered nine hits and five runs against the ex-Kingston twirler in the 3⅓ innings he worked. Jahren who relieved him got by nicely until the eighth when a single by Comolli and Collins' circuit clout gave the Petes two runs and they followed with another in the ninth on Wolfe's triple and Swanston's single.

Altogether the Petes collected fourteen hits including two homers, a triple and three doubles and their lusty clouting was about the best exhibition of hitting they have done this season.

There was some classy fielding for the big Twelfth of July crowd to enthuse over. One feature was Kenny's running catch of Ansaldo's terrific drive to left centre. It looked good for a round trip but Kenny came over fast and made a fine grab. Wolfe had a spectacular throw to his credit that cut Cobourg out of a run, when after J. Kenny had hit through Collins for a triple the Petes right fielder tossed the ball to Wolfe who made a perfect throw to the plate and Swanston completed a fine play by blocking the big outfielder off the plate and registering a put out.

The Petes threw away two hits in the first. Legon was thrown out by Jackson on a high fly that dropped in front of the plate, losing a hit by not running the play out. Wolfe rolled to Turpin. Swanston shot a double over third and Ansaldo singled to left, Swanston stopping a third. Ansaldo stole second but Johnston was called out on strikes.

Cobourg were more lucky. Skitch walked and went to second while McElroy was throwing out Turpin. Higginbottom rifled a double past third scoring Skitch. J. Kenny flied to Legon and T. Kenny rolled to Comolli who made the out by sliding into first with the ball; a smart play.

The Solomon outfit even the count in the second. Helson first up, singled past Derry and Comolli walked. Collins flied to J. Kenny in centre and McElroy popped to Drennan. Legon, however, singled over second scoring Helson. Comolli was thrown out trying to go to third on the play.

The score was not tied long for Cobourg grabbed two in their half. Derry fanned but Drennan singled to right and Jackson followed with another safety to the same spot sending Drennan to third. Jahren's triple over Wolfe's head scored Drennan and Jackson. Skitch flied to Legon, Jahren holding third and McElroy tossed out Turpin.

The Petes sewed up the game in the third and would have taken the lead but for a bad decision by Umpire Butler. Wolfe started the fireworks by doubling over third. Swanston singled to left scoring Wolfe and taking third when Higginbottom's throw bounced over Jackson's head. Ansaldo promptly singled to right scoring Swanston. Johnston forced Ansaldo at second and Helson fanned. Comolli singled to centre. Collins missed three, the third one a low one that Jackson trapped. The Cobourg catcher then threw over Kenny's head, Johnston coming home but Umpire Butler ruled that Collins was out.

Heckman went to the rubber for the Petes at this stage. Higginbottom saluted him with a single to right but J. Kenny and T. Kenny fanned and after Higginbottom had stole second, Derry was also retired on strikes.

A mighty smash by Wolfe in the fourth put the Petes in the lead and chased Derry out of the game. Heckman drew a walk and after Legon had fanned Wolfe smashed one between Higginbottom and J. Kenny for a home run, Heckman, of course, trotting across the plate ahead of him and Derry walked out of the box. Jahren came in from right field to take up the pitching burden. Swanston's line drive into Drennan's hands was a lucky break for the relief pitcher and the inning ended when Turpin threw out Ansaldo.

In the fifth Johnston and Helson struck out. Comolli walked and Collins flied out to J. Kenny.

In the Lakeshore team's half, Skitch started off with a lingle single over Ansaldo's head. Turpin and Higginbottom fanned, however, and Comolli made a nice catch of Comolli made a nice catch of J. Kenny's lofty foul fly.

Heckman fanned to start the Petes sixth and Legon was thrown out by Jahren, on a bunt. Wolfe doubled to centre but was out stealing third.

For Cobourg, T. Kenny fanned, Butler singled to right, Drennan struck out and after Butler had stolen second, Jackson hit into Ansaldo's hands for the third out.

Cobourg went out in quick order, Jahren striking out, Skitch rolling to Helson and Turpin being thrown out by Ansaldo.

The Petes made sure of the game in the eighth. After Helson had flied to J. Kenny, Comolli singled between short and third and rode home ahead of Collins when the latter hit past Butler in left for the circuit. Heckman fouled to Jackson and Legon was retired on strikes.

Cobourg got one back in their half. Higginbottom singled over second and reached third when the ball got away from Wolfe. J. Kenny drove one to right on which Collins tried to make a shoe string catch and it shot past him, Higginbottom scoring. Kenny wasn't satisfied with a triple and when he tried to come home he was nipped by a beautiful throw by Wolfe from deep right centre, Swanston making a fine play at the plate to put the ball on the runner. The throw saved a run for T. Kenny followed with a single back of third. Butler fanned and Drennan popped to Heckman.

Wolfe led off for the Petes in the ninth with a triple to left and scored the Petes last run when Swanston singled through the box. Ansaldo hit into a double play via Turpin and Skitch. Johnston walked but Helson flied to Higginbottom in right for the third out.

Cobourg started a rally with two out but it did not get very far. After Jackson had flied to Ansaldo and Heckman had thrown out Jahren, Skitch singled between short and third and Turpin followed with a single to left. When Legon threw badly to third Skitch scored and Turpin reached third. Higginbottom fanned, however, and it was all over.

JESS WILLARD KNOCKED OUT BY LOUIS FIRPO

GAME COMEBACK.

JERSEY CITY, July 13 (Canadian Press). — Luis Angel Firpo, o fthe Argentine, knocked out Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion, in the eighth round of a twelve-round match last night.

He sent the big Kansan down for the count of ten with a terrific attack to the jaw, the end coming after 1 minute and 55 seconds of the eighth round.

Firpo, already gloved, was first to enter the ring at 10.08. He wore a black and yellow bathrobe with purple trimmings. He received a good ovation as he took his corner and removed his gaudy outer raiment, disclosing himself garbed in purple tights.

Willard stepped through the ropes a minute later, wearing a pair of dark green tights and a white cord around his waist. Over his shoulders was slung an old grey coat, with a batch of papers bulging from the pockets. He received even a greater ovation than Firpo.

Both boxers received a gale of cheers, as Joe Humphries, veteran announcer, informed the crowd that the Kansan weighed 242 pounds and the man from the Argentine 214 pounds.

Harry Lewis, of Newark, who tips the scales at 195 pounds, then was introduced as referee.

Willard, who had entered the ring already wearing his gloves, stepped to a neutral corner, where he was joined by Firpo in a pose for the camera men. Both then returned to their corners.

The Fight.

Round one—Firpo came from his corner with a characteristic rush. Willard blocked his right and jabbed with a left. Firpo landed a light blow to the body. He drove his right again to Willard's ribs. Firpo forced Jess to the ropes and cuffed the big fellow about the head at close quarters. Blood trickled from a cut on Willard's left ear. Jess drove home a right to the side of the head as the bell sounded.

Round two—Jess carried the fight to Firpo, but missed a right uppercut. Firpo landed one in the ribs, but was short with a right. The big Kansan blocked Firpo's attempts to attack his body. Willard's left side showed splotches of red from his opponent's punches. Firpo shot a hard right to the jaw, but Willard stepped out of the way of another wallop aimed at the same spot as the gong sounded.

Round three—Willard jabbed Firpo about the head at close quarters. The Argentinian forced Willard into a corner with a body attack. Willard's long left stopped Firpo short as he tried to bore in. Willard seemed content to employ defensive tactics, blocking Firpo's powerful sights.

They were sparring as the round ended.

Found four—Willard jarred Firpo with a left to the head. Firpo swung both fists as they went into a clinch, but inflicted no damage. Willard caught Firpo with an uppercut coming in. Firpo bounded from the ropes, landing a right to the stomach. He pummelled Willard about the head at close quarters, but Jess only smiled. Willard was wild with a right, and absorbed further punishment about the head. Firpo rushed in with both fists, landing heavily. Jess rallied and drove Firpo to a corner as the bell rang.

Round eight—Willard came out of his corner to take the aggressive. He landed two left jabs to Firpo's jaw. The latter clinched twice, apparently tiring under the relentless pace he had set. But as he drew away from Willard, he suddenly launched a whirlwind drive to both head and body. Sensing his advantage as Willard's guard dropped from a jolting right, Firpo rained a volley of rights and lefts to the giant former champion's head. Willard tried to ward off Firpo's drive, but his defensive tactics were ineffective. A powerful right straight to the chin sent big Jess reeling back to the ropes. Dazed and groggy, he dropped slowly to one knee. He shook his head, much as a big mastiff might, as the referee tolled the count. He tried to rise at eight, but could not lift his big bulk to his feet.

He was lifted to his corner in a daze.

Best Man Won.

There was no question of the superiority of the brilliant Argentina battler last night. Willard's superior weight, height and reach enabled the big Kansas giant to check Firpo's rushing attacks in most of the early rounds, but despite the American's gameness under fire, the tide of battle swung inevitably in favor of the younger, more rugged fighter.

The gate receipts were estimated at about $500,000. Of this Willard got 37½ per cent., or about $177,500. Firpo received 22½ per cent., or about $122,500. This was the greatest number of paid admissions ever packed within a radius of 800 feet for any event.

Following his triumph over Jess Willard, Louis Angel Firpo said: "Willard is a fine man. I am proud to have defeated him." Told that Willard had declared he would make a "great match" for Champion Dempsey, he said, "I have never seen Dempsey in the ring, but I am anxious to get in the ring with him. I believe I can beat him."

"He certainly gave me a hard bout," Willard said.

"I don't want no alibi, as I was fairly beaten, but my left arm was so sprained in training that I could scarcely use it at all. I had many openings for Firpo's face but I could not jab hard enough to down him."

Willard said the blow that put him down for the final count was a hard one right across to the jaw, which had him grogged for several minutes after he had been counted out. Indeed, he appeared a trifle groggy thirty minutes after the bout as his trainers were patching him up in his dressing-room.

Record Attendance at Willard-Firpo Bout

PINGSIDE, Jersey City, N.J., July 13.—(Canadian Press).—Tex Rickard, promoter of the Williard-Firpo fight, anounced during the preliminaries that more than one hundred thousand persons were massed on Boyle's Thirty Acres to witness the fray. These figures would make the attendance for a pugilistic encounter the largest on record to date.

ONTARIO CUP TIE SATURDAY EVENING

War Vets and Thistles Will Meet at the Oval at 6 O'clock — Both at Full Strength.

To all soccer fans Saturday's Ontario Cup Tie will be the tid-bit of the season. Last year the C.G.E. team were the local representatives, but this year the Vets were the only team to enter the series at the date set by local Association.

After a week's delay an entry was received from the Thistle F.C. and the Association having heard a satisfactory explanation from them why they had not made their application on time allowed the entry to be made.

These teams have met four times this year, once in league game that resulted in a draw. Then in Gordon Cup final which the Vets won by three goals to one. In a return league game the Scots blanked the Vets by four clear goals. With each team at full strength last Saturday they again met in the Phelan Cup semi-final when the Scots won by 4 to 1.

Fans need not consider the results as any criterion of what Saturday's game may be because the Vets are excellent cup tie fighters and intend making the Scots travel all the way.

In the Scot's camp, they feel confident that they will repeat the last two results and be Peterboro's representative in Ontario Cup proper.

On Wednesday evening, the Executive of the contending teams met and decided to play the game at the Oval at 6 o'clock. J. Russell will hanule the whistle and J. Clark and J. Cairns will be neutral linesmen. The 6 o'clock start will allow all fans to witness the baseball in the afternoon.

The definite composition of the teams has not been announced but it is probable that the players will line up as follows:

Thistles—Stott, goal; Rae and Ralston, full backs; Jackson, McMillan and McAlpine, half backs; Shewan, Hutton, Richmond, Williams and Burgess, forwards. Reserves, Hardie and Anderson.

G.W.V.A.—Griffin, goal; Dyer and Bishop, full backs; Edwards, Burrows and Blowers, half backs; F. E. Wade, Chambers, J. Wade, Williamson and J. Sharman, forwards.

Floyd Johnson From McAuliffe in Round One.

RINGSIDE, Jersey City, July 13 —(Canadian Press).—Floyd Johnson, of Des Moines, Ia., knocked out Jack McAuliffe, IL, of Detroit in one minute and four seconds of the first round of their heavyweight bout staged on Boyle's Thirty Acres last night as an epilogue to the Firpo-Willard fight.

One of McAuliffe's handlers sprinkled water on his back as he crouched near his corner and when Joe Jeannette, a negro pugilist, acting as referee, signified Johnson, as winner, fight fans thought that he had disqualified the Detroit fighter. It was announced from the ring, however, that Jeannette had counted McAuliffe out.

In a few seconds he had knocked McAuliffe flat on his back and the thud of his head could be heard almost on the rim of the giant saucer.

In a few seconds more the flying fighter from Des Moinnes punched McAuliffe almost through the ropes with a right to the jaw, McAuliffe, entering the ring, dropped to his knee, clinging to the ropes, when he was counted out.

ANOTHER GAME CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, July 13.—It was the last half of the third inning in the game with Hastings on the Fair Grounds here yesterday afternoon and Weston, the heavy-hitting first baseman of the Campbellford team, was the first man up. Caldwell, the Hastings' left-hand pitcher, wound up and sent his fast ball over the plate. Weston met it fairly and the ball dropped back in centre field and continued its headlong flight down the the band stand. Weston made the circuit, scoring the first home run not only on the local grounds but the first recorded in the Northumberland League this season.

Some scorers, liberal in their interpretation of the rules, and inclined to give the batsman rather than the opposing pitcher the benefit of every doubt, have credited Mulhall of Warkworth with a home run in the game that Campbellford played in that village on and July. The hit in question dropped into a bunch of tall timothy in right field and the ball was lost, the runner scoring on what, at the most was a two bagger but for the luxuriant crop of hay.

There were no doubts to to the length of the hit that Weston made yesterday. The ball was in plain sight all the time and not a Hastings' outfielder got near it as it scorched the grass across the field until it finally came to rest. The ball was quickly and cleanly fielded and Cruickshanks' throw in was a dandy, but Weston beat the ball to the place by a block.

That was the only extra base hit that was made by Campbellford during yesterday's game which they won by the score of 12-6. In the third inning Shillinglaw drove the ball so far down the wrong side of the lef foul line that one of the scouts, to save time, mounted a bicycle to retrieve it.

In the fifth inning with Weston, Nesbitt and Holmes on bases, Shillinglaw sent a double to left and on this hit the three runners ahead of him scored. In the third inning Caldwell was replaced by Herring-Herrington, another left-hander with plenty of steam.

Brady was the star of the home team. He pitched the entire game and from the beginning to the end was never in danger. He seemed to improve as the play progressed and in the last five innings only 17 Hastings' men went to bat. In the fifth and sixth the visitors struck out in one, two, three order. In the seventh he handled easy rollers by Burkholder and Caldwell and Cruickshanks went out on a grounder to Weston. In the eighth, Dodds and King were thrown out by Brady at first, and Richardson sent down the first base line, a ball that Weston had no trouble in handling.

In the ninth Hastings made a last desperate stand to come up from behind and five men went to bat before the side was retired and the game ended. Howard, Herrington and Burkholder reached first on clean hits but Howard was the only one to score.

It was as good as a day off for the Campbellford outfield. Hume who usually covers so much territory and gets everything that drops out in the right corner, did not have anything that looked like a chance all day yesterday.

With every game the local team shows improvement, in the battery work, in fielding and in hitting. The Hastings players are a bunch of gentlemanly young fellows, full of pep, and they kept up the battle against disheartening odds until the very end. The same teams are scheduled to play at Hastings Saturday afternoon. Yesterday's exhibition of baseball was certainly worth a more liberal patronage than that given it as Campbellford have a team that is certain, barring accidents, to be well up in front before the season closes. The line up:

Hastings—Scriver, c; Herrington, 1b and p; Burkholder, 2b; Cruickshanks, cf; Caldwell p and 1b; Dodds rf; Richardson, 3b; King, ss; Howard, lf; Lambert, sub.

By innings:

Hastings	130200001— 6
Campbellford	31104201x—12

A RECORD CROWD.

The Petes got back yesterday the edge obtained by Belleville last Saturday in beating Cobourg on their own grounds by duplicating the feat and are still out in front of the second section race, leading Belleville by a full game. The Solomon crew, however, have been playing snappy ball having won their last four starts, the longest winning streak registered by any Big Four team this season and they are anxious to plaster a defeat on Williams, Oulette and Company and get revenge for the 5-4 loss sustained the last time Belleville played here.

That means that a Belleville win tomorrow would tie them with the Petes while a Peterboro victory would put the homesters two games in front.

O.B.A.A. LEAGUES MUST GET BUSY

Secretary Dulmage Wants Dates When League Winners Finish.

Baseball Secretaries are in receipt of a circular letter from Mark Dulmage of the O.B.A.A. advising that players in the leagues of the Association must be properly signed not later than the 15th of this month. Secretary Dulmage asks for dates when league winners will be ready for semi-final games. He also has something to say in reference to players holding amateur cards, the player being those in Intermediate and Senior company. Players in the Junior and lower series are not required to hold amateur cards, but teams winning Midget, Juvenile and Junior championships must produce birth certificates before being permitted to play in O.B.A.A. semi-final games. This is a matter that should receive prompt attention.

Secretary Dulmage's letter follows:

"As the time for making the draw for the semi-finals and finals for the O.B.A.A. championships is drawing near it is absolutely necessary that all information regarding your league should be in my hands at the earliest possible moment. Will you please, therefore, send to me immediately after July 15th all of the contratts which have been signed by the players of your leagues, making sure that the number of their amateur card is given thereon.

It has been called to my attention that amateur cards have not been secured by many of the teams, and this is a matter which must be remedied at once. Also send to me the exact date on which your winning team will be prepared to play its first game with the team which will be drawn against you in the semi-finals, as this will greatly facilitate the work of the Executive Committee in arranging the dates. Do not allow anything to delay you in these matters, as the Executive Committee will meet on July 26th to make the draw."

Prize-Fighting

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 13 (United Press).—Dr. S. A. Scimeca, who has built up a large medical practice in Kansas City since coming here in 1918, has revealed that previous to that time he was known in fistic circles at "Al Schumacher."

Dr. Scimeca fought his way through Maryland university, earning money in the ring under the nom de plume.

During his college life, Dr. Scimeca fought Benny Leonard, Ritchie Mitchell, Leach Cross, Harry Stone, Jimmy Barrie and Eddie McAndrews.

"I was after money in those days—not glory," the physician said. "I fought a ten round battle with Paul Edwards one night and seven with Benny Leonard the next night. Leonard got the decision over me on a technicality. Sometimes my share of the purse would be as high as $2,500—more money than I get for many nights' work now. But I love my present work and wouldn't go back to fighting or any amount of money."

MANY BRANCHES.

By GUS M. OEHM

BERLIN, July 13—(United Press).—Such an economic disturbance as naturally resulted from the occupation of the Ruhr by the French meant little or nothing in the sum total of Hugo Stinnes' activities.

Hugo Stinnes—no longer merely a German industrialist but an international business giant, the network of whose interests stretch around the world—merely turns the business lost in the Ruhr into his other holdings and quietly but regularly collects his dividends just the same.

Hugo Stinnes owns at least seventy big foreign enterprises, has heavy interests in at least seventy more and through them and other agencies has indirect interests in many more, not only in Europe, but in America, and the Orient as well. In London, Zurich, Madrid, Vienna Christiana, Cape Town, Johannesburg, Bucarest, Stockholm, Valparaiso, in Japan and the United States, Stinnes' money is invested and Stinnes' influence is felt. The Ruhr is but a tiny bit of what Stinnes has to worry about—if he ever worries.

When his Ruhr holdings were made impotent by the French occupation, Stinnes' concerns in other sections of Germany, in Austria and elsewhere—holding which up to that time had been doing only normally well—branched out into honest-to-goodness concerns, increasing their output, taking on new employes and adding materially to the profits which go into the pocket of Hugo Stinnes.

Unworried by Blockade

And this internationalization of Stinnes' money made it possible for him to continue practically untouched by the French blockade of his Ruhr properties. For instance, the Austrian Alpine Mining and Smelting Company owned and operated by Stinnes took a new lease on life when the Ruhr competition was nullified by the French. Instead of operating only nine or ten Martin ovens as last year, the concern today operates sixteen. The number of workers last year greatly reduced, today totals 16,400, which compares favorably with pre-war days. And the business of these concerns for the first four months of 1923 totals 788,000 English pounds, 100,000 pounds—or nearly half a million dollars—more than during the same period of 1922. And the bitterest part of it, from the German point of view, is that the Austrian mine holdings of Stinnes are connected through other connections with the Schneider-Crenzots, known as the "French Krupps."

"Every disturbance automatically balances in one section the damage which it does him in another," one expert declares, pointing out the danger to Germany and to the world of such a situation.

Business and Politics

"This situation would be less dangerous if it were merely a business man who did not seek to influence political affairs," he writes. "The leader of the Stinnes bloc, however, is in fact a political component whose power can scarcely be over-estimated. It is a fact that it is pure fiction to regard Stinnes as a German industrialist. He is international and as such is outside the realms of German financial restrictions and regulations.

This writer points out the inability of any German laws or rules connected with the stabilization of the mark in any way to effect such an international financial power as Stinnes, whose money is in all parts of the world—in all shapes and forms.

And Hugo Stinnes apparently is only beginning his world-wide activities. Since the war he has stretched his holdings everywhere. No branch of industry is without his influence. Electric enterprises, shipping, mining, transportation by land, river and sea, newspapers, news agencies, hotels, oil concerns—in fact practically all lines of human endeavor have Stinnes money and Stinnes connections mixed up in them somewhere.

One can mention only a few Stinnes enterprises. Trifle inferests like hotels, newspapers, banks, press agencies, etc., may be merely mentioned, without going into details. Their number are really unknown. But bigger interests—international in their aspect and operation—in which Stinnes is alleged to have an interest include:

World-wide Interest

Siemens - Rhein - Elbe - Schuckert-Union, with its myriad foreign connections.

Valparaiso, Chile, tramway.

Electric works in Spain and South America.

Electric appliance works throughout the world.

Alpine mine and smelting works in Austria.

NEW SLUGGER AFTER CHAMPION

Critics Favor the Champion and Say Firpo is Still Too Green.

NEW YORK, July 13.— (Canadian Press.) — Luis Angel Firpo, from Argentine, who knocked out Jess Willard in eight rounds here last night, is to-day shaking his fist in the face of Champion Jack Dempsey and challenging his right to the heavyweight crown, and the sporting world is focussing its attention on the dark browed young giant, who came north from Pamphas fifteen months ago and battered his way to the front rank of heavyweights with the sledge hammer blows of his right fist.

Dempsey was not at the ringside last night. He is resting on the Pacific coast, but his manager, Jack Kearns, was present, and told newspapermen that the champion was ready for Firpo any time.

Critics who have seen both Dempsey and Firpo in action, indicated today that should a match be arranged this summer their choice would be the champion. Firpo is still green, they say, and he has not yet learned to make effective the use of his left hand. Besides, the rushes the attack, leaving openings which would be readily seized by a fighter of Dempsey's great ability.

Unsolved Mysteries

THE IMPRISONMENT OF THE EMPRESS VICTORIA

The first official act of Wilhelm II., after succeeding to the throne of Germany at the death of his father, Frederick III., was to order the instant imprisonment of his mother, Dowager Empress, and daughter of Queen Victoria of England, an action for which he advanced no reason at the time and about which Europe has been speculating ever since.

The most generally accepted theory for the hatred which existed between Wilhelm and his mother—a hatred which later spread to everything of British origin—dated back to the time when the Kaiser was only two years of age and his mother, then the Crown Princess Frederick, insisted upon a rigid adherence to her English custom of taking a ride on horseback early in the morning. It was not the custom for the princesses of the Prussian court to exhibit their equestrian prowess in public, but Victoria not only refused to pay the slightest attention to this convention but also took her little son in front of her on the saddle, despite the remonstrances of the physicians and other court attendants.

One morning the accident which was so greatly feared took place. The Crown Princess' horse, a highly-strung nervous animal, shied at something and threw his riders Alarmed because of the antagonistic attitude of the court, Victoria is said not to have mentioned the matter and no medical assistance was called in at the time. After about two weeks, however, unusual symptoms began to appear in the left arm and side of the young prince and physicians were summoned. But it was too late. Muscular atrophy, resulting from an injury to the bone, had set in and it was too late to retard its progress. He who was to be Wilhelm II. was destined to go through life with a crippled malformed left arm—a deformity for which, being an ardent admirer of physical perfection, he is deformity for which, being an ardent said never to have forgiven his mother.

When, therefore, on June 17, 1888, word was passed that the Empress had been imprisoned at the orders of her son, there were many who smiled knowingly and lifted their left arm, with the hand dangling loosely at the wrist. But, queried others, if that is the reason for the Kaiser's action, how does he expect to gain revenge for something which happened years before? And this question became general upon the Empress' release a short time afterward.

Another solution to the mystery is the statement that Wilhelm suspected his mother of having appropriated one of the most important documents from the archives of the Hohenzollerns and ordered her imprisoned until the document was produced, her release being effected when it was found that the paper was in its accustomed place. But this, like all the other explanations of the strange affair, is based upon conjecture rather than fact and the truth about the first official action of the former German Emperor remains among the many unanswered questions connected with his reign.

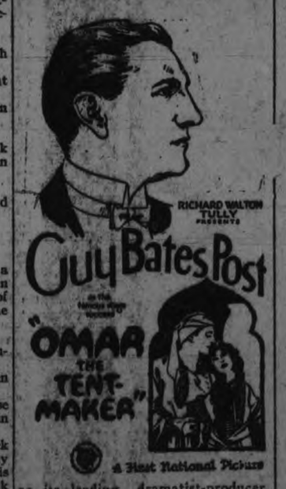
THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

"OMAR THE TENTMAKER" SCREEN ACHIEVEMENT

"The Masquerader" led us to expect great things of Guy Bates Post as a screen star, and of Richard Walton Tully as a film producer. The realization of this expectation has come in "Omar the Tentmaker" which opened at the Royal Theatre yesterday. It is a First National attraction.

The picture proves many things conclusively. First and foremost it proclaims Post as one of America's greatest dramatic actors and Tully as its leading dramatist-producer. It proves, too, that a fascinating story is not limited by time or clime; that drama is universal and of all periods. Above all else its appeal is the dramatic force of the story and the human interest of the players' characterizations.



Remove the foreign sets and trappings, and it is a sweet love story, such as might be a page of life in our own city; yet this background, with all its color and appeal, is a vital part of the picture.

It is hard for this reviewer to determine which is Post's finer portrayal. As young Omar he is full of youth, romance and ambition. In middle age he has all the poise, sympathy and understanding that come to him who has suffered and who seeks to learn the reasons for cosmic events.

"Omar the Tentmaker" is a photoplay with a universal appeal. It contains elements that interest all ages, and in our estimation takes rank with the greatest productions that have come from the movie studios. We can recommend it to our readers without reserve. Not to see it is to miss one of the screen's greatest achievements.

Epilo Entertainment

There is an interesting picture at the Capitol Theatre for this weekend in "The Ninety and Nine," interesting in more ways than one, as it represents a differing type of photodrama, in its mechanism, than has been seen here in some time. This picture resembles the novel type more than most photo-plays, in the way in which the action changes swiftly and unexpectedly. From a fashionable ball room in New York ,where a mysterious murder has just been committed, the audience is transferred, without perceptible reason, to a sleepy farm village, where later, gather all the actors in the drama.

Commencing with a peculiar and inexplicable shooting, which is not fully unravelled until the last few minutes of the picture's showing, it progresses through episodes that have an atmosphere of real life.

There are pleasing suggestions throughout of Griffith's methods in the incorporation with the theme of various little incidents, unrelated but charming, that carry out the main thread of the story to a logical conclusion. One remembers "The Sin of Martha Queed" at times, there are hints of "Way Down East," and of other screen successes in this picture, which, through the latter portion of its unfolding, keeps its audience up on its collective toes.

It is one of those pictures which will be remembered, the sort that could be seen more than once. To watch the drunkard, the "lost sheep" pilot his big engine through a forest fire where smoke and flames are burning up the track and the bridges —to see him and his small helper, Reddy, herd the panic stricken people of the burning village into box cars, and bring them back to safety, is to get one of those choky thrills that help to make a picture realistic and worth while.

Although there is a certain amount of improbability in the picture of the man leaning over the open bar, and slowly drinking himself into a state of old time drunkenness, the whole thing is so worked out as to make one forget that such bars aren't available nowadays. He is the "lost sheep", outside the fold, and he has to drink to round out the picture, so why wonder at the open bar in these days of prohibition and the Eighteenth amendment.

Another phase of the picture is the splendid acting of the principals: Colleen Moore and Warne Baxter, with a strong supporting cast. Altogether, with its mystery, its thrills, its human pathos and romance, it is a big picture, and decidedly worth while.

Round Four of the new series of "The Leather Pushers," is a comical departure. "Kid" Roberts and the world champ with whom he fights, don't know that they are performing for the benefit of a "nut." They think that Pancho Notales is a real bandit and that the men who surround them with loaded rifles are really bound to shoot the loser in a grim, fistic battle; so they go at each other in terrific fashion, and the "Kid" beats the champion in a bloody combat.

The golf demonstration by Gene Sarazen, in regular and slow motion photograhphy, proved a very popular adjunct to a well rounded programme.

Calvin Gray, enemy of Colonel Henry Nelson, banker, hires three men to watch Nelson's activities in the oil fields. Gus Briskow strikes oil and Gray visits him in his beautiful new home. Allie Briskow, daughter of Gus, falls in love with Gray, but he loves Barbara Parker. Bud Briskow, Allie's brother, having been rescued by Gray from the hands of an adventuress, goes to take charge of the Briskow oil wells. He phones to Gray telling him that oil is expected on some land in which Gray has interest. Allie goes to spend a few days with Bud.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

"Was that Buddy talkin'?"

"It was, and he gave me some good news. He says that well on thirty-five is liable to come in any minute, and it looks like a big one." The speaker's eyes were glowing, and he ran on, breathlessly, "He says they're betting it will do better than ten thousand barrels!"

"Ten thousand bar'ls?" Briskow echoed.

"That's what he said. Of course, they can't tell a thing about it. Buddy's only guessing, but—I haven't had a big well yet." Gray took a nervous turn about the room.

"I'm going out on tonight's train and see it come in—if it does come in. I told Buddy to stop work; not to drop another tool until I arrived. 'Fatted for destruction.' I like the sound of that. Ten thousand barrels! Ho! I'll write this day in brass. Why, that lease will sell for a million. It—it may mean the end."

Gray brought himself to with an effort, hastily he kissed Mr Briskow's faded cheek and wrung her husband's hand. A moment later he was gone.

"Thirty-five," where Buddy was working, was only a few miles from the Briskow ranch, therefore the boy was able to meet his sister at Ranger and drive her directly to the old home.

The ranch house seemed very mean, very insignificant to Allie, but she slipped into one of her old dresses and prepared the supper while Buddy straddled a kitchen chair and chattered upon ten thousand topics of mutual interest.

On the morning of Gray's coming Allie rode with Buddy over to thirty-five. It was a wretched, rainy day, and nothing is more bleak than a rainy day in a drilling camp. Work had been halted and the men were loafing in their bunk house. Brother and sister spent the impatient hours in the mess tent.

Gray's trip from the railroad was more like a voyage than a motor journey, for the creek beds, usually dry, were angry torrents, and the 'dobe flats were quagmires through which his vehicle plowed hub deep; nevertheless, he was fresh and alert when he arrived. After a buoyant greeting to Allie, he and Buddy inspected the well, then he issued orders for work to be resumed.

Word had gone forth that there was something doing on thirty-five, and from the chaparral emerged muddy motor cars bringing scouts, neighboring lease owners, and even the members of a near-by casing crew.

Supper was a jumpy meal, and nobody had much to say. Allie Briskow least of all. She was silent, intense; she curtly refused Buddy's offer to send her home, and when the meal was over she followed Gray back to the derrick.

Buddy Briskow was running the rig, and the dexterity with which he handled brake and control rod gave him pride. He had seated his sister on a bench out of the way, where she was protected from the drizzle, and he felt her eyes upon him. It gave him a sense of importance to have Allie watching him at such a crisis; he wished his parents were with her.

He eased the brake and the massive baller slid into the casing as a heavy shell slips into the breech of a cannon. As he further released his pressure, the cable began to pour serpentlike from the drum. Buddy turned his wet, grimy face and flashed a grin at Allie. She smiled back at him faintly. Some lightning-like change in her expression, or perhaps some occult sense of the untoward warned him that all was not as it should be, and he jerked his head back to attention.

During that moment of inattention the baller had stuck. Perhaps five hundred feet below, friction had checked its plunge, and meanwhile the velvet-running drum, spinning at its maximum velocity by reason of the whirling bull wheel, was unreeling its cable down upon the derrick platform. Down it poured in giant loops, and within these coils, either unconscious of his danger or paralyzed by its suddenness, stood Calvin Grey.

Instinct, rather than reason, warned Buddy not to check the blinding revolutions of the bull wheel. Without thought he leaped forward into the midst of those swiftly forming loops, and as he landed upon the slippery floor he clenched his fist and struck with all the power he could put behind his massive arm. Gray's back was to him, the blow was like that of a walking beam, and it sent the elder man flying as a tenpin is hurled ahead of a bowling ball. Buddy fell, too. He went sprawling. As he slid across the muddy floor he felt the steel cable writhing under him like a thing alive, and the touch of it as it streamed into the well burned his flesh. He kicked and fought it as he would have fought the closing folds of a python, for the baller was falling again and the wire loops were vanishing as the coils in a whiplash vanish during its flight.

Buddy's booted legs were thrown high, he was tossed aside like a thing of paper, but blind, half stunned, he scrambled back to his post. By this time the whole structure of the derrick was rocking to the mad gyrations of the bull wheel; the giant spool was spinning with a speed that threatened to send it flying, like the fragments of a bursting bomb, but the youth understood dimly the danger of stopping it too suddenly—to fetch up the plunging weight at the cable end might snap the line, collapse the derrick. "Jim" the well. Buddy weaved dizzily in his tracks; nevertheless, his hand was steady, and he applied a gradually increasing pressure to the brake. Nor did he take his eyes from his task until the drum had ceased revolving and the runaway baller hung motionless in the well.

But Gray was not dead. Buddy's blow had well-nigh broken his neck, and he had suffered a further injury to his head in falling; nevertheless, he responded to such medical aid as they could supply, and in time he opened his eyes.

When for a second time he lapsed into semiconsciousness, it was Allie Briskow who put his orders into execution. "You ain't doing any good standing around staring at him and whispering. Bring in that well, as fast as ever you can, and bring it in big. Now, get out and leave him to me."

It was late that night when the well came in. It came with a rush and a roar, drenching the derrick with a geyser of muddy water and driving both crew and spectators out into the gloom. Up, up the column rose, spraying itself into mist, and from its iron throat issued a sound unlike that of any other phenomenon.

Calvin Gray had recovered his senses sufficiently to understand the meaning of that uproar, and he tried to get up, but Allie held him down upon his bed. She was still struggling with him when her brother burst into the house, shouting:

"It's a gusher, Mr. Gray! Biggest I ever seen."

"Gas!" the latter mumbled, indistinctly. "Isn't there any—oil?" His words were almost like a whisper because of the noise.

"Not yet. May be later. Say, she's a heller, ain't she? I'll bet she's makin' twenty million feet—"

"Can't tell yet. We gotta shut her down easy so she don't blow the casing out—run wild on us, understand?" Buddy was still breathless, but he plunged out the door and back into that sea of sound.

With a tragic intensity akin to wildness, Gray stared up into Allie Briskow's face. "Worthless, eh? And they told me ten thousand barrels." He carried a shaking hand to his bandaged head and tried vainly to collect his wits. "What's matter?" he queried, thickly. "Everything whirling—sick—"

"Running wild, eh? Tha's what hurts my head so. Blown the casing out— Bad, isn't it? Sometimes they run wild for weeks, years—ruin everything." He tried again to rise, then insisted, querulously: "Got to get oil in this well! I've got to! Last chance, Allie. Got to get ten thousand barrels!"

"Please! You mustn't—" Allie had her strong hands upon his shoulders; she was arguing firmly but as gently as possible under the circumstances, when something occurred so extraordinary, so unexpected, as to paralyze her. Of a sudden the interior of the dim-lit, canvas-roofed shack was illuminated as if by a searchlight, and she turned her head to see that the whole out-of-doors was visible and that the night itself had turned into day.

With a cry that died weakly amid the chaos of sound beating over her, the girl ran to the window and looked out. What she beheld was a nightmare scene. The well was afire. It had exploded into flame.

Allie tore her eyes away from the spectacle finally. She turned back to the bed, then she halted, for it was empty. The door, still ajar from Buddy's headlong exit, informed her whence her patient had gone, and she flew after him.

She found him not half a dozen paces away. In fact, she stumbled over his prostrate body. With an amazon's strength, she gathered him into her arms, then staggered with him back to his couch, and as she strained him to herself she loudly called his name.

MISSING SINCE THURSDAY NOON

Walter J. Chambers, Employee of Quaker Oats Being Sought by Friends

Walter J. Chambers, 155 Dublin street disappeared yesterday afternoon between 12.15 and 1 o'clock and no trace of him has yet been found.

Chambers was employed at the Quaker Oats Company's plant, and left there to go to dinner at 11.30. After dinner he left his home ostensibly to go to work at 12.15. He never reached the factory.

The police have made enquiries and have followed several tracks without result, except that they have ascertained that Chambers was last seen on the London street dam.

Friends of the missing man believe that he will return possibly to-night.

MILLION DOLLARS LOST IN A STORM

MONTE VIDEO, July 13.—(Canadian Press).—Three days of storm and flood have wrought damage to the city and harbor of Monte Video, estimated at one million dollars, and have been responsible for the loss of at least five lives by drowning.

Up to last night the British freighter Trefuis, reported aground off the Uruguayan coast, had not been located by the authorities.

It is feared that the steamers Rugia, Tuscany and Montforland were also driven aground in the storm.

CHAUTAUQUA ANNOUNCEMENT

Here Week August 2nd—List of Entertainers is Said to Be Finest Yet.

While the presentation of the Chautauqua in Peterborough has never been a financial success to the committee yet there have been so many people, who would regret losing the opportunity of hearing the different programs that it has been arranged for their appearance again in Peterobrough in August and it is hoped on account of the excellence of the talent taking part this year, the citizens will appreciate the efforts of the committee to such an extent as to make it self supporting.

The irrepressible, laughable comedy-success. "Cappy Ricks;" premier musical companies, including the Montague Light Opera Singers featuring "Gretchen of Holland," lectures by such headliners as Judge George D. Alden; unique children's entertainments; John B. Ratto, clever impersonator-entertainer; these are among the many high-grade attractions which will appear here at the big 1923 Dominion Redpath Chautauqua which opens Thursday August 2nd and continues for six days.

The Metropolitan Orchestra, widely-known concert artists, will launch the Chautauqua on the first afternoon with a popular concert. Following a prelude by this Company on the first night, John B. Ratto, clever impersonator and entertainer, will present a series of interesting characters in "make-up", along with clever jests, fun and bits of wisdom.

The ever-popular Glen Wells Company, on the second afternoon, will present a complete three-act play, "Atonement," written especially for them by Herbert Thomas, eminent English playwright.

On the second night the Wells Company will give a prelude of popular musical numbers and miscellaneous readings, following which, Judge George D. Alden, eminent jurist and lecturer, will deliver his great address. "The Needs of the Hour."

COMMENT UNNECESSARY.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 13 (Canadian Press). — "Just at present I am endeavouring to assist in the adjustment of the trouble here, and feel that any comment on Mr. Murdock's telegram is unnecessary," was Premier Armstrong's comment this morning when shown the despatch in which the Hon. The Petes will be at full strength for the battle, all the outfit, including Hap Harrison, being ready for the fray.

IF A MAN IS RIGHT.

If a man is right he can afford to go ahead full steam. To be right means mainly to be in tune with destiny, and willing to carry on. It does not necessarily mean to be agreeable, nor to be agreed with nor to be popular; but it does mean to be useful in the purpose which destiny is trying to achieve.

If a man is right he need not fear about standing alone. He is not alone. If he seems to be, it is only a test of his mettle and sincerity. Every idea that is right has many silent adherents. Raise your voice and you will hear them coming. Destiny is kind; it never asks a human being to do anything alone.

ALLIES WOULD WELCOME HELP FROM AMERICA

Unofficial Sources Profess To Have Information On The Subject Press Comment

WANT A CHAIRMAN

LONDON, July 14. — (Canadian Press).—In the multifarious newspaper discussions respecting the drafting of British reply to German reparation's note and whether France will co-operate therein refernce to a possible United States participation is in a suggested commission for appraising Germany's capacity to pay, continue frequent.

Unofficial sources profess to have certain amount of information on the subject. Diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph for instance says that in order to overcome jurisdictional objections which might otherwise be expected from Paris. It is proposed that the commission shall operate within the frame work of the Versailles Treaty by acting as a committee to reparations commission. It is said that all Allies would welcome on the committee, preferably in the chair, an eminent American jurist such as William Howard Taft or Elisu Root. The writer, however, is confident that United States participations would be withheld if discussion of Allied debts were on the committees agenda.

Assertions that Premier Beldwin's statement has created discussion in Conservative party and that the die-hard section is breaking away from the government does not receive general support from the Press.

The Daily Mail still maintains its attitude of hostility towards Mr. Baldwin's statement which it repeats today, is halting, indecisive and leads nowhere.

MONEY EXHAUSTION MAY END STRIKES

SYDNEY, Nova Scotia, July 14.—Canadian Press).— Outstanding developments in strike situation yesterday were as follows:

Two trains of coal were hauled from bank at No 2 colliery, New Aberdeen, to Sydney, the first meeting a fusillade of rocks from the strikers, as it passed through Dominion, and second moving through guard lines of mounted troops as it ran through area of earlier disorder.

Premier Armstrong concluded his conference with representatives of steel workers union and representatives of British Empire Steel Corporation, and his offer to prepare and submit plan that will improve internal management of steel plant, protect rights of men, and secure more harmony between them and company and better service, brought from Union Executive a promise to give such plan its serious consideration.

Committee representative of large body of non-union employees of steel plant waited upon Premier Armstrong and gave assurance of their desire to continue steadily at work if protection is guaranteed them.

Exhaustion of money and supplies particularly among large numbers of miners who are without savings or reserve stocks of necessaries and are drawing no strike allowance, must soon become powerful factor in case but until that stage is reached the situation may drag along much as it is.

Water Consumption Is on the Increase

Water consumption in the city while not as large as last year, is gradually increasing as the heat grows more intense.

There are certain rules made by the city governing the use of water and the observance of these will facilitate the work at the pump house and filteration plant. These regulations allow nine hours every day for the watering of lawns, and these comprise the most suitable periods of the day. From 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. and from 5 a.m. to 9 a.m. are the hours set apart for watering lawns and gardens. It is considered that no hardship is imposed by these limitations, and citizens are expected to observe them.

NEW PARK FOR THE CITIZENS

Restful Retreat Created at the Site of New Filtration Plant.

Beautiful shade trees, rolling green lawns, pretty terraces and interesting environment mark the new park which has been laid out for the citizens of Peterborough under the direction of Ross L. Dobbin, Waterworks superintendent. Very few have yet discovered this restful retreat, which is part of the property of the filteration plant, and parallels the river as far north as the pumping station.

Several men are busy every day watering the lawns, sodding new sections, and generally beautifying this park. In its present condition it makes a perfect camping place for an afternoon's quietness for older people or a wholesome romp for the children. It is free, open twenty-four hours a day, has a pretty picket fence to keep children off the road, and is only a short walk from the end of the car line.

An additional attraction to citizens who are interested in the progress of the city is its proximity to the filteration plant. This plant gives water purity which is second to none in the country, and well repays an inspection. Any citizen is invited to visit the plant at any hour of the day or night, and he will be courteously shown the intricate process of making the dirty river water pure and wholesome. An hour of any man's time would be well spent in seeing the difference between this water where it enters the filter and samples taken after filteration.

City Well Protested.

Several tests are taekn daily at four widely scattered points in the city. These are analysed in the laboratory and the results noted in a record book. The attendant will explain the process of purification to visitors.

The water is stored in huge underground cisterns, and over these cisterns there have been built beautiful sodded terraces, and these formed the genesis of what has grown under Mr. Ross' ministrations into a pretty park.

The gateway is always open to automobiles, and for those who walk from the end of the car line there is a smaller gateway giving access directly to the best spot for partaking of a picnic lunch. A giant elm spreads its shade over a corner of the larger terrace, and an apple tree not far away is laden with green apples, which give promise of improving as the summer progresses.

Any citizen who wants a pleasant place to picnic, or is interested in the processes which make Peterborough's water supply among the best in the province, should accept Mr. Dobbin's invitation to the city's new park.

SILVER PLATE FOR RETIRING OFFICER

Col. McPherson Was The Guest of the Rangers at Mess Dinner

Colonel A. W. McPherson, M. D., who has retired from the command of the Peterboro Rangers was the guest of the officers of the regiment at dinner in their quarters at the Armouries on Thursday Evening. Captain Winterbottom, president of the mess was chairman, and Colonel J. W. Miller, presented Colonel McPherson with a beautiful silver tray on behalf of the officers and as a remembrance of their associations together in service.

Col. Miller recalled the old days of the regiment when Dr. McPherson was promoted from a sergeancy and as a commissioned officer materially helped in maintaining the efficiency of the regiment.

Dr. McPherson acknowledged the gift of the officers, and wished the Rangers every success under their new commanding officer, Lieut. Colonel Bradburn.

THE JAPANESE TO TAKE OVER FOREIGN FIELD

Protestant Church Organizations Will Be Taken Over by the Japs in a Short Time.

ONLY A BEGINNING

TOKIO, July 14.—(United Press) — Christian Japanese are preparing to take charge of Protestant church organization hitherto conducted by foreign missionaries.

Native Episcopal Bishops have supplemented the American and English Bishops, who formerly were in charge of the districts of Tokio and Osaka the largest church districts of the Empire. This is believed here to be only the beginning and it is expected that Japanese members will soon eb at the head of many other religious enterprises formerly conducted by foreigners. Foreign missions and missionaries will continue to operate, but more and more control will be placed in the hands of the natives.

The Japanese are doing in the Christian religion, what they have done and are doing in banking, newspaper making, steamships and all forms of business. That is, they send Japanese to foreign countries to become experts in various fields and bring foreign experts as teachers to Japan.

The Japanese feel that they have learned all that the foreigners can teach them about running steamships, making newspapers conducting banks or organizing Christian churche, they can take control themselves.

FARMER DRAGGED AT TEAM'S HEELS

Thrown From Mower When The Horses Took Fright—Douro Farmer's Narrow Call

Run over by a mower from which he was thrown by a sudden plunge of his startled team, and dragged about the field as they milled around in their flight, John McMurray, a farmer living on the second concession of Douro about a mile from Warsaw, escaped death as by a miracle on Friday afternoon.

He was turning his horses while cutting hay when they bolted suddenly at something which it was thought might have been a ground hog. Mr. McMurray hadn't a chanec to control them, and they dashed across the field after hurling him from the seat. It all happened so quickly that very little of the details were realized by Mr. McMurray himself. Some of his injuries and the fact that he was rendered unconscious at once, indicate that the mower passed over him.

He was dragged a long distance and his body was bruised literally from head to foot, with rather deep gashes down one side from arm to hip. The machine was badly damaged, but the horses were unhurt.

Mr. McMurray is reported to have regained consciousness lying in the field, but just how long he lay there could not be estimated.

AN ASSUALT CASE DISMISSED TODAY

In Police Court, this morning, before Magistrate O. A. Langley, George Richmond was charged with assaulting George Moncrief and his wife, Sadie Moncrief. George Mon-Moncrief laid the information and conducted his own case. F. J. O'Brien appeared for the defendant. Both charges were dismissed without costs. George Moncrief went into the stand first and told his version of the incident, assisted by questions from Magistrate Langley. He alleged that on July 9, he and his wife sitting on thier verandah when they saw Richmond on his verandah and called him over. Richmond, the witness said, had been telling stories about him, and he wanted an explanation. The conversation grew heated, and Richmond invited the complainant out into the road to fight. Complainant would not go, and Richmond struck him in the face with his fist. He was making another blow when he struck Mrs. Moncrief's arm, which turned black because of the bruise. The assailant then ran away.

SCHOOL OF SHARKS MADE A RAID CONEY ISLAND BEACH

Hundreds of Bathers Driven to Shore in a Panic —Guards Saw the Sharks

NEW YORK, July 14.—(Canadian Press).—The cry of "sharks," started by a small boy, and taken up by hundreds on Coney Island board walk, threw thousands of bathers into a panic late yesterday afternoon.

The bathers looked seaward, and there, just outside the outer life lines, they say they saw the fins of a school of twenty sharks cutting the water. A general scramble for the beach followed. Women picked up their children and scurried for the shore. People knocked each other down in their flight and women and children screamed in fear.

Ten women, rendered helpless from fright, hung feebly to the life-lines, and four of them were partly overcome and were restored by artifical respiration when life-guards had taken them ashore.

According to the life-guards, the school numbered about twenty fish, most of which were of the variety known as sand sharks, and which weighed about 250 pounds each. With them, the guards say, were some larger sharks of the man-eating variety.

Would Complete Trent Canal

What can be done to again place this city in the forward march of progress?

The completion of the Trent Canal would be of great advantage to the City of Peterborough, but, to this suggestion, the dry-rot brain of the excuse-finder will immediately suggest that it cannot be done. Canada owes too much money as a result of the war to complete such an undertaking.

The fact is that Canada already has a capital investment in the Trent Canal down to date of $18,654,195, and it would take a little more than a million and a half dollars to complete it. The Trent Canal in its uncompleted state is like a farm without a barn; it is like a warehouse without doors or windows; it is like a factory equipped with machinery with any motive power, none of which can be utilized to profitable advantage until completed—and until completed the idle capital already expended, represents wilful waste. The eighteen million dollars already expended on Trent Canal represents a yearly loss of one million dollars in interest alone. It surely would be good business to spend two million dollars if necessary, and have the canal completed so that it will become an artery of commerce leading from the Great Lakes to our Ocean Ports.

This artery of commerce would be 250 miles shorter than any other route and would furnish cheaper transportation than any of the present routes. Facts and figures supporting this statement can be furnished to anyone who wants them.

The Quaker Oats Co., after a careful survey of the various points in the Province of Ontario decided 20 years ago to locate in Peterborough, and were then assured that active steps would be taken for the completion of the Trent Canal, and upon the faith of the representations that were made to representatives of the Quaker Oats Co., they did locate in Peterborough.

About a month ago when Mr. Robert Stuart, of the Quaker Oats Co., was here, he stated that if the Trent Canal were completed "OUR OWN COMPANY WOULD BE PREPARED TO BUILD A TERMINAL ELEVATOR UPON THE GEORGIAN BAY NEAR THE ENTRANCE TO THE CANAL, AND WOULD PUT ON A FLEET OF BARGES FOR THE CARRYING OF GRAIN FROM GEORGIAN BAY TO PETERBOROUGH, AND TO CARRY THE FINISHED PRODUCTS FROM PETERBOROUGH TO MONTREAL."

The establishment of this fleet of barges upon the Trent Canal would not only stimulate industrial activity in Peterborough, but would be a strong inducement to other manufacturers to locate here, BECAUSE CHEAPER TRANSPORTATION WOULD THEREBY BE FURNISHED NOT ONLY ON OUT-GOING BUT ON IN-COMING FREIGHT.

It is needless to say that Mr. Staurts interview passed by without any notice whatever being taken of it, by either the City Council or the Chamber of Commerce.

The City Council spent $300 to send some one to the New York Motor Show to bring tourists up the Trent Waterway to its dead end, and to lead them back again with the impression that the Trent Waterway is incomplete, and is no use as a commercial undertaking, as no one knows when it will be completed, because it has already been 86 years in being built thus far. As these tourists return through Peterborough from the dead end of the Trent Canal at the Severn River they say "No wonder Peterborough is lagging behind because its representative citizens are taking no interest whatever in the completion of this splendid waterway, that has such a potential value."

Fifty-eight million bushels of grain were carried from the Great Lakes down the St. Lawrence last year to our ocean ports. Had the Trent Canal been completed a large percentage of this grain would have come by way of Peterborough, and would have been ground in transit, and a great deal of employment would have been given to workmen at every step. From a milling view point, there is no reason why the City of Peterborough should not be the Minneapolis of Ontario.

When, may it be asked, will the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce put the Trent Canal on its agenda or the City Council place it on its order of business?

R. R. HALL.

Peterborough, July 14, 1923.

ENQUIRIES FOR A MISSING WOMAN

Relative Named M. Jones Said To Live In Peterboro

Chief of Police Newhall has been in receipt lately of inquiries regarding one Bessie Connolly, formerly in the employ of Fraiser, Brace and Co., 83 Craig street west, Montreal, who was supposed to have died in New York in 1919. At the time of the woman's death there was some question of identity, but the Montreal firm identified the body as that of their former employee, Bessie Connolly.

Recently a life insurance company in New York city was presented with a death claim, which stated that the supposed Bessie Connolly was none other than one Maggie Casey. The insurance company is now trying to discover any facts with regard to the deceased. Bessie Connolly was said by her former employers to have a sister or some relative by the name of M. Jones, in Peterboro. Maggie Casey was supposed to have a sister [illegible] West and the insurance people are trying to clear up the case.

OTHER FIGURES

City Clerk S. R. Armstrong has the following to say regarding the growth of the city:

"Many years ago a member of the Canadian Government while in England negotiating a loan referred in terms somewhat glowing to the financial and business position of the Dominion. After returning he took an opposite view, and when he was charge with being inconsistent he said that in England he "turned the other side of the shield." Some facts may give one impression while all the facts may modify that impression.

The assessor's return showed the population of Peterborough in 1915 to be 20,653 and his last return, which was that of 1922, showed an increase of 952, which is not a decrease but an increase, whether a gratifying one or not.

In the last Dominion census decade nearly every township in this county had a decrease of population, except North Monaghan, and North Monaghan had an increase of 1085. That growth was not in the farming community; it was practically although not municipally an increase in the urban population of Peterborough. If the increase in population within the city and in the immediate suburbs in North Monaghan are counted together they will show an increase in actual population greater than twelve other cities of Ontario. One city and a number of towns in the Province had an actual decrease in population in that time, including one that had a decrease of 1208 or 17 per cent.

There was an influx of United States capital into Canada in the ten years. Six branches of United State industries were established in Peterborough alone during that time, three time as many as during the whole previous history of the city.

This city, with these and other additions which it had to its industries would have had a much larger increase in population but for one fact, and that is that the largest industry in the city has not yet got back to employing as large a number as it did previous to the war. It has more employed now than when the census was taken in 1921 and is forging ahead. The large difference in the number employed in that industry makes quite a difference to the population, and yet in spite of that, there has been an increase."

TORONTO TO GUARD PEOPLE FROM COLD

Board of Control Authorized to Purchase Coal Supply to Guard Against Shortage.

TORONTO July 14.— (Canadian Press).— Civic authorities are not going to be caught napping if rumored strike troubles should precipitate coal shortage similar to that of last winter One of final acts of city council yesterday's provation sitting was adoption of following motion authorizing board of control to take steps to meet any emergency.

"Resolved, that Board of Control be, and are hereby, authorized to purchase any quantity of coal, which in their opinion may be deemed necessary to obtain from time to time in order to make reasonable provision to effectively guard against possible fuel shortage and to dispose of such coal to citizens

THE SUMMER VISITORS AT CHEMONG PARK ARE HAVING GOOD SEASON

Dr. C. C. Cragg has Opened an Office

A new comer to the medical fraternity of the city is Dr. C. C. Cragg, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist. Dr. Cragg has taken over the office formerly occupied by Dr. F. C. Neal at the Corner of Charlotte and Rubige streets. Dr. Cragg formerly practiced in the west, but for some time past, has been on the continent taking special studies in London, Vienna and Budapest.

Dr. Cragg is not altogether a stranger to Peterboro having spent some of his youth here and attended the local schools. He is very much impressed with the city and its many advantages Dr. Cragg has lived in the West where towns and cities have been afflicted by boom periods and he knows what it means for a city like Peterboro that enjoys continued expension and prosperity without the reactions that inevitably follow a boom.

NEW MATERIAL TO STOP DUST

Calcium Chlorine Being Used on Water Street North and is Working Out Fine.

How many people passing over the River Road lately have noticed that there is no dust on a strip extending past the filteration plant, despite the welcome relief from street oil?

A new substance is being tried out on that part of the road, one of the dustiest in the environs of Peterborough, and is apparently proving very successful. Calcium chloride, a white, flaky substance, which would suggest a washing compound to the housewife, is scattered over the roadway. Although perfectly dry when taken from the storage sacks, this substance collects moisture from the air, and very soon settles the dust on the roadway. When a flake is held on the hand for a few seconds a bead of moisture appears.

The stretch of road running past the filteration plant was treated about a month ago, yet, scarcely a wisp of dust was raised by cars passing over the road to-day. The substance is odorless, invisible, and clean—three virtues which do not appertain to road oil. This test is being made by the city, presumably with the idea of substituting the calcium chloride if it proves efficient. Two applications, it is claimed, will last through the season.

Fishing Reports Are Meagre But There Are Many Fish Rumours in the Air—Starting a Zoo

NEW COTTAGES UP

The Summer Colony at Chemong Park is in a florishing condition this year. The majority of the cottages are occupied. The Park's total of nearly a hundred and fifty summer homes has probably only about seven or eight empty cottages. There are good crowds every night at the Pavilion, where the Parkdale Serenade Orchestra, with four players from Toronto and one from Buffalo, provides excellent music. Fishing reports are meagre, but there is a rumour in the air of a twenty-eight pound lunge gathered from the Lake this year A couple of miles farther up, the catch is said to be good.

Mr. Pete Gettas, at the Pavilion, is adding to his menagerie. A small red calf, that little Billy Ingram says must look like its father, because he can't see any resemblance to its auburn coat, is the latest addition to his collection, which includes an owl in a large cage, a small while goat, and a dozen of more pheasant chicks.

The pheasants were hatched out by a motherly hen from Government supplied eggs, and the owl proved the undoing of the Pavilion's pet crow, which pined away and died after the bird of wisdom had been placed in the screened-off portion of the crows' cage.

Of the new cottages built this year, and occupied now by their owners, the list includes that of W. J. Oke James Skinner, R. H. Hunter, G Macdonald of the Quaker Oats, A. Robinson of the DeLaval Company, anad Wm. B. Warne, of the Warne Drug Company.

F. C. Hungerford, manager of the Woolworth Company, has purchased and is occupying the cottage on the lower level recently owned by Mr. G. H. Popham.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Patte and family have been at the Park for some time. Master Jack, visiting his grandmother's camp recently, pulled out five bass in a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Duffus and family are in their summer home at the Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Ingram and son Billy are in the cottage, near the Pavilion, on the main road. Mr. and Mrs. Dan Sullivan are just next door.

Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Gordon and son will occupy the Hughes-Charles cottage during August and September.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyde of Toronto are at the Park this year, with their small son and daughter, Doris, who was adjudged Canada's most beautiful child in a recent contest.

TIPS OFF POLICE.

Ruth Norman, 18-year-old movie extra, who recently arrived in Hollywood, from Chicago, has made a statement to Los Angeles police, they announce, which resulted in the arrest of a film director, an actor, and a former detective, in an alleged swindle plot. Wealthy business men were to have been the victims according to her statement, officials say.

Polly's Feathers Grew After Death

NEW ORLEANS, July 14 (United Press).—Mrs. George Spellman, who resides at 4830 Cleveland avenue, this city, boasts of a stuffed parrot which she says has continued to grow feathers during the thirty years of its "stuffed life."

The parrot, "Polly Alex," was given to Mrs. Spellman when she was a chil. After twenty odd years of companionship, the prized bird died. She had the taxidermist mount the dead pet and placed it in a glass enclosure. Every year, according to Mrs. Spellman, she has pruned the growing feathers of "Polly Alex" until she has clipped a total of something like six feet from the feathers of the dead bird. Mrs. Spellman has kept the "clippings" to prove her statements. The growth of feathers was confined to the tail and wings.

An orithologist connected with the State Conservation Department here declared the case an unusual one. He has known of feather growth to continue on stuffed birds until the little nutritation left in the feather quills became thoroughly dried out. This, however, only lasts a short time.

GERMANY FILLING AIR WITH RADIO MESSAGES

NAUEN, Germany, July 14—(Associated Press).—German wireless telegraphy flashed 51,139 words abroad in one day recently, surpassing all previous records. Thirty-five thousand words went to the United States alone, while most of the remainder was sent to Spain, Italy, Russia and Egypt. The bulk of the traffic was handled here and at the Eilwesen station.

TEST DRIVERS

State motor vehicle officials, convening in Chicago, have been laying plans to make every auto driver in 13 middle western states prove his fitness to operate a car before being granted a 1924 driving license.

Eventually this will be the general rule in all states. It'll have to be, to curb the rapidly mounting auto accident toll. A considerable fraction of motorists (about the same percentage as of pedestrians) have defective vision, slow and inaccurate judgment and a scarcity of common sense. Better to begin regulating them rigidly before they take to the more dangerous vehicle, flying flivvers.

KING CALLED DOWN

King of England gets called down by a hospital nurse for rocking a cradle. It seems that the medical profession is swinging "agin" cradle rocking, claiming that it makes the baby ill.

It's an iconoclastic age we live in, and no idea or custom is safe from the reformers and researchers. It's a phase of the pandemic of social neurasthenia—nervous restlessness.

Fate served me meanly, but I looked at her and laughed,
That nong might know how bitter was the cup I quaffed,
Along came Joy and paused beside me where I sat,
Saying, "I came to see what you were laughing at."

FRENCH PAPERS ARE CAUSTIC IN COMMENT ON POLICY OF BRITAIN

FEARS FRANCE?

PARIS, July 14. — (Canadian Press).—The British Prime Minister's statement of policy lost some of its sugar coating for the French newspapers overnight and yesterday afternoon's editions had become rather acid, with a strong flavor of sarcasm and some ridicule, in their comments.

The semi- official Temps prints a two-column blast, concluding: "England persists in her policy of maintaining balance of power between the powers on the European continent."

All the newspapers emphasized that Premier Baldwin condemned the Ruhr occupation, but did not reprove Germany for her passive resistance.

L'Intransigeant calls the statement "only another in a long string of documents," reminding Great Britain that the French are in the Ruhr and that "we are not going to spoil the occupation when it is half finished."

The paper admits that France would be greatly distressed if the entente were broken, but adds: "If its maintenance is to be at the price of our abdication and the cancellation of the German debt, we would deem the cost too dear"

Jacques Bainville, the political writer, says in La Liberte: "The statement has no sort of sense from a practical point of view and it is evident that Mr. Baldwin does not know himself how he world and peace can be saved.

"The questions for France are whether she can sign the reply before passive resistance ceases, as this has been an absolute condition, and also whether France and Belgium will stand together in refusing to sign Premier Baldwin,s answer to the German note."

Auguste Gavain, in the Journal Des Debats, characterizes the statement as courteous in form, but medicore in substance, and supporting a view opposed to that of France and Belgium.

"So," he add, "no step has been made since January toward a real accord."

He thinks France will examine Mr. Baldwin's reply, "but although willing to talk it over with Great Britain, she is resolved not to re-open negotiations with Berlin before the insurrection against the Treaty of Versailles is ended."

M. Gauvain expresses regret that "Mr. Baldwin's deeds do not reflect the feeling he professes to have regarding the alliance with France."

The Temps dissects the statement, phrase by phrase, attempting to refute Premier Baldwin's assertions and to show that Great Britain is prospering by the Ruhr occupation and Germany is not being wrecked. It reproaches Great Britain for condemning the occupation inquiring if Britain "was equally disturbed over the occupation of French territory in 1871; did she regret proposing indefinite occupation of Herzegovina by Austria in 1878; was she much distressed at occupying Egypt indefinitely, and did she deplore maintaining troops in Persia."

In conclusion, The Temps, says:

"Great Britain wants to be paid by Germany, but is afraid France will have too much influence in Europe. As the French are occupying the Ruhr it is against the French policy that England's efforts are stubbornly directed. and yesterday's declaration, especially by its apparent moderation, has for its object, above al, to create a movement of world opinion against the French Government.

"However if Germany recovers, London's balance of power will switch in the other direction, as it did when the Kaiser imprudently exclaimed: 'Our future is on the sea.' This policy of playing one against the other, which England does not employ only between France and Germany, has contributed much to European chaos."

Paddlers Ignored Cries of Drowning Children.

STILLWATER, Minn., July 14.—(Canadian Press.)— Within a short distance of a passing canoe, Emil Bretzel and his eight year year old sister of St. Paul, were drowned in the St. Croix river Thursday afternoon. The boy made frantic appeals to the canoeists, which were ignored and the paddlers kept on their course, explaining they were afraid of overturning their boat.

Ideal Roadway Now Nearing Completion.

DETROIT, Mich., July 14.—(United Press).—"The ideal section, now being completed on the Lincoln Highway in Lake County, Indiana, is justifying all our hopes and efforts in its planning and construction," said A. F. Bement, Vice-President and Secretary of the Lincoln Highway Association, upon his return from the site.

"That section is the finest and most beautiful piece of road on the Lincoln Highway between New York and San Francisco." said Bement. "It is a revelation as to what can be accomplished at moderate expense by careful planning, expert advice and a consideration of all of the manifold elements which enter into the proper designing of a modern main artery highway."

Elaborate plans are under consideration by the association for the formal opening of the ideal section as soon as the last touches have been added. Highway engineers from every section of the country will be invited to inspect the finished work.

How Hot Is Lightning?

BERLIN, July 14.—(Associated Press).—The question of the degree of heat generated by lightning has been agitated recently in German scientific circles because of the effect, observed after electrical storms, of lightning on the tips of lightning rods.

It was found that a platinum tip melted on being struck. Since the melting-point of platinum is variously fixed at 1,700 to 1,800 degrees centrigrade, it was clear that the lightning's heat exceeded that temperature. Later an instance developed in which an iridium tip was melted by a stroke. The melting-point of this metal is said to be 2,000 degrees centrigrade.

BLOOD STAINS IN PRIEST'S CAR ARE EXPLAINED

MOVEMENTS ON JAN. 6

MONTREAL, July 14.— (Canadian Press.)—Witnesses for the defence passed in a swift procession through the court here yesterday afternoon in the trial of Rev. Father Delorme, charged with the murder of his half brother, Raoul. Neither examination nor cross-examination by the Crown took up much of the time of any of them and the hearing appears to be much expedited at this point of the proceedings. A copy of a local afternoon paper of January 9, 1922, dealing with the Delorme case was read into the evidence. Following this Hermas Bastien, formerly reporter on Le Canada and now a school teacher, was recalled and corrected a statement made in his earlier evidence. He said he had told the detectives that he had seen a car bearing what seemed to be a dead man at 1:30 in the morning of January 7, 1922. He now desired to make the time 2:30, since he had left Le Canada that morning not earlier than 2:15. Cross-examined by E. L. Calder, K.C., counsel for the Crown, he denied that he had been dismissed from La Patrie, another paper on which he had worked, for inaccuracy. He had left because of a cut in salaries.

Madame Jacob Baiziane, of 194 St. Hubert street, a next door neighbor of the abbe at his residence at the time of the crime, testified that she had telephoned the abbe at 11:30 or 11:45 on the night of Jan. 6 in regard to the lack of warmth in her house. He had spoken on the telephone and said he was going to make the fire and would shake the furnace. She had heard the latter operation at about midnight. In cross-examination she declared that it was difficult not to look at the clock since it was in the dining room and it was a habit to look at it. She had heard no other noise after that of the furnace being shaken.

Mrs. Matilda Gervais who lives in a tenement belonging to Abbe Delorme, was called and declared she had telephoned the priest between three and four in the afternoon of January 6 and that she had seen him next day also in regard to the warmth of her house. She had heard some one working at the furnace early in the evening, but could not say who it was. Her daughter, Bertha Gervais then came on the stand and confirmed her mother's testimony as to telephoning the abbe in the afternoon of January 6. She recalled having a teelphone conversation with the abbe as to the heating of the house, but could not remember whether it was that night or not.

Wilfrid Chartrand took the stand and stated that the abbe had called at his house at 422 City Hall avenue at five o'clock in the afternoon of Jan. 6 to see Ernest Leclair, his furnace man. He had stayed about five minutes. The fireman left to attend to the abbe's furnaces shortly after five, returning to the City Hall avenue about 9. To his knowledge he did not go out afterwards that night. He did not know where Leclair could not be found.

Both Mr. Calder and C. H. Cahan, K.C., counsel for the defence, here informed the court that they had searched everywhere, the prisons and the hospitals and had been unable to locate Leclair. Mr. Calder added that Leclair held himself at the disposition of the police until after the trial last June. He could not swear that he had left Canada.

Michael Barry recalled, declared that he had been playing cards until about 2:30 in the morning of January 7, 1922 and that on going home in the financial section of the city he had seen a car on St. Francis Xavier street and a little later on St. Sulpice. There were three men in the car and in it was a bundle in white which at one point they seemed to wish to throw out. The car resembled a McLaughlin. In cross-examination witness said he was on the west side of St. James street. This thoroughfare runs from East to West, and witness corrected himself by saying he was walking on the left hand side which counsel pointed out would be the north side.

Farm Destroyed by Wind and Lightning

SASKATOON, Sask., July 14.—Canadian Press. — The entire farm of F. J. Howship, one mile west of Crandore, Sask.,—house, stables, granaries and half a dozen smaller buildings—was wiped out by lightning and wind shortly after six o'clock on Thursday night. Lightning struck the house and it was a mass of flames in less than a minute. The farmer and his wife and child escaped. When they reached the open there was nothing to be seen of any of the farm buildings except heaps of wreckage here and there. The wind carried a big fanning mill nearly 800 yards. It also lifted a hay-rack and dumped it down 175 yards away. Machinery was lifted and then scattered all over the landscape.

One hundred and fifty chickens were killed. Howship said that he could not find any of his pigs. They had been blown away.

The cloudburst that accompanied the lightning and wind was the worst the farmer had experienced in 17 years on the prairies. Other farms close by were practically untouched.

ANCIENT BELL FOUND IN ABBEY.

Ecclesiastical Bell Given to Priest By St. Patrick Is Recovered.

BELFAST, July 14.—(Associated Press).—The ancient ecclesiastical bell of Nendrum, given to St. Mochaoi on his ordination by St. Patrick, has been found by workmen during the course of excavating the ruins of Nendrum Abbey.

The workmen found the bell hidden in an angle of the ancient foundations for the walls, while clearing away the debris which had collected for centuries.

The bell is made of riveted wrought iron, originally covered with a coating of bronze, and except for a crack at the base and a portion of the handle, which has been broken off, it is in perfect condition, though much corroded.

TWO VILLAGES WERE SWEPT AWAY BY FIRE

Mining Towns of Mace and Burke Were Completely Destroyed By Forest Fires--Thousands Homeless.

FIRE UNCHECKED.

SPOKANE, Wn., July 14.—Canadian Press).—The mining towns of Mace and Burke, east of Kellogg, Idaho, are reported destroyed by forest fires sweeping up the western slope of the Bitter Root Mountains. Wire communication with the fire-swept district is down. Fear is felt for the lives of tourists on the Yellowstone Trail highway, which is understood from meagre reports to be in the path of the flames.

A thousand persons are reported homeless in the two towns. Mace is destroyed. The business section of Burke is in flames and little hope is held for saving what remains of the town. Loss up to 4 p.m., yesterday, was estimated at between $300,000 and $400,000, and the property of the fire is said to be unchecked. Attempts to block the fire by dynamiting homes, business houses and mine structures proved futile because of the high wind.

With the business section of Burke completely gone and a large partion of the residence section burning, fire fighting efforts at 4.30 p.m., centered a short distance up the canyon from Burke, where the large hotel of the Hercules Mining Company, together with the miners' recreation

All miners of the rich silver-lead mines of the district estimated at several thousand, have turned to fighting the fire.

OTTAWA, July 14. Canadian Press. — Colonel E. J. Chambers, gentleman usher of the Black Rod, left last night for Vancouver to assume on behalf of the Dominion government, the direction of the arrangements made for the reception of President Harding, Mrs. Harding and party, upon the occasion of their approaching visit to Canada.

The president of the United States having been invited to visit the principal Canadian cities on the Pacific Coast, as a guest of the Dominion, no pains are being spared to impart a thoroughly national character to the reception. The address of welcome to the president, signed on behalf of the government and people of Canada, by the Prime Minister, the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, has been handsomely engrossed and will be read by the Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, representing the Prime Minister.

Mr. King is at present in British Columbia and had already arranged the outlines of the reception.

The main function will include a formal reception on arrival in naval and military setting, a huge popular luncheon under provincial and municipal auspices, and a formal dinner at the Hotel Vancouver, given in honor of the Nation's guests by the Government of Canada. To this function the leading men in official and public life in western Canada and their wives will be invited.

Naval Guns Silent As Consul Went Aboard.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(Associated Press)—A problem in naval courtesy has been presented to the department by Capt. E. T. Pollock, governor of American Samoa, and is now awaiting the consideration of a yet unfound Solomon.

What action is proper, Capt. Pollock want to know, when the navy regulations order a specified salute to an official of a foreign government, and that official urgently requests that it be withheld?

Entering the harbor of Tonga, a native insular kingdom 500 miles southwest of Samoa, Capt. Pollock found resident there a British consul who at the same time was deputy commissioner of the British Colonial Office. As a consul he "rated" 7 guns, as a colonial agent 11 guns. Capt. Pollock indicated that he was willing to shoot the maximum in the interest of binational comity, but was informed courteously, that the British government had the question of which salute was proper under consideration, and the resident would be pleased if the matter could be held in abeyance until a decision was reached.

No salute was fired, but Capt. Pollock made a report indicating that the problem was a new one even to an officer of his long experience.

EARLY MORNING GAMBLERS.

MOSCOW, July 14.—(Associated Press)—When the croupiers and dealers of the all night gambling housese of Moscow are tired and heavy eyed, which is about seven o'clock every morning, there comes gaily int otheir rooms groups of fresh and wakeful men, just up from a good night's sleep. They are alert and brisk, and they play against the fatigued and weary professionals. What is more, they almost always win. They call themselves the "Seven o'clock Daisies."

Big Increase in Fees For Trappers.

OTTAWA, July 14. —(Canadian Press.)—With a view to discouraging the growing influx of foreign trappers into the Northwest territories, the Government has increased the license fees which must be paid. Instead of the former $2 fee bonafide residents of the Northwest territories will pay $5; non-residents British subjects will pay $150 as compared with $75 under the old regulations, and other non-residents will be called upon to pay $300 which is an increase of one hundred per cent.

Strict Regulations to Control Chinese.

OTTAWA, July 14. — (Canadian Press.)—Changes in regulations affecting Chinese immigration have been announced by the Government. Applicants for substitutional certificates must pay $25 in future. The fee for endorsing passports will be $10.

Owners, agents or masters of vessels upon which Chinese are employed, upon entering Canadian ports, must place cash bonds of $1,000 for every Chinese employee. While in port Chinese members of the crew will not be allowed to land.

MINERS IGNORE ORDER.

DRUMHELLER, Alta., July 14.—(Canadian Press.)—The strike situation here was unchanged yesterday. A wire was received from President W. A. Sherman, of District 18 U.M. W. A. ordering the men back to work, but no notice was taken of this.

INFERIOR U. S. WHEAT MIXED WITH CANADIAN CAUSES SERIOUS LOSS

Royal Grain Commission Told That Very Little Canadian Wheat Reaches Market Unadulterated.

WHEAT POOL NEEDED.

ALSASK, Sask., July 14.—(Canadian Press).— Canadian agriculture is being deprived of its natural progress by present system of marketing and mixing grain, declared Lorne Proudfoot, member of the Alberta legislature in testifying before the Royal Grain Enquiry Commission, here yesterday. He urged the commission to investigate fully the mixing of Canadian wheat with American cheaper grades and suggested that visits should be made to Buffalo, New York and other United States ports to see how the mixing is carried on.

Only through a co-operative pool would mixing and marketing evils, induced by the present competitive system be eliminated, Mr. Proudfoot stated, declaring the farmers in his constituency were unanimously in favor of a pool. Present co-operative marketing systems operating for the farmers were all right as far as they went, but they did not return their profits to the farmers selling through them.

"I believe very little No 1 Canadian wheat reaches the markets of the world without being mixed with some other poorer grades," Mr. Proudfoot said. "Adulteration of Canadian wheat is greatly handicapping the farming industry to-day. Canadian wheat should be established on the world markets as a separate entry and consumers should be educated to demand it."

He said mixing of Canadian wheat with American wheat occurred not only at United States points but at Montreal last year, and resulted in Canadian farmers losing large premiums.

Speaking on the wheat pool question, Chairman W. F. A. Turgeon, said the commirsion realized a pool would do no harm to wheat production on the contrary it should do a good deal of good. As far as legislation was concerned there was nothing contained in the statutes that prevented the formation of a pool or a number of pools.

Andrew Anderson, a local farmer, urged not only a Canadian wheat pool but also a world wide co-operation. He also urged the elimination of the freight rates discrimination against the Pacific route.

WOMAN SUFFERED FOR MONTHS

Weak and Nervous. Made Well by Lydia E.Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Webbwood, Ont.—"I was in a very weak and run-down nervous condition, always tired from the time I got up until I went to bed. Sleep did not rest me at all. My sister recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and others told me about it, but it was from my sister's advice that I took it. It did not take long until I felt stronger, headaches left me and my appetite came back to me. I am a farmer's wife and have many things to do outside the house, such as milking, looking after the poultry, and other chores. I heartily recommend the Vegetable Compound to all who have the same trouble I had, for it is a fine medicine for women."—Mrs. Louis F. Elsasser, Hillcrest Farm, Webbwood, Ont.

Another Nervous Woman Finds Relief

Port Huron, Mich.—"I suffered for two years with pains in my side, and if I worked very much I was nervous and just as tired in the morning as when I went to bed. I was sleepy all the day and didn't feel like doing anything, and was so nervous I would bite my finger nails. One of my friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me so much that I soon felt fine."—Mrs. Charles Beeler, 501-14th St., Port Huron, Mich.

FEAR OF THUNDER STORMS.

The St. Catharines Standard has a word for those who seek to poke fun at the uncontrollable fear of thunderstorms that takes possession of some people.

Fear of lightning and the consequent thunder is something that may afflict a person who is normally brave in facing other dangers, and it is poor taste to seek to make sport of that feeling of dread.

Nor is it a sign of bravery to take unnecessary risks during the progress of such a storm. Some people seem to prefer showing their indifference by getting in open doors or in other places where there is a current of air; some women persist in working around the kitchen stove, and express surprise that others prefer to go to other parts of the house and stay there until the storm is over.

There should be every sympathy for those who dread thunderstorms; they are quite justified in closing doors and windows and seeking what seems to them the safest spot in the house. Anything approaching ridicule of this feeling of dread is nothing short of cruel taunting which can accomplish no good purpose.

MANITOBA'S VERDICT.

Manitoba, after voting for the Government sale of intoxicating beverages last month, on Wednesday was equally emphatic in turning down the proposal to allow wine and beer to be sold in licensed hotels.

There should be little surprise in the two results. The people of Manitoba who believed that total prohibition had not been a success and who felt that a policy of moderation might give better results, had no desire to restore the old conditions that existed in the days before the war.

Wine and beer licenses meant the re-opening of the bars, and they wanted none of that.

Some people argue that their attitude on this latter question was significant, and that they feared that the carrying of the wine and beer bill would lead to abuses and perhaps bring about a change in public sentiment that might eventually wipe out Government control.

With some voters this undoubtedly was a consideration, but the Examiner prefers to believe that the majority voted against the restoration of the bar because they had no desire to see the old-time drinking places flourishing again, and because they felt that they and their neighbors were better off with the sale of intoxicating beverages over the bar prohibited.

The favouring of Government control was not a sign that Manitoba wanted to go the whole way back again, and those who were in touch with the situation expected no other verdict on Wednesday than the one that was given.

AN ABSURD PROPOSAL.

The request of the Executive Committee of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada that the Premier should call a special session of Parliament to investigate the presence of troops in the Sydney strike area, is one that cannot be justified.

In support of this suggestion it is argued that the troops are not needed at Sydney, and that their being kept there represents an enormous cost to the country.

So far as the expense is concerned, the calling of a special session of Parliament would be a much more serious drain upon the Treasury than the expenses in connection with maintainig the soldiers in the strike area.

As to the necessity of the presence of the militia, the resident judge of the County Court who requisitioned the Department of Militia for military assistance acted upon evidence that such assistance was needed, and can only act, as the Provincial Secretary of Nova Scotia points out to Hon. Jas. Murdock, who seems somewhat at sea over the whole affair, in the matter of withdrawing the soldiers, upon similar evidence.

There is too much fuss over this feature of the strike, and not enough real effort to end the trouble and restore harmony.

As for calling a special session of Parliament there is nothing in the whole situation that suggests the least necessity for any such unusual action, and probably the Executive Committee of the Trades and Labour Congress does not expect that their communication will be taken seriously.

It is merely a gesture for propaganda purposes.

MR. BALDWIN'S EXAMPLE.

What a lesson there is for most of our public men in Canada in the announcement that in making his most important statement of Britain's policy in regard to the Ruhr and German reparations the British Prime Minister took only sixteen minutes!

Here was a pronouncement for which the whole world was waiting, and Mr Baldwin devoted but little over a quarter of an hour to the delivering of his message.

Most of the Canadian politicians—or statesmen, if that word is preferred—would not have been fairly started in their preamble by the time the Premier was through.

There are few of our Parliamentarians who can stop short of an hour and a half, even in discussing such important topics as a $3,000 wharf or the appointment of a rural mail-carrier.

We copy most of our Parliamentary practices from the British Parliament.

It is a pity we do not emulate British public speakers in the briefness of their addresses.

Very rarely does any of the leaders in the Mother Country speak more than an hour on any subject, no matter how important, and the average address does not take more than thirty minutes.

If this habit of brevity could be introduced into the House of Commons at Ottawa there would not be the usual spectacle of a last-minute rush to get the real business of the session transacted after weeks have been wasted in profitless debate.

Mr. Baldwin's example should be an object lesson to Canadian speakers.

MUNICIPAL REPRLSENTATION.

Sir Adam Beck has announced that the municipalities of Ontario which are interested in the Hydro-electric power scheme are to be allowed to nominate a representative on the Provincial Hydro-electric Commission.

This is a belated piece of justice.

The Examiner has always been at a loss to understand why this privilege was not given to the municipalities from the inception of the scheme.

Their credit is pledged on behalf of the Hydro enterprises, and before the Province could lose a cent on this public ownership proposition the municipalities would have to go bankrupt.

Yet these partners have indeed been silent ones. Governments have continued to appoint commissioners with little or no apparent consideration of the wishes of the municipalities.

Sometimes the choice has fallen upon men to whom the municipalities would have taken strong objection had they been consulted.

But never have they had the chance to say by whom they wanted to be represented.

The announcement that the Ferguson Government proposes to correct this unfair treatment will be appreciated wherever a Hydro lamp glows.

BRITISH TAXATION.

The old statement that there is nothing certain in life but death and taxes applies with special force to the Englishman. He would probably insist that with the great development in the technique of surgery, with the wonderful discoveries in medical research and with the great improvement in sanitary conditions, set over against the huge war debt and the expenditures made necessary by it, taxes are more certain than death. He sees no escape from either. More than that, he sees no possibility of any great reduction in the extremely high taxes in the immediate future.

Let us be concrete in this matter. John Smith, let us say, starts a retail business in London on Jan. 1, 1918. Obviously he will need to lease or buy a shop. If he does the former, the lease being a contract is taxed; if he does the latter, he must pay taxes on the building and site. Like most business men he will probably borrow some money from the bank and give his promissory note. This note being a legal document must have certain stamps attached to it. His checks must have stamps affixed to them. If he sells goods having a value of more than £3, he must place a two-penny stamp on the receipt which he gives his customer. In 1921 he had to pay the Government a tax upon his business. This tax is based upon the profits of the three previous years. Well, 1918, 1919 and the first half of 1920 were profitable years. 1921, however, was a bad year. But he must pay a tax in the bad year upon his business in the three good years.

Suppose now that at the same time Smith embarked in business he leased a house in one of the residential sections of London at the rate of £200 a year. There is then a tax upon the lease as a contract, a tax upon the leasehold and various other taxes, such as school taxes, water taxes and the like, which in some cases make the total annual tax equivalent to three times his rent. Smith goes to the theatre and pays a tax. He drinks some beer and is taxed. If he buys a bottle of Scotch whiskey for 12 shillings and 6 pence, 8 shillings and 6 pence represent the tax. His income is taxed and at very high rates as will be pointed out presently. His children drink some sweetened water which bears a tax. If he can afford to buy an imported automobile, that bears a duty of 33 1/3%. But then he must pay a tax of £1 per horsepower on it afterwards. His afternoon tea is taxed, his telegrams are taxed, his medicines are taxed. We can well imagine Smith saying just before he dies that he hopes no matter what happens to him after death he will be happy if only he has to pay no taxes.

The explanation for these numerous and high taxes is, of course, to be found in the great increase in the British debt. On Aug. 1, 1914, the total debt stood at £711,000,000; by June 9, 1923, it stood at £7,750,000,000. This is a substantial reduction from £8,079,000,000, at which figure the debt stood on Dec. 31, 1919. Of the total debt as of March 31, 1923, £810,000,000 represents the floating debt and £2,100,000,000 represents amounts owed to the United Kingdom by Dominions and Allies, of which £689,000,000 is owed by Russia.

The total debt is also placed in two classes—the internal debt and the external debt. On April 16, 1923, the internal debt, according to the financial statement submitted to the House of Commons by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, stood at £6,617,000,000, while the external debt on the same day was £1,155,000,000.

This great debt increase, which is due almost entirely to the World War, has of necessity meant a large increase in Government expenditures. The increased expenditures can best be understood by making some comparisons with 1913-14, the pre-war year. £178,000,000 was the entire expenditure of the Government for 1913-14; and of this amount £86,000,000 or nearly 50% was spent for the army and navy. In 1915-16 the entire expenditure was £1,556,000,000; for 1916,17 it was £2,264,000,000; by 1917-18 it had reached £2,939,000,000; and for 1918-19 collossal figure of £3,095,000,000. Since then expenditures have decreased, the figure for 1922-23 being £812,000,000.

Perhaps two comparisons will make clear how great the increase in expenditure really was. The expenditures for the army, the navy and for air services rose from £86,000,000 in 1913-14 to £1.415,000,000 in 1918-19. The expenditures for national debt services for 1922-23 totalled £324,000,000 or almost twice the entire Government expenditures for 1913-14.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A news picture shows John D. Rockefeller presenting a youngster with a nickel. Watch out for a rise in the price of gas.

Municipalities and individuals are being warned about next winter's coal supply. But, as usual, neither one or the other will take any action until the cold weather makes it imperative.

Three Provincial policemen were in charge of the traffic during the Orange walk at Cobourg on Thursday. Is it necessary to keep up a Provincial force for that kind of duty, which surely ought to be handled by the municipal authorities?

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, July 14.—The market opened on Monday with a rather heavy run of about 5,000 cattle offering. The export buyers were taking fewer cattle than in the past weeks, and in consequence of the slackening in the export demand, prices in the heavy steers class declined from 25c to 50c. About 200 of the best heavy export steers sold from $7.75 to $8.25. This left quite a few of the heavy steers available for the local and domestic, the packers taking them at around the same prices as for export, $7.75 to $8.80, and a few extra choice at $8.25.

In the butcher section, prices held about steady, best choice around $7.75 to $8.00, and a fair kind, $7.00 to $7.50. Receipts included a rather too large proportion of half green and unfinished grass cattle, selling lower at around $6.00 to $6.50.

Choice butcher cows and bulls were in good demand all through the week, and steady around $5.50 to $5.75, with a medium kind around $4.50 to $4.75.

Export bulls not much in demand, and weaker at $4.50 to $4.75.

Calves this week were a little stronger, holding firm from $10.00 to $10.50, choice tops.

Sheep and lambs held stronger, lambs selling firm at 16c to 16 1-2c, and yearlings around $10.00 to $11.

Hogs steady early part of the week at $7.75 f.o.b., but advancing to $8.00 f.o.b and $8.60 fed and watered on Wednesday and Thursday's markets.

Studebaker Special-Six Touring Car

A car that has proved its merit in every corner of the world!

Wherever motor cars of exceptional reliability and staunch construction are required—there you will find the Special-Six in favor. Across the sparsely settled interior of Australia, it carries His Majesty's mail with clock-like regularity. Over the mountain trails of British Columbia, Special-Sixes serve as allies to the railroads by penetrating sections where the locomotive whistle is never heard. Even in spectacular tasks, the Special-Six takes a position of prominence, having to its credit the victory of the Gran Premio of Argentine—the most important race in South America—for the past two years.

You may never require such gruelling service from the motor car that you drive. But whether you do or not, you benefit from the quality of construction that makes the unusual type of performance possible with the Special-Six. To every Special-Six owner, it is an assurance of absolute satisfaction, low operating cost and longer car life.

Complete manufacture in Studebaker factories, large scale production and great financial and manufacturing resources—make it possible for Studebaker to offer the Studebaker Special-Six Touring Car to you at $1795, f. o. b. Walkerville, Ont.

Let us show you the Special-Six today, take you for a ride in it—or better still—allow you to drive it yourself. You will then appreciate why we say that this car represents the crowning achievement of Studebaker's seventy-one years of manufacturing experience.

BLOOD STAINS

Visitation street, then took the stand and told of a car ride in the abbe's automobile. He was accompanied by his wife and child and the abbe drove the car.

The trip was to Oka Monastery and occurred in October or November 1921. The child who is now eight years old was attacked by a bleeding of the nose and the blood had fallen on the cushions of the rear seat of the abbe's car. He could not identify the cushions used as exhibits in court. In cross-examination Brassette did not think he had registered at the Trappist Monastery at Oka on the day of the trip. He could not remember the name of the Trappist who was there, nor the day of the month when he made the trip. He could not recall the route he went by from Montreal to Oka nor the villages passed through, and added that he could not find his way to Oka if he had to go there alone to-day. He had spoken to no one except his wife on the incident of the nose bleeding in the car. The doctor who had attended the child had just died. Asked if he had ever come into conflict with justice, he replied: "I don't think so." Pressed still further he said: "No."

Eugeen Delorme, a cousin of the accused was called. He said the abbe had officiated at the witness' sister's wedding on October 31, 1921 at Ste. Scholastique. He had accompanied the abbe in the priest's car after the wedding. It was while pushing the cushions aside that the witness observed he had hurt his hand which was bleeding. In cross-examination he thought he cut his hand in opening the door of the car. He could not say whether anyone had noticed that his hand was bleeding although he had wrapped a handkerchief around it.

Fedora Vincent, assistant secretary of the Catholic Schools of Montreal, was then called. He testified that he had in company with his wife and child taken a run in the abbe's car on New Year's eve, 1921. The child had had an attack of nose bleeding. The child had had her head on a cushion with a design on it produced as an exhibit in court, which he had recognized as having been in the priest's car at that time.

HAIL DOES DAMAGE.

HARTNEY, Man., July 14.—(Canadian Press.)—Thousands of acres of crops were damaged, telegraph and telephone lines disorganized and scores of automobiles stalled during a severe wind and hail storm in south-western and western Manitoba, Thursday. Crops were battered down with the rain and hail, and meagre reports received here yesterday stated many crops will be a total loss. In places, the hail could be lifted with a shovel and the stones were so large that automobile windshields were broken.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, July 14.—Mr. James Kenalley, a veteran of the Great War, who went overseas with the third draft from the Cobourg Heavy Battery, under Capt. A. E. Hooper, passed away at the Cobourg Hospital after a few days' serious illness. He was a man who had travelled considerable and was well informed regarding customs in other lands. Mr. Kenalley was 55 years of age and a man who was held in high esteem. The men who had fought with him in France and Flanders attended his funeral in a body, and six of his comrades were pall-bearers. Mr. Kenalley was predeceased by his four brothers and by one sister. His wife, before her marriage, was Mary Wallace, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Wallace of Cobourg. One son, James Wallace, and four daughters survive their father; also three sisters, Miss Ann Kenalley and Mrs. Cox, Cobourg, and Mrs. Pierce, Toronto.

Pastor Departed.

This morning Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, B.A., B.D., pastor of the Cobourg Methodist Church for the past four years, and Mrs. Wilson left for Brighton, Mr. Wilson's new charge. The services on Sunday, and the last of Mr. Wilson's pastorate here, were very largely attended. At the morning service at the close of the sermon, Mr. T. F. Harrison went to the front and addressed the congregation, bearing testimony to Mr. Wilson's good work here. He then asked Mr. W. H. Hopper, on behalf of the Official Board, to read a resolution appreciative of Mr. Wilson's service, which had been previously passed by the board in order that the congregation might have an opportunity of endorsing it. Mr. Hopper did so and presented Mr. Wilson, on behalf of the congregation, with a purse. Mr. A. J. Gould, superintendent of the Sunday School, on seconding the resolution referred especially to Mr. Wilson's interest in the Sunday School and work among the young people. Mr. Wilson made suitable reply, and the service closed with singing the hymn, "Best Be the Tie That Binds."

Orange Parade.

At the evening service of the Cobourg Methodist Church the seating capacity of the auditorium was taxed to the utmost. Cobourg L.O.L., the members of the local ladies' lodge and of the boys' and girls' lodges, supplemented by a large number of their brethren from Port Hope, Coldsprings and Baltimore, headed by the Cobourg Kilties Band, marched to the Methodist Church to attend divine service. Rev. J. S. I. Wilson preached a sermon applicable to the occasion and the choir rendered special music. It was one of the largest church parades that has been seen in Cobourg for a long time.

Fair Apple Crop.

A fair apple crop is the prediction for this district. In some orchards the set is stated to be excellent. In others it is light. Considerable scab is reported, and the careful fruit men are leaving nothing to chance, but are spraying generously. A crop of from 60 to 75 per cent. of last year's is what is generally expected.

Notwithstanding that the raspberry crop gives indication of being light in some quarters, a fairly good yield is expected from this locality. The bushes have flowered generously and the fruit seems to be maturing generally.

Cherries and plums are also expected to be a fair crop.

Presentation.

At a congregational gathering of Baltimore Methodist Church held last night, the retiring pastor, Rev. C. C. Washington, who is removing to Courtice, and Mrs. Washington, were presented with a beautiful limoge dinner set. Mrs. A. Simpson of Bethesda and Mrs. James McKagen, Baltimore, made the presentation. Mr. Washington made appropriate reply. The address expressed the highest appreciation of Mr. and Mrs. Washington's work at Baltimore, where they will be much missed.

The New Pastor.

Rev. Mr. McKay of Wilfrid is the new pastor appointed to this charge. With his family, he arrived at the Baltimore parsonage this week and was given a hearty welcome.

Visiting Pastors.

The pulpit of the Methodist Church at Cobourg will be supplied for the next two Sundays by Rev. S. J. Shorey, D.D., a former highly esteemed pastor. Dr. Shorey, who is now superannuated, is residing at Picton. His last charge was at Napanee. He has a son, Mr. S. B. Shorey, residing here, which makes his coming to Cobourg all the more pleasant.

Repairs to Parsonage.

Rev. R. Forbes Stillman of Omemee, who has been appointed to the pastorate of the Methodist Church here, is not expected to arrive here to take up his work permanently until about the middle of August. In the meantime extensive repairs are being made to the parsonage, which is being put in good condition by the Cobourg ladies.

Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Mr. McIntosh of London, Ont., is supplying the work of Rev. Mr. W. A. Bremner at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here during the present month. Rev. and Mrs. Bremner are spending their holidays at Bruce Beach on the Georgian Bay, where Mrs. Bremner and daughters will remain for the summer.

Other Visiting Clergy.

Rev. Canon Sweeney of Toronto assisted Rev. Canon Lowers preaching at one of the services at St. Peter's Church on Sunday last.

Rev. W. L. Armitage of London and Rev. Canon Dykes of Toronto are among the Anglican clergy who are assisting as leaders at the summer school which is now being held at Trinity College School at Port Hope.

New Port Hope Teacher.

Mr. R. A. Boddie, B.S.A., of Toronto has been appointed teacher of science and agriculture at Port Hope High School to take the place of Mr. W. L. Carroll, who will assume a principalship at Flesherton.

Neither of Serious Nature.

BETHANY, July 14.—What might have been a very serious accident occurred on the Peterborough-Port Hope highway just north of Bailieboro on Thursday morning, when a party of Bethany residents were on their way to the Orange celebration in Cobourg. The car was owned by Mr. Challice, Sr., but at the time of the accident was driven by Miss Violet Jackson. In some way the car became unmanageable while going down a gradual incline and ran into the ditch. Mrs. Challice, Sr., was badly shaken up and was taken to a nearby house and Dr. Russel summoned. STONEY LAKE NEWS BUDGET

STONEY LAKE, July 14.—The first dance of the season was held at Juniper on Saturday night and drew a large crowd. Many old faces were seen and some new ones and every one reported an excellent time. Cottagers and resorts all contributed their quota of pleasure seekers.

At St. Peter's church on Sunday morning Canon H. O. Tremayne of Mimico took the service. The church was filled with reverent worshippers, some of who had paddled several miles. The church has been enlarged this year to accomodate the congregation which last year frequently were unable to find seats inside and were compelled to sit outside on the rocks. This little church built on a rock stands out as a silent witness that the worship of God is not neglected at the lakes.

Mr. J. O. McCarthy of Toronto conducted service in the pavilion at Juniper Island on Sunday morning last.

The flag on Ship Island is a mere tattered rag and it would be a worthy act if some patriotic cottager would supply the flag staff on this island with a new Union Jack.

Good Advertisement.

One reads unique advertisements in the papers but we feel that the following "take the biscuit." Tacked on Juniper pavilion in a conspicious place is the following:

"Cottagers tormented by mice
Take Notice
Spencer Piper of Kimo Island
Has Cats to Rent
Good Mousers
10c Per Week."

This shows a business instinct in a small boy who has evidently established a rather unusual business.

LOOKING FOR INFORMATION FROM THE PUBLIC

A George St. Merchant Has a Series of Questions In Today's Paper.

A merchant who is desirous of getting some ready cash out of his business, and who finds at this season of the year it is very difficult to move his merchandise, has inserted an advertisement in to-day's Examiner offering $30.00 in prizes for the best answers to a series of questions he is asking, and for ideas how to stimulate business at the present time. After all it is the public that makes a man's business a success or otherwise, and this merchant wants to get the viewpoint of the shopper and act on the information that comes to him through the advertisement in to-day's paper.

The merchant has a good many problems to solve that the public do not appreciate, and the buying public has its problems as well and it should be very interesting information that will come in answer to the questions that have been asked.

CHURCHES SAY IT PAY.

A committee of churchmen, studying the problem of how to increase interest in church work, adopted a report urging newspaper advertising. Among other things, the report says:

"It pays in dollars to advertise. One metropolitan church increased its loose collection to $22,000 in two years, certain other smaller churches showing a proportionate increase.

"Advertising lifts the standard of preaching and service in order to make good and come up to the advertising.

"Magazines spend large sums in taking advertisements in the daily newspapers. It pays or they would not do it.

"Advertising must be consecutive, persistent, prepared for, distinctive. If a minister does not know how to advertise, let him learn or let let him get the help of an advertising man.

Newspaper advertising is the easiest, and most effective way of reaching the people anywhere at any time.

MONEY CONTRAST

To get money to buy an auto for visiting more members of his congregation ,Rev. Charles F. Taylor of East Orange, N. J., has been chopping down trees and clearing a large tract of land.

You don't recall reading, a few days ago, that the deceased owner of the Police Gazette, pink sporting paper, left an estate of close to two million dollars.

GORE'S LANDING COOL TO PICNICS

Crowds Leave Litter That Musses Up The Pretty Resort Without Profit.

HIAWATHA, July 14. — Gore's Landing has turned the welcome side of the mat down to excursion parties.

Roll into the village in a limousine and a swirl of dust, or put in from the lake in a smart cruiser, and the natives will beam and even the guests will pay a fleeting tribute with a covert appraising glance.

But excursion parties!

"We don't want them here. Take them over to Harwood or Hiawatha." This is the reported attitude of the Landing folks toward transient picnicers that arrive in boatloads.

You can't blame the Landing people much about it. Their hotels and boarding houses are full to the roof with typical Gore's Landing resorters. Besides when a city crowd spends a few hours in the village they leave a litter or boxes and paper, banana peelings and orange skins, all the spoor of a careless holiday crowd, that means so much extra work to clean up.

Gore's Landing never did regard itself as a common picnic grounds. It had its regular visitors, exclusive seekers of repose, with mild amusements, the pleasure of the water, and a good cuisine. And in catering to these patrons the Landing folks did't try to attract the common crowds that came at noon and blew out at four o'clock. The old coolness has dropped almost to frigidity.

No reception committee goes down to the dock to extend the freedom of the pretty watering place to invading picnic parties. There is nothing to prevent the boats snubbing up to the wharf, but the Gore's Landing civic committee are suspected of a pronounced preference for the absence of these casuals. There's plenty of room on Rice Lake for them withoutout cumbering up quiet little Gore's, and spoiling its tidiness, and bothering the regular guests.

All of which may be one reason for the increasing popularity of Wallace's Point half way down the Otonabee. Old Jubilee Point is but a memory;; Gore's Landing is super cilicus; Idyl Wyld is a private preserve. Harwood and Hiawatha are dividing this season's popularity with the ordinary crowds of excursionists. The picni to the Lake have undergone a big change in ten years, and yet there are several new resorts, one at Bewdley, and another away down the Lake, that are reported to be doing a steady business.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT TO STAGE RECEPTION.

OTTAWA, July 14.—(Canadian Press).—No pains will be spared by Canadian Government to impart thoroughly national character to reception to be tendered to President Harding and party on their arrival at Vancouver July 26th. Col. E. J. Chambers left for Vancouver last night to assist Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works in preparing reception.

NEW KIND OF LIAR

A New York woman, charged with obtaining $2,000 worth of goods from a department store under false pretenses, is saved from a prison term by physicians who testify that she is a "pathological liar."

To most people, this is something new under the sun—that the chronic liar may be merely a victim of diseased mentality. Lying is the result of effervescent imagination, whether the fibbing is harmless or cunningly purposeful. And effervescent imagination is usually an endocrine-gland disturbance—excessive secretion by the thyroid gland in the neck. Nearly all writers are pathological liars.

THE "TROUBLE SHOOTER" GIVES TIMELY TIPS FOR TOURING

By E. H. SCOTT

How to Avoid Tire Troubles on Your Tour

Perhaps one of the keenest joys comes to the automobile owner when he starts away on a few weeks vacation tour in his car, and instead of using the hotels, packs a camping outfit, stopping when, where, and for as long as he likes at one of the many beautiful spots to be found all over the country.

Auto camping is one fine way to spend a vacation, and costs very little compared to what a similar vacation would cost if spent on trains and hotels. To enjoy it, however, you must start properly prepared and equipped for the trip. During the next few weeks, I will give you the benefit of what I have learned about this wonderful sport, and pass on some tips learned in the school of experience, which I know you will find mighty useful.

For the last few weeks I have been showing you how to check up and go over each part of the car and put it in perfect order. If you have followed these articles and carried out the instructions contained in them, you will have few mechanical troubles to worry about on the road. If you want to enjoy your vacation, start with the motor and every part of the car in perfect order.

A day or two before you start have a look at the tires. If they are wearing thin on the treads or have cuts of any size, you will be wise to replace them with new tires. Use the best tires you have on the wheels, do not save them for spares, as is so often done. A spare tire is used for emergencies only.

Buy a tire gauge and test the pressure in the tires every morning if you are making long runs. More tires are ruined by underinflation than by any other cause. When a tire is underinflated, the excessive flexing of the tire walls sets up a heat which soon loosens the fabric or layers of card, causing them to separate and weaken, and the final act is written when you hear—bang, and get down to find you have a blown out tire.

If you want to try a little experiment to prove what underinflation does, just pump up one rear tire to the correct pressure, then reduce the pressure about 25 lbs. in the other tire, then run for a few miles at a fair speed. Now stop and feel both tires. The one that was underinflated will be quite warm, while the other will be cool, so proving what underinflation will do to your tires.

The tire pressure varies according to the size of the tire and the weight of the load the car has to carry. Find out from the instruction book you got with your car what the correct pressure is for the tires on your car, and see that they are kept to that pressure. A number of motorists have the mistaken idea that they should use a lower pressure in the tires in summer than they do in winter. This is not so. Heat does NOT affect the pressure to any extent.

Carry two or three spare tubes, but do not allow them to lie about in the tool box. Keep them in bags, carefully rolled up as shown. To roll up a tube, first remove the valve cap and core to allow the air to escape. Now lay the tube down with the valve outwards, then roll up and squeeze out all air. Now insert the core and valve cap, then unroll the tube. It can now be folded up in a compact bundle and held together with a couple of rubber bands, and kept in a tire bag. If a tube is allowed to lie around in the tool box, it is almost a certainty that when you want to use it, you will find it damaged. Carry a good tire repair outfit. It should contain a tube of tire putty or filler in addition to the patches and cement. A very handy outfit that is well worth its place in the tool kit, is one of the small vulcanizing outfits. With this you can make permanent repairs to tubes, small cuts in tires, air beds etc.

Keeping the tires properly inflated will prevent a lot of trouble. Breaks in the tire at the rim are caused by underinflation, but cuts and breaks in the tread are caused by stones or other sharp objects. Inspect the treads each morning, it only takes a minute and may save you hours of delay on the road. Dirt and grit enter cuts and cause the tread to break loose, and if neglected, will completely ruin the tire. Clean the cut out with gasoline, then apply a coat of cement and let it dry. Apply another coat of cement and after it is dry, squeeze in some tire putty and let stand for a few hours to harden. In the case of cuts over 1 inch wide, stop and have a tire repairman vulcanize the hole.

Carry a set of non-skid chains, and if you are intending touring where there are many dirt roads, add a set of mud chains, or hooks. The hooks are cast iron or aluminum flanges which strap to the wheel, and if you happen to get bogged or stuck in the mud, this little fitment will generally pull you out. Speaking of mud, it often happens you get a puncture while traveling on a soft road, and when you try to jack up the wheel, the bottom of the jack simply sinks into the mud. To guard against this, procure a piece of wood about 1½ inches thick, 6 or 8 inches wide and about 12 inches long, and take it with you. You may never need to use it, but there are times I can remember when I would have given a good many gold dollars for just such a piece of wood. Procure a piece of hardwood if you can.

Carry a good tire pump, a small box of Valve cores, three good tire levers, two spare tubes, a spare tire mounted on a spare rim or wheel, and a good repair outfit. With this equipment, you are ready any time old man tire trouble feels like saying "Good day" to you.

Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, and recently in the limelight because of the coup d'etat that replaced the peasant Government, is a city 500 years under subjection to Turkey. During all that time it was a struggling, unkempt bunch of narrow, crooked alleys, mud and dust, with squalid buildings little better than hovels.

With Russia's liberation of Bulgaria from Turkey in 1887, however, a new era began for Sofia. Alleys were transformed into streets and boulevards, while modern structures crowded out ramshackle huts. The trend was steadily from the medieval village that represented the Turkish idea of less important towns, to the modern western city. Recently freed Bulgaria set her face definitely toward the west and especially gave expression to her longings to be considered European through the reshaping of her capital.

The start toward the new Sofia was made by the first ruler of the principality. Alexander of Battenberg, who built the royal palace. Much more rapid transformations were made under King or Tsar Ferdinand during the last years of the nineteenth century.

Sofia was founded by Trajan as the Roman colony of Serdica, or Sardica, about the beginning of the second century after Christ. The Bulgarians later called the place Sredetz, but by the fourteenth century it had taken the name of an old church, which, in a ruined condition, exists today. This Bulgarian church was often called "Saint Sophia."

Newer Form of Iron Quickly Increases "Pep" Strength and Energy

"You cannot be well and strong, and full of vigor, force, and power unless your blood is rich in iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician Bellevue Hospital (Out-Door Department), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "It is your red blood that enables you to resist and overcome disease and that nourishes every organ in your body. Without iron your blood becomes thin, pale, and watery. Poor blood cannot nourish your vital organs and as a result you may have pains in your heart or kidneys, indigestion, headaches, and feel all run-down and tired-out."

When your blood lacks iron do not waste your time taking stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, but directly enrich your blood with the newer form of iron sold by all druggists under the name of Nuxated Iron which like the iron in spinach, lentils, and apples and is in a form easily assimilated into your blood.

Get a bottle of Nuxated Iron to-day. Take it for two weeks and if you have not, like thousands of others, obtained most surprising health and energy, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money. The following local druggists will sell you Nuxated Iron with this "satisfaction of money back" guarantee.

COAL SHORTAGE IS DUE AGAIN

Mayor Taylor Receives a Letter Warning People to Use Substitutes.

Mayor W. H. Taylor has received the following letter from which the citizen may conclude that another fuel shortage this winter is not a remote possibility. The letter reads as follows:

DOMINION FUEL BOARD
Victoria Memorial Museum
Ottawa, Ontario,
12th July, 1923

His Worship The Mayor,
Peterboro, Ont.

Your Worship,—

The Dominion Fuel Board wishes to call your attention to a matter of urgent public importance. In view of the uncertainty that exists in the anthracite coal industry in the United States because of the differences between operators and miners, which will require adjustment before a new agreement can be reached, it is considered particularly advisable for you to urge the people to secure their supplies of fuel before the 1st of September, on which date the agreement expires. The miners are making demands for substantial increases in wages and there is no assurance that we may not be faced with another period of acute fuel shortage. At any rate, there is no reason to expect a drop in price, and postponment in buying would only be contributing to price increase and congestion of transportation.

Your attention is also directed to the fact that Welsh and Scotch anthracite, both high grade fuels, are coming into the country in fairly large quantities; also a considerable quantity of coke, a fuel which we believe will replace anthracite in the future, is available.

Burn Canadian Fuel Wherever Possible.

While a decided prejudice exists against our own bituminous coal for household purposes, it is a fact that many of the causes of dissatisfaction disappear when this fuel is properly fired. We are convinced that much larger quantities could be used as a domestic fuel, with satisfaction, and would be pleased to supply on request a pamphlet of instructions on the proper method of firing soft coal in domestic furnaces.

I feel sure that it is not necessary to recall to you the worry and inconvenience of last winter to enlist your aid and influence in taking steps to bring this matter before your people and in endeavoring to obtain the co-operation of both coal dealers and the public in making a particular effort to obtain and store coal in the coal-bins of consumers at once. We would also urge that substitutes for United States anthracite be purchased whenever obtainable.

Yours very truly,
(Sgd) Charles Casmell, Chairman.

HOODOO TRAIN MADE HER RUN

Friday the Thirteenth Passed Safely for Train Laden With Thirteens

ST. THOMAS, July 14.—(Canadian Press).—All records for Friday the 13th were shattered yesterday when M. C. R. train No. 13 received orders to go to Buffalo. The engine hauling the train was No. 7613, the caboose No. 230013. The engine came out of the roundhouse at 10.13 and left the city at 11.13 a.m. By this time the train officials were getting nervous, but when they became aware that Conductor W. G. Hastings, in charge of the train, resided at No. 13 Jonap Street, they started offering silent prayers for the safety of the train loaded with thirteens. Despite the thirteen hoodoo the train made her run and arrived at Buffalo four hours later.

WEAK DIGESTION DUE TO POOR BLOOD

There is no tonic for the stomach that is not a tonic for every other part of the body. But the stomach depends, as does every other organ, on the blood for its energy.

There can be no perfect digestion unless you have rich, red blood. This is scientifically true. The way, then to tone up the stomach is to enrich the blood.

Most stomach remedies try to digest your food for you. How much better it is to tone up the stomach so that it will do its own work as nature intended. There is no pleasure in eating predigested food. Tone up your stomach, then your appetite and digestion will soon be normal.

If your digestion is weak and your blood thin, you need Dr. Williams Pink Pills to restore the strength to your blood; in addition use care in the selection of your diet and your stomach trouble will soon pass away Mrs. Charles La Rose, Fruitland, Ont., suffered severely and tells what Dr. Williams Pink Pills did for her She says:—"I was a terrible sufferer from stomach trouble. The doctor called it nervous indigestion. Every thing I ate distressed me, and I became so weak and run down I could hardly walk. I had a pain around my heart most of the time, and I slept very poorly. I was afraid I would not get well as the doctor's medicine was not helping me. In this serious condition Dr. Williams Pink Pills were recommended and I decided to try them, and I can truthfully say that they made me feel like a new person. I will always give this medicine a word of praise when I get a chance for I think there is nothing to be compared with it for dyspeptics, or any one weak, nervous or rundown."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LADY WENT ABOARD ON HUMAN LADDER

NEW YORK, July 14.—(Canadian Press).—To wild cries of "bravo" and "alleyup" of three Italian sailor acrobats, who formed a human ladder, Mrs. Helen Antoinett, silk stocking manufacturer, of West Hoboken, was heaved on board the Dante Alighieri, of the Transatlantic Italian Line, to-day, and sailed for Naples.

"I can make it," the silk stocking manufacturer exclaimed, when she arrived at the dock three minutes late, and after the ship had put a foot between it and the pier. Line officials shouted to a sailor, who, held by his companions, swung overboard and grappled Mrs. Antoinett's wrists. She swung from the dock and braced her feet against the side of the liner. There came a slip or two, then she was pulled on board.

Passengers watching the ship move, inch by inch, from the dock were galvanized into excitement, and longshoremen and baggage handlers lined the pier and shouted encouragement.

Want Ad Tips by John T. Bartlett

THE POWER OF AN INCENTIVE.

With wand and incantations, the masters of mediaeval legerdemain worked their wonders. In the Want Ad section, even ordinary folks like you and me can do things almost by magic. And we need no wand, no "Presto, Chango!", no flowing magicians' robes. We get surprising results because we understand the power which lurks in an incentive.

If you wish people to buy your goods, give them an incentive—show them it is especially worth their while to buy of you.

If you wish the finder to return to you your lost pocketbook or watch, give him an incentive—offer a reward, with "no questions". Almost anyone would rather be honest than not. Make it easy for the honest finder to be honest.

If you want a lot of different people to assist you in your search for a house to rent, or a new position, or a lost friends, or an expert manager, use the same magic—give the general public an incentive to assist you. Advertisers who offer $5 to the first person who calls to their attention a suitable house to rent, etc., often get astonishing responses. It becomes worthwhile to communicate to the advertiser information which to him is valuable. So the possessor of that information does so.

And old country business man, of the David Harum school, was fond of remarking, "Never go to people with a proposition which has only one side—yours. It's easy to do business, and make money, in this world, if you follow this cardinal rule—propose bargains which have profit in them for the other fellow as well as for yourself. Give him an incentive to do business with you."

Remember this the next time you have occasion to use the Want Ads. Let your message contain an incentive to others to do business with you. Just see how well the plan works!

Cut pineapple, fresh or canned, into small pieces to fill one cup. Mix with two cups shredded cabbage, one green pepper finely cut, two tablespoons pineapple juice and one teaspoon powdered sugar. Add sufficient of one-half cup of mayonaise to moisten thoroughly and set in a cold place for an hour.

NOTE.—This salad is good served with cheese sandwiches which have been toasted.

TURKISH CONFERENCE IS RUNNING ON ROCK.

LAUSANNE, July 14—(Canadian Press)—General effort is being made to rescue the Near East Conference from what is admittedly is an exceedingly serious situation. Turks say they object to optional rights for British and French companies stipulated in the draft of the protocol on concessions as inimical to Turkish sovereignity and liable to jeopardize Turkish economic future.

United States representatives want rights eliminated or modified according to their views.

TOWN COUNCIL CAMPBELLFORD HELD MEETING

Believe in the Principle of Doing Public Work By Day Labor Rather Than By Contract.

NEW WORK STARTED.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 14.—A majority of the members of the Town Council, believe in the principle of doing public works by day labor rather than by contract. At a special meeting last night it was decided to have Street Foreman Fox uild the Garry street sewer with his force of town employees and work on this improvement, one of the most important sewers in the town, will be started at once so as to be completed before the cold weather sets in.

The Council in taking this step is guided by experience. The Wellington street sewer was constructed by day labor and was completed under the estimate although the work was carried on under the disadvantage of winter weather. The last sewer that was built in Campbellford under the contract plan resulted in a lawsuit that cost the town judgment of $1050 and costs of an almost equal amount. By the day labor system the risk of lawsuits is eliminated. The Wellington street sewer was not only built forr less than the engineer's estimate but Foreman Fox made so good a job that not a single complaint has been heard concerning the work.

When the Council advertised for tenders for the Garry street sewer two bids were received, the lowest being sent in by John Hall, whose offer was $5,997, the town to furnish the water mains. Mr. Hall and the other contractor subsequently withdrew their tenders At the regular meeting of the Council Monday night it was decided to give the contract to Mr. Hall provided he repeated his former offer.

Mr. Hall sent in a communication last night, offering to do this provided his offer was unanimously accepted and he was allowed to begin work at once.

Councilors Meiklejohn and Cole moved that the resolution of the regular meeting be rescinded and that the sewer be built by day labor. This carried on the following division—

Nays—Reeve Anderson and Deputy Reeve Wilkinson.

Booth Street Sewer

It was decided on motion of Reeve Anderson to run a branch sewer from Booth street to the middle of Centre street. A sewer from the St. Mary's church property will connect with this branch, the parish agreeing to pay the same frontage tax on Booth street property owners.

To Repair Roadway

J. D. Cummings appeared before the Council to call their attention to the condition of the sidewalk and roadway near his property, and which leads to the Catholic cemetery It was decided to have the committee on roads and bridges meet at 10 a.m. to-day to look over the situation and to report to Council as to the best method of making the necessary repairs.

To Buy More Oil

It was decided on motion of Councillors Allan and Burke to purchase 50 barrels of 40 per cent asphalt oil for use on certain streets, the residents of which are not satisfied with the amount already applied, some of them refusing to pay their assessment unless conditions are improved. All of the members present voted for this outlay with the exception of Councillor Carter, who held that the season was too far advanced to warrant any additional outlay for strreet oiling.

Water To Expensive

Councillor Burke was in favor of purchasing a watering cart for the purpose of keeping down the dust but Councillor Meiklejohn, who formerly had charge of the street watering, declared that a reversion to the old system would mean an outlay of $2,500 a year.

Foreman to Report

Councillor Carter brought up the matter of having Street Foreman Fox report once a month as to the work done on the streets. He complained that some work had been carried out that had not been authorized by the Council.

Councillor Cole, chairman of the roads and bridges committee, called Councillor Carter's attention to the fact that all members of the Council during the present year, had on five different occasions been invited to take a trip around the town to decide, where repairs and improvements were required, and that the average attendance at these open air sions had been four. Every opportunity had been given to the committunity had been given to the councilors to express their opinion on these matters.

Finally after a long discussion, the drawing up of several tentative motions only to have them revised, Councillor Carter and Reeve Anderson had a resolution drawn up providing that either Fore an Fox or Chairman Cole report verbally or in writing at each regular meeting once a month the work done on the streets, and the number of men employed and that no work of importance be undertaken unless authorized by the Council.

Mayor Makes Ruling.

"I am going to do something I have never done yet," said Mayor Meyers; "I am going to rule that when a councillor has a motion to bring before the council, he must submit it in writing. We lose too much time waiting for the clerk to write out the motions. Here we are in what is really an adjourned session of our regular meeting. It is 10.30 and we have done nothing yet. I for one do not propose to waste time like this."

That Sidewalk Fund.

The sum of $1759 has been spent on new sidewalks and repairs this year and of the $20,000 sidewalk debentures there is still a balance on hand of $3011. There is considerable work in this department yet to be done and needed repairs will be decided upon later.

A Grievance Revived.

C. Bayes has a grievance of long standing, a complaint that one of his neighbors who keeps hens is maintaining a nuisance. This matter has been brought before the council periodically. Some time ago Mayor Meyers, Councillors Meiklejohn and Cole were appointed a committee to visit the premises in question to decide whether Mr. Bayes' complaint is justified, but the committee never found time to discharge this duty.

Mr. Bayes appeared before the council last night to demand that some action be taken and the committee promised to get busy on the case in the morning.

Chief of Police Duncalfe in his capacity of Sanitary Inspector, looked into the case recently and reported that Mr. Bayes had no cause for complaint, but the latter maintains that the official olefactory apparatus does not function properly.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Still Working on Bridge —Lesson on Attending Church.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 14. — Traffic for vehicles on the bridge was again suspended last night from 8.30 to 6 o'clock this morning as the work of reflooring that portion of the structure over the Trent Canal has not been completed. The Government had a large force of men working on it all night. The bridge, when finished, will be complete. Over the first layers of planks, which are laid crosswise, boards are being placed lengthwise so that there will be no jar felt by the vehicles passing over it.

To Hold Excursion.

The members of the Lodge of True Blues will hold an excursion on civic holiday. Particulars will be announced later.

Attending Church.

"How many men here have been at church every Sunday since the last Twelfth of July?" asked Rev. C. Adams, chaplain of the Navy League, one of the speakers at the celebration here Thursday. "All who have hold up their hands."

"That would be a sight for a blind man," he remarked, apparently failing to receive a response.

Mr. Adams, however, failed to see one upraised hand, so that conditions are not as serious as he may have been led to believe. One brother of venerable status did hold up his hand for a brief period, dropping it when he found himself a solitary figure in the multitude.

BILL IN EFFECT ON MONDAY NEXT

TORONTO, July 14.— (Canadian Press).—In view of the taking over of the reins of office by the Ferguson administration, on the very day "July 16th" that Ontario's new racing information bill comes into effect, no specific preparations have been made by the attorney-general's department in the Drury Administration to enforce it. It will be up to Attorney-General W. F. Nickle, K.C. to deal with the offenders. The bill providing against the publication of betting information is in effect on Monday next?" Attorney-General Raney was asked yesterday.

"It is," he replied.

"That is it."

Asked concerning status of American newspapers under new law, Hon. Mr. Raney said, "There is the law. They can blot out the information or they can stay out."

She tried to end her life a few days ago but the slot meter frustrated the attempt. She had a regular meter installed to make sure her second attempt would be successful.

APARTMENT BUILDING WAS SCENE OF A FIRE.

HAMILTON, July 14. Canadian Press. — Cut off by the dense smoke which blocked two ordinary exists 105 men, women and children were forced to descend fire escapes and ladders when a fire broke out in the Royal market and apartment building last night. Had the fire occurred an hour or so later the majority of the inhabitants would have been in bed and it is probable that several lives would have been lost.

The fire was quickly extinguished and the loss will not be large.

JUDGMENT IN CASE OF B.C. RESERVED

LONDON, July 14— (Canadain Press Cable).—The judicial committee of the privy council to-day reserved judgment in the appeal of the Attorney-General of British Columbia vs. the Attorney-General of Canada on the question of the employment of Japanese and the validity of Provincial Legislation. The respondents were not called upon to reply to the case as set forth on behalf of British Columbia, and this is taken to indicate that judgment will be given in favour of the dominion.

The appeal of British Columbia was against the Dominion Government's disallowance of the Provincial act validating orders-in-council with reference to the employment of Orienta' labour in British Columbia.

The Council should not be confused with a decision of the privy Council early this year in which the Province of British Columbia obtained final judgment over the Brooks, Bidlake Company in the matter of the Province's right to insert a clause in timber leases and government contracts providing against the employment of Japanese. The right of the province under the British North American Act to insert such a clause was upheld by the Privy Council, though the question of the Japanese Treaty Act, passed by the Canadian Parliament in 1913 was not raised.

In the present action, which is an appeal from the supreme court of Canada, as to the effect of the Japanese Treaty Act on the Provincial legislation, the whole question was reviewed with the possibility that the effect of the Brooks, Bidlake decision might be negatived by the finding in regard to the Japanese Treaty Act. Final decision on this important point was sought by the British Columbia Government so that steps might be taken to try to secure the amendment of the Japanese Treaty Act if this should be necessary.

Old Village Landmark Destroyed By Flames.

LINDSAY, July 14. -- An old landmark in the village of Fenelon Falls, known as the old Green homestead, with the outbuildings, was totally destroyed by fire this morning. The house which was unoccupied, and which was the property of Mr. J. H. Brandon, was situated on the river bank, close to the C. N. R. tracks. It is thought that a spark from a passing train started the blaze

A Thought

Be not forgetful to entertain strangers, for thereby some have entertained angels unawares.—Heb. 13:2.

Provision is the foundation of hospitality, and thrift the fuel of magnificence.

HOW HE DID IT.

"This fellow Skinner tried to tell me that he has had the same automobile for five years, and has never paid a cent for repairs on it," said the fat man. "Do you believe that?"

THREE WOMEN INTEND MAKE UNIQUE TOUR

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and Two Companions Make Motor Trip to North Ontario.

SOCIAL HYGIENE.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst leaves Toronto on the sixteenth of July for a month's speaking tour in Northern Ontario. She will be accompanied by Mrs. R. A. Kennedy, President of the Ottawa Women's Club, and Miss Estelle Hewson, Provincial Secretary of the Ontario Social Hygiene Council. Over fifteen hundred miles of territory between Toronto and Sault Ste. Marie will be covered, Manitoulin Island will be visited and the three motor missionaries will hold meetings in thirty towns besides distributing much lore and literature on social hygiene and public health along the way.

Backed by the Social Hygiene Council, the Provincial Department of Health and the Women's Institutes, the Pankhurst party loos forward to a lively trip. Where meetings have not been arranged before hand, open-air gatherings will be addressed by the famous English suffrage leader and her eloquent companions.

Everybody knows about Emmeline Pankhurst's activities as a militant advocate of votes for women, but not everybody knows about her valuable war services and subsequent activities for the British Government. Nor are they all aware that since the cessation of hostilities Mrs. Pankhurst has taken up permanent residence in Canada, has become a Canadian citizen, hsa established a home in Toronto with her daughter Christabel and the four war orphaned little girls they have adopted, and is now trying to work out her vision for Canada and Canadians.

Mrs. Pankhurst's public history has been a progressive, natural development. In her twenties she became prominent in her native city of Manchester through her advocacy of the causes of the masses, as an inspired democrat and a preacher of political and social purity. Always an unusually far-sighted, acute-minded, eloquent and courageous woman, Emmeline Pankhurst took up arms for votes for women, only after all constitutional means had failed. She wanted social regeneration and she thought of the vote in the hands of women as a tool for that purpose.

Once a member of the British Labor Party, then an advanced Liberal, then an uncompromising crusader for votes for women, she became at the outbreak of war a full-blooded, single-minded, active patriot. Votes were forgotten while Mrs. Pankhurst and her daughter Christabel tackled the problem of mobilization of the women workers to meet the industrial needs of Britain. She became a right-hand helper for Lloyd George and other leaders unaccustomed to handling women as workers. Her services were offered and accepted by the Government. She it was who first suggested and then aided the establishment of training schools for women munition workers. She helped greatly to talk and work the land army of farmerettes into existence. She fought labor strikes all over Britain and German propaganda. After war she was sent to Russia to report on the Bolsheviki. There is no hard job she has flinched from tackling and now she has found a new one.

She wants Canada to become the centre of the British Empire. She wants it to become the cradle of a strong race. She thinks that woman's first use of the vote ought to be as a tool with which to start fashioning improved health and racial standards. Social hygiene is the means to social health. So she has adopted it as her new crusade. Already she has addressed hundreds of audiences from coast to coast in Canada on health topics. She delivers her message with force and charm. She never tires. Just back from a six weeks' tour of Alberta and Saskatchewan she is now starting on this motor mission to the north, where she and her companions hope to reap a rich harvest from their efforts.

A second member of the party is a strong companion in arms to the one-time militant leader. This is Mrs. R. A. Kennedy, wife of a prominent physician in Ottawa and a woman of great influence at the capital city. Dr. Kennedy served in British hospitals during the war, his wife and daughter served beside him, and his son was with the Canadian army.

From her own and the joint experiences of her family, Mrs. Kennedy became a strong advocate of the causes embraced by social hygiene. She has taken up public health propaganda with a will and she goes on the present tour in an enthusiastic spirit, expecting to do a really constructive work.

At the wheel of the motor and in charge of the arrangement goes the third member of the party, Miss Estelle Hewson, who is a notable organizer. She has had a lot to do with the establishment of the fourteen Hygiene Councils in Ontario. She knows about community needs. She learned of them through her war work with the Red Cross and Social Service circles in her native city of Windsor, during the war. Her medical knowledge was gained through occupational advantages as secretary to a busy surgeon. She is effective, practical and a live wire for the cause. The north country is due for a loud awakening regarding matters of public health.

The itinerary of the party includes Aurora, Newmarket, Barrie, Orillia, Washago, Severn Bridge, Gravenhurst, Bala, Bracebridge, Rosseau, Parry Sound, Huntsville, Elmvale, Burk's Falls, Magnetawan, Sundridge, Powasson, Callendar, Sturgeon Falls, Sudbury, Copper Cliff, Whitefish, Little Current, Espanola, Blind River, Mindemoye, Thessalon, Bruce Mines, McLennan and Sault Ste. Marie.

TROUT PROTECTED LIKE SALMON NOW

Better protection for salmon, trout, and fresh water fish is provided by the Salmon and Freshwater Fisheries Bill, the third reading of which has been passed by the House of Lords.

The Bill consolidates and makes clear the existing law, and also introduces a number of new provisions.

Protection is provided for trout on lines similar to salmon, and the statutory annual close season has been extended to two months.

The provisions of the exisiting law have been extended to cover freshwater fish. It is provided, for instance, that no one shall willfully disturb any spawn or spawning fish, or any bed, bank, or shallow on which any spawn or spawning fish may be. Hitherto this has applied only to salmon.

Fishery boards are given extended powers for the purchase or leasing of fisheries.

S. I. S.

(Seventeen Inch Selvage-Edge Roofing)

A Revolutionary Idea in Roll Roofing

Durable, fire-resisting, handsome, and economical—Barrett S. I. S. Roll Roofing is the ideal roofing for all farm buildings and steep-roof industrial structures.

A Double Thickness Roof. As shown in the picture, half the width of the roll is plain surfaced, half mineral-surfaced. In laying, the mineral-surfaced half of the strip entirely overlaps, and is securely cemented to the plain surfaced portion. This gives a double thickness built-up roof throughout, with mineral surface exposed to the weather.

Fire Resisting. Sparks or flying embers cannot ignite the heavy mineral surface of S. I. S.

Durable. The base of S. I. S. is extra-heavy, extra-rugged roofing-felt, thoroughly waterproofed.

Ask for an estimate on a complete roof of S. I. S. Roll-Roofing. The cost is moderate.

Barrett Everlastic Giant Shingles

Barrett Everlastic Giant Shingles are made and laid 3 to a strip. Mineral-surfaced in red, green, or blue-black. Highly fire-resisting—never need painting or staining. Base is extra-heavy roofing-felt—thoroughly waterproofed. Can be laid right over the old roof (use 1½ inch galvanized roofing nails).

Everlastic Liquid Roofing Cement

Gives new durable surface to worn-out "rubber" and other prepared roofs—stops all leaks. Easy to apply, low in cost.

Plastic Elastigum Patching Cement

Stops leaks in roofs; repairs flashings, gutters, cisterns, etc. Sticks to wet or dry surfaces. Easy to apply and economical.

Creosoid Fly-Oil and Cow Spray

An effective, economical fly-oil, lice-destroyer and cow spray. It is safe and easy to use, and gives unfailing results.

MUST NOT PLAY IN TWO LEAGUES.

Junior Players Not Signed By Champions Are Out of Luck.

Now that the Junior City baseball series has returned a winner, players who are not signed with the championship team, will not be permitted to play with the local clubs in the East Peterborough League.

The impression was general among Junior players that once they were through with the series, they could sign certificates to play with George Street, Mackey's Bread of Cognawagas in the East Peterboro circuit. But as no player can play in two leagues in one season, the ball tossers are out of luck. This ruling already given, has been confirmed by Secretary Dulmage of the O.B.A.A.

A New Diamond.

A new diamond has been laid out at Exhibition Park on the grounds immediately west of Lock Street. George Street and Mackey's Bread gave it a trial in their East Peterboro League game last evening.

MACKEY'S WIN UPHILL GAME.

In the East Peterborough League game at Exhibition Park last evening, Mackey's Bread scored a one run victory over George Street, the score reading 11 to 10. The team:

New York Monopoly May Ruin Baseball.

Well, it looks like another private world series will be staged within the haughty confines of New York City. It's great for the subway fans who can ride to every game in the series on a nickel carfare, but it isn't doing anything to help the game of baseball in the United States.

The hack-driver in Omaha, whose representative judgment is highly respected in every newspaper office, will not die of heart failure or swallow his cigar watching the scoreboard if the Giants and Yankess win again.

The western magnates are promising to do something about it, but apparently everyone is helpless before the smooth machines built up on dollars which have accumulated from record crowds both at the Polo Grounds and the Yankee Stadium.

New York is so blase and shortsighted that it doesn't realize there is anything out there beyond the Palisades but great open spaces. No metropolitan sport write believes, or will say, that the game is in jeopardy because New York is monopolizing all the pennants.

But it won't be long now. New York cannot continue to stage its own private world series many more years—if baseball is to continue as the national game—and there is a belief among some of the boys that when the tide turns it will stay turned for a considerable length of time.

The quicker it turns and the longer it stays turned the better it will be for the game.

SACRED HEART WIN IN MIDGET.

Hillcrests Fail to Get Team and Curlers Win By Default.

Sacred Heart Midgets defeated Maple Leafs at the former's grounds last evening by the score of 9 to 7. Masterson pitched a splendid game for the winners, the Leafs rally in the fourth when they scored six runs, being helped along by poor fielding "Chuck" Kenneally gave his pitcher good support behind the bat. Maple Leafs, in the absence of the regular heavers, sent in the infielders for mound duty, Dinsdale, Grant and Heard, being used on the mound, while Carroll and Taylor did the backstopping.

Hard Job For Siki To Get His Money.

PARIS, July 14.— (Canadian Press.) — Judge Escoffier, of the French Civil Tribunal, yesterday upheld Edmond Lapart's attachment against Battling Siki's share of the purses for his fights with Morelle and Marcel Nilles.

Lapart, one of Siki's numerous former managers, claims to hold a binding contract entitling him to thirty per cent. of Siki's earnings. The validity of the contract will be decided in court, but the trial will not open until October and Lapart yesterday announced that meanwhile he would attach every purse Siki fights for.

Siki, upon hearing the judge's decision, said he would leave for the United States in a few days. In Parisian sporting circles, however, some doubt was expressed as to whether he would actually leave France.

Frankie Frisch May Star With the Willow.

Frankie Frisch is well on his way to making 200 safe hits this season. He was the first player in the big leagues to make 100 hits.

His great feat is to beat the ball down to first. He would probably be able to steal a few bushels of bases every years because of his tremendous speed, if it were not for the fact that he can't slide.

Frisch still dives head-first for the bag on a close play, the way he used to up at Fordham University a few years ago, before he went to the Giants.

He is studying the hook, however, and if he masters it he may develop into the best man in the majors on the bases.

JUNIOR CITY HONORS FELL TO LAKEVIEWS IN RAGGED CONTEST

SCORE WAS 10 TO 5.

The Lakeviews won the Junior city championship by defeating the Adanacs last evening 10 to 5 in the raggedest game of the series. Both teams contributed numerous misplays but the Adanacs managed to insert theirs wheer they would do the most damage. The fact that but two of the ten runs credited to the Lakeviews were earned is a good indication of how effective the Adanac players were in helping the Lakeviews to win. Hensley was the worst offender with five mistakes checked against him, three of which figured in the runs. Batten's one error did the most damage for when he let Cameron's easy roller that should have been a soft out to retire the side, get past him four men crossed the pan before the Lakeviews finished their batting practice for the innings.

"Scotty" McPherson went the whole round on the rubber for the Adanacs but he was up against a hopeless proposition with the poor support he was accorded. Loose fielding contributed several of the hits that were checked against him and the numerous errors of his team mates all came at the wrong time. He showed brief streaks of wildness himself and walked three men. Though a walk and an error let two men on in the first frame he managed to breeze through safely but from then till the last inning was in continual trouble. The seventh inning was the only frame in which the Lakeviews were retired in order.

Whitehouse again took the mound for the Lakeviews, for his third game this week, and until the final session had the Adanacs completely at his mercy. The hits were kept well scattered and with the exception of the fourth frame when two errors were followed by a two base hit to score two men, the misplays of his team mates did but little harm. In the final inning after the first man up had been hit by a pitched ball the Adanacs bunched two singles and a double for three runs. Their rally came too late and the side was retired before they could come within striking distance of tying the score. Whitehouse fanned six without issuing a single pass.

Spectacular fielding plays were few and far between though Elliott turned in a couple of nice catches in the sixth frame, one of them robbing H. Hardill of a hit that was labled for his second two bagger of the game. H. Hardill and McPherson were the batting stars for the Adanacs while the Lakeview honors were divided among the whole team.

The Lakeviews did all their scoring in the second, thrid, fourth and fifth frames. In the second Whitehouse singled to center and went to second on a wild pitch. Fitzgerald grounded to McPherson and Whitehouse went to third on the play. McIntyre singled to center scoring Whitehouse. McIntyre stole second and J. LeBarr sent a fly to Batten. Cameron followed with a two bagger to right scoring McIntyre. LeBarr grounded to McPherson for the third out.

In the third Moore got a walk and went to second on Whitlow's single to center. Both moved up one when Hensley booted Collins' grounder and Moore scored when Turner made a bad throw to third. Whitehouse singled scoring Whitlow and went to second on a balk, Collins going to third. Fitzgerald fanned, McIntyre sent a foul fly to Sage and J. LeBarr whiffed for the third out.

In the fourth Cameron started things with a single to right and then stole second. L. LeBarr went out on a fly to Batten and Moore sent a long fly to J. Hardill in right. Whitlow singled sending Cameron to third and stealing second. Both scored when Hensley let Collins' drive get away from him. Whitehouse grounded to Sage to retire the side.

The fifth was the big innings for the Lakeviews. Fitzgerald led off with a single to short left but McPehrson caught him asleep off first. Halliday grounded to McPherson for the second out and Elliott sent a hot single between first and second. He took second when Hensley dropped Wilgar's throw to the bag and went to third when Batten let Cameron's grounder get away from him. Both scored on J. LeBarr's single to center. LeBarr went to second on Moore's single and to third when Wilgar let a passed ball get by him. Whitlow walked and Collins singled scoring LeBarr and Moore. Whitehouse sent a high fly to Turner for the third out.

The Adanacs scored twice in the fourth. Wilgar got a life on Fitzgerald's error. Batten's grounder was too much for Moore and Wilgar went to second. Wilgar was forced at third on Hensley's grounder to Fitzgerald and Batten and Hensley scored on H. Hardill's double to deep center. Hall sent a fly to Fitzgerald and Sage grounded to Moore to retire the side.

They added three more counters in the seventh. Hall got a life when he wat hit by a pitched ball. Sage flied to Whitlow. Turner singled past short sending Hall to second. J. Hardill grounded to Moore advancing the runners and both scored on McPherson's single. McPherson went to second on the play home and to third when Collins made a bad throw to second. Wilgar doubled scoring McPherson but Batten fanned for the last out.

Jock Hutchinson Leads For U.S. Golf Honors.

INWOOD, July 14.— (Canadian Press.)— Jock Hutchinson, of Chicago, a genial Scot with eyes deep-furrowed at the edge with laugh wrinkles, and Robert T. Jones, of Atlanta, a youth long famous in the golfing world, led a field of 77 aspirants for the United States National Open Championship over 36 holes on the Inwood Links yesterday. Hutchinson set a new record for the course, with his score of 142, a seventy and a seventy-two, and Jones was two strokes away with 144, a card that equalled Joe Kirkwood's low mark in the qualifying rounds.

Thus, with the championship play half completed, the Scot stood from 9 to 11 strokes ahead of the favorites, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Joe Kirkwood and MacDonald Smith.

First Cost or Last Cost--
Which Counts?

Last cost, of course. It's the number of miles you get per dollar that determines whether a tire is economical or expensive.

The fact that Firestone Cords cost no more than other reputable tires to begin with is less important, we maintain, than the big mileage they are giving, means the maximum saving in the end.

Firestone processes—such as air-bag curing and rubber tempering, are more difficult and cost more to employ. Yet the thousands of miles of wear they add enables Firestone to offer more to car owners. By economies in buying, manufacture and well organized distribution, Firestone maintains these superior operations without increasing first cost.

Drive on Firestone Cords and you will soon realize the superiority of Firestone construction. They ride easier, for the carcass is more resilient as well as stronger; their thick, noiseless non-skid treads cling tenaciously to slippery streets, or grip powerfully in loose dirt, mud or on steep grades.

Not a single Firestone Tire on the four winning cars of the International Indianapolis Sweepstakes went flat. This speaks volumes for Firestone Steam-Welded Tubes. There was not even air leakage from heat breaking down the splice. Think what service these tires and tubes will give you when they can stand up under the terrific heat and stress of five hundred miles of steady grind. Ask your dealer.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — = New York Stock Exchange — And Curb Prices —

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, July 14.—(United Press.)—One trader said the position of the stock market to-day was a "pikers market," and when the ticker tape showed fifty different sales in a string all transactions of only one hundred shares except three it did appear that any broker who had an order for many shares was lucky. Anyway, when any of the latter orders appeared on either side of the trading, the market shield quickly. A selling order of six hundred shares in Studebaker was enough to put that stock down 7-8 to 103 3-4, while a buying order in Anaconda of four hundred shares put it up half a point to 40 1-2. The undertone of the market was substantial. Standard stocks were notably quiet, Steel Common bein gconspicuous by its absence from the tape. A few sales appeared early, being 91 and 91 3-8. The market was a specialty affair, with such issues as Vanadium, American Chicle and Kelly, the active features.

There was some interesting shorts about the market which are being gradually approached.

The nibbling process is getting on the bears nerve and it's a case of every day a little higher, although apparent activity. Insiders are buying Producers and Refiners, selling at 33 3-4, up 1-2 from the close.

Rails were firm. Attendance was unusually light at the openirg of the stock exchange to-day, but prices were firm, under the influence of better foreign exchange figures. A few buyers in Steel was the report from the floor at the opening.

Coppers were in demand with Cerro de Pasco opening at 40, up 1-8, Utah 58 1-2, unchanged.

Baltimore and Ohio was up 1-8 at 46 7-8; American Locomotive 67 7-8, unchanged, and Cosden 39 1-2, off 1-8. The first half hour was a very empty affair with most of the trading originating on the floor. Prices moved within narrow limits. Studebaker was probably the most active, selling at 103 3-8, up 3-8 and then sagging to 103. Shorts in this stock are obviously getting nervous. Recent sellers of Burns Brothers' issues have been covering the stock sold at 26 7-8, up 4 3-4 from the recent low.

Are Good Standard Stocks Worth Buying

That question is in many persons' minds just now, and the opinion of RELIABLE Brokers is that stocks are really CHEAP, judging from the condition of industrial business. However financial markets have been heavy and traders are discouraged. Is not this the time to buy? Certainly good DIVIDEND PAYERS are remarkably cheap. They Had No Banks

IN pioneer days the general merchant often kept the moncy of his customers for them—there were no banks. Buying and selling were largely by barter only.

The coming of the branch bank filled an important need in every community, and to-day the wise farmer, business man or private individual keeps his money in the bank and makes full use of the many services it has to offer.

Seed Drill And Plow

How to Properly Care for These Useful Implements

Watch the Bearings and Attend to Oiling—Cover the Plow's Bright Parts With Thick Oil or Grease—How to Tell the Bushels of Grain in a Bin—"Holding Up" Milk.

The seed drill shows the result of neglect in a way so impressively as to deter the owner or operator from abusing this machine to the same extent as he may practice with the plow or harrow. A warped seed box, or rusty and clogged grain runs, leave tell tale evidence ever the field that even makes the neglectful man repent. With many moving parts, the drill requires frequent careful oiling. Disc and double parts than the shoe or hoe type of drill, and with the disc bearings subjected to dust and sand, considerable trouble will develop if there is any neglect to keep the bearings properly adjusted and oiled. When once the bearings become worn, it is impossible for the disc to function properly and renewal of the parts that have become worn is the only remedy if the drill is to give best service. All bearings should receive attention and be kept smooth and free from grit. This is best done by a frequent application of light mineral oil. The grain drill bearings are not the easiest to get at; a long flexible stem oil can is generally the most useful type of oiler.

Keep the Oil Can Constantly at Hand

An oild can should always be with the seed drill. The large wheels turning slowly may not need oiling more than once each half day, but the discs may turn 15,000 tmes in a day under considerable pressure, hence the need of frequent oiling. The seed box mechanism turning slowly can generally be well served by oiling twice a day. The grain drill should not be exposed to the weather when not in use. A canvas cover sufficiently large to fully protect the grain-box should go with this machine for use over night or idle periods if it is not desired to move the drill back to its proper storage in the implement shed until the close of the seeding season. The matter of keeping bolts tight and everything in adjustment is just as important with this machine as with any other. If the drill gets proper care, it will last the lifetime of the operator, and the original cost of paint will carry it through.

When the plow is not in use its bright surfaces should be protected by a layer of thick mineral oil or grease. Heavy machine oil or good axle grease rubbed over the mould board, share, coulter and jointer point will save a plow from the ravages of rust. The rusting of one winter period may injure a plow more than a long season's service in the field. Rusty plows lose a lot of time for man and team in the spring, through delay caused by halts to clear and scrape a mould board that will not scour. All braces and bolts should be kept light, the points of share, coulter and skimmer sharp and of proper shape. The plow wheel and axle should be kept well lubricated and packed in such a way as will prevent sand reaching the wearing surface of wheel hub or axle. The small wheel of a plow will turn 40,000 times in a day plowing two acres. If the wheel is to last and do good service, the axle should get a little heavy oil every hour. An oil can holder should be attached to every plow, so that the oil supply will always be at hand and screeching prevented by its timely use.

Watch the Plow Point

If the plow point becomes worn the inclination of the mouldboard is changed; the plow tends to run on the point, the work becomes heavier on both the horses and the plowman, and poorer work is done. The heel of the share wears nearly as quickly as does the point. With the dulling of the heel the plow will wing over to the land and require more exertion on the part of both man and team. Keep the plowshare sharp and in proper form. A coat of paint applied to the handles, beam and all other parts that do not come in direct contact with the oil will do much to keep up appearances and prevent weathering.—L. Stevenson, Sec. Dept. of Agriculture.

Bushels of Grain in Bins

To compute the number of bushels in bins multiply the length by width and depth, and divide the number obtained by 1⅞. This gives the number of bushels.

If figuring on ear corn, divide by 2½ instead of 1¼ as for small grain or shelled corn.

A common farm waggon box, 10 feet long and 3 feet wide, will hold about 2 bushels of grain for every inch in depth, that is, a box 18 inches deep will hold approximately 36 bushels.

FRANCE CELEBRATING DAY OF "GLORY" TO-DAY

PARIS, July 14.—(United Press).—The day France celebrates—The "Day of Glory," of the Marseillaise" is being celebrated temperately today because of the terrific heat. The great parade that ordinarily features Bastile day was cancelled.

Unveiling of a monument, work of the Belgian Sculptor Ruder Blue, symoblic of Franco-Belgian friendship, was the feature of the celebrations.

Popular subscriptions in Brussels raised the price of the monument, which depicts two granite features, hand-in-hand on a pedestal, France, and Belgium with the inscription, "Friends for ever."

Tens of thousands danced in the open air during the night and early hours of the morning and unofficially estimates are that over six million beers, to say nothing of wines, were consumed in the first day of the two-day fete. There had been an unprecendented hegira to the benches.

TARTAR MAID IS MISS DALTON IN BIG NEW FILM

Dorothy Dalton in "The Law of the Lawless," with Theodore Kosloff, Charles de Roche and Tully Marshall in featured roles, has a role that suits her perfectly and one she likes immensely. She is seen as a Tartar girl, and this enables her to wear the picturesque costumes of the Roumanian hills, which enhance her charm and give the colorful effect which always registers so admirably on the screen. Besides, the part is one which gives Miss Dalton an opportunity for the display of the vivid acting, fiery, almost primitive in character, for which she is famed.

Theodore Kosloff is also cast in a Tartar role and to this his strong personality, artistic preceptions and dramatic force lend themselves perfectly.

Charles de Roche is excellently cast as a gypsy chieftain. His splendid physique, his strong features, his immense acting, all come into play in this part. Tully Marshall is seen as a village money lender. Fred Huntley and Margaret Loomis also are in the cast, and the latter, always a favorite, brings to her characteristic beauty, charm and grace, as well as her ability to act.

The story of "The Law of the Lawless," which will be seen at the Capitol theatre for three days beginning Monday next, deals with a Tartar girl who is sold at auction in payment of her father's debts and bought by a gypsy chieftain. He compels her to marry him and his manly qualities soon prompt her to love him. When her husband is captured by her countrymen, she goes to his rescue with highly dramatic results.

FLOWING GOLD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Calvin Gray hires three associates to keep track of the oil field activities of Colonel Henry Nelson, who is his enemy. Gray is friendly with the Briskow family. Bud Briskow, the son, has charge of his father's oil wells. Allie Briskow comes to spend a few days with her brother. Bud phones for Gray to come to the fields at once as oil is expected on some land in which Gray has an interest. Gray is injured while watching operations on the field. Allie volunteers to nurse him. Allie is in love with Gray, but he loves Barbara Parker.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

When she had laid her inert burden upon the bed, Allie knelt and took Gray's head upon her bosom. Then, for the first time, those forces imprisoned deep within her being ran wild, and under the red glare of that flaming geyser she kissed his hair, his eyes, his lips. Over and over again she kissed them with the hungry passion of a woman starved.

CHAPTER XXVI
In Dangerous Waters

A SUBDUED but continuous whispering irritated Calvin Gray. When it persisted, minute after minute, he opened his eyes, asking himself, dully, why it was that people couldn't let a fellow sleep.

Allegheny Briskow appeared out of nowhere and laid a soothing hand upon his brow. When she saw the light of sanity in his eyes, her face brightened and she cried, eagerly:

"You're coming around all right, aren't you? You mustn't talk. Everything is all right—all right, honestly. I'll tell you everything, but just you rest now until Buddy comes." There was magnetism to the girl's touch and comfort in her voice.

It was some time later that Gray opened his eyes and spoke in a more natural voice, saying, "How do I happen to be here in your house, Allie?"

"We brought you over at daylight. Buddy's gone for a doctor, but he'll be back." The girl averted her face quickly and moved toward the window.

"He ought to be at the well—putting it out. God! What a sight! I see it yet!"

"The well is out!" Allie returned and seated herself beside the bed. "You probably won't understand it or believe it—I can scarcely believe it myself, for it's a miracle. All the same, it is out, shut in, and not much damage done. You're not ruined, either, for Buddy says they're short of fuel here, and a gasser this size is worth a good deal—most as much as a fair oil well."

"How can it be shut in? It was blazing, roaring—a tower of flame. The derrick itself was going—"

"I know, but the strangest thing—" Allie spoke breathlessly. "Let me do the talking, please. You remember the drill stems were standing over in one corner? Well, the fire drove everybody off, of course; there was no facing it, and they thought sure they'd have a job—have to send for boilers and smother it down with steam, maybe, or tunnel under, or something—work for days, maybe weeks, and spend a fortune. Anyhow, they were in a panic, but when the derrick went down what do you think? That stack of drill stems fell in such a way as to close the gate valve at the top of the casing."

"It—sounds incredible." The speaker made an effort to collect himself, he raised an uncertain hand to his bandaged head. "What ails me? I recall a lot of things, but they're pretty well confused."

Allie made known the nature of the accident resulting in Gray's injury, and he nodded his understanding. "So Buddy saved my life!" He smiled. "Great boy, Buddy! I'll know better than to mix it with him again—he learns too quickly."

"Oh, it was terrible! I've been so —so frightened!" Allie Briskow suddenly lost control of herself, and, bowing her head, she hid her face in the musty patchwork quilt. Her shoulders shook, her whole strong body twitched and trembled. "You've b-been awful sick. I did the best I could, but—"

"There, there!" Gray placed his hand upon the girl's head; he took her palm in his and stroked it. "I'm not worth your tears, child. And, anyhow, I'm all right again; I am, indeed. I'm as well as ever, so far as I can tell. By the way, what set the well afire?"

"Buddy thinks somebody must have dropped a cigaret when the stampede came." The girl raised

"WE'LL BE BURNED ALIVE!" SHE GASPED.

"It has been raining cats and dogs; the creek has overflowed and everything is under water."

"Under water? Here? Why, that can't be." Gray insisted upon rising, and Allie finally consented to his doing so; then, despite his protest that he was quite able to take care of himself, she helped him to the window. From that position he beheld a surprising scene.

The Briskow farm lay in a flat, saucerlike valley, arid and dusty at most seasons of the year, but now a shallow lake, the surface of which was broken by occasional fences, misty clumps of bushes, or the tops of dead weeds. The nearest Briskow derrick was dimly visible, its floor awash, its shape suggestive of the battle mast of a sunken man-of-war.

Allegheny Briskow sang while she prepared supper, for the reaction from the strain of the last twelve hours was like an intoxication. Mr. Gray was in no further danger; he was well except for a bandaged head and some bruises. And he was here alone with her.

Supper, when the two sat down to it, proved to be a pleasant meal, for the soft glow of the lamp, the warmth from the stove, made of the Briskow kitchen a cozy place, while the drumming of the rain overhead enhanced their feeling of comfort and security.

During the night an explosive crash followed by a loud reverberation awoke Calvin Gray and brought him up sitting. His room was lit by white flickers, against which he saw that the rain still sheeted his windows; he fumbled for his watch and found that it was two o'clock. This was a storm, indeed, and he began to fear that this deluge might swell the waters to a danger point; therefore he rose, struck a light, and dressed himself. Sleep was out of the question, anyhow, amid such an uproar. As he stepped out upon the front porch, his attention was instantly drawn to a yellow glow in the west, a distant torch, the flame of which illuminated the angry night. He stared at it for a moment before he realized its meaning.

"Hello!" he cried, excitedly. "Did you see that? Yonder are two wells afire."

"I know. I haven't closed my eyes. You can see another from my window." Allie snapped the light from a pocket flash upon Gray, and, noting that he was only partly clad, she urged him to come into the house. When he ignored the request she joined him, and together they stared at the mounting flames.

"Jove! That's terrible!" he muttered.

"Look here." Allie directed the beam of her light down over the edge of the porch, and moved it slowly from side to side. The surface of the water was not only burdened with debris, but also it was thick with oil. "It's just like that on the other side. That gusher on sixteen must be wild."

"I dare say it won't get any worse." Gray spoke with a carelessness that he was far from feeling, but his tone did not deceive the girl.

"It doesn't have to get any worse," she declared, impatiently. "There's oil enough here to burn. We're in the middle of a lake of it. What'l happen if it catches fire?"

"At least we'll be as well off inside as out here," Gray declared, and his companion agreed, so together they went into her room, where, side by side, they peered through her window.

"I've read about this sort of thing," Allie was saying. "Tanks bursting and rivers afire. It spreads all over, the fire does, and there's no putting it out."

"One thing sure, this lightning won't last long—"

A blue glare and a ripping explosion gave the lie to Gray's cheering words. Allie Briskow recoiled from the window.

"We'll be burned alive!" she gasped. "Roasted like rats in a trap. I—I'm frightened, Mr. Gray." She drew closer to him.

"No need of that. We'll get out of this scrape somehow—people always do." A flicker lit the room, and he saw that the face upturned to his was wide eyed, strained. That brief glimpse of Allie, like a picture seen through the shutter of a camera, remained long with the man, for her hair was unbound, her lips were parted, and her dark eyes were peculiarly brilliant; through the opening of her lacy negligee her round, white neck and swelling bosom were exposed. It was a head, a bust, to be remembered.

"I— You got to—hold me," she said, huskily, and he felt her body shrink close to his. She clung tightly to him, trembling at first, then shaking in every limb. Fright, it seemed, had suddenly mastered Allie Briskow.

Gray endeavored for a moment to soothe her, then gently to loosen her hold; he spoke to her as he would have spoken to a terrified child, but the wildness of her emotion matched the wildness of the night, and her strength was nearly equal to his. Roughly he tore her arms from about his neck and put her away from him; by main strength he forced her into a chair, then snatched a covering of some sort from the bed and folded it around her shoulders. His voice was hoarse—to him it sounded almost brutal as he said:

"Get hold of yourself! We're in no great danger, really. Now then, a light will help us both." With clumsy hands he struck a match and lit the lamp. "Light's a great thing—drives away foolishness—nightmares and fancies of all sorts." Without looking at her he seized the electric torch and muttered: "I'll take a look around, just to see that things are snug. Back presently."

FOX TERRIER WAS KILLED BY AUTO

Man Who Picked The Dog Up Said It Could Have Been Avoided.

Mr. Schwerdt, 58 Victoria avenue, who picked up a limp fox terrier off George street this morning and carried the lifeless thing over his arm to the police station, was indignant. He said: "The man in that car, Mr. ——— could have avoided this dog very easily. He deliberately ran over it."

Whether the man, who was evidently a dog lover, was right or not, it would be hard to say. The dog was very near the curb, and there was no traffic of any account on the street just then. It looked as if a detour of an inch or two, which was all that was needed to escape the small terrier, getting across the street as fast as possible, would have been quite easy. But the driver didn't turn out, and he sped merrily up the road, without stopping, as the small creature died, spinning round and round in circles and uttering yelps of pure agony, while a confused crowd of people looked on, in ineffective pity. The fat black dog that accompanied the terrier escaped unhurt. With the instinct of the suffering animal, its stricken companion ran to it, crying shrilly, but it could do nothing more than look on helplessly as the small head beat up and down on the hard asphalt.

NO TRACE YET OF MISSING MAN

Walter Chambers Was Last Seen On London Street Dam.

Walter J. Chambers, who disappeared from his home in the city on Thursday at noon, has not yet been found. Search parties are looking for him, but their efforts have so far been futile.

It is said that Mr. Chambers often visited a particular spot on the bank of the river to smoke, and that he sat on a board there. It was suggested that he might have slipped off into the river, but search has so far not given any clue to whether this happened. Grappling irons were used by the police in their search.

The police succeeded in tracing the unfortunate man to the London street dam, and there all knowledge of him ended.

Chambers had been residing at 595 George street, and not 151 Dublin street, as stated yesterday.

MARKET CLEARED AT EARLY HOUR

Little Pigs Were the Only Living Things That Dozed In The Active Market

The farmers' market was a busy place this morning, but the upstair section was bought out at an early hour. Butter and eggs were snapped up quickly, butter selling generally at 35 cents a pound, eggs ranging down from 28 to 24 cent, a dozen. Cream was 25 cents a pint, and chickens from 30 to 25 cents a pound, in varying ages.

In the open section, little pigs slumbered in crated boxes. A large umbrella sheltered one lot from the hot sun. A pair could be bought for $11 this morning. A single load of hay was $14.

Huckleberries were plentiful at 25 cents a quart, or $2 for a heaped-up eight-quart pail. A couple of dealers had strawberries, at 15 cents a box and one lady had red raspberries, at 20 cents. There was sage in bundles and large pale green duck eggs, rhubarb at a nickle a generous bundle young, pink carrots and beets and lettuce, all at a nickel a bunch. Plenty of green peas at 10 cents a quart, or three for a quarter dollar, large white onions with their attendant greens, at five cents, cauliflowers at 15 and 20 cents, elongated 'telegraph' cucumbers at 30 cents apiece, and extra red radishes the Denmark breed, at a nickel a bunch.

Little downy ducklings, bright yellow, with beady black eyes, and orange feet and bills, at 30 cents each clustered in one corner of a wooden box and peeped from a large paper bag under a small boy's arm.

The fish man had fresh salmon trout on ice, at 23 cents a pound. Old potatoes were $1.50 a bag on several carts.

Inside, there were cherries in baskets, the red fruit in 11 quart containes at $1 and the black cherries in six quart baskets for $1.50. Large beets here were three bunches for a quarter. Gooseberries were 15 cents a quart, and string beans the same price.

"Daisies three bunches for a nickel," was the cry of a small boy vendor. Twenty-five cents would buy an assorted bouquet of pansies, pink roses and pale pink snapdragon, and for thirty-five cents, one could get larger bunches of Sweet William, pinks with feathered edges, gaillardia and Canterbury bells. Upstairs there were pale pink roses, deep blue larkspur, the children's "butter and egg" flower, and yellow nasturtiums.

The crowd around the auctioneer, stood in oil this morning, sticky and glutinous, on the freshly-piled market-place. The pile of straw hats and green screen, which occupied a portion of the autioneer's time was deserted for a motor-car, a seven-passenger affair, which brought $167 as a final bid. There were bids of $23 and $24 on an old brown mare, from a rural delivery mail service rig, her harness patched with bits of rope and chain, and a sturdy, white cart horse of twelve years brought $25 as an opener.

HEARST PAPERS BACK BRITIAN

Abandon Customary Hostile Attitude Towards British and Instead Attack France.

NEW YORK, July 14. Canadian Press. — Hearst newspapers abandoning their customary hostile attitude toward Great Britain, and all things British, to-day print lengthy editorials supporting the British attitude on the reparations problem, as the Hearst writer interprets it, through recent pronouncement of Prime Minister Baldwin.

Incidentally the editorial contains a bitter attack upon France for her Ruhr policy, which is termed "An imperialistic, bulldozing, swash buckling policy," which is "devastating Europe and in the end means suicide for France."

The British Prime Minister uses the soft words of diplomacy, the writer declares, but in effect he warned France "that ruined Germany means bankrupt France, that she must withdraw her armies from the Ruhr, consent to let an impartial commission fix what Germany can and must pay, and that Germany must then give adequate guarantees that she will pay."

Hearst editorial continues:

"England is entirely right, and Prime Minister Baldwin expresses in restrained, forceful, but unmistakable terms, moral sentiment of the civilized world in his protest against France's attitude.

"The greater part of Europe cannot be kept subject and abject in order that France may be imperialistic bully of Europe, and may escape paying taxes by plundering the weaker nations, and avoid paying her debts by lavishing money on armies.

SUGGESTIONS FOR TRENT WATERWAY

Visitor From Ithaca N.Y. Going Through To Georgian Bay Praises Service

"I have no complaint whatever to make about my trip as far as Peterborough", said Mr. A. N. Gibb of Ithkaca, N. Y., seated in his 45 foot cruiser "Mary Ann." "I would suggest, however, that if the Canadian Government would install a telephone service between locks it would certainly facilitate lockages. Knowing that you are looking for suggestions to assist in making this Trent Waterway the most popular water route in America, which is easily possible. I would also suggest that you arrange to have the merchants along the entire route accept Traveller's Cheques; that a list of places where ice, and fresh supplies of milk and cream are available, be in the pamphlet issued by the Trent Waterway Development Association, and that signs be placed up en route showing hat gasoline is sold at certain places." "The scenery is most wonderful, and the courtesy and hospitality shown by the lock tenders and all who met us have been most acceptable," continued Mr. Gibb.

The speaker was at the New York Motor Boat Show in February, and decided to make the cruise this summer.

SIX CONVICTS' DARING ESCAPE

Beat A Guard, Climbed Wall and Seized Motor Truck.

PHILA-PA, July 14.—Six convicts escaped from eastern state penitentiary to-day after beating a guard. They escaped over the wall, held up motor truck and fled in direction of Fairmount Park. All were said to be armed.

Escape was one of most daring in long history of institution. Woman living on Corinthian Avenue, which bounds eastern side of institution, was first person on the outside to see men.

Men appeared to be calm but lowered themselves swiftly with ropes.

Across the street was closed car which convicts tried to steal but found door locked About this time a small motor truck used in retail yeast trade came along and one of convicts stopped driver at point of pistol and all piled in and away.

FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS.

LONDON, July 14. — Turner writing in the Morning Post, reviews Canada's efforts to settle ex-service men. He outlined the Canadian scheme for settlement and then urges that England should consider the opportunities Canada presents for unemployed ex-soldiers.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Some Constructive Advice.

Every so often a "don't" mood comes on me. It is the usual reaction from numerous letters in which I feel urged to shout across a distance to my mother readers—don't, don't, don't! But what to do is really the thing we ought to peda! hardest on—so here are some "dos."

Do—If the baby needs weening, ask your doctor and take his advice, not the advice of your neighbors or relatives.

Do stop your ears to the baby's every cry. If you take him up each time you will only spoil him.

Do weigh him each week. Thus knowing if his food is just what it should be.

Do feed the baby at regular intervals, never oftener than every three hours. This way he has a far better chance to produce a better digestion and the mother good milk.

Do leave the baby alone after his meals. If you handle him part of his milk will be spit up.

Do give the baby plenty of fresh air night and day and protect him from hot suns, mosquitoes, flies and old milk.

Do pay some attention to vomiting and find out the reason for it. There are many reasons, some harmless, but they should not be disregarded.

Give the baby a drink of cool boiled water between each feeding this hot weather. He needs water every day and during heated spells more than ever.

Rickets.

It is not always possible to know the exact reason why children have rickets, because it is seen even in the breast fed—but it is possible for the mother to recognize when the child has it and take the measures for cure.

It has been found that young rats when fed a normal diet minus some inorganic salts, and foods containing fat solub A, that vitamin found so richly in cream and butter and pulpy green vegetables; that said rats develop rickets. Their bones are soft and easily breakable; their chests are deformed; the ends of their bones enlarged, etc. In children with rickets these same symptoms are seen. The child's bones are soft and easily bent out of shape, as is in bow legs, the dentition is late and the teeth are easy to decay. The wrists and ankles are enlarged and the chest high and round and there is at the end of each rib a marked enlargement which makes a formation like a row of beads and is called the "rosary" because of this likeness.

The child in the later developments will have a box shaped head. These children sweat easily about the head. If the mother suspects that a child has rickets she should make haste to change his diet and to add cod liver oil to it. Cod liver oil is an absolute cure for rickets.

Even if the child has shown these bone malformations if the diet is changed and cod liver oil given there is a good chance for him to outgrow these changes without permanent disfigurement. Children who are bowlegged and pigeon chested are that way because the fact that they had rickets was not recognized early enough By the time they were on a diet, which would arrest the disease the permanent injury had been done.

FEDERAL AGENTS IN A LARGE SEIZURE

DETROIT, July 14. — Canadian Press. — Federal agents assisted by representatives of the Treasury Department, last night and early today seized two hundred motor boats off Ecores, Wyandotte and Trenton in the down town river district. The operations were conducted in the face of an angry mob, who according to the officers attempted at one time to disembark the small bridge giving egress to the boat well.

40 IRISH IRREGULARS ESCAPE THROUGH HOLE

When Cow "Holds Up" Milk

The suppression of secretion of milk is the reflex result of irritation of the nervous system. Shock, chill, fright, pain, rough milking, sensitive teats, weaning of a calf, etc., are some of the causes. If possible have the cow milked by a woman. Try the effects of placing a young calf at her head before starting to milk. Massage the udder gently for a few minutes before milking. If the teats are tender apply some melted lard each evening. An old-fashioned treatment is to lay a sack of grain on the cow's loins at milking time. This is expected to detract her attention so that she will "let down her milk." We cannot vouch for the efficiency of this plan as we have not tried it in practice. In stubborn cases it is best to let a calf nurse.

BRITAIN'S HOPES OF SETTLEMENT GET A SETBACK

DRAFT NOTE TODAY

LONDON, July 16. — (Canadian Press).—The British hopes of bringing about negotiations for a reparations settlement with Germany are considered here to have had a serious setback during the week-end by reason of a speech which Premier Poincare of France delivered at Senlis on Sunday. Nevertheless, British officials, who returned to Downing Street early to-day to resume the task of drafting a reply to the latest German offer, were not sure that the situation was as gloomily as the news from Paris seemed to indicate.

Say Little.

The British attitude, as reflected in official circles, is that the least said about Poincare's address the better.

It is recognized that the attitude of the war memorial unveiling was not a suitable one for the announcement of any change in the French policies, and the fact that Premier Poincare merely reaffirmed the French views without making them any stronger offered some little satisfaction and encouragement.

The British Government, it is indicated, will proceed with the work of drafting their note to be submitted to the Allies and the United States just as if M. Poincare had not spoken his mind. Lord Curzon, Foreign Secretary, arrived at the Foreign Office early this morning, and a completed draft of the document will probably go to the Cabinet to-morrow.

COPY TO STATES.

LONDON, July 16.—(Special.)—Premier Stanley Baldwin referred in the Commons to-day to the forthcoming British note to Germany, announcing a copy would be sent to the United States. The note is complete save for the finishing touches to be administered by the Cabinet.

Mr. Baldwin's statement was made to J. Ramsay Macdonald, leader of the Labor Opposition, in reply to the latter's question.

SAILORS DESERT FOR HIGHER PAY

LONDON, July 16. — (United Press). — Twenty-five members of the crew of the New United States Shipping Board Liner Leviathan were summoned to-day by British authorities for desertion from British ships, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Southampton, states: that complaints hav been made by British ship owners, that their crews have deserted in New York to join American vessels for higher pay.

DELORME WRITING CALLED FORGERY

MONTREAL, July 16. — Canadian Press. — "Simulated forgery" was the way G. A. Field, an expert in handwriting, called as a witness for the defence in the trial of Rev. J. A. Delorme, this morning described the writing on the package in which the watch worn by Raoul Delorme on the day of his death, was delivered through the mails to the police. Mr. Field testified that in his opinion the writing was not done by the accused but by some one who forged or simulated his writing. An interesting point not brought out before was Mr. Field's testimony to the effect that he found no trace on the wrapper of the package containing the watch that it had gone through the post office. There was no proper postmark of any kind on the wrapper, he testified.

MILK TEST MAY BE PUBLISHED

Result of Laboratory Examination Has Been Sometimes Withheld.

After a lapse of about eight months the testing of the city's milk supply will be resumed to-morrow.

The Board of Health recently gave instructions for this general monthly inspection to be carried on again at least for the summer months, and the tests will be made as formerly at the local provincial laboratory. Whether or not the results will be published is something else again. The new District Officer of Health might be inclined to advise the fullest publicity to this phase of the local department's work, but the M.O.H. and members of the Board might take theo pposite view; or both parties might be in full accord. But in the past there has been a disposition not to make public the results of the test, although there has been a pronounced feeling that if the city goes to the trouble of examining the ilk, it might as well pass the information on to the people.

MOTION FOR AN INDUSTRIAL AND SOCIAL REGIME

Labor Party in British Commons Urge Gradual Suppression of Capitalist System.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

LONDON, July 16. — (United Press).—A resolution urging gradual suppression of the capitalist system was discussed at length in the British House of Commons today.

Philip Snowden, Laborite author of the resolution, demanded that House go on record as favoring public ownership. He advocated installation of an industrial and social regime with democratic control of all instruments of production and distribution.

Aggravate Evils

Sir Alfred Mond, moved an amendment, seeking to substitute a resolution declaring that abolition of private ownership would(aggravate existing evils.

Moreover, Sir Alfred said, a far reaching social redress can be accomplished. "without overturning the present basis of society."

The situation in Queensland was cited by Sir John Simon, Liberal, who also opposed Snowden resolution as an example of the futility of public ownership.

Nationalized railroads there face a five-year deficit of 1,500,000 pounds sterling instead of a surplus of 50,000 pounds, he said.

Unemployment also is being experienced there to a greater degree than in any of the Dominions.

NEW CABINET TO MEET TOMORROW

Hon. Ferguson Will Not Let Grass Grow Beneath His Feet.

TORONTO, July 16.—(Canadian Press.)—The new Conservative administration is starting out with a rush. While not actually Premier in name until four o'clock this afternoon, after he has taken the oath of office, Hon. Howard Ferguson has proved that he does not intend to let any grass grow under his feet, and this morning notified the Government officials the new cabinet would meet at 9.30 to-morrow morning.

It is anticipated that the first meeting of the members will evolve around the discussion of the date at which the ministers will return to their constituencies for the approval of the electorate.

THIRD OF WORKERS ARE IN FACTORIES

CHICAGO—July 16.—(United Press)—A third of Chicago's working population, more than 10 years old, is employed in factories, according to the report of the United States census bureau. The total is 489,001 out of 1,231,434 working people.

AUTO ALMOST AS PLENTIFUL AS TELEPHONE

A Wide Difference When It Comes to a Question of Investment 468 New Telephones.

COST OF UPKEEP

There are nearly as many motor cars in Peterborough as telephones.

That is a startling fact when it is considered that the initial investment in a telephone is $2.50 as compared with the initial cost of a motor car which ranges from $400 to many thousands. More than that, the cost of upkeep of the telephone is only $2.05 a month, which, invested in gasoline would carry a car only 96 miles, leaving repairs and renewals unpaid for.

There were on July 1, 3,875 telephones in Peterborough and 3,160 motor cars.

One point in favor of the telephone is that since January this year there have been 468 new instruments installed, whereas the growth in the number of cars is only 200.

TRANS-CANADA TO HOLD A MEETING

Will Decide Fate of the Peterboro Theatre Together With Others.

MONTREAL, July 16. Canadian Press. — To decide the future of the Trans-Canada Theatres Limited, which announced its decision to go into liquidation on July 6th, a meeting of the shareholders was scheduled to be held at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon, in the office of W. H. Beauclerkm, the president. In all probability authorization will be given for the concern to go into voluntary liquidation and a receiver appointed to handle the affairs.

The company owns a theatre in Edmonton recently appointed at a cost of $400,000, also theatres in Kingston, Peterborough, Hamilton and Toronto. Until last fall when it gave up the lease of the Walker Theatre in Winnipeg, it also had leases with leading theatres in the Dominion, but since that time it has devoted itself to booking arrangements only with those houses.

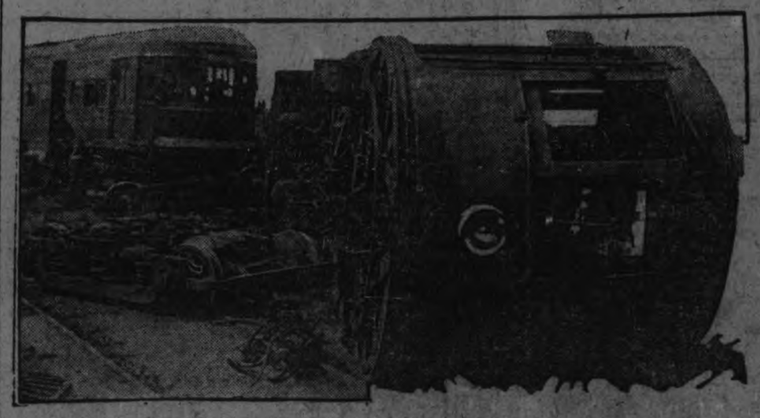
AS MANY SHAPES AS PROTEUS.

In classical mythology Proteus was Neptune's herdman, a prophetic old man who had charge of Amphitrite's seals. This aged man of the sea could tell all things, the past, the present and the future, but would only do so under compulsion. According to Homer, Proteus dwelt on the Island of Carpathus, between Rhodes and Crete. The only method by which it was possible to obtain information from Proteus was to surprise him as he slept in his great cave at noon surrounded by his seals, seizing and binding him. Even when surprised and captured in this manner, he would endeavour to escape by changing into a great many different shapes—such as that of fire, water, a tree, a snake, a lion. If, however, his captor did not permit him to go until he gave the truthful answer required of him as a seer, he would answer and then plunge into the sea.

There is a saying about having "as many shapes as Proteus"—meaning "expert in shifts, evasions or disguises."

It is easy to keep things coming your way if you are going theirs.

Here's What Happened at Open Switch



Forty persons were injured, some perhaps fatally, when a two-car high-speed trolley train jumped the tracks and overturned near the Grat wick, a Buffalo suburb. A work train had left a switch open, it is said, and that caused the accident.

No Official Call For Help in West

No official call has been received yet at the Government Employment Bureau in Peterborough, for farm help for the Western Harvest, and no applicants have placed their names on the books for the work.

Many local farmers are seeking harvesters, and a few have been placed. Laborers are in good demand, but no positions are on hand for light workers. According to the books of the Bureau, there is very little unemployment in the city at present.

NO PLANS FOR HANDLING COAL

City Does Not Contemplate Operating Municipal Fuel Yard This Year.

No preparations are being made by the city to handle coal for the citizens next winter, and no action is contemplated, Mayor W. H. Taylor told the Examiner to-day.

The question of fuel supply will come before the Fuel Committee at the next meeting of Council, Mayor Taylor said, when the warning letter received from the Fuel Controller will be discussed. Asked whether the Toronto plan of laying in a stock of coal to guard against hardship among citizens is likely to be followed in Peterboro, the Mayor said he does not think it is probable. There is considerable loss to the municipality handling the coal, and in his opinion this year will not bring the shortage that was experienced last year.

Most of the people in the city who have the money have already laid in a store of coal, and this will leave the supplies during the winter for consumption by the smaller buyers.

The wood situation, too, in the opinion of the Mayor, is better here than in many other centres where wood fuel is difficult to obtain. "We may have to pay a high price for it here," Mayor Taylor said, "but we can always get wood."

It is believed that she was struck by one of the horse's hoofs on the back of the head, and suffered a fracture at the base of the skull.

Besides her parents, four sisters and two brothers survive.

MAIN FEATURES OF CONVENTION ARE DESCRIBED

Past President John Crane Tells of the International Gathering at St. Louis.

SPLENDID ADDRESSES

A most interesting report of the recent Rotary International convention at St. Louis was given by Past President John Crane at the luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club, the report being the big feature of to-day's gathering.

Rotarian Crane was the representative of the Peterborough Rotarians at the convention and has brought back with him not only vivid impressions of the splendid addresses given there, but also glowing reports of the wonderful hospitality extended by the Rotarians of St. Louis to the delegates. 89 per cent. of the Rotary clubs throughout the world were represented at the convention and the voting delegates present totalled 1919.

The speaker described the splendid opening ceremonies and told of the visit of President Harding, from whose address he quoted the most striking paragraphs. The inaugural address of last year's president, Ray Havens, was referred to as a splendid effort and Rotarian Crane called attention to the face that President Havens had endeavoured throughout his year in office to emphasize the importance of Rotarians paying attention to the question of business ethics. This feature of Rotary work would be the outstanding business at the next International convention.

The speaker referred to the election as president for this year of Guy Gundaker, whom he described as a very able executive.

It was impossible in a short talk to even touch briefly upon the many splendid addresses given, and the members were advised to see that they secured copies of the proceedings which he was sure they would find of great interest.

Rotarian Crane gave a resume of the different resolutions brought before the convention and explained what had been done with each of them.

His address was a comprehensive description of the principal features of the big gathering and was thoroughly enjoyed by the Rotarians, who showed their appreciation in the usual manner.

Building Permits Higher This Month

Building in the city shows an improvement in the first half of July over a similar period in any month this year. Only fourteen permits have been taken out, but four of these were for large amounts invested in the building of dwellings and four others were for alterations and additions involving more than $200 each.

The total for the two weeks ending July 15 is $13,340, made up as follows dwelling at 144 Homewood avenue, 6 rooms, $,-3 800; dwelling for caretaker at the Protestant Home, $3,700; remodelling dwelling into duplex, 303 Rubidge street, $3.000; bungalow corner of Princess and Park, $1,500; dressing rooms at Lake street swimming beach $400; 3 garages $290; addition to factory on Simcoe street owned by Adam Hall Ltd., $250; and repairs, reshingling and minor additions.

PAY TRIBUTE TO DEAD COMRADES

Ex-Service Men Decorate Graves of Former Veterans of Great War.

About one hundred ex-service men turned out yesterday afternoon and paraded to St. Peter's Cemetery, to decorate the graves of those of their former comrades who lie there. The men fell in in front of the G.W.V.A. rooms at 2 p.m., with the regimental and bugal bands of the 57th Rangers in attendance. Owing to the distance from the rooms to the cemetery cars were provided for those who weer unable to march.

Hundreds of people were gathered at the cemetery to join with the former soldiers in paying homage to the dead. Here they were met by Rev. Paul Costello, who was a Chaplain overseas, who in a brief but stirring address paid homage to those who gave up their lives for the Empire. This yearly practice of decorating the graves of ex-service men was he said a sacred duty, and one which would keep forever green the ideals for which they fought and sed their blood, and gave their lives. These men lying in the cemeteries of Canada represent to us not only the dead here but those who lie in France as well. These are the men who fought so well, and who made the name of Canada ring with the glory of their deeds.

Flags and Flowers.

After the address prayers were offered for the repose of their souls, and each grave was individually decorated with a small flag and the flowers which their comrades had brought for the purpose.

The parade was exceptionally well attended as was the parade to the Little Lake cemetery the previous Sunday and on both occasions men of all creeds united in honour of the dead.

A SIGNAL TRANSMITTER WHICH INSISTS ON ACCURACY

One of the most striking features of modern engineering in all its branches is the extent to which transmitting instruments are used to show the conditions ruling at some distant point. In many instances this transmission of measurements is necessitated by the magnitude of the installation concerned, and in all cases it is a great convenience and an aid to efficiency, to have the indications of a gear transmitted to a central point from which the whole equipment is controlled. The assistance of electricity is generally invoked and remarkable results are obtained by automatic gear which seems almost to be endowed with human intelligence and is certainly superior to human fallibility. An interesting problem, solved recently by some British engineers, was that of indicating at a distance the level of water in an irrigation canal. Floats were arranged to send a definite number of electrical impulses through the signalling wires, much in the same way as the call number is signalled to an automatic telephone exchange. At the receiving station the incoming impulses move the indicating instrument forward step by step. The success of the system depends entirely on the transmitter and receiver keeping in step with each other. This is ensured by the use of a transmitter which refuses to be hurried. However rapidly the float rises or falls, the transmitter sends out the correct number of impulses at a fixed rate. The mechanism distinguishes automatically between a rise and a fall of the float, and, should the signal wires be broken, the apparatus gets automatically into step directly the circuit is repaired. This device has proved so satisfactory that British engineers are applying it to the transmission of signals and measurements of all kinds.

NEW BUILDING PROVIDED FOR THE SWIMMERS

BOUNDS DEFINED

The new building at the Lake street swimming beach designed to provide better accommodation for lady swimmers is almost completed, and will be in commission in a few days.

This building, which is being erected by the city at a cost of about $400 will contain ten cubicles to be used as dressing rooms and will be for the use of women and girls. This will leave the old building free for men and boys.

There are about 300 persons every day taking advantage of the facilities at the Lake street beach. The caretaker, Thomas Raymond, is acquaintd with all the habitual users of the beach, and when a stranger appears the caretaker learns his prowess as a swimmer and defines the bounds of safety to which he must keep. This plan works very well, Mr. Raymond finds, causing no friction and making certain that everyone who enters the water knows just how far from the shore he may safely go.

SYDNEY STRIKERS REMOVED A RAIL

But Removal Was Discovered Before Passenger Train Passed.

SYDNEY, N. S., July 16.—(Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—A rail was removed from the Sydney and Louisburg Railway, near Dominion Number 1 Mine, during the night by persons unknown. The removal was discovered before the Sydney to Louisburg Express passenger train came along, and a train hand put it back into place. The line from Glace Bay to Sydney is being patrolled by troops.

Company's Plans.

As the Coal Company plans continuous movement of coal from the pile at No. 2 mine, interference with the railway is looked to as one of the most serious of possible developments in the strike situation.

Work commenced on the restoring of No. 3 Blast Furnace and Four Open Hearth Furnaces at the Steel Plant to-day.

GRAND LODGE OF MASONS CONVENE

Sixty-Eighth Annual Meeting Opened in Toronto Today.

TORONTO, July 16. Canadian Press. — The 68th annual convention of the Grand Lodge, A. F. and A.M., of Canada, in the Province of Ontario, opened at the Masonic temple to-day, when officers and members of the Grand Lodge, representing a total of 563 Lodges in Ontario, and more than 100,000 Masons met as a board of general purposes meeting.

E. W. Saunders extended a welcome to the visitors on behalf of the 68 lodges in Toronto.

A MAN'S PRAYER.

When I lie down at night
Make me not prey to thoughts that fear the light;
Let not remorse, or shame, or doubt or dread,
Have right to any piace about my bed.

When I rise up at morn;
Give me a slate clean as the day, new-born,
Whereon to write this day, a record fair,
Unshamed though all the world shall see it there.

When that I trudge with burden of the day,
Grant me good friends to cheer me on my way.
With whom my commerce shall be clean and true,
Taking not more, nor giving less than due.

Till, on that journey I must make alone,
All unafraid, I face the Great Unknown.

—Miles Tyler Frisbee, in the Rotarian.

IN SWEDEN

"Go to Sweden," said to me many years ago a man who knows Europe. "You will find there perhaps the most alert, intelligent and interesting men, in my opinion the most charming women and without the shadow of doubt the most wonderful drink on the whole Continent."

That was many years ago. Sweden then seemed as remote as the Fortunate Isles, but the combination indicated remained indelibly fixed upon the mind—as why should it not? To find the three ultimate desiderata in one small country is most unusual in this Vale of Tears. It would be well worth waiting for—any way, there was nothing to do but wait.

Then without a preparatory hint—the best things always come that way—the chance came. Gothenburg, Sweden's greatest seaport and second commercial city, decided to celebrate the fact that it was three hundred years old by holding a great exhibition. Would a certain Canadian newspaper man accept an invitation from the Swedish Government to go over as its guest and see for himself what Sweden has done and is doing. Would he? The memory of that old exhortation came back to him after many years. Would he? He most emphatically and irrevocably would!

That was about a month ago. No one, even the guest of an alert Government can cross the ocean twice and "see" a country in a month, but after only one month of Swedish hospitality, liquid, solid, scenic, social and statistical, afloat and ashore, that Canadian newspaper man bending tired steps homeward feels as the Queen of Sheba must have felt after one of Solomon's most successful banquets. "It was a true report that I heard in mine own land and behold the half was not told me."

* * *

The Ambrose lightship sinks astern and there is a gentle sound of popping corks aboard the good ship Stockholm of the Swedish-American line. Oh nothing serious, just beer! But there are aboard hundreds of Swedish-Americans to whom the nipping Pilsener of the home land is as nectar. The man next to the Government Guest at the first lunch is drinking some clear aromatic stuff with his Smergosbord (hors d'oeuvres) that the guest would like to try. Better wait, though, there may be a kick of sea before dinner and Smergosbord itself requires some eating.

Swedish hors d'oeuvres is a national institution. France has gone far in the development of this auteprandial canter but Sweden leaves France at the post. "The fish you boil, the fish you fry, the fish that run and swim and fly," together with the hen in all stages from egg to boiler, not forgetting small things from the garden like radishes, cucumbers, tomatoes and lettuce have all been aid under tribute to stimulate the Swedish appetite. Cans, pots, saucers, platters, bowls, glasses, pitchers, plates, more and more they come. The friendly and familiar sardine replaces the raw herring pickled in vinegar, the sliced salmon, smoked over green juniper branches (there ought to be a statue to the man who first did that) makes way for smoked eel, which adds zest to an appetite that is just beginning to assert itself. Caviar yields gracefully though unwillingly to pate de foie gras and so one comes by gradual degrees through glacied eggs to wafers of beef, ham, tongue and chicken breasts, perhaps just a dash of omelette or two and a handful or so of prawns with two or three spoonfulls of stewed kidneys before the cucumbers.

What is that stuff your neighbor is drinking anyway? Smells like anisette. Looks good.—What—schnapps eh? Yes, of course, the sea may get up but why be conspicuous and go without it? If you've eaten raw herring and eel and cucumbers and pate and eggs and omelettes and kidneys and raw ham—and you know mighty well you have, you old fool!—you'll die at the first sea anyway. Steward! Schnapps!

But all that was merely hors d'oeuvres. Let us now begin lunch. Heaven help all poor sailors! The real significance of the hymn, "For Those in Peril on the Sea," becomes at last apparent.

By and by you rise torpidly, hunt up the deck steward, get your chair and rug, get them placed and yourself rolled up and drop into an uneasy slumber in which you see a Strassbourg goose laying eggs gelatine in the company of a school of pickled herrings, appropriately arising from a sea of schnapps from these terrors you are aroused by the bray of the tea bugle and you toddle to the main companionway and drink much tea and eat warm elastic buns, sugar topped, filled with cardamom seeds and other exotic spices till human nature can endure no more and you shake a sticky fist at the grinning steward.

Then after a dinner not less dangerously delicious comes the great event. The Guest is promenading faithfully after coffee and its inseparable companion (they pronounce it "con-jack" in Sweden) when his neighbor at table draws alongside. "There is a fine old Swedish gentleman in the smoking room who begs the honor of introducing you to our Swedish national drink. Will you take a glass of punch with him?" Will you? Think it over! She's beginning to pitch a bit and after that dinner and that tea and that lunch—think it over, boy! The Swedish national heroes come to one's hand. Did Gustavus Wasa make himself King of Sweden by caution? He did not. Was Gustavus Adolphus afraid to take a chance? Not a bit of it. Lead on! This may mean death, but it's going to be a lovely death.

Swedish punch like other great triumphs of civilized man partakes of the nature of a mystery. How did a purely northern essentially home-loving people come to evolve so entirely exotic a drink? Rice is not indigenous to Sweden; if the Swede had made a national toddy out of the turnip or the cabbage or something he grows at home it would have been comprehensible, but he didn't. He went to Sumatra—of all places!—where they make arrack out of rice and he went to the Mediterranean countries and got sherry or Madeira and then he went round and about and got more strange spices. Finally he went back home, rolled up his sleeves, called upon Svea, head of Swedish pagan mythology, and brewed him a mighty drink, which, having once tasted, no man ever willingly forgets. Ritual surrounds, tradition guards its drinking. It must be ice cold, drunk with cold, preferably unsweetened black coffee and to the accompaniment of tobacco. It must be drunk slowly sparingly. It must be treated with respect, otherwise its revenge is awful to mplate. It will not willingly endure companionship but knows how to be broadly reasonably tolerant so long as given the undisputed preeminence of the evening.

"Skal" echoes up and down the smoking room. (You spell it that way, but you pronounce it to rhyme with "coal.") When you are "skal'd" the thing to do is "skal" back instantly. Look your skal companion in the eye before and after drinking and trust in Providence and a (usually) good stomach. At dinner it is the height of bad form to "skal" your host. He must in politeness respond and many guests may put a polite host under the table.

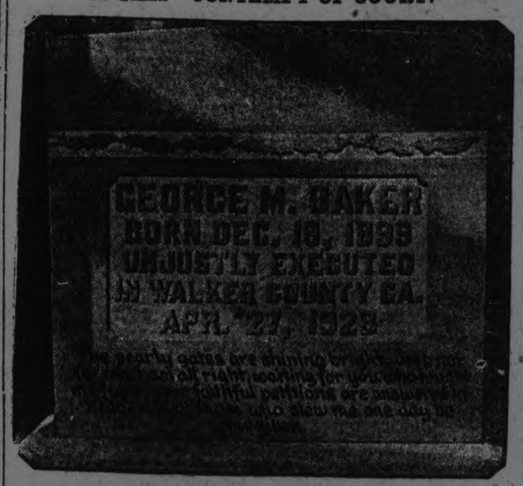
And so the lazy days and nights slide up out of the sea, pass overhead in blue solemn quiet, gray haze or piping wind and tumbling whitecaps. There are dances on deck and on "Swedish Flag Day" games when the ultra-important forget themselves and astride a padded spar joust uproariously or in the main saloon at night forget the American veneer and the boasted intimacy with the great of Wall Street and recite the age-old Frithiof's Saga in Swedish in a voice that cracks with old world feeling.

For they are going "home" these people. Some of the older ones have not seen the misty rocks and dim pine forests for almost a generation. A new land has claimed their bodies but the old one holds their hearts. And so it was that when one night a little blue-eyed Swedish girl, being strongly urged thereto, appeared at dinner in the costume of the old province of Blekinge,—red bodice picked out with green, white skirt and sleeves, white flowing headdress and ornate apron—the quick-volleyed handclaps echoed through the crowded saloon, led by the captain, and one old lady, unabashed, wept with delight.

The nights grow shorter. Up on the sun deck more rugs are in demand each night and chairs get shifted closer together. Over the horizon of a hazy warm dawn the Hebrides heave up, march past and sink astern. It is so still and clear we can trust ourselves through the Pentlands between the iron jaws of the Scottish coast and the grim Orkneys. Cape Wrath swings up, all murderous black basalt striated with the droppings of myriads of seabirds, crowned with its lighthouse and the sea eternally a-snarl around its fleet. Scapa Flow sweeps by where what was once the German fleet lies in the same grave with the galleons of Spain all along and down that killing coast. Out and across the North Sea tramps the Stockholm, and down into the mist of the Skagerrack. As dusk falls a light on the horizon beckons. Another answers: more and more follow. A pilot boat creeps up to the sound of cheers, little rocky islets, come and go in the darkness. Goodbyes—some of them prolonged—are begun.

A weeping morning, clouds of many kinds in the blue Swedish sky—a scrambled breakfast, alongside grim black sheds and scurrying porters. Baggage and cargo cranes waddled up and begin groping with long arms into the vitals of the ship. Overboard you go—Gothenburg.

IS THIS "CONTEMPT OF COURT?"



This is a father's protest, causing a controversy in the south, against the state that took his son's life. It's over the grave of George M. Baker, who died on the gallows in LaFayette, Ga., April 27, for the murder of Deputy Sheriff J. W. Morton. His brother, Ralph, 15, now is serving a life sentence. The father moved to Tennessee soon after the execution, saying he could live no longer in "unjust Georgia." The grave is at Ryall Springs, Tenn.

MUSIC MEANS BUSINESS

DETROIT, July 16 (United Press).—A never-failing prosperity barometer lives in a little restaurant on the east side here. It is a diminutive canary bird with a very musical whistle, the property of Alonzo Galdias, owner of the restaurant.

"Chiquita" hangs from the ceiling of the little restaurant, directly over the cash register. When the bell in the cash register chimes, "Chiquita" sings. The faster the bell, the happier the bird.

John Robinson sustained a fractured thigh and W. Jamieson a broken rib and other cuts and bruises about the body. The other members of the party were all cut about the head and body but none seriously hurt. Karl Tinkerman, owned the car and although one of the party, it was driven by J. E. Crow. Dr. Godfrey Bird, of Toronto, who is in town on a visit assisted his father in caring the injured. A woman in the party was thrown several feet clear of the car and escaped with only slight injuries. The men were quarry men employed in the quarry north of the town.

STRIKING MINERS SHORT OF FUNDS

But Attitude of Steelmen Shows No Apparent Weakening As Yet.

SYDNEY, July 16. —(Canadian Press).—British Empire Steel Corporation announced last night that they would start a blast furnace today. Blast furnaces have all been idle since the commencement of the steel strike in the last days of June.

Two factors which may bring about development in the strike area is the attitude of International President John L. Lewis of the miners anad lack of funds among strikers to buy the necessaries of life. There is no apparent weakening in the attitude of the steel men on strike, and the company are apparently prepared for a long struggle. Picketing operations by steel workers on Saturday were considerably strengthened over preceeding days.

Austrian Royal Plate to Be Placed on Sale.

VIENNA, July 16.— (Associated Press.)—What is probably the rarest and most valuable collection of silver plate in Europe, the famous silver treasure of the Cumberland family, is reported to be coming into the market. It was kept in the Cumberland royal villa at Penzig, just outside Vienna, until the death of the old King of Hanover in 1878. Afterwards it was removed to the Cumberland county seat at Gmunden in Salzkammergut.

The collection includes priceless specimens of the work of the first silversmiths in England, France, Augsburg, Hanover and Osnabruck, during the three centuries between 1560 and 1850. The only other collection which approaches it in extent and completeness is that in Windsor castle.

The total weight of the Gmunden treasure is about 130,000 ounces and its value in Austrian crowns must amount to several hundred milliards. But it is understood that the purchaser, or purchasers, will have to pay in some foreign money of normal exchange, and not in depreciated Austrian crowns.

MANY HEARD IN WITNESS BOX AT DELORME TRIAL

Witness Passed the Spot Where Body of the Slain Youth Was Found But Saw No Sign of Foul Play

BLOOD STAINS.

MONTREAL, July 16.—(Canadian Press).—Another procession of witnesses for the defence in the trial of Rev. Father Delorme passed through the witness box Saturday In some cases they were subjected to severe cross examination by the Crown.

Edward Lymes, church warden of St. Matthews' Anglican Church in the north end of the city, told of having passed the spit where Raoul Delorme's body was found the next morning, between 11 p.m. and 11.15 p.m. the night before. He had seen no sign of the body.

Joseph Latulippe and his wife both swore they had not heard the noise of the motor car passing in Labelle Lane, the little roadway which runs from Father Delorme's garage from Labelle street. during the night of January 6-7. Mrs. Latulippe was closely cross-examined by the Crown. The wall of her house, which is about 75 feet from the garage is so thin, she said, that she "could hear men breaking the tops off bottles against the wall."

Henri Lerzon, of St. Jerome, said he was at St. Scholastique an October 31, the day of his marriage at which Abbe Delorme had officiated. He had noticed that Eugene Delorme cousin of the accused had cut his hand, which was bleeding that day. This is in corroboration of Eugene Delorme's evidence who had testified Friday that blood from his cut hand had fallen on the cushions of the Abbe's automobile.

George Leclair. brother of the furnace man who attended usually to Abbe Delorme's furnace, stated he had repaired that furnace on January 12, 1922, and had also been there for the same purpose on a previous date, but could not say when. He thought it was on January 6. He could not say where his brother was at the present time. He had left Montreal in April of this year.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Public Works Started Late in the Season—A Veteran Bowler.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 16.—Reeve Anderson says that so far as he is concerned— and he believes Deputy Reeve Wilkinson and Councillor Burke, who voted with him, are of the same way of thinking—he is not opposed on principle to doing public works by day labor rather than by the contract plan, as the vote on that issue, taken at the special meeting of Council Friday night, might indicate. The Reeve says that the summer is now far advanced and that the work on the Garry street sewer has been delayed. Unless it is started soon it will hardly be possible to finish it before the cold weather sets in. John Hall, who has been tried, and whose always been satisfactory, tendered for the Garry street sewer at a figure to which no exception could be taken. Mr. Hall is an expert at excavating in stone and the Garry street sewer will traverse solid rock for almost its entire length.

Reeve Anderson adds that the men in the employ of the municipality have their hands full at the present building sidewalks and should not be taken from the task to build a sewer which he is satisfied could be done quite as advantageously from a financial point of view, by Mr. Hall, and without interfering with other public works. It was, he says, chiefly the question of time which induced his two colleagues and himself to vote as they did.

It is only fair to say in this connection that when the majority voted Friday night to build the sewer by day labor it was stated that Street Foreman Fox and his men would be called off the work on the sidewalks to begin the construction of the new sewer.

A Veteran Bowler.

Edward Stephens, who is 92 years old and who, in spite of his age, cut nine cords of firewood last winter, is seen occasionally on the bowling green taking part in the play. He is as active and light footed, his eye is as true and his aim as accurate as most men of half his years, but so far he has failed to attain his ambition—to beat J. R. Wilkinson at a game in which the latter excells. Mr. Stephens, however, may fail of his object, but in the meantime he is able to give his rival a run for his record.

Members of the royal family have already unveiled more than three hundred war memorials which includes many national memorials, to which local ones are but supplementary.

U.S. Man Counterfeits Canadian Securities.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(Associated Press.)—The Supreme Court has been asked to decide whether the counterfeiting in this country of Canadian securities can be punished under the penal code. The question was before the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals for solution, but that court found it so perplexing that it called upon the highest court for instructions.

Isadore Luvisch was convicted in the Federal District Court for eastern Michigan of counterfeiting Canadian excise stamps, and was sentenced to five years in Leavenworth. While serving the sentence he applied to the Federal District Court of Kansas for a writ of habeas Corpus, which ordered his discharge on the ground that the offense for which he had been convicted did not constitute a violation of any law of the United States. The warden of the penitentiary, while holding Luvisch in confinement, took the case to the Federal Court of appeals for that circuit, which suspended further proceedings until the Supreme Court could consider and pass upon the question.

TWO STEAMERS SUNK IN TRIPLE CRASH AT SEA

CREWS SAVED.

LONDON, July 16. — (Canadian Press).—Three steamers were in collision in the fog in the North Sea yesterday. Two of them were sunk, but their crews were rescued and the third proceeded on her voyage in a damaged condition.

Owing to the heavy fog the Swedish steamer Elorado hove to. and the Spanish steamer Begona No. 5, crashed into her. While the two vessels were locked, the Eldorado's crew, numbering 18, climbed aboard the Begona, and soon after the Eldorado went to the bottom.

Later the British steamer Sheridan coming through the fog hit the Begona amidships, and as the latter began to fill, her boats were lowered and her own crew and that of the Eldorado, totalling 43 men, reached the Sheridan. The captain of the Britisher sent a radio message to Yarmouth, from which port tugs were despatched and took off the survivors.

The Sheridan was considerably smashed in her forepeak, but was able to proceed without assistance.

PREMIER BALDWIN FINDS PUBLICITY NOVEL EXPERIENCE

His Unostentatious Manner and Human Qualities Have Won All Classes.

LONDON, July 16. — Associated Press. — Stanley Baldwin, Britain's new pilot of the Ship of State, has won the admiration and goodwill of all calsses by his simple, unostentatious manner and his outstanding human qualities. He is especially popular among the British and the American newspaper men, who have found him approachable and unfailingly courteous. He has none of the aloofness, the superior manner, or severe pride of position which one is apt to associate wtih prime ministers.

The journalists' fondness for the premier is reciprocated by Mr. Baldwin for he realizes that his sudden rise to fame is due in no small measure to the sympathetic attitude adopted by them to ard him.

At a recent banquet given by the British newspapermen in his honor, Mr. Baldwin said: "I am conscious, more than ever how the creation of a reputation really is your prerogative, and your prerogative alone. Whatever reputation I may have today I beg to thank you for it from the bottom of my heart."

The prime minister referred to some of the remarkable qualities attributed to him by the British and American newspapers, which he said it was impossible to live up to.

"I have noticed in my brief career in public life," said he, "that some men like the limelight, and some do not. I have always found that wherever the limelight is brightest there is always a corresponding black shadow close to it, and I have hitherto been able to step into that shadow whenever the limelight was turned on. But I find now that I cannot escape it. I feel very much like a small insect under a microscop. Everything that I do or think or say is laid bare.

"I notice lately that certain persevering papers have succeeded in dragging from obscurity my fathers coachman and my old nurse. I am thankful to say that the revelations they have succeeded in dragging from them are such as not to blast my career as yet. I have read the most amazing things about myself, proficiency in arts to which I have never aspired and ignorance of some things of which I thought I had some knowledge. The unkindest cut of all was in the Nation, where someone said my schoolmaster told me I had no brains."

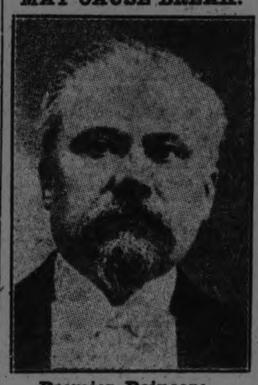
STEWED GEESE.

LONDON, July 16. — A flock of geese on a farmhouse near Vevey, recently drank copiously of some cordial. They immediately started a riot. The farmer fearing they were poisoned plucked their feathers — which he hoped to sell—and then threw the fowl in a barnhouse. The next morning he was surprised to see the geese come sheepishly out of the barn, still a bit wobbly, but otherwise no different than a human being on the morning after.

FRANCE WILL STAND RESOLUTELY FOR THE EXECUTION OF TREATY OF VERSAILLES—NO CONCESSIONS

MAY CAUSE BREAK.



Premier Poincare.

Poincare Declares Unalterable Decision to Make Germany Pay Full Debt in Gold Marks As Was Agreed—No Mention Made of Premier Baldwin's Policy As Announced Last Week.

HAVE WAITED FOR THREE YEARS.

SENLIS, France, July 16.—(Canadian Press). — Premier Poincare yesterday, proclaimed the French Government's unalterable decision desolutely to stand for the complete execution of the Versailles Peace Treaty with the German debt at $132,000,000,000 gold marks, as agreed upon by the Allies at the London Conference, and against any international finance committee to replace the Reparation Commission.

M. Poincare, in his address, said France had finished the making of temporizing with that country. The Premier's strongly worded address, while carefully refraining from mentioning the speech of Stanley Baldwin, the British Premier, in the House of Commons last week is considered as the French Government's preliminary answer to the British position with regard to the Rhur situation.

M. Poincare choose for his pronouncement this town, which marks tthe farthest advance of the Germans. The Premier based his conclusions on France's legal rights and the treaty "signed by twenty-eight nations and which cannot be considered after four yearh as an antediluvian fossil.

Not Spirit of Revenge.

Premier Poincare claimed to have no hatred and no spirit for revenge fro the devastation, the traces of yhich were visible from where he spoke. "We should like no longer to talk of devastation, or to think of it," he declared. "We should like to forget.—even to forgive."

France, said M. Poincare, had been no better treated in reparations that in the concessions wrung from her anad the security denied her.

"In the Reparations Commission, established under the Treaty," he said, "we are in the minority, although ours is the major interest. Neertheless, it has been sought for four years to relieve this commission of its powers, to replace it with international financial committees so as to attempt to coalesce against us interests opposed to ours."

The Peace Treaty. the Premier continued, established conditions under which the Commission should fix the German debt. "There was a pretence of respecting those conditions," he added, "but the debt hardly had been fixed when there was imposed upon us in one of those supreme councils where we always left behind us some of our rights, a scheduled of reparations payments that the Commission accepted deluctantly anad which reduced our claims in undetermine proportions. We then accepted this schedule of payments as an international convention, as an engagement of honor pledged to us."

Debt Questioned.

A few months later, Premier Poincaire asserted, this schedule again was questioned, "as certain of our friends seemed no longer to have any other thought than to lighten the German debt. and as they themselves were our creditors, we told them: 'There are three kinds of bonds provided for, let us keep our part of the first two. As for the third, we will use them against Germany only in proportion as our creditors ask us to poy our debts.' Still we were found too exacting."

The Premier said France was reproached for not having sufficient regard for Germany, and for exposing her to disaster that would affect all other nations.

"And yet," he declared, "has not Germany been so well looked after during three whole years that she has been allowed to default on all her obligations, so that we had to pay with our own money 100 billion francs she owed us and has not paid. Has she not been allowed to rebuild her commercial industries at the expence of her creditors?"

M. Poincare asked if anyone imagined that Germany would stabilize the mark and put her house in order, "if France watched with arms folded."

Followed a Mirage.

"For thre years," he said, "the Allies have followed this mirage, and for three years things have been going from bad to worse. If we were not in the Rhur, Germany would have continued to slip into the abyss she dug, but we would have been empty-handed, while now we hold security, and we are powerful enough not to have to let go."

France, the Premier asserted, unceasingly had been making concessionsm. "Then," he added. "why have we said we have reached the en?" It is because until now they always have been at our expense."

The peace treaty had promised reparations and security. For security "France had been given the right of temporary occupation on the Rhine that was to cease at the precise moment Germany should become strong er."

France also had been promised a guaranty pact, but this had not been fulfilled and nothing had been offered to replace it, for "the new guaranty pact proposed by Mr. Lloyd George was for a shorter time than occupation and without precise engagements. Military aid was nothing; it was only a dangerous deception."

British Friendship.

M. Poincare emphasized the Government's and his own personal feeling in fovour of close relations between France and Great Britain. He recalled that it was he who brought about the Alliance with Great Britain before the war when others were advocating better relations between France and Germany.

The Premier concluded with what was interpreted as a carefully worded reminder of France's supreme position on the Continent, and the danger of attacking the Treaty of Versailles, for, he said, "though a breach opened in the Versailles Treaty other propostions would pass that would re-open the entire peace settlement, destroy the new status of central Europe and menace our friends. Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania Jugo-Slavia."

LONDON, July 16 — (Canadian Press). — The speech of Premier Poincaire at Senlis yesterday, although avoiding direct allusion to Premier Baldwin's pronouncement, or the present negotiations was none the less, an indirect reply to the British Prime Minister, and from that viewpoint, according to reports of the speech received in London showed hardly a trace of any accommodating spirit, such as recent reports from Paris had led the people here to expect.

On the point of superseding the reparations commission by an international body, such as it supposed will he included in the British note to Germany, M. Poincare was distinctly opposed, declaring that such commission would constitute a coalition of all the interests opposed to France. He still stands uncompromisingly on the Treaty of Versailles and all it implies, and imputes to British leniency toward Germany all the recent reparations difficulties.

If Premier Poincare's speech is France's last word, it is taken as bodiing ill to any progress in the present negotiations and will certainly be received in England with great disappointment.

Perhaps the only hopeful aspect is that M. Poincare makes no public complaint of the tone or tenor of Mr. Baldwin's pronouncement and disowns any territorial ambitions, what course the British Prime Minister will take in the face of what is considered a disheartening rejoiner can only be surmised.

NORTH BORNEO NEAR PARADISE

No Income Tax, Land Tax or Railway Tax, and the Natives Have Given Up Head Hunting.

LONDON, July 16.—(Associated Press.)— British North Borneo appears to be as near paradise as it is possible for the tax burdened man of to-day to get.

No income tax is collected in the district . There is only a nominal land tax, railway fares have not been increased since 1911, tobacco is cheaper than in any other place in the world, chickens sell for a shilling apiece and whisky for eight shillings a bottle.

These facts are not taken from the circulars of a colonization agent, but are found in the official report of the British government authorities in the district.

Allies Made Move to Break Turk Deadlock.

LAUSANNE, July 16.—(Canadian Press)—The Allies made a move last night to break the deadlock in the Near East Conference; they sent a note to the Turkish delegation proposing a joint meeting of experts this morning to pave the way for a later assembly of the plenipotentiaries. The Allies called upon the Turks definitely to recognize those things which have already been agreed upon, so that both sides may know where they stand.

The note contained a detailed statement relative to the matters in controversy as the Allies understand and asked the Turks to come to an agreement on the principles.

PROTECTING PEDESTRIANS.

Observation of the point system carried on by the Police Department at the corner of George and Charlotte streets, and at other corners during busy hours, seems to justify the opinion that the work of the traffice officers is only fifty per cent. effective.

And that is not the fault of the men on duty, or of the system followed, but simply because the pedestrians as a rule fail to take any notice of the signals, or to avail themselves of the protection that the presence of a traffic officer should give them.

It is noticed that the majority of pedestrians continue to cross a street despite the fact that the signal has been given to motor cars to come ahead.

The situation that results is embarrassing to the motorists, and dangerous to those on foot.

Drivers waved on by the police find a stream of foot traffic to contend with, and more than once recently an accident has been narrowly averted.

If the system of protection maintained by the police is to be as beneficial as it should be, pedestrians will have to school themselves to cross the streets only when the vehicular traffic is being held.

Otherwise, so far as the people on foot are concerned, the point duty of the police might as well be abandoned.

With the motor traffic steadily increasing, the need of greater precaution becomes greater, and it is time to realize that the practices of a decade ago are not only old-fashioned, but are not very safe.

THE DAWN OF A NEW ERA.

A news item in the Examiner the other day called attention to the fact that the advent of the motor car had driven the passenger steamers off the Otonabee River-Rice Lake route, the popularity of the automobile having made it impossible for the steamer service to compete with the much speedier method of transportation.

The practical disappearance of commercial craft from the waters below Peterborough suggests that it is time for the old ideas and the old regulations in regard to navigation to be revised.

The maintenance of the old rights accorded navigation companies in connecton with the control of waters, in the face of the fact that commercial navigation has very nearly ceased to exist, hardly seems justified.

In other words, power rights should be considered as more important than navigation rights, and the first consideration should be to see that nothing is allowed to interfere with the supply of electric energy, without which the wheels of industry could not turn and the ordinary routine of the household would suffer.

There was a time when the rights of navigation and of the lumbering interests were all important, and the question of power supply did not enter into the situation at all.

That time seems to have passed forever and a new era has arrived in which the white coal of Ontario is king.

CITY AND COUNTRY.

It will be a sad day for the nation when the rural stocks are played out, when the farms of Ontario produce peasants, rather than yeomen, says the Toronto Sunday World.

When the 19th century began 4 per cent. of the people of this continent were in the cities and 96 per cent. in the country. Then the log shack and grey shingled homestead began to lose their charm. Today 54 per cent. of the people are in the cities. The 46 per cent. must still supply a goodly proportion of the leaders, for those who came from continental city to Canadian city how many will rise from laborer to gang boss to contractor to magnate?

The question for Canada to answer is: Can the rural population go on producing those energetic and enduring builders who have flung out our railways, established our banks, developed our trade, pioneered our manufacturing? If the dream fades, then rural depopulation will cease to be a worry and the future of the country will not matter, for there won't be any future.

Cities have not yet solved the problem of producing enough leaders for any commonwealth. Australia and Argentina with Sydney and Melbourne and Buenos Aires may prove the exception to this rule, but Europe and North America still look to the farms for fresh supplies of vital energy. The city produces the quick mind, the country the deliberative and retentive mind. The city child is intuitive, the country child logical. The one is flashy, the other steady.

THE BONNE ENTENTE.

An aspect of the tourist traffic which perhaps has escaped general attention is the very important effect upon the relationship between the people of the United States and Canada that is caused by the inter-mingling of Americans and Canadians at the summer resorts.

Read the correspondence from Chemong and Stoney Lake in the Examiner these days and you find the names of visitors from many parts of the United States.

Many of these "summer Canadians," as they might be termed, have been coming to this district for many years.

They have learned to know the Canadians, and we in turn have learned to know them, and there is mutual advantage in the acquaintanceship.

They go home having spent many weeks as neighbors and "pals" of Canadians and tell their friends across the line that we over on this side are people not very hard to get along with, good fellows in a fishing party, not too greedy at a shore dinner and that sort of thing, and we in our turn say good-bye reluctantly because we have found in them geniality and hospitality and the spirit of comradeship.

The summer resort and the community life lived there constitute the best possible agency for maintenance of the entente cordiale between the Dominion and the Republic.

If for no other reason than that, the advertising of Ontario's advantages as the playgrounds of the Continent is justified.

THE BY-ELECTIONS.

The Cabinet of Hon. G. H. Ferguson assumes office today, and from this afternoon on the destinies of the Province are in the hands of Mr. Ferguson and the Ministers he has selected to carry on the duties of government.

It will be necessary, of course, for the members of the Cabinet, except those who are without portfolio, to seek re-election from their constituents.

This is usually only a formality, and the Examiner believes that if the general opinion of the Province is followed the Ministers will not have to conduct an election campaign, but will be given their seats by acclamation.

With a Government so firmly in the saddle as the present administration neither party interests nor the welfare of the Province would be the gainer if the new Ministers were opposed in the by-elections.

The return without a contest of the members of the Cabinet and the election of Mr. Drury by acclamation when a seat is opened for him would meet with general approval if the Examiner senses accurately the feeling of the majority of the electors.

That feeling seems to be not only that the new Cabinet should be given a fair chance to show what kind of a government it can give Ontario, but that both the Government and the Province would benefit from the presence of a virile opposition, and that for this reason the return of Mr. Drury to the House is a necessity.

BRITAIN BEHIND FRANCE.

The attitude of the British Government toward German reparations, spoken by Mr. Baldwin at Westminster yesterday, may be summed up thus:

1.—Great Britain is "as determined as any of her Allies that Germany shall make reparation for the damages done in the great war, to the fullest extent of her capacity."

2.—She is convinced that French occupation of the Ruhr is not calculated to secure the maximum German capacity of payment, and may cause general chaos.

3.—She believes the latest proposals of the Germans to be entirely inadequate.

4.—Accordingly, she will submit new proposals designed to secure for France and for the other Allies a larger measure of reparations, while at the same time preventing the economic unsettlement which now prevails.

5.—She reaffirms her unity with France, and declares that harmony of effort is her uppermost desire.

In a word, the British position is this: that the French policy is not making Germany pay as much as Germany can pay, and that, consequently, some new plan must be devised. German guilt, German indebtedness, and German bad faith, are all clearly emphasized.

What a shock to those good people who, misled by German propaganda, and by the sentimentality of a few people in England who were too suspiciously on the side of Germany in the war to be much against her in peace, have been crying out against the horror of making the poor, peaceable, gentlemanly, impoverished Germans pay! What a shock, too, to those incomprehensible humans who paint such vivid pictures of French oppression in the Ruhr, but who are so curiously oblivious to German barbarism in France!

Mr. Baldwin, it is noteworthy, makes no mention of another international conference. He is thus in seeming agreement with the French, who take the ground that inasmuch as numerous past conferences achieved nothing but strained feelings, further talk would do more harm than good. Besides, the French have made up their minds that considering that somebody must pay for the reconstruction of devastated regions, it is perfectly clear that burden must be put on German rather than on French shoulders.

The amount of the German debt was fixed at London, in May 1921, by an agreement among the Allies. It was fixed at 132 billion gold marks, for which three series of bonds: A, B and C were to be issued by the German treasury. France's share, in the series A and B was fixed at 26 billion gold marks. On this figure the French people declare that they cannot admit of any reduction, this amount being absolutely necessary if France is to avoid financial ruin and if she is to meet in full her own external obligations arising from the war. As for the bonds of the series C, amounting nominally to 82 billions of gold marks, France would be willing to forsake her share under certain conditions. On this point French political leaders have explained on several occasions that Germany's payments could be reduced.

The whole trouble in the past, and the chief trouble today, is Germany's bad faith. She has not only argued her incapacity to pay what the Allies laid down; she has balked at paying what is indubitably within her capacity. She has banked on an Allied deadlock to frustrate the Treaty, and, encouraged by the great Rhineland industrialists who have Berlin within their power, her latest offer was even less than Mr. Bonar Law's minimum figure at the recent Paris Conference. She is out, quite clearly, to nullify the Treaty.

Britain's motives are honest and clear. They are to make Germany pay to the last farthing of her capacity, but in such a way as will mean a minimum of disturbance to the economic fabric of the world. The best hope of the British Empire must be that execution of these motives will not provide escape for an international bully which started out with rapine and murder to terrify the world and which now whines "Kamerad" when compelled to pay for its crimes.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Saturday's rain was badly needed, but you couldn't convince a Peterborough ball fan of that fact.

Today is coronation day for the new Ontario Cabinet. There is not much ceremony about the change, but there is considerable significance.

Gore's Landing is not the only place that is growing cold towards picnic parties. And the folks who go on picnics have themselves to blame for their unpopularity because of the litter they leave behind.

A Toronto medium is to give a demonstration in the United States wheer Canadian spirits are said to be very much in demand.

The fact that the prize lists of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are being distributed shows how quickly summer is passing. What about next winter's fuel?

No Wonder Model 91 Won Sweeping Approval!

The instant and Dominion-wide success of this new Overland is due to a combination of strong features exclusively Overland. The superiority of these features is well exemplified in the sturdiness of the rear axle unit. Let us examine it:

It has a new type of floating axle, with axle shaft 27% heavier than in any other car of Overland's price or weight class.

Shaft is removable without taking down the housing—a feature heretofore confined to much higher priced cars.

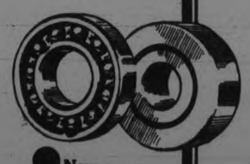
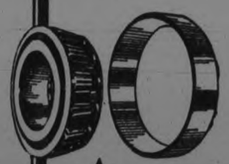
The axle shaft is of Molybdenum steel, an inch-and-a-half thick at the bearings. This makes them proof against any twisting, wrenching or jolting strains.

This superiority is carried through every part of the car. It reveals itself in an engine of remarkable power and great mileage. It shows in the Triplex Springs that add to the comfort of passengers and to the life of the car. It is evident too in an all-steel body. It stands forth in the fine appearance attained by high hood, long lines and superior finish. It is, in short, a complete superiority, and marks the highest value yet attained by a motor car at or near its price.



● New Departure Bearings

Used at three vital bearing points in the Overland rear axle alone, where they add long life and reduce friction to a minimum—the toughest, finest bearings known for the purpose.



★ Timken Bearings

Provided as indicated in the Overland rear axle and at four points in the front axle—bearings that are standard on the finest cars built and add immeasurably to the staunchness and efficiency of the Overland.

"NOW DOOK WHAT'LL YOU TAKE IN CASH TO BE MY SON-IN-LAW?"

What Happened to the Duke of Manchester When He Ran Into a Millionaire Mining Operator of Denver.

LONDON, July 16.—(Canadian Press.)—The extraordinary charge that Henry Tabor, mining millionaire, of Denver, asked: "Now Dook, what'll you take in cash to be my son-in-law," is made by His Grace, the Duke of Manchester, in a signed article in the Sunday Herald.

Manchester alleges that Tabor broached a possible marriage between the titled Britisher and his daughter Echo in a truly business-like vein. When the young man visited Denver, Tabor entertained him and requested him to marry his daughter, Manchester declares. He refused, but according to his story, Echo blamed her father's parsimony for his refusal and asked His Grace: "Will you take me if I make dad double the offer."

The note contained a detailed statement relative to matters in controversy, as the Allies understand them, and asked the Turks to come to an agreement on these points.

DETROIT. July 16.—(Canadian Press).— Joseph Leudan, a jewelry salesman, was held up by two armed men at the door of his room in the Hotel Statler, Saturday eveninng, and robbed of sample diamonds valued at $200,000. The robbers threw a bag over Leudan's head, forced him on the bed, bound and gagged him, and took possession of a vest like container in which he carred the gems. They left Leudan locked in his room and escaped.

Managing to release himself, Leudan shouted and was heard by the sixth floor clerk. A maid. Nora Murphy, was sent to room 266 to release the salesman. CHURCH OF ENGLAND ADOPTS CEREMONIES

One-Third of Bishops and Priests Favor New High Movement.

LONDON, July 16. Canadian Press. — The tri-annual convocation of the Anglo-Catholic Congress in London during the last week, brought into public notice an enormous increase in the use of incense and eucharistic vestments in the celebration of high mass in London's high churches.

It was stated that about one-third of all incumbents in England are now attached to this advanced school while there are no less than twenty Protestant churches in the centre of London where confessions are heard.

The Anglo - Catholic movement which has now assumed great importance is an attempt to install ceremonies in the Church of England without losing the nationalism of the church or coming under the sway of the Pope. It is said to be supported by more than one third of the Anglican priests and bishops, led by the liberal Bishop of London.

About 20,000 persons of all countries attended the sessions of the convocation.

The use of some of the Roman Catholic ceremonies stunned some of the low churchmen, but these churches were nevertheless crowded

Summer Fur-Wearing Will Kill Off Animals.

WASHINGTON, July 16.— (Associated Press.) — Fashion's decree that women shall wear furs the year round has aroused great apprehension among naturalists, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society, whose officials believe that some of the animals that are abundant to-day may soon be in the class of the auk and the dodo.

"It is only by educating the American public to the need for periods of protection for these animals," the bulletin says, "that we will be able to preserve one of the country's most valuable assets for the enjoyment and profit of future generations."

Recently the society sent an expedition to an island off the coast of Lower California to try to find specimens of the great seal colonies which used to inhabit the island, but not a single animal was seen.

It has been estimated that America spends yearly $100,000,000 for fur garments, and the society declares that the beaver, marten, skunk, muskrat and other animals are not only paying with their lives; but with the threatened extinction of their kind.

Calvin Gray is the enemy of Colonel Henry Nelson of Dallas. Gray is in love with Barbara Parker, who buys land for Nelson. Gray is friendly with the Briskow family. Bud, the son, has charge of his father's oil wells. Allie, the daughter, is spending a few days with her brother. While watching operations at the oil fields, Gray is injured and Allie nurses him. A heavy rainfall swells the waters surrounding the cabin where Allie is caring for Gray. The water is thickly coated with oil from bursting tanks. Bud goes to bring a doctor to administer to Gray.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

Gray laid strong hold of himself, but it is not easy to subdue thought, and he could feel those strong, smooth, velvet arms encircling him. Disorder without and chaos within this house! The heavens rumbled like a mighty drumhead, the lightning made useless the feeble ray in his hand. It was the place, the hour of impulse. Gray swore savagely at himself, then he stumbled into his room and dressed himself more fully.

"Well, there doesn't seem to be much change," he said, cheerfully, as he opened Allie's door awhile later. "The fires don't seem to be spreading." She was sitting where he had left her, she had not moved. "Anything new on this side?"

Allie shrugged; slowly she turned, exposing a face tragic and stony. "I guess you don't think much of me," she said.

"Indeed!" he declared, heartily. "This is enough to frighten anybody. I don't mind saying it has upset me. But the worst is over." He laid a reassuring hand upon her shoulder.

CHAPTER XXVII

Introduced to a Lady

BUDDY BRISKOW had difficulty in getting out of the valley on his way for a doctor, for never had the roads been like this. He drove recklessly; where necessary he disregarded fences and pushed across pastures that were hub deep; he even burst through occasional thickets in defiance of axle and tire. He drowned his motor finally in fording a roily stream and abandoned the car.

He came into Ranger that afternoon on the back of a truck horse that he had borrowed—without the owner's consent. For a time it seemed that if he got a doctor at all he would have to follow a similar procedure, but the Briskow name was powerful, and Buddy talked in big figures, so eventually he set out on the return journey—this time in a springless freight wagon drawn by the stoutest team in town. A medical man was on the seat beside him.

It was after midnight when Buddy and his miserable companion gained the comparatively easy going of the last ridge, that flinty range beyond which lay the Briskow farm.

Buddy stopped at a drilling camp where lights showed the occupants to be astir, and there he received confirmation of his fears. The flats beyond were inundated to a depth rendering travel impossible, and although some of the men stationed out there had managed to work their way back, others were, for the time being, hopelessly cut off.

"I guess I can swim, if I try. Feller can do 'most anything if he has to. How about you, Doc?" Buddy turned to his traveling companion.

The latter shook his head positively. "You're crazy, Briskow. We'd probably drown. If we didn't, we'd be burned alive when that loose oil catches fire."

Buddy cursed furiously and lurched toward the door. It took force to restrain him from going.

The rain ceased with the passing of the electrical storm, but the late hours of the night were thick and the fires continued to burn. It seemed as if morning would never come.

With the first light Buddy mounted one of his horses, and, regardless of admonitions, set out. In miles he had no great distance to go; nevertheless, it was midday before he came in sight of his father's unpainted farmhouse, and when he dismounted at the front porch he fell rather than walked through the door.

Even after he had been helped into the kitchen and his wet clothes had been stripped from him, he could tell little about his trip, but hot food and drink brought him around and then, indeed, his story was one that deeply touched the elder man.

Already the waters had ceased to rise, but Buddy's difficulty in getting through proved the folly of attempting to escape for the time being; his horse had been forced to swim with him in more than one place; in others he had waded waist deep, stumbling through thickets, hauling the animal after him by main strength. There was nothing to do, it seemed, but await a subsidence of the flood. Then, too, the boy was half dead for sleep.

Late that evening, after Allie had gone to bed, Gray had a long talk with his young friend, during which he told him more about his affairs than he had made known even to Roswell, the banker.

Buddy listened with the closest attention. He drew a deep breath at last and said: "I knew you was in deep, but I thought it was just your way. Now I know it was Nelson's crew that fired our gasser."

Gray continued the conversation. "Do you think your father would trust me? Do you think he'd go it blind on my say-so?"

"If he won't, I will. I got money. So's Allie."

Gray declined this offer with a positive shake of the head. "It must appeal to him on its merits. I wouldn't permit you to go contrary to his judgment."

"Judgment? What's Pa's judgment worth? He knows it's no good, an' so do we. Everybody's tryin' to do him up but you; you're the only one he trusts. An' the same here. There's my bank roll—you can shoot the whole piece. I don't care if it never comes back. Tryin' to get you killed! An' spollin' a well on me!"

"Thank you, Buddy! You—make me slow to trust my own judgment. I—I seem to be developing a conscience. But I'm sure this is the thing to do, for you and your father as well as for me. People can't stand still; they must go forward. The Briskow fortune must grow or it will crumble."

"I dunno if we've got as much in us as you seem to think," the boy said, doubtfully.

Gray smiled. "You have common sense, at least, and that's something you can't get in school. Me, wear smooth from contact with one another, and it is time you got in touch with something bigger than mere drilling. If you're willing, I'll take you to Wichita Falls with me."

"Willing?" Buddy's eyes sparkled. Guiltily he confessed: "It's been pretty—lonesome out here with the scorpions. But I wanted to show you I could make good."

News of the damage wrought by the recent storm was naturally of grave concern to Henry Nelson, but owing to the fact that lines were down, about his only source of information, during the days immediately following it, was the press reports. He was reading the Dallas papers with interest one morning when his attention was arrested by the name of Calvin Gray. Now Gray's name in print affected the banker almost as disagreeably as did a sight of the man himself; therefore it was with intense resentment that he read the article in which it appeared. It was a vividly written account of the former's experience during the flood, and, due no doubt to Gray's personal touch, it read a good deal like fiction.

The next time Tom Parker came into the bank Henry called him into his private office and had a talk with him.

Old Tom listened silently; nevertheless, it was plain that he was deeply shocked.

"I s'pose you ain't lyin'," he said, coldly, when the banker had finished.

"It's a matter of record, Tom. He can't deny it."

"What was it he did?"

"'Conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman' is the way the record stands. That covers a lot."

"Did he welch—quit under fire?"

"No."

"Steal something?"

"No."

"Woman scrape?"

"There was—a woman concerned. Pretty nasty mess, Tom. He's the sort of man to intrigue any foolish woman. Women can't see far."

In great perturbation of spirit Tom consulted Judge Halloran.

The judge listened to him in astonishment; angrily he cried: "You and I will go directly to the scoundrel, tell him we are aware of his infamy, and order him out of town. Ha! That's the way to go about it; cut deep and quickly. Tar and feathers are too good for—"

"Trouble is," Tom repeated, with a reluctant sigh, "I like him and I ain't sure—"

"The trouble is you're a weakling!" Halloran snapped. "You are a—sentimentalist. You lack my stern, uncompromising moral fiber. Like him? Fah! What has that to do with it? I have no weakness, no bowels of compassion. I am a Spartan. I am—"

"You're a damned old fool—if you think you can run him. He's liable to run you."

If Calvin Gray's affairs were in a precarious condition, he showed no signs of it when he returned to Wichita Falls. On the contrary, he was in an exultant mood, and even on the train young Briskow, who accompanied him, was amazed at the change that had come over his friend. With every mile they traveled Gray's buoyancy increased and upon his arrival he trod the street to his office like a conqueror. McWade and Stoner, who came in for a conference with minds preoccupied and faces grave, left with a smile and a jest.

THE DUMBBELL

About the dumbest thing in creation is the jellyfish. But in laboratories the scientists take this low form of life and perform an experiment that would interest you.

Anyone studying the jellyfish would decide that it has no brains at all. When it needs food, it automatically opens like a clam and stays open until something eatable drifts along into its "mouth." Then the contact of the bit of food causes a nerve reaction that makes the jellyfish close again—all by involuntary or automatic action, the same as when you touch a hot stove and immediately withdraw without pausing to think it over.

The scientists play a mean trick on the jellyfish. They put a chunk of yeast into its awaiting "jaws." Pronto, the jellyfish closes and starts digesting the yeast.

But the yeast begins expanding. It continues swelling until the jellyfish is on the verge of exploding.

Then suddenly the jellyfish opens up spasmodically and casts out the yeast. The scientists are convinced that this action is semi-voluntary—that the jellyfish opens instead of the yeast forcing it open.

The experiment demonstrates what amounts to the beginning of thought. For, until fooled with a cargo of yeast, the jellyfish apparently never before in history opened to disgorge.

According to the evolutionists, there was a time far back in the mists of history when our ancestors were as dumb as the jellyfish, when all action was involuntary, instinctive.

Some accident, such as the jellyfish getting a meal of yeast, probably started those ancient ancestors of our along the line of voluntary action.

Will power began developing. So did memory. Then came a sense of curiosity, the desire to experiment—which is manifested by small children when they attempt to eat everything that comes their way and looks strange. You've had the experience of making baby spit out a button, pin, pebble or strange bug.

Will power, memory, curiosity, judgment and reasoning power are the foundations of human thought—of progress.

Can plant life think? You may believe so, if you have ever had a garden. Else what teaches the climbing plant, which has been creeping along the ground, to turn and fasten itself to the supporting twig you place for it in the soil? Surely, in this, are the faint rudiments of thought processes.

All this may be skating on thin scientific ice, but it's interesting to ponder. And so-called exact scientific knowledge is never definitely established, for principles accepted as truths frequently are exploded in later generations. In this direction, Einstein has upset a lot of "established" science.

We refer the question to the interesting organization, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Plant Life, which believes it is as cruel and painful to root out a hill of potatoes as to butcher a steer.

HUCKLEBERRY CROP LURES VACATIONISTS

Many Cars Set Out for Northern Townships This Morning.

Some men's idea of a vacation is to wait until the huckleberries are ripe and then start out for the back country where they abound, making daily trip in and out of the city or staying on the ground until they are satisfied.

Many of them were seen early this morning motoring out the Buck horn Road for the rock country in Burleigh and Harvey townships. Some of them had their families with them, tucked away in tin cars surrounded by empty containers, hampers and other impediments. The crop is reported to be fairly heavy, and the week end rain is expected to swell this particular crop.

MOVIES ADOPT OLD STAGE REHEARSAL.

Expected to Eliminate the Heavy Waste in Production.

By JACK JUNGMEYER

HOLLYWOOD, July 16. — The speaking stage rehearsal has been adopted by the picture world. Its expected to result in two advantages: The elimination of heavy waste costs in production, and more precision in fitting the player to the role.

Heretofore in Hollywood most actors have been chosen for picture parts because in the past they have played similar types or roles. Sometimes directors have realized, in the middle of production, that some other player would have been more suitable. But with the ill-suited performer already registered on thousands of feet of film, no change could be made. The director had to go on working with a cast that may have been selected in the greatest haste.

The Joseph M. Schenck organization has initiated the stage rehearsal.

* * *

Hereafter, instead of engaging players in support of Norma and Constance Talmadge because of past performance or ability "to look the part," Schenck will require all members of tentative companies to demonstrate exact fitness by enacting their roles and reading their lines.

In Constance Talmadge's next photoplay, "The Dangerous Maid," and Norma's next production, "Dust of Desire," Willard Mack, famous playwright, who has recently been added to the Schenck staff, will hold old-fashioned rehearsals.

Two weeks before shooting begins, a tentative cast will be gathered in the usual way. The whole play will be enacted from the scenario. The director will thus find out the exact dramatic qualifications of each member, and the players finally selected will have become thoroughly familiar with the plot and the relation of their parts toward the whole. Hitherto, in many instances, actors have gone before the camera with only the vaguest idea of their own parts and the general character of the picture.

After Willard Mack has put one "scratch company" through rehearsal for several days, another company with entirely different cast will be tried out. The same procedure will occur with a third assemblage. And from these "scratch companies" the final permanent cast will be picked.

* * *

Then the entire first company will undergo adequate rehearsals without lights, camera or property men. This, it is assumed, will result in great saving of money. The usual custom has been to rehearse scenes for the camera, from two to a dozen times, immediately before shooting, with cameramen, electricians, property men, extras and a horde of technical workers standing about comparatively idle, though their salaries go on just the same. The amount of money thus wasted in Hollywood runs into hundreds of thousands annually.

Schenck believes he can produce a picture under the new system in one-fourth the time it now takes. Famous character actors whose salaries amount to from $1000 to $2500 per week will not be kept waiting for hours on the set because of unfinished technical details, because these details will have been worked out during exhaustive rehearsals.

The once despised "efficiency experts" seem to be digging quite a toehold in Hollywood—and more than earning their salt.

SPECIAL MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

Called for Tomorrow Night With Board of Works as a Preliminary

A meeting of the Board of Works will precede the special meeting of the Counil which Mayor Taylor has called for Tuesday night.

The Council is being called for general business, but one of the principal items will be the passing of a by-law to authorize additional work in connection with sidewalk and street paving already approved. Side walks on the approaches of the bridge will likely be constructed at once to keep busy the concrete finishers who are about through with the pavement on George street south.

THE STAYER

There's many a runner can beat the field
In a hundred yards or so,
Who is home the first
In a short, sharp burst
And shines at a gala show.

But when the going is heavy and hard
And the course a matter of miles
The stayer's the man who smiles.

It's easy to run on a level track
With the winning post in view
And the wild applause
Of a crowd that roars
As the sprinter comes dashing through.

But when the going seems all uphill
And there's never a soul to shout,
Then it's not the pace
That'll win the race
But the heart that can stick it out.

FLIVVERS ARE HIGH.

LIVERPOOL, July 16. — Due to the difference in the price of Ford cars in England and the United States, prices now placed on good used cars in most of the big cities are higher here than they are for new models in America. A good 1921 touring car sells for about 90 pounds or nearly $450.

A Letter From Mr. Burnham

(BY J. H. BURNHAM.)

About twelve years ago His Holiness the Pope issued his famous encyclical against modernism, in which he said that those Catholics, priests and laymen, who no longer believed in the Bible and other Christian verities, as they had previously been taught, must leave the church. This encyclical was aimed at Abbe Loisy, a celebrated French priest, who following the lead of German and other scholars, who no longer believed the Bible, as it is, to be the Word of God, had actually set to work to criticize it. These men were called "the higher critics." They pointed to supposed discrepancies in the sacred text and to what they called unbelievable things related there.

This encyclical stopped this critical movement in Catholicism at the very beginning. Loisy did not wish to leave the Church, hence he and his followers ceased their criticism. But there was nothing to stop the Protestant clergy, who went on and on in what they called the search for Truth. Now the basis of Protestantism was as we all know that liberty of conscience which allowed people to believe as they saw fit and differences of beliefs resulted in a great many different denominations. But when all beliefs in the Bible fall to the ground under the storm of criticism (which was just exactly what Ingersoll and other sceptics said years ago to the infinite scorn of those who are now following in his footsteps) then all Protestant denominations began to fall and crumble with them. There was really left no revelation of God to man at all except in Nature. The advice and promises of God no longer existed. The Protestant was shorn of his religion; as it has always been, out of the wreck of the denominations it is proposed to build a new church—one new church—to be called the United Church of Canada (Church Union), and as no particular creeds or beliefs are left the ministers of this new church are not asked to state what they believe. They may be such very high critics as not to believe anything, but that will not matter to the authorities of the new church. The despair produced by Higher Criticism affected the church of England as well, and while other denominations have been "hoping for" a satisfactory reunion with the Catholic Church, or of Christendom, the Church of England has gone much farther, and has opened negotiations with the Pope.

We see then that at the beginning theer were two great points of difference between the Catholic Church and Protestantism. One was the right of the Protestant to consider himself as free, to be accountable in religion, to God alone, and the other was his perfect freedom as a moral being as well. But the prohibitionists attacked, and on this continent destroyed his freedom as a moral being, so that the poor Protestant is left without his religion and without his moral freedom. The consequent break down of Protestantism has necessarily resulted in many religious people now looking for shelter in a church that preserves its ancient faith, and the moral freedom of the individual. (The Catholic Church deals only with its own people, and only through religious ordinances.) Prohibition uses the Civil laws, and leaves the Protestant without any possibility of escape or of that freedom which a Catholic can have if he chooses to leave the Catholic Church. In a word the Catholic has what freedom he chooses to require, while the Protestant has none at all. Of course the Protestant position is an impossible one, and that is why Protestantism has broken down. Those who are asking what the meaning is of this great movement toward Rome, have their answer. The faith wreckers and the moral slave-drivers have done the deed, and nothing else but the down fall of Protestantism could possibly result, and now we have it.

"IF"

If you can give each day the best that's in you
And say with truth each night, "I've earned my pay";
If you can toil with brain and nerve and sinew
Alert to make the most of every day;

If you can make the time clock in the morning
A sterner master than the clock at night;
If you can welcome duties, never scorning
To do them, whether great or little, right;

If you can take your manager's decision
About the plan of work you should pursue,
And make him know you need no supervision—
That what he wants to have you do you'll do—

If you can feel that every obligation
To those who pay you cheerfully is met,
Your job is safe. The labor situation?
Hard times? And unemployment? You should fret

C. G. E. IS BUSY SAYS ASHWORTH

In a statement regarding business conditions made to Canadian Machinery, J. J. Ashworth, general manage of the Canadian General Electric Company, states that although it has not been the policy of the company to make public information as to volume of sales or compare one period with another, it may be said that the volume of business this year is very considerably in excess of the same period last year. Mr. Ashdown regards conditions as much more promising than a year ago. The company, it is known, has been getting important orders in connection with power developments in Quebec and in other parts of the country. Quotations on the consequent common stock have recently fallen below par after having moved up as high as 103 5-8 from an opening around 80 at the first of the year.

NEWS WARKWORTH AND THE DISTRICT.

Hydro Light and Power For Village Soon — To Call Minister.

WARKWORTH, July 16.—Warkworth will soon realize its ambition, the possession of Hydro light and power. The branch transmission line will run from Bradley's Corners by way of Norham to this village. The poles are already up as far as the former place and the holes are dug for some distance further. It is hoped that by the expiration of another month the current will be turned on and that Warkworth will revel in a light that can be used 24 hours a day if necessary.

To Call a Minister.

A meeting of the Presbyterian congregation, it is expected, will be called in a short time for the purpose of selecting a pastor to fill the vacancy that has existed since the resignation of Rev. A. J. MacGillivary early in the year. There is a long list of candidates to choose from as Warkworth is regarded as one of the most desirable charges in rural Ontario. The congregation is financially strong so that there is no problem of church union here. Rev. D. A. Thomson, of Hastings is interim moderator during the vacancy.

Hay Abundant.

The hay crop of this vicinity is nearly all cut and in the barns. It has proved to be very abundant and of very fine quality. Grain crops are looking fine, but are in need of rain to mature properly. Corn and roots are doing well. The honey crop, which did not look promising in the early summer, now shows great improvement. There is a large acreage of buckwheat sown.

MISSION CIRCLE OF ST. JAMES' AT PARK

The X.L. Mission Circle held their July meeting at Jackson Park recently, with a goodly number in attendance. Trinity and George Street Circles were guests at this meeting, and supper was served in true picnic style.

A resume of the year's work was given by each of the Circles present.

Mrs. J. N. Welbourne, president St. James' W.M.S., gave her report of the branch meeting held in Cobourg, which was both interesting and helpful. Mrs. Welbourne made special mention of any points in connection with Mission Circle problems.

After discussing the convention report and comparing methods and plans for the coming year, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the St. James' X.L. Mission Circle for the pleasant and profitable hour enjoyed by all.

The August meeting will be held at the home of the president, Miss Head.

HOPE

Hope is requisite for life. Each morning we awake with hope for what the day may bring forth, and each night we go to sleep with the hope that the next day may bring less of sorrow and more of happiness. If it were not for hope, our troubles might often seem unbearable. And unhappy, indeed, is the man who looks forward to nothing. Life to him is dread and monotonous. But hope in good to come gives zest and purpose to life. And this faith in the future is not an illusory hope which is never fulfilled, but is a hope capable of being fulfilled, and, by its very existence, promises fulfillment.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDED.

On Saturday forenoon a big oil truck crashed into the car driven by E. F. Mason, at the corner of Chambers Street and Hunter Street. Mr. Mason's car was badly damaged, the rear fender, rear wheel and the running board suffering. The police say that so far as they could learn Mr. Mason had the right-of-way.

RACIAL LINES WILL NOT BREAK DOWN

There Can Be No Such Thing As A World Melt-in Pot.

(By MAURICE HENLE)

CLEVELAND, O., July 4—The time may come when nations will beat their guns into plowshares and their swords into pruning hooks. Peace may settle over the world.

But that Utopian condition, that spirit of brotherhood of man, will not come from a disappearance of racial lines.

There can be no such thing as a world melting pot. Strong bloods will remain distinct, just as they are distinct today. Intermingling among certain peoples may cause a breakdown of racial distinctions. But the purest race will not lose their identity.

* * *

This was drawn from an interview with one of science's most devoted servants, Dr. T. Wingate Todd, anatomist, of Western Reserve University, here.

Like most professional men, Dr. Todd does not like to talk for publication unless he is convinced that, as a result of his researches, he has a message to deliver which will be of value.

Once convinced, he began:

"Consider three different peoples: The Egyptians, the whites or Anglo-Saxon and Teutonic, and the negro. These three, totally different racially, are alike to the extent of not absorbing alien blood.

"Other races may intermingle for a generation or two, but in the final analysis the dominant blood will survive.

"The Egyptians were a lethargic people. They made their living leisurely along the banks of the Nile.

"What happened then? Other races came into the country, and these invaders thought they would instil vigor by intermingling. For two generations we do find a stimulus apparent. But it died away, and the Egyptians reverted to their natural selves.

* * *

"The same is true of the negro race in America. Someone in 1842 predicted that in 100 years from that time there would be but one kind of people here; that is, no sharp lines drawn between the American and negro races. That, of course, is foolish. The negro today is as pure blooded as he was 300 years ago, when he first came to this country.

"Nor has he advanced perceptibly in these 300 years. What his progress will be in the future I cannot say.

"Let us look back. What has he contributed to Ameirca? Well, for one thing negro melodies are probably the most characteristic 'American' melodies we have. But that is the only definite thing we can thank him for thus far.

"His entire future seems to hinge about the one word 'education.'

"We Americans ask ourselves whose fault is it? It is true we brought him over, and to that extent we are sort of responsible for him. But it is equally true the negro owes it to himself to progress, and can progress only as far as his own determination dictates.

"We can help. We should help, and an appeal should be made to all Americans to do all they can to help the negro make good in the things that we, who have studied the race, at least know he is qualified to enter."

THE HOME PAPER

"Each year the local paper gives from $500 to $1,000 in free lines to the community in which it is located. No other agency can or will do this. The editor in proportion to his means does more for his home town than any other ten men, and in all fairness he ought to be supported—not because you like him or admire his writings, but because the local paper is the best investment the community can make. It may not be brilliantly edited or crowded with thought, but financially it is of more benefit to the community than the preacher or teacher. Understand me, I do not mean mentally, and yet on moral questions you will find most of the newspapers on the right side. Today the editors of the local papers do the most for the least money of any people on earth."

We commend this conclusion to the serious attention of certain Kingstonians who are forever criticizing the local press. If they were as loyal to this city as its newspapers are, Kingston would be a much greater and better city than it is to-day.

KEEP YOUR GRIT

Hang on Cling on No matter what they say.
Rush on Sing on Things will come your way.
Sitting down and whining never helps a bit—
Best way to get there is by keeping up your grit.
Don't give up hoping when the ship goes down,
Grab a spar or something—just refuse to drown,
Don't think you're dying just because you're hit,
Smile in face of danger and hang on to your grit.

A REAL MAN

It is easy to run with a crowd and to follow the example of the French revolutionist, who, hearing the noise and the roar of the streets, cried out:

"There go the people. I must follow them for I am their leader." But to stand with patience and self-control in a post of high responsibility when a strong current of public opinion goes sweeping by, careless of consequences and unrestrained in its expression of feeling, is the mark of a real man.

AMERICAN LABOR CENTURY BEHIND SAY BRITISHERS

Samuel Gompers is 100 Years Behind the Times — British Labor Party Includes 'White Collars'

(By MILTON BRONNER)

LONDON, July 16.—Many times in the last 100 years Tom Hodge, British workman, has elected fellow workmen to Parliament.

However, it was not until 1889 that a real Labor party, appealing to all British workmen, was inaugurated. This was done through the parliamentary committee of the Trades Union congress, which decided Labor's only means of being effectively heard was to create its own party to voice its own policies in Commons.

Its rise has been so rapid, its achievements so many that British Tom Hodge can't understand why American John Smith still sticks to the old American political parties.

Laughs at A. F. of L.

The British worker is amused by Samuel Gompers, whom he considers 100 years behind the times.

American John Smith would probably be dazed by the British Labor party's makeup, aims and platform. It is a trades union party, reflecting workers' ideals, and also a Socialist party, including many "white collar" folks among its leaders.

Fusion of the Independent Labor party brought the Socialist element. This gave Labor men like Ramsey MacDonald, brilliant Scotsman, now Labor's leader in Parliament; Philip Snowden, student and thinker; Arthur Ponsonby, aristocrat, philosophically convinced upporter of Labor; C. P. Trevelyan, writer and once member o, the Liberal ministry; Sidney Webb-statistician and greatest British historian of trade union movements.

Notable Fight

Representatives of the old trades union element include: J. R. Clynes, minister of food in the war-time coalition cabinet; Arthur Henderson, member of the inner war council of the coalition cabinet, and J. H. Thomas, railway worker, who is a member of the king's privy council.

These men have led their party to second place in Parliament. The achievement is remarkable, as since the armistice, labor ranks have had some of their sharpest reverses. These included shrinkage of Trades Union Congress membership from 6,416,510 in 1921 to 5,127,308 last year—due largely to unemployed being unable to keep up membership.

They had the further obstacle of depleted treasuries. Both the individual workers and the unions lost millions through unemployment and strikes.

Unsolved Mysteries

THE RIDDLE OF WATERLOO

How did Napoleon come to lose the battle of Waterloo?

This is the question which has been discussed many times during the 100 years and more that have elapsed since the great turning point in the career of the "Little Corporal," but historians have yet to agree upon the answer and many of the military events of June 18, 1815, are still shrouded in secrecy.

There is much evidence to show that, about the time of Waterloo, Napoleon was suffering severely from a physical and mental deterioration due to the disease which held him in its grip at that time. Ever Lord Wolseley acknowledges this in his "Decline and Fall of Napoleon," when he says: "Beyond all doubt, the Republican General Bonaparte who overran Piedmont and Lombardy in 1796 was, both mentally and bodily, to a large extent a different man from the Emperor Napoleon who was defeated at Waterloo. Many careful students of this colossus among men have been compelled—unwillingly perhaps—to admit that had the Corsican general who fought at Rivoli been in command of the French army when it crossed the Sambre, our Iron Duke would not have been allowed to add the crowning me4cy of Waterloo to the list of his glorious achievements.

"Personally, I believe the state of Napoleon's health to have been the primary cause of his defeat. The more I study his grandly conceived plan for 1815 the more convinced I am that the overwhelming defeat in which he ended was the result of bodily disease and the failure of mental power which resulted from it at supreme moments when rapid and energetic decision was imperatively necessary for its success."

This opinion, shared by a number of other students of history, has been arrived at because of the many valuable hours squandered by Napoleon, coupled with the careless faultiness of many of his important orders during this campaign, and the fact that both Wellington and Blucher were allowed to escape from the destruction with which Napoleon's ably devised plans ought to have enmeshed them. His exhausted state on the morning that the battle commenced accounts for the many hours of day light that were trifled away, and the accounts of eye-witnesses state that he remained seated for hours motionless before a table, often dropping asleep with his head resting upon his arms. Also, when escaping from the field of battle, he suffered so much from drowsiness that it was with difficulty that his attendants prevented him from tumbling off his horse.

But the precise nature of the malady from which he was suffering has never been definitely discovered. Some maintain that it was an intestinal affliction, others that a strong opiate was being administered to him by enemies within his own immediate circle, while still others authorities attribute his breakdown to the years of hard campaigning which had preceded the final collapse of his ambitions at Waterloo.

BANK TELLER HAD SHORT ACCOUNTS

OSHAWA, July 16.—Acting upon instructions given by Mr. E. C. Hodgins, manager of the Standard Bank of Canada, Oshawa, Fred Ward, of Whitby, formerly teller of the local branch of the Standard Bank was on Wednesday placed under arrest and charged with the embezzlement o' funds to the extent of approximately $16,000. Ward was released on bail amounting to $21,000 and the case was remanded for eight days. The preliminary hearing will be heard before Magistrate Hind in Police Court here on Thursday of this week.

The shortage of accounts was discovered early in April this year when an audit of the books was held, but the laying of the charge was deferred, it is stated, in order to give the accused time to make restitution if he was guilty of the offense. Ward has been in the employ of the Standard Bank for many years, entering the service in Whitby and later being transferred to different places. A few years ago he came to Oshawa, where he was stationed until April last.

While the charge was preferred by the local manager representing the bank, the bonding companies, it is understood, are pressing the case.

CLEANSERS FOR TEXTILE FABRICS

Thousands of years ago soap was invented, how or by whom no one knows, but its manufacture was certainly practiced in Pompeii, for the remains of a soap works have been discovered in that ancient city. It is only during the last half century, however, that important advances have been made in the technology of cleansing materials and the full complexity of the problem has been realised. The importance of the subject in relation to the preparation of textile fabrics for bleaching, dyeing, printing, and finishing is such that the full resources of modern science have been applied to investigating the nature of the dirt to be removed, and the best method of effecting its removal without weakening the fabric. Soluble dirt must be disolved, insoluble dirt must be loosened and, as far as possible, the operations of scouring and bleaching must be made to occur simultaneously. As a result of scientific investigations by a number of British experts, certain silicates of aluminum in celloidal form are now subjected to a treatment which renders them peculiarly effective in scouring operations. Their use frequently eliminates several operations in the preparations of fabric while giving perfect cleansing and leaving fabric in a stronger state. The new products, which are cheaper than ordinary grease removers, have a powerful solvent action and produce stable emulsification under all conditions. Without such cleansing it is impossible to get the full brilliance of dyed goods, or the full sharpness of printed materials.

BOILERS FOR OUTLANDISH PLACES

In many parts of the world, separated from civilization by natural barriers such as forests, mountains, or rocky country impassable by wheeled traffic, there is work which could be done by steam power if only suitable boilers could be got into position. Standard steam boilers, weighing some tons and demanding a railway truck or similar means for their transport, are obviously out of the question. Sectionalized boilers made up from parts bolted together are, however, quite applicable and a well known British firm has supplied many boilers of this type. The main body of the boiler is built up from a number of cylindrical rings which are supplied ready for bolting together by unskilled labour. Generally the heaviest weighs about 400 pounds (180 kg.) but this figure can be reduced if necessary. These boilers can be arranged to burn any fuel, from oil or coal down to wood refuse or other waste material. By their aid cheap power becomes available in almost any inhabitable part of the globe and this constitutes an important factor in the development of new districts.

CONCRETE-LINED PIPES

An important advance in the art of making pipes for the conveyance of water under high or low pressure is to be found in the process devised by a British firm for applying a lining of concrete to cast iron pipes. Where plain iron pipes are used, it is necessary to use a larger size than would otherwise be needed, so as to allow for the effect of incrustations in roughening the surface of the metal and reducing the effective section of the pipe. Anything from 30 to 50 per cent extra must be allowed in the initial delivery capacity of the pipe, and this naturally increases the cost of the installation to a serious extent. It has been found that a concrete lining practically eliminates the formation of deposits, even from bad water, and in addition the surface of the concrete can be rendered perfectly smooth. The success of the system naturally depends on a dense lining of concrete being applied cheaply yet with perfect truth and security. This end is attained by a new British machine in which the pipe to be lined is rotated at high speed so that the concrete is driven into place by centrifugal force. A lining from ½ inch to 1 inch in thickness is obtained according to requi ements, and pipes of all diameters from 4 inches to 72 inches have been lined successfully. When used in conjunction with spun cast iron pipes, which are another development by the same manufacturers, further advantages are secured, for the spun pipe is about 25 per cent lighter than an ordinary cast iron pipe and needs no machining before it is lined with concrete.

BIG AIR RACE.

MANCHESTER, July 16.—Radio broadcast managers are gradually increasing their programmes until they now equal in quality and length those of the American stations. Stations throughout England are broadcasting many nights up to 11 p. m.

Railroad Man Gives Out Surprising Facts

"If any in my family were sick with stomach trouble or run-down condition, I would rather have one bottle of Tanlac than all the other medicines put together," is the positive statement of F. A. Barrowcliff, 8 Locomotive St., Hamilton, Ont., well-known yardman for the Grand Trunk Railroad.

"My wife's health was restored by the Tanlac treatment in such short order it was astonishing, for she suffered so terribly with nervousness, headache, sleeplessness and loss of appetite that I though she would break down completely. She went meal after meal without eating, and was so fearfully weak the care of our five children and the housework was more than she could do.

"After her first few doses of Tanlac my wife was like an entirely different person, and hasn't had a sick spell since she quit taking th e medicine six months ago. Tanlac has cartainly been a blessing in our house, and we are glad to recommend it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Dress Notions For Vacations

(By HEDDA HOYT)

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 16 (United Press).—No girl wears her heart on h r sleeve these days. But the practical tennis girl wears her cute little handkerchief on her sleeve. She has a tiny pocket made in the sleeve of her crepe de chene dress, a dress, whose chief attractions are color, short sleeves, batteau neck and full skirt gathered into an elastic waistband.

Color has taken possession of the tennis court, as white has been declared taboo because it is unbecoming to most girls and because it soils so easily. The head bandeau matches the shade of the tennis frock this year and no hats are worn except, now and then, a soft little affair of white felt. Yellow, tan, jade and old blue are favorite colors of the tennis girl.

* * *

Few years ago no one would have planned a trip without first planning the traveling suit and purchasing several white blouses. While the traveling suit is still worn by winter tourists it has no place in the wardrobe of the summer traveler. Nothing could be more uncomfortable than a tailored suit with a white bluse for traveling in the summer months. One needs clothes with loose lines and with sleeves loose at the armpits and the dark one-piece dress has both of these qualifications. Of course there must be an accompanying jacquette, a short cape or a top-coat as the wearer prefers.

For an ocean voyage I should recommend a topcoat, two dark gowns, one of silk crepe and one of a light weight cloth material, two dinner dresses of lace or some equally uncrushable material, a dancing frock and two sport jacquettes with separate skirts for morning wear. This list can be augmented according to one's pocketbook but it should prove adequate for any ocean voyage of ten days.

* * *

Felt hats are considered quite as smart if not smarter than straw hats this summer, but if the warm days continue it is hoped that we will see less of them. Any hat that heats the head is undesirable, as nothing does more toward making the hair fall out. We are all inclined to lose hair more freely in summer than in winter months and we should do all that we can to prevent unnecessary falling of the hair.

It is time to drop the handkerchief Aren't we getting just a little weary of the handkerchief trim? Dresses with handkerchief collars, hats with handkerchief drapes, blouses made of handkerchiefs, sashes made of handkerchiefs, bathing suits made of them, bathing turbans of them. Isn't it time to "drop the handkerchief?" Let it go back to it's old original duty

PACKING COTTON FOR THE WORLD'S MARKETS

For one purpose or another, cotton goods are used in every part of the world, and, as a consequence, their transport from the mills to the users is by every known means of carriage. To suit the conditions encountered in different countries, it is necessary to make the goods up into packages which vary widely in weight and form, for obviously a bale which can be handled by crane and railway on one route would be unmanageable in a land of native bearers and mountain passes. The great packing houses, which are to be found in the centres of the British textile industry, employ expert workers who are conversant with the needs of every market and the facilities for transport in every part of the world. In these establishments the cotton goods are fed into machines producing anything from the small packages which are carried by negroes into Central Africa, up to the hydraulically-compressed bales needed for the markets of the East. The care devoted to the folding, cutting, ticketing, and packing of each class of goods for the particular market concerned represents a service of the highest value to the consumer. Incidentally, it is a service which can be rendered effectively by an elaborate organization based on world-wide experience. The importance attached to the matter by British firms is entirely justified.

In the Arctic

And the Tropics tooth troubles are rarely known

That discovery led dental authorities to search for the reasons. They found it in factors of diet. And now those principles have been applied to create a new way of teeth cleaning.

Millions of people in some 50 countries employ this method now. Dentists everywhere advise it. This is to offer you a delightful test, so you may know what it means.

To fight acids

A new-type tooth paste has been created, called Pepsodent. It brings some new effects which research proved essential, largely because of the lack of certain stimulating principles in our diet.

Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Combats the film

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. No ordinary tooth paste can end it.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Two ways found

Dental science, after long research, found two ways to fight that film. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved those methods effective. Then they were both embodied in this new type tooth paste for daily application.

New beauty comes

Pepsodent brings new beauty. You see glistening teeth everywhere today, because so many use it. That new beauty means greater safety, greater cleanliness as well.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film.

See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

It will be a revelation. Cut out the coupon now.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

RAIN AND BELLEVILLE TOO MUCH FOR PETES LOST BRIEF GAME 1-0

GOT NO BREAKS.

The rain on Saturday afternoon doubtless meant "millions" to the country but to Manager Solomon and his Big Four outfit it merely meant the loss of a much-needed game to the Petes chief opposition for the Central League honors, the Belleville crew. The Bay of Quinte gang, already known as the luckiest ball club in President Dedman's circuit produced an ally that was as big a help to them as Umpire Dell was the last time they played here in the shape of old Jupiter Pluvius, with the result that the game had to be stopped at the end of the fifth inning with Belleville in front 1 to 0 and the Petes lost an opportunity of overcoming that slender lead and winning a game that mean a good deal to them.

Had the rain come five minutes earlier the Petes fifth inning would not have been completed and the game would have had to be replayed or had it held off for ten or fifteen minutes longer the homesters might have turned defeat into victory for they were giving Jackie Williams a busy time. But the shower arrived at the moment when they meant a Belleville win. Umpire Butler called time at the end of the fifth and after waiting for an hour and a half during which time the Belleville crew sat in their dugout and chuckled while the Petes watched for the break in the clouds that failed to come, the arbitrator called the game. It was still raining then and the diamond was in bad shape.

The showers spoiled one of the best ball games of the season, for both pitchers were working effectively and the teams were doing some snappy fielding.

Belleville were a very lucky crew in having a lead when the downpour started, for in three of the five innings the Petes had Williams in a hole, only to have him escape by getting the break on each occasion. Twice when the Petes had the bases loaded and two out an infielder out of position was in the path of a hard hit ball that nine times out of ten would have gone through for a hit. In the second with the cushions loaded all populated, Hap Harrison shot a drive down the first base line that would have gone through for a triple and scored three runs, had not Mills been standing almost on the bag instead of fifteen feet away as he usually plays. Instead the ball came into his hands for a put out. Again in the fifth with three Petes on the bases and two out, Ansaldo cracked a vicious grounder past the box and Meagher running over to hold the runnner on second got the ball on a perfect hop for a force out. In the third the Petes lost a chance through an unusual bit of bad luck when with Swanston on first, Ansaldo hit what should have been an easy double over third. Swanston, however, tripped and fell while going from second to third and when he was forced to go back to second he was run off that base by Ansaldo.

Williams pitching for Belleville allowed three hits and walked three, while Heckman for the Petes was found for six safeties, several of them scratchy and allowed no complimentaries. Both fanned two.

The fielding feature was furnished by Red Legon who picked Ross's liner to left out of the air with his bare hand a the ball was going over his head.

Belleville got two hits in the first. After Ross had fanned, Meagher got a lucky single on a short fly. Brownscombe flied to Johnston in right. Weir shot a single past Ansaldo but Comolli tossed out Harry Mills, retiring the side.

The Petes went down in order. Legon rolled to Meagher, Johnston expired on a grass cutter to Mills and Swanston hit to Weir and was out at first.

Williams got a lucky break to get out of a bad hole in the Petes' half. He started off well by striking out Anslado and Wolfe but Comolli singled past Weir and Helson was safe when Weir lost his roller. A pass to Heckman filled the bases. Harrison's terrific drive down the first base line, which would have cleared the bases had it been a foot on either side was right in the hands of Harry Mills who was playing close to the bag and an easy out out resulted, instead of a triple.

Belleville got the only run of the abbreviated game in third. Ross host de to Helson. Meagher singled to centre. Brownscombe flied to Wolfe. Weir's crack to third bounced over Helson's head and went for a single. Then Harry Mills singled to right, scoring Meagher. Weir tried to go to second but Heckman intercepted Johnston's throw and tossed him out at the halfway station.

More bad luck for the Petes in their half. After Legon had been thrown out on a bunt and Johnston had rolled to Mills, Swanston drew a pass. Ansaldo singled over third, the ball hitting the bag and going on into left field. Swanston rounded second and set sail for third. Fifteen feet away from second he fell and seeing he could not make third then he returned to second. Ansaldo came into that base at full speed running Swanston off and he was caught trying to reach third.

Both sides went out in order in the fourth. For Belleville, J. K. Williams was thrown out by Helson, Casey popped to Harrison and Hagerman rolled to Comolli.

In the Petes' half, Wolfe was retired on Hagerman's nice catch of his foul fly. J. K. Williams scooped in Comolli's roller and threw him out at first. Helson flied to Ross.

J. H. Williams first up for Belleville in the fifth struck out. Ross was extinguished on Legon's barehanded grab of his liner to left. Meagher got a life on Ansaldo's fumble but was forced at second on Brownscombe's roller to Ansaldo.

The Petes made a big bid to tie the score in their half. Heckman flicd to Casey but Harrison bounced a single off Meagher's knee. Legon bunted and J. K. Williams threw to seocnd too late to get Harrison, everybody being safe. Johnston sacrificed the pair along a peg and Swanston was passed, filling the bases. Ansaldo's good bid for a hit came on a perfect hop to Meagher, playing close to second to hold the runner on and Swanston was forced at second.

Then came the deluge and the visitors had won a soft victory, sewing up the league race.

Firpo Not Ready to Meet Jack Dempsey.

NEW YORK, July 16.—(Canadian Press)—Tex Rickard, boxing promoter, who is negotiating with Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, for a fight between Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo, for the world's heavyweight championship early in September, declared Saturday he was mystified by the statement of Jimmy DeForest, Firpo's trainer, that the Argentine would enter a "slaughter house" if he entered a ring with Dempsey in less than four months.

"I cannot understand it", he said. "Only yesterday DeForest told me Firpo was ready and able to meet anyone in the world."

Rickard declared he was not handling Firpo's interests, but that he was negotiating with Kearns for a Firpo-Dempsey fight in the near future.

INWOOD, N. Y., July 16.—(Canadian Press).—Bobby Jones, youthful Atlanta wizard, Saturday won the United States open golf championship by defeating Bobby Cruikshank, Scotch professional, at the Shackamaxon Country Club, Westfield, N. J., in the 18-hole play-off. Jones scored 76 to Cruikshank's 78.

Jones captured the blue ribbon of the links in a spectacular nip-and-tuck battle that was not decided until the last hole. Here Jones played one of the most marvelous shots of the tournament, a long iron that travelled 200 yards from the rough to within five feet of the cup, to clinch his victory. Cruikshank, weakening under the terrific pace, had half topped his toe shot, put his second on the fairway and third in a tray to the left of the green. From there he threw away all remaining hope by taking three to hole out, congratulating Jones before the latter stopped up to go down in par four.

HEAVY HITTING IN GAME AT COBOURG

Ponies Walloped Out Two Home Runs and Won By a Score of 6 to 4.

COBOURG, July 16.—(Special)—Umpire Kay called Saturday's game when Kingston were at bat for their eighth, with the visitors leading 6 to 4. The teams played from the fifth on in a steady drizzle but both seemed anxious to finish.

The Cobourg team went after Moore in the first inning when a walk to Thompson, Skitch's sacrifice, Turpin's three bagger, Derry's hard grounder to short and T. Kenney's double produced two runs. After that the Kingston slow ball artist didn't allow a hit until the sixth. In the seventh, T. Kenney singled, Butler singled and Thompson scored both with his hit to left. In this inning later Cobourg had three on but J Kenney failed to hit safely. Gallagher replacing Moore for the last two batters in this frame.

Summeryille scored Kingston's first run in the second with a home run drive to centre. They scored again in the third on Rice's hit over second, T. Kenney's error on Moore's grounder. Twigg scored Rice with a sacrifice.

Daley scored in the fourth with a home run to centre. A three base hit to right by Twigg and Evans' sacrifice scored another in the sixth. Bunt hits by Cherry and Daley, a sacrifice by Evans and Rice's three base hits to left produced Kingston's last run in the seventh, Rice being caught at the plate trying to stretch it into a home run. Centre fielder J. Kenney started to pitch for Cobourg, Jahren replacing him in the seventh after Rice had tripled. The game was a good exhibition of ball until the rain came. Umpires Alex Kay and Claud Wilson were the best pair seen here this year and it is regrettable that only about two hundred fans were present to witness their good umpiring, a rare thing in the league this season. Score by innings:

Cobourg	2000002—4	7	1

Regina Footballers Were Outclassed.

WINNIPEG, July 16.—(Canadian Press)—Fort Rouge Rangers, Manitoba soccer champions, scored one of the most decisive victories ever recorded in the Connaught playdowns here on Saturday when they defeated the Imperial Oil eleven, of Regina, Saskatchewan champions, by the score of 7 goals to 0 in the first of a two-game series in the western semi-finals.

The Rangers had the Regina team at their mercy throughout, gaining a three goal lead in the first half, and adding four more in the second half. Wilf Reed was the star of the game, scoring four of the winners' goals. The Regina team which arrived here in the morning was much below its usual form and after twenty minutes had practically none of the play.

THE WEATHERMAN PROVES HANDICAP TO CAMPBELLFORD

Northumberland Leaguers Can Neither Win Nor Lose a Game With Hastings — Rain Stopped Game on Saturday.

HASTINGS, July 16.—The weather man seems set on preventing the Campbellford team of the Northumberland League from either winning or losing a game with the Hasting's nine on the latter's own ground. The team from the town in the Trent-Valley opened the season here on May 16th and were well on the way to winning when rain stopped the play, before he end of the fifth innings, with the visitors holding an easy lead. On Saturday, they came here again to play off the postponded game and once more rain interfered, this time with only three innings played. The play should really have been called before Hastings went to bat for their half of the third, when weather conditions gave them the opportunity to pile up a bunch of hits and score five runs before they were retired. A wet ball and slipping field accounted in a large measure for the streak of luck.

Th. Campbellofrd boys were in splendid form and for the first two innings only six Hastings men went to bat and only one one of them was able to land on Brady's delivery. Scriver, the catcher, the first man up, struck out, and Eagleson easily handled a grounder from Harrington, throwing him out at first. Connel took care of what looked like a hit by Burgholder and made a dandy throw to first.

In the second inning, Cruickshanks made three vicious smashes at the ball and each time landed on nothing but the empty air. Caldwell sent a long, sky-scraping fly to right, but Hume was right under it. Richardson sent a grass scorching grounder between first and second which Holmes captured.

The rain was falling in a steady shower and the spectators were leaving the field when Hastings went to bat in the third. Manager Davidson, of the Campbellford team, who was umpiring behind the bat, decided to let the paly go on. The ball was wet and Brady, under those conditions, lost his cunning. The outfield was slippery for ball players who wore running shoes, so that what might have been taken care of by the outfielders, developed into safeties. Stevenson made a hit to centre and Howard followed with another, after King had sent a fly to Holmes. Scriver laid down a safety past second and Harrington popped up a fly that dropped into Brady's glove. After Cruickshanks had got his base on balls, Caldwell cleared the bags with a double to centre. Five runs were in before the side was retired and then Umpire Davidson called the game.

The Campbellford team made two runs in their three times up, and if the rain had held off the spectators would have seen one of the best games of ball that has been played on the Hastings grounds this summer. Cowell, who leads in Campbellford's batting order, found the first ball pitched to him and scored the initial run. Weston made two hits in as many times at bat, Brady and Eagleson, too, got into the safety column, but what looked like singles by other batters were strangled by snappy fielding by the Hastings men.

This means that Campbellford and Hastings have two postponed games to play. They have finished but one game and that was won by the former.

In the third Holmes, with two men on bases, made a long sacrifice fly to right, Brady scoring and Eagleson going to third, wheer he was held by the coacher, although it looked as if he could have reached home safely.

Brady as a pitcher is building up a reputation not only at home, but throughout the league. Great things are expected of him. He is the man who is looked to to stop the so far unbeaten Trentons in their headlong career at the top of the league.

The line-up:

U.S. Tennis Stars Won From British Players.

NEWPORT, R.I., July 16.—(Canadian Press)—The United States triumphed over Great Britain in the third annual renewal of the Internation Inter-University Lawn Tennis matches between the Harvard-Yale and Oxford-Cambridge combined teams, played Friday and Saturday. The British team scored eight points against 13 by the United States players. The Harvard-Yale team won the two previous encounters also. In 1921 the score was 5 to 4, and in 1922, it was 15 to 6.

Expect Record Entry Horseshoe Pitching.

CLEVELAND, July 16.—(Associated Press.)— Several hundred entrants are expected in the National Horseshoe Pitchers' Tournament to be held here August 30 to Setpember 2, as the result of announcement by local tossers in charge of arrangements that many state and county faires throughout the country are to hold horseshoe tournaments to determine entry in the national contest.

Harold Falor, 15-year-old boy of Akron, O., will defnd his title as world's champion pitcher, he has announced.

Lipton to Challenge For America's Cup.

LONDON, July 16.— (Canadian Press.)— Sir Thomas Lipton in an interview yesterday, said that he hoped next year to challenge for America's cup in 1925. In the meantime he was bringing back from the United Staes his 23 metre Shamrock. The Shamrock will race in home waters in 1924.

England Sorts Mail in Speeding Plane.

LONDON, July 16.—(Associated Press.)—A "flying mail train" is the latest type of airplane to be developed in England.

In the plane's mail-chamber, says the Daily Chronicle's aeronautical expert, sorters will be able to carry on their work just as they might in a railway mail-train. It will have a radius of 2,000 miles and will be able to stay in the air 24 hours without alighting. The crew in charge will be provided with regular sleeping quarters on board. They will, in fact, work in shifts while in the air, some of them sleeping while others are on duty in the control chamber.

If necessary, when flying at night or immersed in fog or cloud, the crew will be able to bring into play mechanisms which will endow the craft with the power of automatic self-balance. The machine will virtually fly itself, and all the helmsman will have to do will be to keep it on a compass course by means of the rudder.

Seeing Sports by Radio Has Serious Hitch

Sport fans may be the first of the country to enjoy the benefits of television by radio—seeing, as well as hearing, an event by wireless.

This opinion is based on recent success in trasmitting by radio several photographs from Washington to Philadelphia, and on the practice of large broadcasters to flash out all the detailed actions of an important sporting event.

Radio broadcasting of a sporting feature, like a big prizefight, or an important absoball game, has already been accepted as satisfactory. Prizefights especially have been "hard" with almost as much enjoyment by wireless as though the listeners were at the ringsides. Round by round. movement by movement, they have been flashed to the radio fight fans through a keen reporter's eyes, while the cheers of the crowds, the ringing of the gong and all the other attending sounds and noises of a big fight were heard distinctly through the receivers.

Movie by Wireless

All that would be necessary to make the evening's enjoyment complete would be a wireless movie of the fight, almost at the same time that it was being fought.

Engineers no longer doubt the probability of such an occurrence. When it comes radio will surpass all other scientific inventions as an entertainer.

But there is a snag to the realization of this panacea. That is, opposition of various interests to radio broadcasting of an important event which is staged for the income it might bring.

The Kick-Back

Imagine the installation of a radio television broadcasting set at an important prizefight — one that could broadcast all the sounds and sights of the ring and arena. How may would go to see the fight close at hand?

Or imagine a world series baseball game, with such broadcasting set to flash the roaring of the fans, the calls of the umpire and crack of the bat, beside the actual photographs of the event as it occurred. How many baseball fans would travel across the country. as they do now, to see such a feature directly?

By the time radio television is perfected so as to be practicable for general use, everyone of moderate means may have a wireless receiving set. With the addition of a television received, the radio fan would be in a position to enjoy all big events, broadcast by radio, at home.

But there is hardly a chance for this to become a reality. The owners of baseball grounds and prizefight promoters, looking out for their own financial interests, would put a stop to the broadcasting of their programs altogether.

Lawn Bowling

DECIDED SUCCESS.

The lawn bowling tournament held at Cobourg on Wednesday and Thursday of last week, was, so far as the Peterborough Club is concerned, a very decided success. Five rinks went down and brought home three of the prizes. Mayneord's rink went into the semi-finals of the Primary event by defeating Whattam of Oshawa and Sulman of Belleville when they in turn were beaten by Stanley of Bowmanville, who carried off the trophy. In the second event they were successful in going right through, defeating Delaney of Cobourg, Martin of Cobourg, and in the finals, Rev. Ramsay of Belleville. The prizes were very beautiful mahogany mantle clocks, one going to each member of the rink, which was composed of Percy King, Tom Donaldson, Art. Gilliam and Jack Mayneord.

In the doubles two Peterborough teams went through to the finals and brought home both first and second prizes. The successful teams were Nelson Routley and W. R. Fox, and D. H. Moore and M. B. Chenhall. The game to decide the winner of these teams will be played here on Friday night of this week, and the prizes are silver cake dishes to the winners and alarm clocks to the runners up.

The Hammond Cup.

The draw for the third round of the doubles for the Hammond Cup is as follows:

Monday:
Brightman vs. Bacon.
Curvin vs. Oke.
Fox vs. Ross.
Cottrell vs. Mayneord.
Donaldson vs. Skinner.
Waddell vs. Convery.

The balance of the draw may be arranged mutually between the opposing skips but must be played on or before Friday night.

Dick vs. Hendry.
Dayman vs. McArthur.
Gilliam vs. Pratt.
Moore vs. T. C. Elliott.
Bowes vs. Dr. Craig.
Wyllie vs. Seymour.
Cairns vs. Freeman.
Martin vs. Routley.
Gillespie vs. Sedgwick.
Taylor vs. King.
R. Elliot vs. Chenhall.
Dr. Allen vs. Dr. Hammond.

Annual Tournament.

With the growth of the Peterboro Lawn Bowling Club efforts are being made to make the annual tournament, which is to be held July 25 and 26, the best in its history. The committee is sparing no effort or expense in assuring visitors to the city a real warm welcome, and present indications point to a large entry. The local club has already been represented at the Oshawa and Cobourg tournaments, with good success, four prizes having been obtained, and at the present time entry has been made for three rinks in the Orillia tournament.

The club has now attained what it considers the best position in many years and certainly is entitled to the support of Peterborough's citizens, and with this end in view is asking that local lovers of the game will be in attendance at the green on the days of the tournament. Provision is being made to accommodate all who attend; refreshment booths will be able to take care of everybody, and there will surely be ample bowling to satisfy the demand for entertainment.

Rink, doubles and single games will be carried on; the local club will have about ten rinks entered, and prizes will be without doubt the best in years.

The handling of the tournament has been left to H. R. Martin, who has a thorough knowledge of it, and it is safe to assume that any local or outside visitors will be well entertained.

FOOTBALL NOTES

Bits on Motoring

One misconception motorists have throughout the country concerns their parking privileges. Many a driver has run into an argument with a traffic officer because he misinterpreted his privilege to park on a crowded street, as a right. He is set back a bit when he is told parking is only a privilege, and comes second to the right of moving drivers to space on the streets.

First comes the moving vehicle. When a street is so narrow or so crowded as to make moving traffic difficult, with cars parked along the curbs, no parking is allowed.

Traffic officials and safety advocates are now trying to instil this idea into the minds of motorists. Fully advised of this, they believe, motorists would first see that their parked cars did not interfere with traffic, before they left the machines at the curbs.

Besides, it is expected, this will help influence action for better parking facilities in the downtown areas of the big cities. Many suggestions have been made for such relief, but no official action has as yet been taken.

In New York it has been suggested that automobiles carrying less than three persons be not permitted to enter the congested areas during rush hours. Also, some engineers have come forth with plans for parking spaces underneath parks, double-level streets and other means of providing more space for moving traffic.

Eventually the parking problem will resolve itself to more strict control of downtown traffic, with permission for short interval parking only to those who need their automobiles in their work.

Another feel to save pennies for the motorist! This time it is eucalyptus oil, heretofore used mainly in medicinal preparations.

A British army transport officer, now in Australia, reports he has succeeded in using this oil as a motor fuel. He made 36 miles on a gallon of this oil, he states. Besides, the oil acts as a decarbonizing agent!

The American cheap car is still far ahead of its European competitors, even in their own home markets. Despite the high import duties, the American automobile has found much greater favor than cars of local manufacture.

They're cheaper, that's why. High taxation, coupled with high cost of production, has retarded keen competition with American products.

Sermon on Golf

A friend, an instructor of my youth, whom I never knew before to be a golfer, has sent me a quotation from the Cheophori, showing that Aeschylus was a golfer. He also kindly sent me a translation, suspecting, not without reason that my Greek was as rusty as the treasured old iron with which I once used to play round the course called by the name of Athens. The thing comes handy to my purpose, being a comprehensive text for a sermon on iron play. Here it is.

Orestes says:—

"My nimble weapon shall sweep round, and I will lay him dead." Substitute "it" for "him," and there you are. Nor is it really so very difficult. As my correspondent says, it is "clearly a happy description of a good approach shot." I was at first disposed to think it referred rather to a long putt, being misled by the last word, which I took to mean one of those bronze or gun-metal putters, usually the badge of incompetence, and still sometimes to be seen in toy-shop windows But then what becomes of the nimbleness and the sweeping round? No prophet has yet arisen to preach 'pivoting' on the putting green.

So it must be the iron, and in tha one line are blended, singularly enough, some of the best and worst points in iron play. To take the good ones, there is, first of all, a fine optimism about Orestes. "I will put it dead," he says quite simply, and if we could make ourselves say it every time we had to play an iron shot I have little doubt we should play better. What we do, in fact, say to ourselves is, "If I can only scrape over the bunkers somehow I ought to get a half," or "Heaven send I don't hit this one on the socket, as I did at this very same hole last Tuesday week."

And this brings us to a rather more technical point. Orestes clearly made it his practice to "play for the pin." That is not merely a matter of skill. It is to some extent a matter of a habit of mind. When we are playing regularly with opponents of but modest parts we lapse into the habit of playing our approach shots for "anywhere on the green." If, on the other hand, we play a series of games against a really good player, more particularly a professional, we are forced to raise our standard of ambition, and it is very good for us. Mr. Hilton has said that in his early days it was the fact that Mr. Ball "always seemed to play direct for the hole," the knowledge that play of such excellence was possible, that made him struggle to master the mystery of iron play. And certainly no two players ever gave one a stronger impression of playing for the bottom of the hole, so soon as it was within reach, than did the two great Holyake players, the master and the pupil.

It is very sad that Orestes, with this priceless confidence, this disdain of anything but the best possible shot, should have been handicapped by serious faults of style. It is all too clear that he was so. He suffered from too much footwork, and too long and uncontrolled a swing of his irons. Probably these were bad habits acquired and not corrected in youth, a season of exuberance in which nearly everybody overswings himself. To whirl the club round and to be nimble are the worst possible ways of laying approach shots dead. Firmness of foot, incisiveness of hitting, a general stillness of body—these are the signs of a good iron player.

There are exceptions to prove every rule. In the international match at St. Andrews probably no one was putting his long iron shots more consistently near the hole than Mr. Max Marston, and he takes very nearly as long a wing with his mashie niblick as he does with his driver, and that is a long one. He really did "sweep round," but he swept slowly and steadily, not "nimbly": moreover, his is an eccentricity, very nearly of genius, not to be imitated, even on a calm day.

Of the virtues of standing still in iron play, or for that matter in any other shot, we can hardly have too many illustrations. I had a most instructive one a few days ago, when I was privileged to watch one of the finest archers in England. I do not know what Locksley, who could cleave a willow wand at five-score yards, would have thought of him, but to me he was a hero and a magician. What interested me most, however, was not the way in which, time and again, his arrow pierced the mark with an engaging "zip," but rather the splendid monotony of his methods. He appeared to have standardized the preliminary waggle as no golfer has ever done. Shot after shot he went through the same ritual, each part of it occupying the same fraction of time. Finally—and this was the most instructive part of all—from the moment he loosed the string there was not so much as a quiver of a single muscle until the arrow had finished its course. Taylor, we know, remains looking for a perceptible time at the spot where the ball used to be, but Taylor would be well on his way towards the green while that eminent archer was still gazing motionless at the target, "bull-eyed and majestic," n the distance.—The London Times.

UNCLE SAM PATS HIMSELF ON BACK AS CONCILIATOR

Endeavoring to Settle All Strikes and Industrial Disputes For Good.

WASHINGTON, July 16 (United Press).—All commissioners of conciliation of the Department of Labor today are working at full speed to settle finally all strikes, threatened strikes and lockouts in the United States, so the department will have no labor disputes on its hands during the early part of the present fiscal year.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis has instructed Hugh L. Kerwin, director of conciliation of the Department of Labor, to order all commissioners of conciliation to redouble their efforts to clean the labor slate.

"The commissioners of conciliation, located in various offices throughout the country are meeting with gratifying success," Kerwin told the United Press in an interview. "The employers and employees involved in pending labor disputes seem always willing to meet with the Labor Department representatives with a view to ironing out their difficulties."

Kerwin pointed out that the conciliators of tye Labor Department never enter a dispute until they are requested to by either the employer or employee or some person directly affected by the strike.

"Oftentimes," said Kerwin, "our conciliators are able to resume negotiations which have been broken off."

The Shoe Strike

Since January 1 the division of conciliation of the Labor Department has settled about 200 labor disputes, and at present is confronted with the settlement of about 50 cases, the largest of which is a dispute in the shoe manufacturing industry in New England. More than 5,000 men are involved in this dispute, and Kerwin said the conciliators are now negotiating with the strikers and the employers and expect to reach an agreement in a short time.

Kerwin explained that in many cases, as in the pending Lehigh Valley shopcrafts dispute, Secretary Davis takes an important part in reaching a satisfactory agreement. He said that in many cases, before an impending strike the employer and employees voluntarily enter into an agreement authorizing the Secretary of Labor to name a representative to make a thorough survey of the situation and recommend measures by which a satisfactory solution may be reached.

"This was the case in a number of disputes in the granite industry in New England, where the Department was instrumental in bringing about a settlement after a long drawn out strike, lasting over a year," Kerwin said.

Work in Los Angeles

"In Los Angeles," said Kerwin, "the Labor Department maintains an office that has been very successful in settling disputes in that vicinity. In most cases the disputes are brought into the office and settled there in a few hours."

More than 600 cases were settled by the department in May and a like number were settled in April. Kerwin said that many of these cases were settled in less than a week and some of them in two days.

CERTAINLY IMPROVING.

Today we tap the socket for our music, heat, light and power. Tomorrow we will tune our thought-waves and communicate with China.

Today we burn millions of tons of coal to keep things moving. Tomorrow we will can the heat from the heat from the sun, and open the can on a cold day.

Today we travel sixty miles an hour on the rails and much faster in the air. Tomorrow will be going two thousand miles a minute through a tube.

Two thousand years ago they were very much concerned over the younger generation. Today we are worrying over the same problem.

Centuries ago the tribes were always fighting each other. Today we are doing the same thing on a larger scale.

Egyptian tombs prove that the lipstick is thousands of years old. Today it is looked upon as a modern method of making a mummy look like a live one.

In science we progress; in styles we revolve; in comforts we improve, but we have not learned the way to get on with each other.

Almost every day we have a scrap with some. Every twenty-four hours we have a word war with somebody. Quite often we lose our heads completely and uppercut or get a straight jab.

We are wonderful people in the head, but our hearts need improving. We are fire-eaters even in our family circle.

The financial resources of a man may be great, his social position good, and with all these happy surroundings he will fight the waiter, quarrel with his neighbor or misuse his own body just to get even.

If this be true, it is not reasonable to expect that nations made up of men will continue to quarrel and fight?

But every day, in every way, we are improving this situation. All over the country there are thousands of men meeting, once, twice and often three times a week, to get better acquainted and have a firmer understanding.

Every night of the week, thousands of men are meeting in the various fraternities and clubs and learning to like each other more.

We study to conquer all the material subjects, but the most important subject is the subject—Man.

I am convinced that the various organization, clubs and fraternities are doing more to civilize man and make him neighborly than we think.

WILLIAM RUSSELL in MIXED FACES

DOUBLES!!

RUSSELL IN DUAL ROLE IN NEW FOX PICTURE "MIXED FACES."

William Russell plays a dual role in the William Fox production of "Mixed Faces," which will be shown at the Royal Theatre for a 3 days' engagement, starting to-day. He portrays the part of Jimmy Gallop, a live-wire salesman of the Outkwik Fire Extinguisher Company, and the self - satisfied, egotistical Judge Granger, candidate for mayor of a little town on the 'votes for women,' and reform platform.

Something entirely new in double exposure photography is promised in this production, Russell appearing as both the leading characters in the story in a number of scenes.

How the quick thinking salesman not only breaks and remakes the self-satisfied judge's political ambitions, but wins his sweetheart as well, is said to provide a type of entertainment entirely different from anything Russell has been seen in before.

Renee Adoree, one of the screen's most popular ingenues, plays opposite Russell and her exceptional depiction is worthy of special mention. The remainder of the supporting players are well cast, giving unusual reality to their various difficult roles.

COMBINED OUTING WAS HAPPY TRIP

Knox Brotherhood and Berean Sisterhood Spent Real Jolly Time.

(Contributed).

The 14th of July was a very successful day in the annals of the Berean Sisterhood and the Brethren of the Knox Presbyterian Church in this city, for it was on this date that the steamer excursion—originally planned for an earlier day, but which had to be postponed on account of the exceedingly high water in the river, really came off. And a most successful affair it was, too, looking at it from every point of view; for jollity, merriment, happiness and goodwill rang out as dominant notes throughout the whole time.

The Start.

The trip was made on the steamer "Stoney Lake," under the able command of Captain Scollard, leaving the George Street Wharf at 1.30 p.m. We called, in due course, at the Street Railway Wharf, where a further contingent embarked, making up altogether a goodly number on board. Very shortly, after we had all become more or less acquainted with one another, the orchestra started—Miss Taylor at the violin and Miss Armstrong at the piano, and right ably these two young ladies acquitted themselves until the time of disembarkation.

The Weather.

was fine at the start, the sun shone, while a few clouds prevented the sun's rays from being too hot, and a very pleasant trip was had down that pretty river Otonabee—the two-mouthed sinuous waterway. But, alas! shortly before we reached Rice Lake a storm came on, which, however, only slightly interfered with the comfort of those on board. The intention had been to land at Gore's Landing and picnic on the wharf and other free spots, where even now picnickers can find sitting accommodation. But the rain, which although gentle, prevented this being carried out; consequently there was a general picnic supper on board. The treasurer, J. W. Buyers, kindly invited your scribe to join his party, and once more he partook of the hospitality of these sociable Scotch folk, enlivened by the presence of one of the charming young ladies who ministered so much to his comfort on the occasion of the Foresters' trip a few weeks back.

The Return Journey.

Owing to the showers the stay at Gore's Landing was somewhat curtailed, and at 5.30 p.m. we proceeded on the return trip. Dancing had been begun at a very early period of the outward journey, and was carried on most assiduously until we were once more alongside the George Street Wharf. There was a cessation for about half an hour just after leaving Gore's Landing for "business." The company being called to attention, Mr. Clark made some complimentary remarks as to the work of the Bible Class, eulogizing the work done by the members. Mr. Morrison descanted on the historical aspect of the river we were navigating. H. J. McCannon, the superintendent of the Sunday School, spoke of it as a very active branch of Knox Church, there being some six hundred scholars on the roll. Mr. Carter had some remarks to make on the postponement of the trip and of the great success it had proved that day. Mr. Barclay, the president, was accorded an ovation, "For he's a jolly good fellow," being sung and three cheers and a "tiger," were liberally yelled. J. W. Buyers spoke earnestly on the good financial standard, and a hearty vote of thanks and cheers were given for Captain Scollard and his crew. Between the very short speeches the choir sang a sacred song.

The Rain Ceased

and dancing again resumed its sway. There was dancing and dancing, gentlemen and ladies, ladies together, man and man, and in more than one instances one man secured two lady partners simultaneously, and the fun became fast and furious yet thoroughly innocent.

One used to hear of

but I can assure my readers there was no suspicion of anything "dour" about the hunch on the "Stoney Lake" on Saturday. They were all out for enjoyment, and right well they carried out their intention. I have been with many parties on these social trips, but I cannot call to mind any occasion where there were so much merriment and happiness and goodwill. And these followers of John Knox are, I understand, a very united body.

The Management.

The party was in charge of Messrs. G. M. Bartley (president), J. W. Buyers (treasurer), Wm. Lyburn (secretary), and M. M. Clark, the Sunday School teacher; Mrs. J. Foster (president), Mrs. J. Trusler (secretary), Mrs. J. M. Gerrard (treasurer) and Mrs. J. F. Morrison (teacher). The former aggregation were of the Knox Brotherhood, while the ladies were the officers of the Berean Sisterhood. In addition to the orchestra, before named, Messrs. Heintzman had kindly lent a Victrola with a number of good operatic records, which were run off at intervals by J. Groves, of W. Ontario, who was in charge of the music-giving instrument.

The General Committee

consisted of the previously named officials, assisted by Messrs. J. Chambers and W. Carter.

The booth, which did a thriving business in soft drinks, candies, cigars, etc., was under the management of Messrs. H. J. McCannon and A. Armstrong. The cigars were good, as I can vouch for.

President Bartley is to be congratulated. He is a veteran on these Knox trips, having managed them for many years past. A hearty vote of appreciation and thanks was tendered to him.

Home, Sweet Home.

At around nine we reached the Street Railway Wharf, but none seemed inclined to land there; they wanted the whole of the fun up to the George Street Wharf. Just as we approached that landing place the assembled crowd sang "God Save the King" in a thoroughly-hearty British manner, and at 9.30 the last of us were ashore again.

It is needless to add that, as usual, Captain Scollard and the members of his crew did all and everything in their power to promote the happiness, comfort and safety of those on this most successful outing.

FRANK RUSSELL.

WOMAN CONSTRUCTS HER OWN BUNGALOW.

Worked Alone on Building in Corduroy Knickers.

OMAHA, Neb., July 16. — When Mrs. R. A. Bolen points to her home and says, "This is my home," she's more entitled to that reflection than most women.

For not only is it her home—the home she lives in—but it's her home, the product of her own hands, the home she built!

From foundation to gable, the new five-room bungalow on La Fayette Avenue, here, was put up by Mrs. Bolen alone. Of course she had to leave the plumbing and electrical work to licensed workers, but she did all the carpentry.

Working alone on the building, in corduroy knickers, high boots and heavy work shirt, Mrs. Bolen completed her task in eight months. Her husband came around three or four times to look over the work and offer suggestions, and whenever she struck a snag, she says, she went to F. K. Stearns of the Updike Lumber Company, who'd tell her what to do.

Own Plans, Too

"I've enjoyed every minute of it," she concludes, now that she's through.

"My husband and I had been planning for two years on building a house," she explains. "We wanted it to suit ourselves, and our pocketbook, so we made our own plans.

"Mr. Bolen couldn't leave his business to supervise the building, so I decided I'd quit work and do it. After I'd watched the cement workers put the basement in, I decided I could do the carpentry work myself. So I started."

As proof she could, Mrs. Bolen points to her youthful days, when on a farm near Hiawatha, Kas., she'd rather handle farm machinery than wash dishes.

So building her own home wasn't so difficult after all.

"The hardest manual labor was putting up the framework," she says. "My 16-year-old brother helped me with the lifting."

Broken Finger Nails

Otherwise she did it all, even to putting in the windows, fitting the radiators, shingling the roof and boring the holes for the plumbing.

"I did sacrifice three or four finger nails," she confides. "No, I didn't swear, but I'm not telling what I thought."

Financially, Mrs. Bolen figures she's ahead of the game.

"I'm sure I've saved as much as the salary I could have earned," she concludes, "and I feel certain that I've made a good investment by building in a growing part of town.

"And then there's the health side of it. I honestly never felt so well in my whole life."

AUTO TAX FOR SCHOOLS

The plan of the governor of Pennsylvania to raise $18,000,000 for school purposes by adding another tax on automobiles, by the gasoline route, has brought a wave of protest from all parts of the state. A duty of two cents a gallon would be demanded, if the proposed legislation is passed.

COBOURG OUT OF BIG FOUR RACE

The withdrawal of Cobourg from the Central League is not unexpected, in view of the fact that the Lakeshore club has lost its last three games on its own grounds and is already hopelessly out of the race in the second half. It is likely that there will be a meeting of the League executive to-morrow and that the schedule of the eastern group will be extended to enable Belleville, Kingston and Peterborough to play another round of games, taking the place of the Cobourg fixtures, which of course will be counted as wins for the teams against whom Cobourg were scheduled to play. That leaves the standing of the section as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	To Play.
Belleville	5	1	5
Peterborough	5	1	6
Kingston	5	2	5
Cobourg	0	12	0

GLOOMY IKEY

With one terrific split the rolling ship sunk slowly down beneath the waves. All the passengers were thrown into the sea, and among these were two Jewish gentlemen, who happened to be clinging to the same spar.
After floating about in this way for some time they both felt very exhausted Toward the end of the second day, however, one of them sighted a ship, and, with renewed hope, he cried to his companion:
"Ikey, I see a sail!"
"Vat good does that do us?" replied Ikey. "We ain't got no samples!"

PROTEST BEFORE ACCIDENT

The guest of an auto driver or owner cannot collect damages for injuries through careless operation of the car—unless the guest protests against the reckless driving before the smash. If the guest keeps silent, he is guilty of contributory negligence. So rules the courts of appeals in New York.
Do you, as an auto driver, realize that you are apt to be liable for damages in most communities if you give somebody a "lift" and he gets injured while in your car? This isn't justice. It's the law.

WAR ON TOY BALLON

HERE AND THERE

FATHER

An interesting father is discovered in Boston. He has never earned more than $12 a week. On this small wage he and his hard-working wife have raised and educated nine children. Father can sit back on his oars now, for all nine are working and their combined incomes total $360 a week.
This doesn't put them in the millionaire class, not by a long shot. But if ever a man made a real success of life, it's this Boston father. There are millions like him—hard pluggers denying themselves to give their children "a better chance." They are the backbone of the country, though they never step down to the footlights to receive a bouquet.

UNLUCKY

The superstition about opals bringing bad luck, started in 1829 by a Sir Walter Scott novel, is dying out. Opals are becoming popular, few people afraid of them. So claims P. J. Coffey, president of the National Jewelers' Association.
All around, superstition is on its last legs in our country. How long since you've seen a horseshoe nailed upside down over a door for luck? Americans don't believe in bad luck as much as they used to. Quite natural, since we're getting so we don't believe in anything

RENT

Smallest shoestore in the world, catering only to fat men and thin, is being opened in Chicago by Sam Levine. The store is 20 by 8 feet. Sam has a taken a lease until 1929 and his yearly rent will be $37.50 for each square foot of floor space.
Move the building out into a desert and the whole store wouldn't be worth $37.50 a century. The rental value is individually owned, but it is community created—by the activities of the people who swarm in the neighborhood. The community some day will claim its fair share of this value which it creates.

BEGGING

Most sensible thinking is in the small towns. At Yellow Springs, O., Antioch college plans to become self-supporting by establishing private industries in which students will work during spare time. This beats the begging system. And the graduates will go out into the world self-reliant instead of accustomed to having part of their burden carried by others.

DUST

What's the biggest problem right now in the world? Housewives may answer, dust. In the structural materials laboratory of the Lewis Institute, in Chicago, investigators find it takes six million bits of dust to cover a glass plate one inch square. Tell ma.

CABLES LOSE

Cable construction between the United States and Europe has been [illegible] due to the growth of radio communication, it is said.

E. W. Beatty, K.C.
President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who stated upon his return to Canada from an extended business visit to Europe that while there undoubtedly was a deep-seated conviction on the part of many Grand Trunk shareholders that they have not been fairly treated, he did not think that the resentment would be continued, especially if the Government made an early decision in respect of the Grand Trunk Pacific debentures, and if the Government would indicate with more candor and in a judicial way the reason at the back of its policy and decision. The matter will not have any permanent effect on the saleability of Canadian securities in London he says, nor prevent British investors from sending money to this country.
Touching the immigration question he expressed an opinion that "prospects for increased immigration into Canada are excellent," provided that prospective immigrants were given proper encouragement and shown conditions as they really exist.

MARATHON BUTTER-FAT CHAMP.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchange — And Curb Prices —

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

MARKET OPENED DULL AND WEAK THIS MORNING.

New York, July 16. — United Press. — The opening of the stock exchange to-day was lower in most stocks on moderately active trading. Declines included SteelCommon, off ¼ at 90 3-4; Baldwin 118 off 1, Amer Can ¼ and Corn Products ¼ at 120. Studebaker was slightly higher at 102 3-4, but in the first ten minutes trading reached to 102 while other leaders sold below the opening list. The effect of Premier Poincare's aggressive reparations speech was softened by the statement from the French Premier that the speech was written before the statement by Premier Baldwin on reparations and could not be regarded as a reply to the British position. Elsewhere there was little of importance in the early news.
The reactionary tendency continued on a relatively light turnover volume around 10.30. A few leaders gave indications of resistance including Baldwin and Studebaker. eManwhile a number of important stocks had declined a point or more from Saturday's close. Amer Can got down 1 5-8 to 87 5-8, Corn products 1 3-4 and then it sold under 119; Baldwin the same amount by selling at 117¼.
The coppers were dull and lower —American Smelting common was off nearly two points at 54½ while Anaconda and Keenecott were both off 5-8. ....
The rails were dull. At the end of the first hour prices were little changed from the levels reached around 10.30. Trading was light.
That the market continued dull in the face of France's apparent firmness on the reparations question was considered encouraging, indicating the absence of heavy liquidation.

JOSEPH DORRICOT.

Never to have had an accident attributed to him during the forty-two years in which he occupied the cab of Canadian Pacific locomotives is the record of Joseph Dorricot, Toronto, just retired from active service. He was born in Wolverhampton, England, sixty-five years ago and at the age of 15 began his career as fireman out of the Union Station, Toronto, his duties consisting of keeping the fire grate covered with a plentiful supply of wood. Eight years later he joined the Canadian Pacific at Winnipeg, during the construction of the western lines of the Company. After service on various divisions he was given the run from Toronto to Smiths Falls when that line was opened in 1884, and he kept to that run until his retirement. For some years, and until the general cancelling of the privilege, he had his name on the side of his cab, and he thus became known to travellers from all parts of the Dominion and the United States. His first engine was a wood-burner.

STEWED FRUITS.

KEEP PRIDE TO THE END.

LONDON, (United Press). —Sir Henry Primrose, privy councilor, former chairman of the inland revenue board, former secretary to Gladstone, and a cousin of Lord Rosebery, retained pride of caste even when driven to suicide by neurasthenia and insomnia. In the early morning he arose noiselessly, dressed himself in evening clothes and went across the street into Kensington Gardens. He was found with a bullet wound through his head. He left a note, apologizing for his act and directing that his body be taken direct to an undertaker's to avoid unnecessary suffering by his family.

VOL. LIII., No. 13 PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, JULY 17, 1923 PRICE THREE CENTS

DeValera Breaks Silence of Many Months With Message

REBEL LEADER SAYS IRELAND WANTS BATTLE

Sinn Fein is Being Reorganized Along Political Lines—Attacks Government of Free State

DE VALERA AGAIN

(By Webb Miller, Copyright 1923, by United Press Copyright in Canada

PARIS, July 17.— Breaking a silence of many months, Eamonn De Valera, erstwhile president of the Irish Republic, predicts in a statement smuggled here by airplane, that the Irish Free State is doomed and that Ireland soon will be striving again unitedly for independence.

The United Press received from the famous Irish rebel leader a signed statement saying that despite efforts of the Free State troops to capture him. He is in Dublin gathering the scattered Republican elements of Sinn Fein into an organization.

De Valera indicates his new policy is based along political lines rather than military for the present.

"The Sinn Fein movement is being reorganized "De Valera asserts in his statement." Its policy will probably be an assertion that Ireland and independence cannot be singed away or stolen away. Nor can any portion of Ireland's territory be so disposed of. All governmental authority in Ireland comes exclusively from the people, any pretended treaty or contract that contravenes these principles will be null and void.

"Parallel with this assertion will be a denial of the right of any foreign authority to rule in Ireland and refusal to recognize or co-operate with that authority or its agents.

"On the economic side, Sinn Fein will initiate a programme of reform and strive to make Ireland economically self supporting.

"Full strength of the Republicans will not appear in the coming elections," De Valera statement continues. "The most active workers are either prisoners or prevented from organizing or putting their views before the electorate. They are hampered by every device which the control of the press and executive machinery enables their opponents to adopt.

"But these conditions cannot last A state founded as the Free State was founded is domed. This new union with England will be as ill-starred as it predecessor of 1800."

De Valera maintained that a majority of the Irish people are Republican at heart, but are intimidated by the cry that maintenance of Republic mean a war of extermination by England.

But the Republicans are not disheartened by their miltary defeat the rebel leader declared.

"I know the Republican aspirations are traditional aspirations," he continued.

"The nation has outlasted seven centuries of tyranny and is certain to ultimately triumph. The Republicans are consistent that the Independence for which they have been striving will again soon become the object of a reunited people."

To friends of the Republicans, I can only say, that we, upon whom the responsibility has rested, have en deavored to discharge faithfully our obligations. The funds so generously subscribed in the Unitel States have been applied strictly to the purposes for which they were subscribed.

In fighting for the freedom of Ireland, we realized we were fighting for the freedom of all subject nations We feel that our defeat was a setback for all those causes, but we are prepared now, as in the past to strive with all the strength God may give us to make these causes prevail. President Wilson was right when he said self determination is not a mere phrase. It is an imperative principje of action which statesmen will henceforth igore at their peril."

LAST HACK HAS A DIGNITY LACKING IN AUTOMOBILES

Old-Time Vehicle Creates Much Interest and Curiosity from Citizens, and is Still in Demand for Pleasure Drives Around Peterborough

The last city hack, a familiar horse-drawn vehicle on the streets of Peterborough up to two years ago, is now owned by Middleton and Blewitt's livery stable on Hunter street.

The old hack, still carrying with it something of dignity which is lacking in the modern automobile, created much interest and curiosity when it was standing by the side of the road last week-end, and it is still the owner said in demand for pleasure drives.

Despite the three thousand motor cars in Peterboro, there is not a great division as yet from the old days of the horse and rig. Many of the auto liveries still maintain stables in rear of their garages, and there are some citizens who prefer the stately horse-drawn coach to the high-powered automobile.

On the south side of Hunter street, near Aylmer, the two ages—the horse and the automobile—are drawn very closely together, where an old city watering trough and a gasoline pump are located within a scant twenty feet of each other.

WILD RIDE IN A STOLEN CAR WITH BANDITS

Philadelphia Man, Kidnapped With Automobile, Escapes From His Bonds and Returns

DROVE LIKE FURY

PHILADELPHIA, July 17., While the police continued their search thoroughout this and surrounding States for the six convicts who made a daring escape from the Eastern State Penitentiary here, Thomas J. McAllister, Jr., a tester for an automobile sales concern, returned to this city and told how he had been kidnapped by the convicts, his big maroon colored sedan stolen and of the wild ride with the desperadoes to Elkton, Md.

About a mile from Elkton the convicts left him trussed and gagged in a wood and disappeared on foot. McAllister managed to free himself, periences to the police and then telephoned to his wife, who had been on the verge of collapse, that he was safe. H was unable to furnish any clue to the present whereabouts of the convicts.

Virtually every detective in the local bureau is searching for the escaped convicts. Late to-day they were summoned to Pennsburg, Pa., in the Perkiomen Valley, to identify a man the Pennsburg authorities believed to be James Williams, one of the sextet, who was serving from nine to eleven years for larceny. He proved, however, not to be Williams.

Tells of Kidnaping.

With his wife's arms about his shoulders, and all but exhausted from twenty-eight hours of nervous tension without sleep, McAllister recited his harrowing tale in the Central Police Station.

One of the most interesting features of the story was his description of how the convicts had overpowered a farmer at Ogden, Md., with sawed-off shotguns and pistols, anad after bindinfg and gagging his wife and four children, had ransacked the house. They robbed the farmer of $200 and a quantity of clothing and then stocked the motor car with food from his pantry.

"As I drove out Poplar street Saturday morning," said McAllister, "a truck loaded with six men going very fast whizzed alongside and came to a sudden stop directly in front of my car. I was forced to throw on the brakes to prevent chashing into the rear of the truck Before I had taken my hand off the emergency brake one of the men in the truck jumped ont and ran back to my car.

"All the men wore blue pants and jumpers like railroad engineers. The fellows who came running back to my car, who I later found was Thomas J. Gillian, sentenced to ten to fifteen years for complicity in the holdup of a bank runner.said to me: "Throw up your hands,, Bo!" He was pointing a nickeled revolver at me, and in the same breath ordered me out of the car.

All Have Revolvers.

"I saw it was not going to be a Sunday school picnic, because as the others came running from the truck they all pulled revolvers. So I got out, and pretty lively, too.

"Then another one of the men, who I learned later was James L. Malone, serving eighteen years for highway robbery, grabbed me by the collar and threw me back into the lower part of the car. In a few seconds I felt myself being picked up and saw that all the convicts were in the car, the motor of which was still going.

"Louis A. Edwards, who was brought to the penitentiary from Reading, took the wheel. Gillian who first seemed to be the boss and brains of the entire affair, sat beside Edwards, who I have been told was

Weeds Have Been Put on Blacklist

Weeds have been put on the black list for the Peterborough Police Force, and the entire force is on the lookout for them. Any citizen who harbors them is liable to the penalty provided by law.

In accordance with the Noxious Weeds Act, citizens who fail to clear vacant lots or other property owned by them of weeds are liable to a fine. The weeds must be cut down and destroyed.

No further notice will be given, as the order was issued by Chief Newhall to-day to take the names of all persons failing to comply with the law in this regard.

PITY THE POOR BANANA MAN!

Complains That People Are Hurting His Business With Silly Song That's "Bum Advertise" He Thinks.

"What's this damfool business about no banans?" asked the fruit dealer, peeved and worried by the heat, the long days work, and the newly coined jargon with a quirk and a catch in it that had been persistently eluding him.

"A week ago I'm sellin' some strawberries to ladies in here, and a fella I know yells in the window, 'No banans, Tony.' I says, 'Sure I got lots of banans, and more down cellar.' I couldn't leave my customers to tell him about how I'm all stocked up, and he laughs like Jake Solomon telling a joke, like he put something over me, and was havin' a lot of fun out of it, and away he goes."

"I didn't mind that because I had a lot of strawberries to get rid of, but that night a young girl (her mother buys all her stuff from me) she's in with a young fella to get some big cherries, and she says 'We got no banans,' I says sure we got lots of banans, and ten bunches down cellar.

"She looks at the fella, and they both laugh when I asked them if they want some banans, too. Here's a girl works across the street, she's in and out all the time; she was in yesterday, and first thing she starts singing like 'Yes, we got no banans.' I says, can't she see right before her lots of banans. Then she told me it was a new song. Maybe it is, but I never heard it.

"I told her it hurt my business, and she could sing it at that other store up the street. I mind the time when I used to sing myself when I used to peddle, 'Banans, banans, 15 a bunch.' You can't buy them for fifteen now, and anyway I don't wan't people coming around singing 'We got no banans,' when I got a cellar full."

It was a lesson in popular music to the dealer, the fleeting evanescent froth that bubbles up and is soon blown away. Finally he appeared to understand that it really meant nothing, and instead of knock ing his business it helped.

"But this is my berry season," he complained. "I don't care so much about the banans now, but I got lots of berries on hand and ten crates comin' to-morrow. If they're going to sing damfool stuff like that and shout in the window whea I'm busy with customers they should sing about the berries. You got to get rid of them quick. Perhaps it might help business. I don't know. They used to sing about the apple tree when I was starting up, and there was a song about lemons. You don't remember. It was about pickin' a lemon in the garden of love. They didn't do any harm anyway; but this here silly business about no banans, when you got a cellar full, and Walter Oke hundreds of bunches, maybe, that's no good. The banans keep not like berries. If it was berries they talked about I'd tell the Chief they were hurtin' my business. Suppose they stop and shout, 'We got no gooseberries," and me with ten baskets, what would you think.

"Freg advertise! nothin'. Bum advertise, It's bad enough when I show in' a kind of cranky lady the best berries you got, and some dame comes along and bawls out the box she got wasn't full enough, without them tunny fellas and girls with the hair chopped tellin' my customers I got no banans, when I got ten bunches in the cellar, and lots right at the door, and Walter Oke maybe two hundred bunches just come in and he wantin' to get rid of them in a hurry. I like to see them go down to Cressman's or Hall's, and yell 'We got no corsets or shirts,' or let them stop at Joe Picard's and shout out 'We got no pants or coats!' Then there'e be belltapay. But everybody thinks it big joke to bawl out I got no banans and customers in the store, and ten bunches in the cellar, and lots more down at Walter Oke's."

A DRY AMERICA HAS INCREASED TRADE OUTPUT

Such is Contention of the United States and Great Britain Will Investigate.

EFFECT ON PEOPLE

LONDON, July 17. — (United Press). — The claim that America has increased her commercial output as a result of prohibition was proven of sufficient interest here to warrant investigation by Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to Washington, who is now in this country. In a memorandum published by the Government Monday, he gave a detailed report on conditions in America regarding not only the enforcement of prohibition but its effect on the American people.

"Prohibition on the whole is more effective in the rural districts and smaller towns," Geddes declared, "but it is less effective on the eastern seaboard and the great lakes, where powerful smuggler organizations carry on a regular traffic in imported intoxicants.

"Large quantities of home-made liquor are also brewed, but have proved poisonous in many cases, and the practice is reported to be decreasing."

SHIP COAL FROM ALBERTA SHORTLY

But Freight Rate of $6 or $6.50 a Ton is Impossible Figure,

EDMONTON, July 17.— (Canadian Press.)—A ton rate of $6.00 or $6.50 for shipment of Alberta coal to Ontario is impossible, it was announced last night, following a conference of Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railway officials, attended by Sir Henry Thornton, D. C. Coleman and other railawy officials.

An agreement had been made, Premier Greenfield said, whereby shipment would be made within the next few weeks of four thousand tons at a rate to be definitely decided upon later, and which he would soon be able to announce.

The rate would be such as would allow Alberta domestic coal to reach Ontario at a competitive price in car lots. This rate was merely experimental, the Premier said.

LITTLE ENTENTE FEARS FOR PARENT

Premier of Czecho Slovakia Attempts to Mediate Between Franceand Britain.

PARIS, July 17. United Press. — Premier Benes of Czecho Slovakia, is here attempting to play a role as mediator and bring France and England once more together on the subject of reparations.

His efforts indicate anxiety on the part of the "little entente" lest the parent entente be disap ed.

Benes confers with Poincare today, giving the French premier impressions gathered in London. Tomorrow the Czecho statesman will go to Brussels to confer with the Belgian government seeking always a formula for mediation. He is trying to convince the British government that France does not wish to destroy or dominate Germany.

CHANGE IN TIME

The funeral of the late Mrs. Denis Sullivan, 286 Smith street, will take place to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock, and not at 9 o'clock, as announced yesterday.

CANADA LOOKS LIKE A HUGE TOURIST CAMP

Summer Weather and Improved Roads Attract U. S. Autoists to Peterborough and Elsewhere

A RECORD YEAR

Summer, and improved roads, have turned this country into a huge tourist camp. Day after day, in increasing numbers, the tags of many far-distant states of the Union, and the far western provinces of Canada are seen on the autos of the streets of Peterborough. The records of the Empress Hotel show that the number of visitors this year will probably exceed the great number last year.

The fine roads which now stretch throughout most sections of the country have doubtless helped the development of motor traffic, and the advertising of the beauties of the lakeland district of Ontario has served to attract great numbers to this section.

One of the big features of the present influx of tourists is the great distances some of them have travelled.

From the license plates and pennants on their cars it may be seen that many have travelled thousands of miles from home, independent of other modes of travel.

"The Best Ever."

One man whose license number bore the legend "Ohio," interviewed to-day, described his tour as "the best ever." "My time is my own; I can stay at a hotel or I can camp by the roadside; I have no worry about being called in time to catch a train or discomfort in arriving at some out of the way place to find the hotel accommodation all taken. For a man who wants a real good holiday I certainly advise an automobile tour."

This man was on his way to the Kawartha Lakes, having read about the district in an automobile publication. He had a complete camping outfit and was making the journey by short stages.

A new light was cast on the problem of municipal motor camping sites by the statement that two of the parks devoted to touring motorists which this man had visited weer so full of cars and equipment that camping there was uncomfortable. "I would rather camp by the side of the road," the visitor declared.

MAY SELECT BAND CONCERT PROGRAM

Peterboro Rangers' Band Extend Privilege to the Public.

The public will have a chance to select their own programme for the band concert in Victoria Park on Friday evening, August 3rd. The Peterboro Rangers' Band are making it a request night in view of the fact that so many requests have recently been receiverd for special and extra numbers at the concerts. If you have a favorite number that you would like to have played by the band this is an opportunity to put on your own record, as it were. Naturally the band's response will depend upon the Rangers having the overture, march or song in their library and also in their regular repertory. Send in your requests to Lieut Peryer at the armouries or give it to any of the bandsmen.

PROMINENT SPORTSMEN FROM TORONTO AT LAKES

Rice Lake and Stoney Lake attracted some of the most prominent sportsmen in Toronto over the week-end. Among those who passed through the city on their way to the lake district were R. H. Greer, well-known sports patron; Dan Howley, manager of the Toronto International baseball team; Tommy Daly, trainer of the team; Eddie Onslow, captain, and Eddie Eayrs, outfielder, Tom Flannagan, former manager of Longboat, was a member of Greer's party.

These sports' notables went up in two parties to different destinations, the one probably not knowing of the intentions of the other. It is yet another advertisement for the lakeland district of Ontario.

ADDED DASH OF LEMON MEANT $10 AND COSTS

Two per cent. beer had not enough "kick" for one man last night, who added a dash of extract of lemon. As a result he was charged this morning with being drunk, and Magistrate O. A. Langley assessed him $10 and costs or one month in jail. He paid the fine.

HOUSEHOLDERS MAY SUFFER ANOTHER COAL SHORTAGE

Get Fuel Whenever You See an Opportunity is Advice of Local Dealer, But There's No Use Getting Excited About Prospects

That though there is danger of coal shortage there is no use in people getting excited about it, is the gist of the opinion handed down by a city coal dealer to-day. "Get coal if you see the chance," was his parting injunction.

The miners have had ten increases since the war commenced, this man said, and they have not, like other workmen, taken any decreases. They now demand further increases, and their demands may end in another strike. The local coal dealers cannot do anything about this matter, however. If they get the coal they will be glad to sell it out. That is as far as this dealer would commit himself.

Paving Completed On George Street

The last mixer of cement has been poured on the new George Street South cement roadway, and finishing touches are being given at street corners and curb stones to-day.

A view of the street from the C.P.R. Station gives a very different impression from that of a month ago. The west side of the street was open for traffic over the week-end, and the east side will be open in a few days.

FIRST APPLES REACH MARKET

"Yellow Harvest" Variety From U. S. Gardens Are Feature of Fruit Stores

Householders may not be particularly elated over the item of market news that the incoming crop of potatoes has declined in price from $6 to $5 a bag in about a week.

Many of these same ordinary citizens who have to provide for their "gas" bills will not be interested in another report on the market dope sheet that imported yellow harvest or transparent apples are being offered in the stores at $1 a peck, or twenty-five cents a measure of about one-quarter of a peck.

The market will have to do a lot better than that before most of these citizens will be able to crowd new potatoes and apples into their weekly budget that must take first account of tires, and oil and garage tolls.

"Can you imagine people passing up a good thing because there was too much of it?" asked a fruiterer. "Look at that head lettuce, bigger than a Queen Wilhelmina cabbage and crisper than the best that was ever grown in Boston. Well, may be not crisper, but just as good anyrate. If I could have got any like that last winter the people would have been glad to pay fifty cents a head for it. But now because it is only ten cents and because there's a peck of the best lettuce in every head they're not selling as fast as they should. Some of those people think they're wise, but I can't make them out at all."

Berries Piling Up.

The annual convention of berries is under way. The last of the strawberries are selling at from 18c to more than 20c a box. They're waving a farewell to the first arrivals of the red raspberries, with large contingents of black, blue or huckle and gooseberries also coming freely.

Blueberries are selling at 30c a quart, gooseberries at 20c a quart, raspberries 30c and under and strawberries two boxes for 35c.

Cherries at Height.

Cherries of many varieties and colors are moving through the stores with mid-season preserving-time regularity at from $1 to $1.25 a basket.

String beans are 18c and 20c a pound, green peas two quarts for a quarter, "cukes" 15c and 20c each, red currants 15c a box, and so on.

Some new Peterborough potatoes are reported vaguely here and there, but the retailers have been stalling at the opening price of one dollar a peck. Leamington growers have cut their quotation to $5 and something less, but the demand is only beginning to be felt. Tomatoes are 35c a pound, and Bartlett pears from California are five cents each. Plums, cantaloupes, pineapples, lemons and oranges are all figuring in the heavy sales of these days, and the public are back to their vegetable rations with carrots, beets, lettuce and tomatoes among the favorites.

HUSBAND OF GALLI-CURCI DEFENDANT IN A SUIT.

NEW YORK, July 17. — Homer Samuels, husband of Amelita Galli-Curci, the prima donna, was made defendant here in a $50,000 suit for slander by William Thorner, teacher of music. Thorner alleges that he developed Galli-Curci, among other prominent singers, and that Samuels disparaged him in the presence of a number of witnesses.

ANGRY CITIZENS MOB A PASTOR OF BELLEVILLE

Incensed Crowd Demands That Rev. Logan Be Tarred and Feathered, and Lynched.

BETRAYED GIRL

BELLEVILLE, July 17. — T. J. Logan, who has been pastor of the United Christian Workers' congregation, an individual religious mission body of this city, was taken from Belleville at night by the police to protect him from a mob of nearly one thousand people who had pursued him in motors and on foot from one point to another in the city. Logan advised the police that he would leave for Trenton, provided they could get him out of the city, and they took him to a point two miles west. Thereafter he managed by motor to elude his pursuers.

Logan came into notoriety some weeks ago as the result of a case heard in camera here under the Unmarried Parents Act, he being ordered to pay in the sum of $100 and to provide maintenance at the rate of $5 per week. The exposure which followed did not deter the evangelist, who is 28 years of age, from continuing his ministrations with the local congregation, and during the past week there had been rumors that trouble would ensue unless he withdrew from the city.

In his own congregation there was a difference of opinion as to whether he should carry on, but he declared that the public had not learned the whole truth, and that he had been misrepresented. He continued his work with the mission, and on Sunday night the irritation felt by many came to a head at the close of the meeting.

Crowd Dangerous.

Six hundred people assembled outside the meeting house, and the police, fearing he would be injured if left to look after himself, took him to his home in the police motor car. In the crowd in front of the mission was a man with a rope, and there were shouts of tarring and feathering.

In Octavia Street, where he boarded, a larger crowd assembled, and when the mob did some damage to the door the police decided to remove Logan to police headquarters and take him thence to the city limits and have him transferred to a motor in readiness to carry him to the neighboring town. The crowd followed to the Police Station, and after completion of arrangements there the police managed by speed to outwit the waiting crowd and the motorists ready to pursue. A number of people waited near the residence after midnight expecting his return from Trenton.

Rocks Hurled at Car.

No injury was done to Logan, but the police motor car was damaged by rocks and a scantling that was hurled at it. The crowd was very easily handled, and seemed mainly desirous of getting Logan out of the city. He came here as an evangelist, and after having preached at a mission on Dundas Street the congregation split and he and his party came over to Front Street.

Logan is an indefatigable worker and set about to have a new place of worship, the result being the erection of a fine building on Front Street, which has been practically paid for.

Logan ventured back to the city yesterday afternoon and took his belongings away after bidding some of his congregation farewell.

SMASHED WRIST AND CRACKED GLASS EYE

STRATFORD, July 17.— (Canadian Press)—A broken collar bone, a smashed wrist and cracked glass eye were the damages suffered by A. Russell of Toronto, in a 15-foot fall at the A. E. Lennox Coal Company plant yesterday.

Russell, employed by the J. B. Nicholson Company, Toronto, was installing some new equipment at the coal company plant, when he lost his balance and fell.

BOOKS GIVEN BY LIBRARY FOR VACATION

Public Library Will Allow Enough Books to Keep Holiday Makers Reading.

SPLENDID SERVICE

One of the problems confronting this time of year is the question of this ttime of year is the question of the very necessary reading material. It is not generally known that the Public Library will solve this problem by allowing vacationists to take several books for two or three weeks.

No trouble has been experienced so far in having the books returned.

The Library Board is spending more than ever before on new books this year, and large additions have been made lately. Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse, the Librarian, is enthusiastic about the quality of the latest arrivals in his fold, comprising as they do many of the latest works of fiction and several volumes of great value for reference.

Some complaints were made, the Librarian said, about the quality of the fiction on the library shelves. Some people object to fiction because of very trival defects, or because of minor lapses in the language used, while others enquire for the books which are stored inaccessible shelves because of their unsuitability. Before purchasing any book, consideration is given the opinions of the best critics. The difficulty in this work may be imagined from the fact that one man describes a book as being splendid, while another says it it is "bosh." One popular book by an eminent writer was lately described in altogether different terms by four critics.

All books received at the Library are subjected to examination by the Library Board before being put into circulation. In this way the best fiction is assured the public.

Circulation Good.

Circulation of books from the Library falls off in summer, but this year the number of books given out is well up to last year, and Mr. Dela Fosse thinks it will surpass previous years' records.

The grounds surrounding the Library, after four years work in improving them, look very pretty.

Children are well attended to in the children's section of the Library, where an attendant sees that the little ones are comfortably placed with the books they desire. This is one of the important features of the Library work.

Many Reference Books.

Besides the hundred of volumes covering every subject the mind of man can name, there are over 1400 pamphlets dealing with scores of subjects such as bee-keeping, education, labor, athletics, and all of the Government Reports issued.

Ready reckoners for all classes of buiness; the Daily Mail Year Book, containing facts about England and the world; and "How to Make Perfumery" are some of the diverse titles of books which are loaned free to citizens.

Mr. DelaFosse desires that those who are going on holiday make use of the facilities offered by the Library, and if there is any particular information required, the Librarian will be glad to give it.

I.O.O.F. TROPHIES ARE ON EXHIBITION IN CITY

Several trophies of splendid appearance to be competed for at the grand encampment, I. O. O. F., are on exhibition in Grafton's window. The encampment will bring to Peterborough about six military cantons, consisting of highly trained men. These will give public displays while in the city, and the awards will be made on the record of these displays.

The trophies are: The Robert A. Allis memorial; the Col. E. W. Barton; the Gen. G. M. Hermiston; the Hon. D. Derbyshire trophies, all for competitive canton drill, and the Major H. W. Taylor trophy for alignment marching.

Officers of the organization in the city promise that the drills for which these trophies are to be given will be well worth seeing.

WAR CLAIMS OF COMPANY WERE NOT DISPUTED

International Harvester Company Obtains Judgment Against Germany For Over Three Million Dollars.

WITH INTEREST.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(Canadian Press.)— The Mixed Claims Commission, created to settle United States' war claims against Germany, yesterday made its first decision, an award of $3,316,765.92 to the International Harvester Company for property seized in Germany.

Yesterday's decision was expedited by an agreement between the representatives of the German and United States Governments and was virtually a consent decree. The award, made in restitution of cash assets of subsidiaries of the International Harvester Company seized by the German Government in German banks, bears interest of five per cent., according to the terms of the Treaty of Berlin from December 12, 1921. No brief contesting the International Harvester claim was filed by the German Government, the facts being undisputed and Germany's liability unquestioned.

The commission is without jurisdiction in the collection of damages, having authority only to determine Germany's liabilities.

ANOTHER WIN FOR U.S. FARMER-LABOR

Secure Minnesota Representation in Senate as Result of Election.

St. Paul, Min., July 17.—(Canadian Press).— Minnesota Representation in United States Senate has been turned over to the Farmer-Labor Party, as the result of another political transition, the state went through a special senatorial election yesterday.

In 1800 of States, 3520 precincts, Johnson had a lead of more than 27,000 over Governor J. A. O. Preus, republican, with James A. Carley, democrat, trailing poor third.

Though jubilant over his victory, "real dirt" senator was more concerned today about "getting his haying done" than things political, and he sought to postpone statements-incident to his election.

Well, boys," he said, "I put it over I beat Jake Preus as I said I would. Now I can go home and help my sons get the haying done. After that I can do some organizing before I Go to Washington."

BOCHUM COMPLETELY ISOLATED IN RUHR

DUESSELDORF, July 17.—(Canadian Press).—The bomb which exploded Sunday in the huge automobile parking station at Weitmar, a suburb of Bochum, which resulted in the French authorities ordering punitive measures imposed upon Bochum, was thrown from a passing street car, according to the French authorities here. Several citizens, including the head Burgomaster, were arrested, but all were released shortly afterward.

Bochum to-day is almost completely isolated from the rest of the Ruhr.

Headaches

Are Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

The young lad, with a chum, was rowing in a skiff when the boat upset. The other lad swam ashore. This is the third lad to lose his life in the Thames this season.

GERMAN PAPER MONEY KEEPS PRINTERS BUSY

Presses Working Night and Day Turning Out Money in Almost Unbelievable Quantities — Trillions of Marks Worth Printed.

BERLIN, July 17. — (Canadian Press.)—Forty-one German printing plants, working day and night, disgorged 17,563,819,142 marks worth of fresh paper money every hour during the first week in July, according to figures available yesterday. The total currency circulation on July 7, was 20,241,782,966,000 marks, an increase of 2,950,721,616,000 over June 30. The aluminium coinage in circulation increased in the same period from 1,000,000,000 marks to 20,200,000,000.

The printers are working from three shifts covering the entire twenty-four hours every day in the week. It is unofficially stated that no note under the face value of 1,000 marks will be printed in the future, as it costs more than the note itself actually is worth to print any of the smaller denominations. The production of a 100-mark note costs many times its face value, and a 500-mark note is worth no more than the paper used.

All these notes now are being printed from type in order to increase the output of the presses. The Federal Printing Plant alone is able thus to issue 14,400,000 different notes daily, while only one tenth of this quantity would be possible if copper plates were used. Furthermore it takes six months to prepare one copper plate. Even the new million mark notes which are to be issued shortly will be printed from type.

According to Montag Morgen, a new Berlin weekly, a publishing house, which is one of the plants of Hugo Stinnes, has a monopoly on the printing of currency under the contorl of the Reichsbank. This firm sub-lets contracts to some thirty other printers.

Aside from the unusual increases in paper and aluminum money circulation, there is an increase of 3,308,029,156,000 in discounted Treasury bills, which on July 7, totalled nearly twenty-two trillion marks. The Reichsbank gold deposits abroad showed a decrease of ten million marks. These deposits now total 136,032,000 marks.

MIXING GRAINS IS INJURIOUS TO CANADIANS

Mixing Poor Grade Wheat With Canadian Grain is Threatening Canada's Foreign Market.

COMMON PRACTICE.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., July 17 —Licenses allowing private terminal elevators to mix low with high grade wheat should be abolished according to Andrew Knox, M.P., for Prince Albert, giving evidence before the Royal Grain Enquiry Commission here yesterday. Mr. Knox said that the present system was growing injurious to Canadian grain growers.

In the foreign markets the reputation of Canadian wheat was being threatened by mixing poor grades with the three higher grades, witness declared. He advocated government supervision of grain treated in hospitals.

Discussing mixing in private elevators, Mr. Knox stated that some of the companies by mixing lower grades with high grade wheat, had gained hundreds of thousands of bushels of high grade wheat.

The National Elevator Company, he said, had gained more than one million bushels in one year alone. This mixing was losing the reputation of Canadian grain overseas.

Other companies mentioned were the United Grain Growers, the Soskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company, Patterson Grain Elevator Compnay, Thunder Bay Elevator Company.

Mr. Knox advocated grading at interior terminal elevators.

Manitoba Will Finance Government Liquor Sale.

WINNIPEG, July 17.—(Canadian Press).—A financial measure providing the capital to operate government liquor despensaries in Manitoba will have to be presented at the special session of the Previncial Legislature on July 26. It is not known yet, however, how much the bill will authorize but the amount will be large.

British Columbia invested $2,000,000 in liquor stock and equipment for the handling of it when government control became effecttive in that Province.

MRS. SMALL HAS MADE OFFER TO ADVANCE CASH

25 SHOWS BOOKED.

MONTREAL, July 17. — (Canadian Press).—Despite the fact that the estate of Ambrose J. Small is the holder of all the second preferred stock, amounting to $675,000 in the Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited Mrs. Small offered to advance more money to enable the firm to carry on operations it was announced at the meeting of the share-holders in Montreal yesterday afternoon before it was decided to voluntarily wind-up the company and appoint Robert E. Meagher, provisional liquidator. It was understood however that, in consideration of this offer, a sum of $40.000 would be spent on renovating the Grand Opera House, in Toronto

One or two of the twelve shareholders present, the largest number were represented by proxy, urged the acceptance of the offer as they were certain the bottom of the theatre slump in Canada had been reached, but arguments to the contrary were to the effect that it would be better to go into liquidation and run the various theatres at a minimum of expense until the fall.

George Driscoll, vice-president declared the company had 25 first class shows booked for next season, including the company of Sir John Martin Harvey, Bransby Williams, two or three passing shows and "Sally" a recognized New York production. "And," he added, "I feel confident that, with good shows assuerd, receipts will rise in proportion as it has only been a case of not being able to obtain the first class shows that has brought about the present condition of affairs."

A few minutes later he interpolated a statement that the Walker Theatre—on which the Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, had a lease and option to purchase which expired last October—was responsible for a total loss of $100,000 while the company had lost in the neighbourhood of $40,000 in Montreal since 1919.

A querry about the other houses in the east—at London, Kingston and Hamilton—revealed the fact that in the last year Kingston showed a profit of $5,500 aand they now had an offer to lease this for $3,600 a year, plus axes.

W. H. Beauclerk, in reading the statement of affairs said there were total libilities, on all counts, of $189 000 and of this, it was necessary to raise approximately $25,000 at once to meet urgent calls for such debts as taxes.

The show business he said, had slumped badly and it seemed the public would not patronize good drama as was instanced by the fact, in booking fees alone for the last three years, there had been a drop from $72,000 to $25,000 while the last year, the figure had dropped to $15,700.

THE PREMIER'S SALARY.

The criticism that is being hurled at ex-Premier Drury in some quarters because he has decided to accept his full salary of $12,000 for the last year of office, instead of the $9,000 with which he was satisfied for the first three years, is unkind.

Mr. Drury voluntarily returned $3,000 a year for three years to the provincial treasury, saving the people of Ontario $9,000 in that time.

He was entitled to that $9,000 and he refused to accept it because he felt that $9,000 a year was sufficient for the Prime Minister.

If there was a mistake made it was in not taking his full salary for the time he was in office. And there should be no criticism now that Mr. Drury has realized that there are many calls upon the Prime Minister and that the full allowance provided is none too large in view of these demands.

Friends of the new Premier indeed should be inclined to applaud the U.F.O. leader's change of opinion, inasmuch as it affords Mr. Ferguson an opportunity to accept the full remuneration provided for him without being subject to somewhat awkward comparisons between himself and the head of the late Government.

The Examiner's own opinion is that any man who is to preside over the executive which handles the affairs of this province, who is not worth $12,000 a year or more, is not the man for the position.

This is a big province and being its premier is a big business proposition.

We can afford to pay handsomely to have the office well filled.

COMMUNITY SINGING.

In his address to the Peterborough Rotary Club yesterday, Mr. John Crane, who was a delegate at the recent international convention, referred to a feature that had impressed him at St. Louis, i.e., the popularity of community singing.

Mr. Crane suggested that there should be more of that kind of thing in Peterborough and the Examiner agrees with him.

There is nothing that more quickly inspires a feeling of brotherhood and comradeship, or that drives care and worry away more rapidly than the singing of the old favorite airs—or the new popular ones for that matter—by a crowd of people.

The psychology of community singing has been used to advantage in business enterprises.

In a stock selling scheme, to which many citizens fell victims not long ago, this method was employed by the promoters to put enthusiasm and "ginger" in their salesmen.

And the results are said to have justified the experiment.

There is no reason why we should not indulge in community singing in Peterborough.

In Montreal the Kiwanis Club has been very successful in introducing the feature among the people of that city.

Perhaps one of our local luncheon clubs will give a similar impetus to the thing here.

The band concerts in Victoria Park offer an opportunity to have well known songs sung by the audience between the numbers by the band.

Why not try it out this summer?

THE WHEAT PRICE TRAGEDY

The fact that the price of wheat has dropped below the dollar mark and has reached the lowest level attained since before the war makes sorry reading not only for the farmers of Canada, but for every resident of this country.

The Canadian west is looking forward to the biggest crop in its history, the growing days are almost over and harvesting time is just around the corner.

It should be a season of rejoicing.

And it would be, were the problem of marketing such a crop solved and were the farmers assured of a price that would enable them to make money.

The farmers of the west particularly have passed through several lean years.

With crop conditions right it had been felt that 1923 would see a turn in the trade.

Now the bottom has fallen out of the market, the crop is there but it cannot be sold at a price that means prosperity for the producer.

The whole country will suffer as a result.

The manufacturer in the east, the merchant everywhere, the man who works for the manufacturer or the merchant, everybody who makes anything for sale or handles anything that is made to be sold and everybody who is employed by them, will all feel the effect of dollar wheat.

For it is an axiom that the farmer who has no money will not buy and if the agricultural community is not spending the whole fabric of business and industry is affected.

And the consumer does not gain by the drop in price of wheat—at least he gains so slowly and by such small stages that he feels no benefit to compensate him for what he looses in other ways.

SOME FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

What lesson is there for Ontario to gain from the result of the two referendums recently taken in Manitoba on the respective questions of the Government control of the sale of liquor and the sale of wines and beer by licensed hotels?

The people in Manitoba are pretty much like ourselves in this province; in fact a large proportion of them originally came from Ontario.

Their views are not likely to be widely different from our own on questions of this kind.

If they mean anything at all they mean these two things.

(1) That Manitoba is strongly against the restoration of the bar room and the license system and

(2) That Manitoba is almost as strongly opposed to total prohibition, after seeing its operation for some years.

Government statistics for 1922 fail to show that the provinces which have total prohibition have a better record in regard to convictions for drunkenness than have Quebec, British Columbia and New Brunswick, where there is Government sale of liquors, in fact British Columbia shows the largest decrease and was also the only province to show a decrease in convictions for illicit stills.

Convictions for drunkness are shown as follows:

	1921	1922	Decrease %
British Columbia	2,379	1.081	54.6
Nova Scotia	2,156	1,492	30.8
Ontario	14,498	10,063	30.6
Quebec	9.944	7,103	28.4
New Brunswick			13.8
Alberta			12.5
Manitoba			Increase
Saskatchewan			Increase
P. E. I.			Increase
Yukon			Increase
All Canada	34,362	25,048	26.8

These figures taken in conjunction with the vote in Manitoba should cause the people of Ontario to do some serious thinking.

Are we or are the provinces which have Government control on the safest, sanest road in regard to this great problem?

THE DOMINION FUEL BOARD.

The Interim Report of the Dominion Fuel Board has recently been made available for distribution. The primary purpose of the Dominion Fuel Board is to institute a "thorough study of the underlying causes of recurring coal shortages and of the methods by which they may be counteracted."

The Interim Report, which comprises twenty-five pages of text, contains for the most part a brief, general review of Canada's past and present position regarding fuel supplies, and a statement of the plans initiated by the Dominion Fuel Board to endeavor to ascertain some source of permanent relief.

Of the several investigations which the Board proposes to undertake, two in particular should commend themselves to public opinion—that of coking bituminous coal for domestic heating, and that of central heating plants. The Board proposes to make an exhaustive enquiry into each of these problems, and it is to be hoped that the investigations bear fruit.

In Central Canada, the acute fuel area, we have been dependent on the United States for our coal for a considerable time and the occasion has now arisen when we must be dependent upon some other source for our fuel, due partly to the fact that the United States through a desire to conserve their coal resources have attempted to place an embargo on the export of anthracite to Canada.

The situation is not so alarming as it might be. The fact is that the people of Ontario and Quebec have become so accustomed to using anthracite that they imagine that they cannot use anything else. We have been reluctant about using bituminous coal, coke, and other anthracite substitutes for domestic heating, but the time has now come that we must use them, and the problem to solve is that of how to use these anthracite substitutes to the best advantage.

The case of Manitoba, regarding United States anthracite, is given in the report of the Dominion Fuel Board as follows:

"No more convincing instance of the delusion of the public by such a prejudice is afforded than in the circumstances surrounding the entry of Alberta coal into the Manitoba market. Prior to the war the needs of the Province for domestic heating were supplied almost entirely by United States anthracite. After that country entered the war, the demand at home became so great that the Fuel Administration in 1918 had to cut the supplies of Manitoba in half.

"At a public meeting in Winnipeg, when Mr. C. A. Magrath, the Canadian Fuel Controller, made this announcement, all kinds of protests and objections were made. It was stated that Canadian coal was not suited to the needs of the people of Manitoba and that untold hardship and suffering would result. But they did not. Under compulsion the people of Manitoba found that Alberta coal was well suited to their needs and have continued its use long after fuel control ceased. Today Alberta domestic coals have practically driven United States anthracite from the market in Manitoba. Last winter approximately 75 per cent. of the coal used for domestic purposes was mined in Canada. Had the war not compelled coal consumers in Manitoba to use Canadian coal they would probably still be under the delusion that only United States anthracite could be used, to heat their homes."

One of the big problems is to educate the people away from anthracite, and to meet this end an extensive publicity campaign should be undertaken by the Dominion Fuel Board.

It is certain that under the able Chairmanship of Dr. Charles Camsell, Deputy Minister, Department of Mines, the investigations of the Dominion Fuel Board will materialize in arriving at a solution as to the best substitutes for anthracite that can be utilized, in Central Canada.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The new Cabinet was sworn in yesterday and is likely to be sworn at more than once in the days ahead.

Mr. Ferguson will now have a chance to officially count the hides he has nailed to the fence.

Up at Bobcaygeon they have a fishing club, the members of which use a cotton thread as a fishing line. Down this way a wire clothes line is almost a necessity owing to the size of the fish that are being caught.

Every day in every way the tourists are becoming more numerous. Advertising pays even in boosting scenery and fishing opportunities.

Another coal strike coming. And still nothing done to make it possible for Ontario to be fueled by Alberta coal.

Even if it did rain on St. Swithin's day there probably will be occasions in the next forty days when it will be safe to venture forth without an umbrella.

The suggestion made by the Examiner early in the season that motor car traffic on the court house hill should be prohibited during band concert hours has not been acted upon. It should be before there is a serious accident or before some infuriated music lover runs mad and ends the career of the owner of a particularly noisy car.

CHICAGO, July 17.— (Canadian Press.) — Every future delivery of wheat sold yesterday at less than $1.00 a bushel, the first occasion since 1914 that the December delivery has done so at this time of the year. Increasing arrivales of newly harvester wheat were largely responsible for the fresh setback in values. ONTARIO MAY BURN COAL FROM ALBERTA

If Railways Can Agree on a Freight Rate Not to Exceed $6.50 a Ton, Coal Can Be Sold in Toronto at $13.50 and Will Compete With U.S. Anthracite

EDMONTON, July 17. Canadian Press. — If the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railways can set a freight rate on Alberta coal to Toronto which shall not exceed $6.50 per ton at the mine, then Alberta coal can compete with United States anthracite in the Ontario market.

This appears to be the crux of the question as reached yesterday morning at a conference held here attended by Sir Henry Thornton, the President of the Canadian National Railways; D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway's western lines; J. R. Dalrymple, W. G. Manders, A. E. Warren, J. Stephens and other prominent railway heads, called together by Premier Herbert Greenfield, and presided over by Premier Herbert Greenfield, and presided over by C. A Magrath, chairman of the Federal Advisory Fuel Committee, and ofcial representative of Ontario at the conference

Jesse Gouge, speaking for the Alberta operators, said that furnace run coal could be sold at the mines at $450 per ton on car leaving a balance of $6 to $6.50 per ton for transportation as against the present $9 rate, if Alberta coal was to reach Ontario at a price between $10.50 and $11.

To this would have to be added $2.50 per ton for dealer's profits, sacking and handling, making the retail price $13 to $13.50 against a present retail price for anthracite of $15.50.

Following an all-round discussion participated in freely by railwaymen operators and Dominion and Provincial officials, it was agreed that a conference between the executives of the two railroads was necessary before the meeting could get any farther.

Sir Henry Thornton moved that the railway men get together and that the conference re-assemble in the afternoon when the views of both railways on the question of transportation costs would be laid before the conference.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT SPECIALLY HEEDFUL OF AGRICULTURAL NEEDS

Resume of Events and Legislative Enactments By Recent Session During the Past Year--Farm and Dairy Legislation.

PURE-BRED STOCK.

OTTAWA, July 17.—An effort has been made, by not altogether disinterested parties, to belittle the net results of the recent session of Parliament.

Speaking more particularly with respect to agriculture, I may say that I cannot recall any Session of Parliament since Confederation that passed more beneficial legislation on behalf of agriculture than the one recently prorogued. True, five months was a long time to spend in performing the work but that is one of the prices we must pay for groups in Parliament, all of whom have to have their say.

A number of Acts have been passed such as "An act to amend and consolidate the Acts respecting Live Stock" and "An Act to regulate the sale and inspection of Fruit and Fruit Containers," which can be merely referred to here as containing very important and up-to-date legislation in their respective fields. The same may be said of the amendments to Feeding Stuffs Act and the Dairy Industry Act, the latter of which provides for the prohibition of the manufacture and importation of filled butter, filled milk and filled cream—three pernicious practices that were quietly but persistently establishing a foot-hold in Canada to the great detriment of the dairy industry.

In addition to this important legislation affecting one of our chief corner stones of Canadian agriculture—dairying—was the fight to a finish during the last Session on the question of whether the prohibition of the manufacture and importation of Oleo, would be again reverted to, as it existed for thirty years prior to 1917. By a non-party vote of fifty-four to one hundred and twenty-five Oleo, for the time being, received a solar plexus blow that will take some recovering from. Nothing daunted, however, the packers' professional lobbyist was an anxious inquirer around the corridors the week following the vote, doubtless with a view to renewing the battle at some later date.

The report of Dairy Commissioner Mr. J. A. Ruddick and Mr. W. A. Wilson on their return from New Zealand and Australia, coupled with all the before-mentioned beneficial legislation on behalf of the dairy industry, makes the last Session of Parliament an outstanding one, so far as the dairy industry of Canada is concerned.

Although the removal of the British Embargo on Canadian cattle did not require legislative action on the part of the Canadian Parliament, it did on the part of the Imperial Government, which was the outcome of a conference between the Imperial and Canadian Authorities— hence, properly referred to in this article as one of the advanced steps taken on behalf of agriculture during the past year.

The removal of the British Embargo against Canadian cattle has had a greater direct result in improving the farmers' market than any other single move that has been accomplished during the past few years.

Canada was in the unfortunate position of being largely shut out of the only two available markets for her live cattle—the American tariff and the British Embargo accomplishing this end.

An agitation has been carried on both in Great Britain and Canada for a number of years for the removal of the Embargo, and a great many people on both sides of the water have given valuable assistance in this effort, and not a few of them claim that the removal of the Embargo is entirely due to their efforts. But to say that a great many people helped in bringing this about, is much nearer the truth of the matter.

For the last two or three years, while it was generally expected that the Embargo would be ultimately removed, it was of vital interest to the business of raising cattle in Canada, that it should be removed quickly, and the delay was not only disappointing, but it was ruinous to the cattle business. The present Canadian Government not only acted promptly, and when the Ministers of the Government and the official of the Department of Agriculture entered into a conference with the members of the British Government and officials of the British Ministry of Agriculture, they had a very difficult task on their hands. They accomplished something, however, of real importance for the Canadian farmer when they came to a satisfactory settlement of the case, which as a matter of fact, was only concluded the morning after the Lloyd George Government had resigned.

A new Government took office in Britain, and then for a time it looked like another year's delay. A special Session of the new Parliament was called in November to pass the Irish Bill. The Canadian Government pressed to have the legislation removing the Embargo enacted at this special Session, but the new Government urged that it had just taken office, that this Session was for a special purpose, and that the Embargo legislation should remain in abeyance until the regular Session after the first of the year. It was only after repeated and persistent urging on the part of the Canadian Government that this question which had been of such long standing was finally solved by the British Government passing an Act removing the Embargo, which came into effect April 1st of this year.

There is not a live stock man in Canada but recognizes clearly the tremendous advantage it would have been to have had this market last fall, and what a calamity it would have been were it not available this year.

Mention might also be made of the granting of a certain bounty on twine and cordage made from hemp, for the purpose of establishing a hemp industry in Western Canada—a movement well worthy of a moment's consideration.

Canada last year became famous by having arrived at the stage of being the largest exporter of wheat in the world. In the face of this it does seem a mistake to longer continue to depend upon foreign countries for the twin with which to tie nine-tenths of this crop. Hemp is a product that can be grown successfully, almost luxuriantly, in many parts of the West and East, with or without irrigation. It grows freely in this country, and should supply unlimited quantities of raw material for the successful establishment of a hemp industry, the future production of which for both home consumption and export no man can estimate. As important as this should be to every Western man, strange to say, only three Western Members supported it.

Following the reduction of freight rates by the restoration of the Crow's Nest Pass Agreement, important legislation has been passed designed to control and regulate lake rates, which soared to such alarming proportions last Fall.

The personnel and work of the newly-appointed Royal Grain Enquiry Commission, presided over by Mr. Justice Turgeon, is another indication of the desire of the present Government to serve agriculture faithfully and well.

The increase in the Estimates of over half a million dollars for the Eradication of Bovine Tuberculosis, twenty-five thousand for further experiments in the exportation of chilled beef and ten thousand for experimentation with the dehydrating of fruit, all speak for themselves and indicate a further desire to grapple with first things first in the solution of Canada's many agricultural problems.

Live stock men generally will greatly appreciate the valuable importation of the various purebred breeding animals imported and selected personally by Mr. Archibald Director of Experimental Farms. These animals are intended for distribution among the various Experimental Farms, from which farmers may replenish their breeding stock to advantage as desired.

A question of more than usual significance to Western agriculture was the three-year Canadian National Railway Construction programme, passed by the House of Commons and approved of by the country generally, more particularly by the West. Imagine with what consternation it was learned that the irresponsible Senate stepped in and thwarted the will of the people by giving this railway programme the six months' hoist. As if to add insult to injury, some Western Senators have the audacity to say (as per Senate Debates) that the Government so enacted this legislation that it would court disaster that befell it. How false this statement is, nobody knows better than the ones who make it.

Mr. Bruce Dawson a Cavan boy, who last year taught school at Indian River, was presented with an address and a handsome travelling set, by the U.F.Y.P.O. Club of that district, before he came home for vacation. The address was read at a meeting of the Club, and was as follows:

"Dear Mr. Dawson, "We, the members of the Indian River Young People's Club, fearing that you might not be with us next year, desire to have you know that we ever appreciate your untiring efforts as our secretary. Having you with us, we always felt we had some one who could and would help us in anything we undertook, which our limited education made almost an impossibility. In the quarterly debates you were a valuable debater and judge, and we trust you received some benfit from our meetings to repay you for your work and assistance. Again, in outdoor sports you have been a great help. In fact we looked to you as leader, and we were not disappointed.

"We ask you to accept this little gift as a reminder of our happy times together, and hope that you may decide to return and reside among us once more.

UTMOST SECRECY ON BRITISH REPLY

World Powers Await the Announcement of Britain's Answer to Latest German Note.

LONDON, July 17.— (Canadain Press). — Premier Baldwin in the House of Commons yesterday, cleared up two interesting points, namely that the British note to Germany will be communicated to Washington and that no recent communications over reparations had been exchanged between Great Britain and the United States.

The diplomatic talks were resumed in London yesterday, Lord Curzon, secretary for Foreign Affairs, seeing both the Italian and French Ambassadors. The Prime Minister has a plentitude of advisers in his delicate task of drafting a reply to Germany, the Ambassador to France, Germany, the United States, and Japan being in London at the present moment.

The press terms with suggestions to what the draft note will contain, but the Government maintains the utmost secrecy on this point and it is exceedingly possible that such secrecy will be continued until the Allied Powers have had the opportunity of perusing the draft.

The close association of Reginald McKenna with Mr. Baldwin in preparing the draft— the two spent the week-end together at Chequers Court—seems to indicate that a plan aiming at a joint settlement of reparations and inter-allied debts may have an important place in the discussions. The insistence in Paris despatches yesterday on the fact that Premier Poincare's speech was perpared before the British Prime Minister's pronouncement was delivered, is regarded here as significant, as proving the desire of the French not to embarrass London needlessly in the discussions.

State of Siege Was Proclaimed at Bochum.

BOCHUM, July 17. — (Canadian Press).—A state of siege was again proclaimed here yesterday in consequence of a severe explosion Sunday in the huge depot at Witmar, near here, where thousands of confiscated automobiles are parked.

The cause of the explosion is not known, but in German quarters the opinion is expressed that it probably was due to spontaneous combustion, owing to the excessive heat.

Bochum has been completely cut off from the surrounding country and severe punitive measures have been instituted.

NEWS FROM CAVAN AND THE DISTRICT.

Bruce Dawson Gets Presentation and Address—Hay Crop Best in Years.

CAVAN, July 17—Many from this district motored and others went by train to Cobourg and joined in the celebration of the twelfth there. One pleasing feature of the day was the absence of rain, but now that the big annual orange celebration is over most people would like to see a showe, for crops are badly in need of rain.

TENACIOUS TURK IS READY TO SIGN

An Agreement Has Again Been Reached at Lausanne — Conference Was Close to Failure.

LAUSANNE, July 17.—(Canadian Press). — An agreement was reached late last night on all the outstanding difficulties in the Near East Conference, and nothing remains in the way of signature of peace.

Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation and the Allied delegates discussed for several hours, the questions of concessions and evacuation by foreign troops of Turkish soil, and when at 11 o'clock the sessions were resumed, the atmosphere was electrical, recalling the night of February 4, when Lord Curzon, in accordance with his ultimatum left for London and the first peace conference collapsed.

The delegates representing the Great Powers prepared bravely to encounter the Turks when they met the second time.

One of them summarized the situation in his remark: "Little by little, by terrible tenacity, these Turks get more out of us, and now they have re-opened things we dreamed were already settled. We will try to end it tonight, but who can tell?"

TYPHOID'S LOW DEATH RATE

NEW YORK, July 17.—(Associated Press)—Control of typhoid fever has made such progress that in 1922 the death rate for this disease was the lowest ever recorded, according to figures compiled by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Based on statistics from one-seventh of the total population of the United States and Canada, the death rate in the year mentioned was 5.6 per 100,000 of population. In 1911 the rate was 22.8 per 100,000.

These figures are particularly cheering to the American Child Health Association, which is engaged in fighting typhoid as well as other diseases which affect children and mothers.

"Who was that talking toy ou awhile ago?"

"That was Archie Johnson, my family physician."

"What did he say?"

"He said, 'No.'"

EXPERT HEARD ON WRITING AT DELORME TRIAL

Evidence of G. A. Field, Handwriting Expert, Occupied Most of Yesterday's Session.

CLOSELY QUESTIONED

MONTREAL, July 17.—(Canadian Press).—At the opening of yesterday afternoon's session of the trial of Rev. Father Delorme on a charge of having murdered his half-brother Raoul the evidence of the handwriting expert for the defence, George Albert Field was continued from the morning session. Before he was brought in however, Coroner McMahon testified as to the dates of the inquest on the body of Raoul. It opened on January 9, 1922. but he could not say to what dates it was postponed, on that information was contained in parts of the record that was missing. The register would however indicate these dates. In conversation with the abbe, the latter had stated that he was very willing to let his house be examined by the detectives.

Handwriting expert Field then reentered the witness stand. He went into technical details regarding the formation of numbers and letters and gave his testimony at considerable length. He laid special stress on capital letters, particularizing the "F" "Q," "D," and "M." He gave it as his view that the simulated handwriting on the parcel containing the watch of the victim which had been addressed to Chief Lorrain was by an uneducated person. By uneducated he did not mean that this forger had not education at all but possibly just an ordinary school education.

He asked if it was not witness' theory and opinion that the writer of the parcel intended to imitate the "appeal to the public, published." published in La Patrie and admittedly written by the abbe. Witness assented "in certain respects."

Mr. Calder asked why the hypothetical forger who witness alleged had simulated the abbe's writing on the parcel should make a "D" quite different from the peculiar "D" in the admitted handwriting of the abbe.

Witness: "The forger is not going to imitate every letter of the abbes. It would be ridiculous for him to do so."

Mr. Calder asked if the forger was going after the pictorial effect of the small characteristics of the abbe's writing. Witness replied that the forger generally went after form.

Mr. Calder: "And having this characteristic capital "D" formed by the abbe, he went out of his way to make one totally different?"

Witness: "Very probably. Because if I were the forger, that is what I would have done."

Mr. Calder: 'But this forger was not a handwriting expert. He had not the knowledge of psychology that you have, Mr. Field?"

Witness: "I did nit say he was totally uneducated."

Mr. Calder: "Your statement is that this comparatively uneducated men reasoned as follows: I want to simulate the abbe's handwriting. Consekquently, I will make my cmf Consequently, I will make my capital "D" as unlike his as possible—that is your statement?"

Witness: "Not at all. He would just suggest enough to connect the abbe with it in some way, but not make it too pronounced."

Mr. Calder then pressed the witness continuously to admit that uneducated forgers generally imitate capital letters and referred the witness to all the books on the subject written by handwriting experts.

Witness asked for the passages referred to and Mr. Calder referred him to "Questioned Documents" by "Osborne," which witness admitted was a "book we read."

Pressing the point, Mr. Calder asked: "Is it your statement, Mr. Field. that it is not the general consenses of opinion by all recognized authors such as Osborne, Mitchell, Ainsworth, that the forger especially attached himself to imitating capital letters?"

Witness: "I have never read that—it may be."

Under further pressure on the point, witness said he could not remember reading such a statement in any of the authorities.

Mr. Calder then discussed the characteristics of the capital "L" and the capital "A". Particularly the case of the letter "M" was discussed in which the witness said the forger had spelled Montreal with a small "M" because he had no instance of a capital "M" to go on. Finally the witness enumerated nine principle indications of forgery among them being a very heavy down stroke which, he said, was an indication of forgery.

Mr. Calder: "I am afraid I am guilty of forging many cheques for I also have that weakness."

Discussion then progressed on to the formation of small letters in the alleged simulated handwriting and Mr. Calder summed up by asking: "Is it not a fact that if the abbe had been trying to disguise his handwriting all these things that you tell me were a forgery would be also attributable to him."

Witness: "I find that with the nine indications there are also explained differences that are fundamental."

Mr. Calder then asked questions as to witness' career. He was informed that Mr. Field was a graduate of Cambridge University and that he had been called to the English bar but had given up practice after being engaged in four murder trials. He had abandoned the bar practice because he was seven dollars out of pocket when he had finished the four murder trials. He had come to Montreal on a visit and had elected to stay here. He had been an insurance agent, a seller of bonds and finally a handwriting expert having been engaged in a number of cases in this province. He had studied graphology which M. Calder characterized as an "exploded science of handwriting." Witness would not assent to that.

The court adjourned until to-day.

THE BOOTLEGGER'S PREY.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 17.—(Associated Press)—The gas company is the latest victim of the bootlegger's art, according to officers of the sheriff's office here, who assert they have uncovered moonshine-making meter tappers.

The officers state the manufacturer of illicit liquor has no desire to avoid an "honest" gas bill, but he fears an excessive use of gas will lead to suspicion and investigation. Consequently the last word in 1923 model bootleggery calls for a device that forms an emergency pipe around the meter, giving the operator unlimted gas for his operations, without a foot of gas being registered

BUILD MILITARY RAILROAD ACROSS SAHARA DESERT

France Has Gigantic Plan to Bring Her Dusky Army Recruits in at the Back Door.

By JOHN O'BRIEN

PARIS, July 17.—(United Press).—Construction of a great military railroad across the Sahara, something like the Arizona Desert, only about ten times as wide is now being studied by experts of the French war office and a project calling for the expenditure of several hundred million dollars will shortly be laid before the Chamber of Deputies.

The importance of the railroad, apart from its commercial advantages, lies in the fact that south of the Sahara is the French Congo, inhaibed by many millions of dusky sons of the jungle, from which the colonial contingent of the French army is for the most part recruited. At present it takes about two months to bring annual recruits to France for training. With the projected line the time would be reduced to about a week.

After a long discussion the consensus of military opinion seems to have decided in favor of a line running straight down from Colomb echar, in Algeria, to the bend of the River Niger, east of Timbuctoo. This decision was arrived at in order to avoid the disadvantage of railroad running close to Spanish territory on the west coast of Africa, or on bordering Italian territory in Tripoli. France wants a railroad all to herself, running entirely through French owned or controlled territory.

Airplanes and Caterpillars

Surveys made by Gen. Estienne and more recently by engineers who accompanied the "caterpillar" automobile expedition across the desert will be utilized. Gen. Estienne is about to undertake another expedition in the district of Kanadsa, in the Hoggar region, where coal mines have just been discovered, to see whether it would be worth while to have the line pass through that part of the Sahara. He will utilize airplanes as well as "catepillar" cars in his investigations.

A direct line across the Sahara would be about two thousand miles long. In case certain regions which give fair promise of commercial advantages are taken in the road would be five hundred miles or so longer.

The River Niger would be crossed at Tosaye 150 miles east of Timbuctoo, and the southern terminus of the road is to be at Wagadugu, the centre of a fertile region inhabited by seven million people. It is hoped to eb able to develop these black men into valuable assets in commercial undertakings as well as man power in case of a new war.

Just as Bismarck and the military leaders of the German empire forced the engineers engaged on railroad semes to subordinate business to strategy, the prime movers in this scheme for a Sahara railroad are looking chiefly to the productivity as a means of replenishing the ranks of the army. It will have commercial advantages, too, but they are secondary.

FURNITURE PRICES TO STAY AT HIGH LEVEL

CHICAGO, July 17. United States.—Furniture of the Tudor, Queen Ann and Louis XVI periods will continue to hold popular favor for American bedrooms, while that of the Italian and Grecian periods will be used for living rooms, according to the Chicago Furniture Manufacturers' Association, holding its summer show here.

The new year will bring out new changes in American furniture; no outstanding features are evident, as at most exhibitions in the past. Creation of "freak" furniture is also on the decline. The only contribution along this line is a "King Tut" table made of mahogany, and with Egyptian lines, and lines representing old Egyptian vases.

No decrease from the present price of furniture is in sight. The cost of plate glass and other materials caused an increase ranging in some lines as high as 25 per cent. last spring, and there is little likelihood of a return to the old level within the next year, the officials of the show said.

Chicago is now the leading furniture market in the world, the value of her annual output totalling $50,000,000.

A greater proportion of London's street accidents happen between 3 and 4 in the afternoon than at any time of the day or night.

NEW GOVERNMENT STARTS TO WORK

Little Formality as Ministers Were Sworn in Before Lieutenant-Governor.

TORONTO, July 17.—(Canadian Press).—Ontario's new Cabinet was formally sworn in before His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Cocksbutt yesterday afternoon. The Ministers will take charge of their respective departments at the Parliament Buildings for the first time this morning, following the first Cabinet Council meeting of the Ferguson administration.

There was surprisingly little ceremony about the business of swearing in the new Government. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and his family, Premier Ferguson and his twelve Ministers, the wives of nine members of the Cabinet, a handful of officials and a host of press photographers comprised the gathering which attended the proceedings in the Government House at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

They took and signed the oaths in this order: Premier Ferguson, Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Public Works; Attorney-General W. F. Nickle, K.C.; Hon. Charles McCrea, K.C., Minister of Mines; Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Labor; Provincial Treasurer W. H. Price, K.C.; Hon. Lincoln Goldie, Provincial Secretary; John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture; James W. Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests; Hon. Sir Adam Beck, Hon. Thos. Crawford, Hon. J. R. Cooke and Hon. Dr. Leeming Carr, Ministers without portfolio.

WITCHCRAFT IS CLAIMED IN AN INDIAN'S MURDER

MUSKOGEE, Okla., July 17. —(United Press).—From the mountain fastness of Pushmataha county, where the trail of progress is slow, comes a story to the Indian agency recently, rivalling the Legends of the State's aborgines.

David Houston, 90-year-old full-blood Choctaw Indian, was killed because those of his blood believed he was guilty of witchcraft, according to weight of evidence.

Houston, a recluse, was owner of 320 acres of land. Johnnie Hobson, 20, full-blood, was apparently suffering from rheumatism. His joints stiffened and red splotches appeared upon his feet.

Johnnie had been shot by a 'witch-ball,' the medicine men declared, pointing to the red spots on either foot. "In three days' time," they warned, "the witch will send a bird or an animal. The bird or animal will report back to the witch the condition of the boy. Kill that bird or animal."

For three days the Indians watched. Upon the third day a bird alighted upon the roof of the Hobson home. The bullets missed their mark and the bird escaped. It was reported to have flown toward Houston's home.

The next night Houston, hearing a noise, stepped from his door to investigate and fell dead under a hail of buckshot.

Five persons were arrested, but later released because of insufficient evidence.

Agency officials are authority for the stateemnt that Hobson began a speedy recovery immediately following Houston's death.

CAPRERA, Italy, July 17.—(Canadian Press).— Francesca Garibaldi, widow of Italy's great hero, is dead at age of 75. Her death was quite unexpected, as she was in apparently good health, only a few weeks ago, hen Premier Mussolini visited her home on Capera Island, were Garibaldi is buried.

Baby Cutting Teeth Was Very Sick With Diarrhoea

When the baby starts to cut its teeth, especially during the hot weather, then is the time that the poor mother is under the stress and strain of great anxiety.

There is no remedy so safe and effectual, for the teething complaints of infants, as is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, no remedy that has had the endorsation of so many Canadian mothers during the past 78 years it has been on the market.

Mrs. C. W. Meyers, Clanwilliam, Man., writes:—"My baby girl was very sick with diarrhoea when she was cutting her teeth. I tried several different remedies, but nothing did her any good. She was getting worse when my mother sent me out a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I gave her a few doses and the next day she was much better, and in a couple more days she was as well as ever.

Now I always keep 'Dr. Fowler's' in the house and recommend it to all those troubled with diarrhoea."

SIGN PEACE TREATY ON JULY 24 OR 25

LAUSANNE, July 17.—(Canadian Press).—The Turkish peace treaty will be signed on July 24 or 25, according to present expectations. Allied and Turkish delegates now at Lausanne will be signatories of the main treaty and other documents to be signed, including an important agreement for the control of the Turkish Straits. The Russian Soviet Government has been invited by telegraph to take part in the signing of the Straits convention.

It developed to-day that an agreement between the Turks and the Allies reached last night on the disputed questions of concessions and the evacuation of Turkish soil by foreign troops was not merely in principle but on precise texts.

BRITISH LABOR'S PLATFORM WOULD MAKE U.S. GASP

Defiantly Endorses a Levy on Fortunes Exceeding $25,000 — Says State Should Conscript Money

By MILTON BRONNER.

LONDON, July 17.—The British Labor party's platform would probably make the American worker gasp. But British workmen—badly housed, heavily taxed, wages cut and food prices raised—walked to the polls and effectively put it over.

This platform defiantly endorsed a levy on fortunes exceeding $25,000. Labor held that even as the State conscripted men to fight the war, now it must conscript money to pay for the war. Labor said it did not want to penalize thrift, but to pay the war debt and get industry started it proposed the capital levy, with —"war profiteers" as especial targets in campaign speeches.

Such a proposal led every Tory and Liberal newspaper and politician to brand the Labor party as "red" and "bolshevik." Labor was unrepentant—and Philip Snowden recently put the very topic of capital levy up to Parliament!

Other Planks.

The Labor party favored taxation of land values, "to secure to the community at large the socially created wealth now largely diverted to private pockets."

Its other domestic planks were in the main as follows:

Work or maintenance for all unemployed persons.

Reorganization of agriculture whereby landlords are "to sacrifice rents rather than ask workers to accept starvation wages."

A national housing scheme, larger old age pensions and pensions for widowed mothers.

Nationalization of railways and mines was another plank. This caused opposition to call it a "red" party.

Wants New Treaties.

In international politics, the Labor party braved being called pro-German. It declared flatly for revision of all the peace treaties and for building of an all-inclusive League of Nations, with Germany and Russia as members. It wanted German reparations brought within Germany's ability to pay.

The League of Nations interested it especially as an instrument for limitation of armament, with general disarmament as the final goal.

It was not surprising that such planks should be adopted. There were men in the Labor ranks like Ramsay MacDonald, C. P. Treleyan and E. D. Morel, who, during the war, took their political lives in their hands by opposing the war itself. And as a matter of fact, this issue was raised against MacDonald and Morel and the first time it was tried was successful. In the last election, however, the voters showed that they were no longer to be swayed by war issues, but were more interested in the conditions that had arisen since the war.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of peroxine powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

AUTO STALLED ON RAILWAY TRACKS

Galt Level C. N. R. Crossing Again Scene of Serious Accident.

GALT, July 17. — (Canadian Press).—Hespeler Road level crossing, on the outskirts of the city, at which several people have met their death, was the scene of an accident last night, as a result of which Mrs. Picken, aged sixty, and her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Smith, of Hespeler, lie in the local hospital with little hope for their recovery. Ernest Smith, by jumping from the car, escaped with bruises and a shaking up when his automobile was struck by a north-bound C. N. R. passenger train.

The motor party of three was bound for Galt, and it is believed their machine stalled on the tracks. Smith saw the train coming and jumped in time, the car being hit where he sat, and thrown twenty-five feet.

Mrs. Picken had her right leg fractured, right shoulder bone broken, scalp cut and was badly bruised, while Mrs. Smith had her right arm broke in three places, leg broken, back injured, and numerous cuts. Both ladies are suffering from shock.

The touring car is a complete wreck. Seevral doctors and an ambulance were summoned, and the injured removed to the hospital.

In one Yorkshire parish, in England, every house except the vicarage was condemned as unsanitary before the war, yet most of them are still in use.

FASCISTI NOT GUILTY INSULTING THE FAITH

ROME, July 17. —(Canadian Press.) — Bitterly denouncing the wrecking of Catholic clubs in anti-clerical demonstrations at Florence, Premier Mussolini Mondoy declared "I have ordered the culprits identified and promptly arrested. The wreckers can't be true Fascisti. Fascism is too respectful of the Catholic faith to permit the flag to be stained by such lamentable exploits.

FLOODS DAMAGED SCORES OF HOMES

Swollen Rivers and Creeks Threaten Lives and Property.

DENVER, Colo., July 17.—(Canadian Press).—After all night vigil due to swollen rivers and creeks that threatened lives and property, residents of Denver and other cities and towns in the storm swept area breathed more easily to-day.

Rains that in some localities assumed proportions of cloudbursts descended upon Denver, Parker, Franktown, Pueblo and other points in such volume that creeks over-flowed their banks, washed out highways and railroad bridges and damaged scores of homes and business houses.

EUROPE'S DEATH DANCE THREATENS THE WORLD

TORONTO, July 17.—Couched in forceful language, Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, general superntendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, issued a strong appeal to all people who call themselves Methodists, in the Dominion, in Newfoundland, and in Bermuda, as well as in the mission fields, on behalf of the League of Nations' Society.

"Without any desire to be pessimistic," he states, "we are compelled to say that world conditions, in which every one of us is fatefully involved, are full of unrest and danger at this hour. The nations of Europe appear to be dancing a dance of death upon the very verge of a moral volcano, whose eruption may at any moment lay civilization in its ashes and us in our graves. Germany and France are holding the world in critical suspense. At any moment a continental calamity, beyond either measurement or control, may result from their bitter animosities. Russia and Turkey, as derelict nations, defy the conscience of Christendom, and rip asunder the ligaments of modern civilization. Between mankind and the possibilities of momentary destruction stands no organized opposition but the League of Nations, fortified by the conscience of Christian people."

"Atrocious as world conditions are, they are not so appalling as the nerveless apathy of multitudes of otherwise thoughtful people to the imperatives of human safety."

Dr. Chown points out that he had been authorized by the General Conference Special Committee to urge each Methodist minister and probationer to preach upon the subject of "World Peace," on Sunday, July 29, or as soon thereafter as conveniently possible.

"The very existence of a League of Nations," he declares, "is a direct and inescapable challenge to the Church of Christ to realize its divine function as the representative of the Prince of Peace, and, should it fail at this crucial time, it will add immensely to its indisputable responsibilities and go down in history meriting, and receiving, the condemnation, if not the execration, of mankind."

LAST YEAR'S LOSS FROM FIRE LARGE

Canada's fire record last year was the biggest in the history of the Dominion, according to figures prepared by Grove Smith, Dominion Superintendent of Insurance, Ottawa, and received this morning by Fire Chief Gimblett.

During 1922 there were 26,894 fires and on thees the insurance companies paid losses amounting to $34,370,000. With other charges incidental to fire protection the total is brought up to $104,580,000, or a tax of $6.20 per capita.

Ontario's loss through fire was $22,018,092, and the tendency, according to the official records, is toward an increased number of costly fires.

The loss of life in the Dominion in 1923 was 227, as compared with 224 the previous year and 150 in 1920.

Ontario's fire losses are per capita, second to the highest, as shown in the following figures given by the superintendent of insurance:—Alberta, per capita loss, $3.49; British Columbia, $6.15; Manitoba, $5.40, New Brunswick, $7.74; Nova Scotia, $4.46; Ontario, $7.31; Prince Edward Island, $4.23; Quebec, $5.85, and Saskatchewan, $4.21.

Many of these fires could be prevented, another report says, if people would remember the three C's of fire prevention — Common-sense, Cleanliness and Carefulness.

IDENTIFIED BY A SMILE

LOS ANGELES (United Press).—The memory of a smile carried forty-two years, re-united Victor Johnson and his sister, Agda Johnson, who separated in Stockholm, Sweden. Johnson ran away smiling. He went to Mexico and became prosperous. He registered at a local hotel and as the clerk handed him his key, he smiled. Mrs. Agda Merrill of Kentfield, Cal., nee Agda Johnson, nearly fainted when she saw Johnson's smile. Both are smiling to-day.

FUNERAL HELD ON MONDAY AFTERNOON

Miss Kate J. Fowler Remembered by a Wide Circle of Friends.

(Contributed)

A large number of relatives and friends gathered to pay their last tribute of respect to Miss Kate J. Fowler, whose funeral took place on Monday afternoon, from her late residence, 561 Gilmour street, Peterboro. The service was conducted by the Rev. George I. Craw of Springville, her former pastor, assisted by the Rev. G. B. Ratcliffe, at present supplying the pulpit of Knox church of which the deceased was a member since coming to live in Peterboro. Taking as his text the words, "She hath done what she could." Mr. Craw depicted the circumstances under which the words were spoken, and said that, he had chosen this text because it fittingly described the life of service of the deceased. He spoke of the large place she filled in connection with the work of the church in Springville and said that in a ministry of more than twenty years the departure of no two people had left the void made by the departure of Miss Fowler and her brother and that though more than two years had now elapsed since that departure that the void still remained. The large turnout of members of the Springville Congregation amply confirmed this eloquent tribute from Miss Fowler's former pastor.

Beautiful floral tributes form relatives and friends in Calgary, Brandon, Toronto, London, Hamilton, Peterboro and vicinity, further testified to the high esteem in which Miss Fowler was held by all.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Will. White, Ira Robson, Wm. Scott. H. G. Webber and R. T. Lillico of this city and Wm. R. Gerrie of Toronto.

The following notice given out in Knox church pulpit at both services last Sabbath expresses the sentiment of Knox people with regard to Miss Fowler:—

"The sympathy of members and adherents of Knox congregation will be extended to the family and relatives of the late Miss Kate J. Fowler, who passed away on Friday morning last.

"Miss Fowler was a devoted member of Knox church and an active worker in connection with the Berean Bible Class. She was on of those singularly beautiful Christian characters, whose life is a benediction to those who know them. To her these lines from one of Whittier's poems aptly apply:—

God calls our loved ones, but we lose not wholly
What He has given
They live on earth in thought and deed, as truly
As in His Heaven."

WILD RIDE

the most notorious automobile thief in the country.

"I was forced into the back seat with Malone and "Goofy" Williams. James Brown sat on Malone's lap and George Brown, whom I learned constructed the ladder which made escape possible, sat on William's lap.

"Edwards was the best automobile driver I have ever come in contact with. He drove like furry. No car in the world would ever have caught us. Malone had a revolver, which he insisted on shoving into my ribs. He said to me: "Now, come along and be a good sport. Don't holler, because it won't do you any good. One crack out of you and its your last."

After telling of the flight through the city, during which he said they had many narrow escapes from collisions with other automobiles, Mc Allister said that Edwards sped south over Cobb's Creek boulevard and into the open country.

KILLS TUBERCULOSIS THROUGH SUN RAYS

PARIS, July 17.—An infallible cure for tuberculosis in 30 minutes is claimed by Rafael Santos, aged 25, a medical student at the University of Paris.

After three years of experimenting at leading hospitals here, Santos constructed a set of lenses for introducing sun rays and ultra-violet rays into the human lungs. He declares his experiments proved that these rays kill all tuberculosis bacilli in less than half an hour.

Santos explained his lens as the apparatus for applying ultra-violet rays locally to the human lungs in such a way that none of the tissues are injured through the process.

MAN AND SWEETHEART KILLED ON CROSSING

HAMILTON, July 17.—(Canadian Press). — Gordon Steines, a chauffeur, and Jean Baxter, his sweetheart and daughter of his employer's housekeeper were instantly killed on a level crossing near Broke station by a C.P.R. Buffalo express. The chauffeur evidently figured that he had plenty of time to pass in front of the train, but as he drove on the track, he saw a jigger approaching on the other track and evidently decided to stop and back off the track. He stalled his engine and the express struck him, smashing the car to kindling wood, and hurling the bodies many yards. The victims were employed by Major W. H. Grenly.

WONDERFUL STORY OF TANLAC READS LIKE A PAGE FROM FAIRY BOOK

Popular Officer Tells How He Gained 37 Pounds

"Last winter, for the first time in years, I didn't miss a day on account of sickness," said Napoleon Giroldeau, 653 Colonial Avenue, Montreal, popular police officer, in relating his experience with the Tanlac treatment.

"It's near a year since I gained 37 pounds by taking Tanlac and I've never had a sick day since. I had indigestion for 10 years and at times thought the end was near. I lost 27 pounds and was just a skeleton of what I have been."

"But it seems now like I never had indigestion, and I eat big feeds of meat and potatoes and sleep like a log. I owe my health to Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

AMAZING FACTS ABOUT CELEBRATED MEDICINE ARE NOW GIVEN TO PUBLIC

Over 37 Million Bottles Have Been Sold, and Wonderful Results Obtained From Famous Preparation Have Caused the Demand for It to Become World-Wide.

The wonderful story of Tanlac, for eight years the sensation of the proprietary trade throughout the North American continent and a household word in every home from Yucatan to the rocky coasts of Labrador, reads like a page from a fairy book. It is America's greatest proprietary romance, as full of thrills as the masterpiece of a Hugo or a Poe.

Tanlac was originally the product of a European chemist, who, suffering the handicaps of crowded conditions and lack of opportunities in his own country, brought his idea for a great tonic medicine to America. His dream was of a super-medicine, one that could be placed within the reach of the great masses of people.

The Formula.

Recognizing the well-established scientific fact that most human ills originate in the stomach and that through the stomach alone can one gain strength, he made his formula a stomach and digestive preparation of the first magnitude, adding other ingredients best calculated to augument the efficacy of this treatment and carry its effectiveness throughout the whole body. The result was an astonishing new medicine which seemed to gain power within itself, and which soon swept the whole North American continent with a ministering touch, carrying health and happiness into the homes of thousands, and hope and cheer to million of people in every walk of life.

Factory at Walkerville.

The first bottle of Tanlac was sold in Lexington, Ky., eight years ago. It met with signal success, and shortly thereafter Tanlac was introduced throughout the United States. Two years later the first bottle was sold in Canada, and the success in the dominion was as great as it had been in the U.S.A.

The demand for Tanlac grew to such proportions in Canada that a big factory was built at Walkerville, Ont., to manufacture Tanlac for Canada. This plant has a capacity of 7,200 bottles a day, and for several months has been running double shifts to keep up with orders.

In addition to the plant of Walkerville, factories are maintained at Dayton, Ohio, and Mexico City. A new plant is being established in Argentine to care for South American business.

Tanlac, because of its proven merit, has met with signal success throughout North America. Over 37 million bottles have been sold to date, and the 1923 quota is 10 Million Bottles.

WHAT TANLAC IS RECOMMENDED FOR

Over 75,000 well known men and women from all walks of life, many of them living in Canada, have testified that Tanlac has relieved them of:

Stomach trouble, indigestion, rheumatism, sciatic, palpitation, smothering spells, constipation, weakness, nervousness, exhaustion, constant backache, sleeplessness, a general run-down condition, mal-nutrition, torpid liver, that tired-out, good-for-nothing feeling besides many other symptoms and diseases not generally recognized as having their origin in the stomach.

The indisputable record shows Tanlac to be a stomach and a digestive remedy, and a general body-builder and system purifier of most extraordinary merit and power. Even the most stubborn cases seldom fail to respond.

Spent Her Money in Vain, Says London Resident

"If everybody knew what I know about Tanlac there isn't a home in Canada that would be without it," is the high valuation placed on the medicine by Mrs. G. Bell, of 317 Grey Street, London, Ont.

"Before I took Tanlac I spent enough money trying to get relief from stomach trouble to furnish a home, and had got to where I thought nothing could help me. Gas bloating, stomach pains, awful headaches, shattered nerves and bad pains in the back were among my troubles, and usually I felt too miserable to dress and go down town shopping.

"I began taking Tanlac last Christmas and stopped taking it in February, after my health was completely restored and my weight increased 11 pounds. Nearly every day some one remarks about how well I look and I am feeling better than I ever did before. Tanlac is just wonderful."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

NINE YEARS OF TROUBLE ENDED

Tanlac Is the Only Medicine That Ever Reached Case, Says Mrs. Flock.

"The Tanlac treatment is the only thing I have ever found that would relieve my nervousness and stomach trouble," is the positive statement made, recently, by Mrs. W. Flock, 46 Cannon St., Hamilton, Ont.

"I had suffered from indigestion for nine years and often got so stuffed up with the gas on my stomach I could hardly breathe. I also had such severe pains in my stomach and chest I could hardly stand it. Before I got Tanlac I had no appetite and actually dreaded to eat anything knowing the agony I would suffer afterwards.

"If the least thing went wrong my nerves would go to pieces. I couldn't sleep nights and would get up and walk the floor. During the day I was so tired and weak I could hardly put one foot before the other and my housework was a burden. Tanlac has relieved my troubles and built me up to where I am so well and happy that I go about my work singing. I eat and sleep like a child and fell fine in every way."

CAMPBELLFORD TURNS IN BIG LIST OF PUPILS

Sixty-Six Out of Seventy Entrance Candidates Passed at Campbellford Centre — Results Elsewhere.

The separate school here sent up six pupils, all of whom passed, three taking honors. Rosina Clark wins the $5 gold piece donated by Rev. Father Phelan.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 17. — Campbellford Public School has made a record at the recent entrance examinations, the results of which have just been given out for publication. Principal C. S. Haig sent up 43 pupils and of these 42 were successful, nine taking honours.

Ten of these candidates were taken from the Junior Fourth Department, none from this department being allowed to write unless they had made around 70 per cent in the test examinations.

Principal Haig gives a medal to the pupil from the Junior department, taking the highest stand at the entrance examination and this prize goes to Allison Moffatt, the 11-year-old daughter of ex-principal Moffat, who wrote at Ottawa where she was visiting friends when the examinations were held.

The I. O. D E. give three cash prizes of $15, $10 and $5, to the three pupils in Campbellofrd who stand the highest. The first of these awards is this year won by Margery Ackerman, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ackerman;" the second by Cherrie Turner and the third by Rosina Clark, the latter is the pupil of the Separate School.

The prizes given by Rev. Father Phelan to the highest pupil from the Separate School have been won by Rosina Clark, Catherine O'Connor and Mary Bibby. There is another of these prizes to be awarded but the result is not yet known.

THE RESULTS

At the Campbellford centre, 70 candidates altogether wrote and 66 passed. On previously stated 43 of these, of whom 42 passed, were from the Campbellford Public School.

At Hastings, 12 wrote and 10 passed.

At Roseneath, 13 wrote and 9 were successful.

At Warkworth, 50 wrote and 32 passed.

This means that there are 117 new high school students in prospect from the section. Of these, the greater number will attend the High School at Campbellford. The Act now makes it obligatory on all successful condidates to attend some High School until they reach the age of 16. In the natural course of events a number of students who attended last year will drop out either as graduates or for some other reason. It is estimated, however, that the Board of Education here will be compelled to find accomodation for at least 60 students more than were cared for last term.

This fact in being cited as one of the strongest arguments in favor of a new High School completed according to the original plans, instead of the half portion building now in process of construction. The more pupils brought from the country district, the less will be the cost not only of maintenance to the ratepayers of Campbellford but of the new building as well.

Factory Extension Calls For More Water—Looking Forward to Popular Picnic—Personals.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 17. — The extensions planned by the Campbellford Cloth Company means that an increased supply of water will be required in the factory for the washing of the cloth and other purposes, and application for this has been made to the Water and Power Commission.

Engineer Scott estimates that to furnish the extra water asked for would mean an additional expenditure of between $700 and $800 a year to the Commission.

The Commission has sent a communication to the company saying that the town is not in a position to increase the supply of water, but have for sale plenty of power, which the company can secure to operate its own pumps. Engineer Scott at the local meeting of the Commission was authorized to make an agreement with the company, this to be subject to ratification by the commission.

In the report of the Underwriters' Association, recently received here, the statement is made that the amount of water pumped at present is not adequate.

Annual S. S. Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Presbyterian Sunday school will be held 27th of July and the officers are planning a real treat for the scholars, an auto ride to Cobourg and an afternoon on the lake shore. TO CONFER WITH MINISTER HENRY IN TORONTO TODAY

Hold That Campbellford Bridge Should Be Supervised as Part of County Provincial Highway.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 17. — Reeve Anderson will probably be one of the first men to hold a conference with a member of the Ferguson Cabinet. He is in Toronto today, Campbellford's representative on a delegation composed of Warden Smith of Port Hope. Reeve Wood of Millbrook, general chairman of the roads and bridges committee of the Council of the United Councils of Northumberland and Durham and Reeve McColl of Brighton township, chairman of that committee for Northumberland County. They will interview Minister of Highways Henry, requesting that the Government take over the supervision of the Campbellford bridge as a part of the county provincial highway of which system in this district informs a connecting link. The bridge stands in need of repairs of which the estimated cost is over $7,000, and unless some assistance is received from the Govern ment the cost of this must be borne 25 per cent. by the town and the balance by Northumberland County. Durham County is not required to pay any part of the cost as each of the United Counties is responsible for its own bridges.

Court of Revision

A session of the Court of Revision was held last night to hear complaints against the assessment for the Wellington street sewer. The members present were Mayor Meyers, chairman, Councillors Burke, Meiklejohn and Dorie. Town Solicitor I. A. Humphries appeared for the municipality.

Only one Complaint

John Maynard objected to his assessment of $171.50, to be spread over ten years, on the ground that he already had at his own expense constructed a sewer from his residence to the river. He considered that he was entitled at least to a reduction but the court decided against him as the statute makes no provision to meet such a case.

All of the residents on Wellington street, are satisfied with this sewer which was built under the estimate by day labor, directed by Street Foreman Fox. Just as it has been decided to construct the new sewer on Garry street.

A Model Business Place

Perhaps no residence or business place in Campbellford attracts more notice from strangers than does the Trent Valley Creamery on Rear street. It is really one of the beauty spots in the town and the Chamber of Commerce has held it up as a model for others to imitate. When R. S. Southworth bought this property it was considerably run down but he has, but the liberal use of paint, made the building one of the most presentable in the business section. The lawn is planted with trees and flowers and plants are blooming in every window. The place is an ornament to the thoroughfare on which it stands.

THE PREMIER PONY.

Two darkey roustabouts are having an argument about horses. One of them had just put over a winner. He bet two bucks on a rank outsider that paid $29.20 for the two-dollar investment.

The other gentleman of color had bet two iron men on the favorite that had finished among the also rans. The lucky bettor began to chide his friend who had played the favorite, about his knowledge of horses. Whereupon the fellow who had picked the favorite remarked:

"If you all know so much about hosses, who is de greatest hoss in de world?"

The darkey who had picked the winner, scratched his head as he did some deep thinking. Finally a smile played over his face and he answered.

"Nothin' to that, Man o' War, of course."

"You guessed right. Now tell me who Man o' War is by."

More deep thought and more scratching of the head. After a long delay came this answer.

"Well, boss, every time I see dat Man o' War he was all by hisself."

ARGENTINE MAY SEE BIG FIGHT

Battle Between Firpo and Dempsey May Be Staged in Buenos Ayres.

NEW YORK, —July 17. — (Canadain Press). — The heavy-weight boxing outlook took an unexpected turn late yesterday when Promotor Tex Rickard announced a definite proposal to stage a title match between Jack Dempsey, the champion, and Luis Firpo, in the capital of the latter native Argentine, Buenos Aires, about November 1.

Firpo, keenly anxious to fight for the righest of fistic honors before his countrymen, already has accepted Rickard's terms. Jack Kearns, the title holder's manager, discussed details of the propostion with Rickard for an hour yesterday afternoon and at the end of the conference told the promotor his answer would be ready by Wednesday. Rickard said his plan to take the fight out of this country was prompted by two reasons. Firpo's desire to return to his native counrty for the bout, and enthusiastic reports from the promoter's agents as to the possibilities of financial success in the "Paris of South America."

Rickard received a cable yesterday from Juan Homs, a personal agent, saying that a fight between Firpo and either Dempsey or Harry Wills, negro contender, would draw more than 2,000,000 pesos—about $800,000 in the Argentine capital.

The exact nature of his offer to Kearns was not revealed but it was believed it embraced a percentage proposition that would assure the champion and his manager close to $500,000.

Kearns, meanwhile, declared that although he wouuld give Rickard's offer every consideration, he was desirous of arranging, if possible two matches or the champion in this country this year, instead of going to South America. Kearns said, he would prefer to have Dempsey meet Firpo, first, around Labor Day, and then, of victorious, take on Willis, just before the world's series in October.

International League Umpire Was Fired.

ROCHESTER, July 17.— (Canadian Press.)—Umpire Phyle, of the International League, was discharged just before the start of yesterday's game by John Conway Toole and the other two umpires officiating at the Baltimore-Rochester series, McDevitt and Geisel, quit. The sudden dismissal of Phyle is believed to be the result of a weird decision at a game here Sunday between Rochester and Baltimore, President Toole seeing the decision.

Gilhooley, captain of the Reading team, who is here receiving treatment from a specialist, was named Umpire-in-Chief of the game by President Toole and Irving Wilhelm, former manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, and now coach of the Rochester team, and Chief Bender, of the Orioles, acted as base umpires. The decision, which caused the furore, was made on Harry Lunte, Rochester third baseman, in the eighth inning of Sunday's game. Lunte hit to Boley, Baltimore shortstop, who fumbled an instant and then threw to first. Umpire Phyle first indicated with his hands that Lunte had beaten the throw, but immediately reversed his decision.

Geisel and McDevitt intimated after the game yesterday that there probably would be a general strike of all the umpires in the International League as a result of President Toole's action, which was characterized as unwarranted by the arbiters here. Jack Dunn, president and manager of the Baltimore Club, declared Toole had no real cause to discharge the umpire on the request of Manager Stallings. He characterized Phyle as one of the best umpires in the International League.

GOLF MAY HELP.

Benny Leonard is using golf in his training for the Lew Tendler match. Up in the Catskills these afternoons he is socking the little white ball around the course, thereby defying the traditions of old timers who say golf will prove the ruination of a ball player or fighter.

The old timers point to Jimmy Wilde, who played 18 holes the day before he met Pancho Villa, and was knocked out.

But it wasn't golf that beat Jimmy Wilde, it was Villa.

WOOLLENS IN FINALS FOR CHARITY CUP

The Woollens defeated the Quakers by a score of 3 to 1 in the Pnelan Charity Cup tie last evening. A good crowd was on hand to see the game, which was fast and well played throughout. Frost turned out for the Woollens for the first time this year, and the Quakers played with only ten men.

Both teams settled down to a regular cup tie, with the players missing great chances to score. Twice in succession Gaskill tried to draw out the Quakers' defence, but Hepburn cleared. Montgomery transferred the play to the other end. He sent in an oblique shot, which had Chambers guessing, but he punted out, with Craig right in on him. Play was confined to mid-field for a while. Monkman was all over the field, placing and encouraging his forwards to shoot. Time and again he had a good try at goal. The Quakers put the pressure on the Woollens' defence and played havoc around their goal. Logan sent in a shot which Chambers handled in peculiar fashion. Quakers claimed a goal, but after consultation with the linesmen, the referee decided otherwise. Just before half-time Roberts compelled Griffin to throw himself up in the air to touch the ball over the bar for a fruitless corner. Half-time, no scoring.

With five minutes only gone in the second half, Shaw and Gaskill dribbled close in upon Young and Willshaw, both tackled, Shaw jumped in between them to gain possession and made no mistake with his parting shot to beat Chambers. At this reverse the Quakers ran the Woollens to their own area, where Reid demonstrated the fact that he was the best back on the field. His big punt landed at Shaw's foot. He shot it back to Monkman. The centre-half trapped the ball nicely, and steadying himself, he rattled the inside of the cross-bar for the second goal.

Quakers played the one-back game now and sent Young to outside left. This change improved the Quakers' effectiveness. G. Logan was a terror to Woollens' defence. Twice he tested Chambers, who made clever saves. Ultimately the Quakers got within shooting range. Mayette lifted across to Craig in front of the goal to beat Chambers with a slow ball. From this period the excitement ran high. Both goals were raided in order. Shaw sent out to Mitchell. The outside-right landed the ball against far post to deceive Griffin with a peculiar ball for third goal. Griffin saved a penalty kick taken by Shaw immediately afterwards.

Goal-scorers — Shaw, Monkman, Mitchell, for Woollens; Craig, for Quakers.

Quakers—Griffin; Young and Willshaw, backs; J. Logan, Hepburn and Craft, half-backs; Mayette, Montgomery, G. Logan and Craig, forwards.

Woollens—Chambers, goal; Reid and Cridland, backs; Frost, Monkman and Sayers, half-backs; Gaskill, Shaw, Mitchell, Roberts and Downes, forwards.

Referee—J. Clark.

THE BEST OF 'EM MAKE MISTAKES

A Few Prize Boners Are Pulled Every Season Even in the Majors.

Many ivory plays have been pulled on the field since baseball was in its infancy. And they are still being put on exhibition now and then.

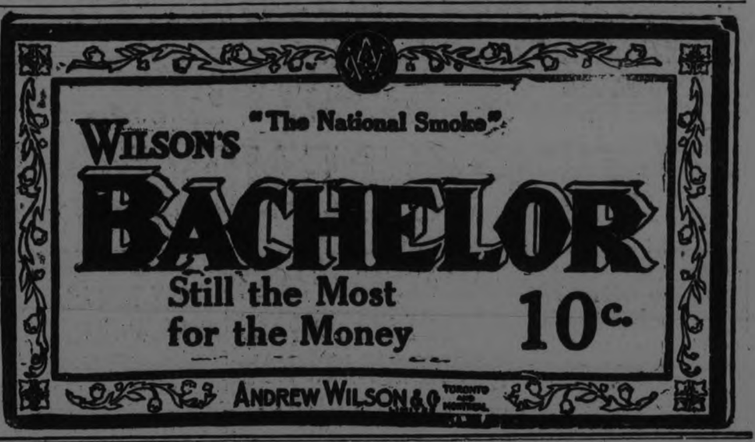
Perhaps four of the most famous "boners" were made by Fred Merkle, Heinie Zimmerman, John Anderson and Harry Niles.

Merkle showed his in 1908 when he was with the Giants, failing to touch second base in a game against the Chicago Cubs, the blunder eventually cheating the McGraw troupe out of the pennant; Zimmerman enrolled in the numbskull school by chasing Eddie Collins across the plate with the winning run of a game in the 1917 world series; Anderson stole second with the bases full and Niles ran around a mate on third without knowing it.

There have been others as well but these four doubtless stand out as the prize dumb plays of the game. But only the other day "Chick" Fewster of the Boston Red Sox pulled a stunt that entitle him to worthy consideration as a member of the ivory class.

It happened in a game with the Tygers. Piercy, the Red Sox pitcher, seeing Holloway legging it for second heaved the ball to the bag in an effort to nip the Tyger runner. The throw was high, though the leather being far out of the reach of Fewster, who was covering the sack. "Chick", however, was so intent on stopping the pill in its flight to the outfield that he threw his glove into the air to check the progress of the spheroid. And that's just what he succeeded in doing.

Result: Holloway was allowed to go all the way home from the keystone cushion on the breach of baseball etiquette. Perhaps, Fewster didn't know any better. At any rate it was another one for the book, though it didn't prove costly, as the Tygers won the contest by a wide margin.



DELORO OUTFIT HERE SATURDAY

Miners, Whose Team is Composed Principally of Montrealers to Play Petes.

Although the Petes are away from home on Wednesday and Friday of this week, and no Central League game is scheduled here until a week from Saturday, the fans will not be without an opportunity of seeing a good ball game at Riverside Park for Saturday for the Petes have arranged for a visit from the fast Deloro team of the Trent Valley League. The majority of the Deloro outfit employed at the plant there hail from Montreal, and there are some crack base ball players in the crew who will play here Saturday including several stars who have been unable to participate in the Trent Valley League series because of their not complying with the residence rule. It is several years since the Deloro team played here and the present nine are said to be considerably faster than the old team. If this is so there should be a lively contest for the Deloro outfit always made the Petes extend themselves. It is expected that Manager Solomon will use Scott Hutchinson, his big left-handed pitching recruit, against the miners. The Deloro crew have three pitchers to depend upon, and they will provide lively opposition.

MANAGER PEACOCK ILL.

Fans throughout the Central Ontario League learned with much regret of the serious illness of George Peacock, manager of the Leaside Baseball Club. Mr. Peacock underwent an operation at the Toronto Hospital last week and since then his condition has been quite critical. Previous to taking a position with the Durant Motors, Mr. Peacock was engaged with the General Motors and managed the Oshawa team during his residence there.

THERE were 1021 forest fires reported in Ontario last season. The vigilance of the fire rangers kept 53 per cent. of these down to a size not exceeding five acres. But yet the total area burned was over 346,000 acres—equal to a strip of forest one mile wide from Toronto to Cochrane.

Of the total number, only 52 were lightning fires. In other words, out of every 100 fires, 59 fires were due to man's carelessness and were preventable.

Accordingly, the problem of forest protection in Ontario calls for the co-operation of the whole citizenship of the Province. If reasonable care be exercised by everyone in the woods to prevent the start of fire, our forests will be safe. Railway officials, campers, prospectors, lumber firms, settlers, construction firms—all can help by being careful of fire in the woods, and by joining hands with the press, the leaders of public opinion, and the business men of Ontario, in prompting educational propaganda to reduce forest fires.

BELMONTS HIT OUT VICTORY

Kiwanis Get Only Three Hits Off Connors and He Whiffs Eleven.

Belmont Bantams led all the way against Kiwanis in their game at King Edward school grounds last evening, and won by the score of 11 to 5. Belmont's southpaw battery worked smoothly, and the team hit well, Crary being prominent at the bat with a double and a home run. The Belmonts also fielded well, some of the infield work being particularly good.

Kiwanis failed to do much with Connors, getting only three bingles, and it was not until the fourth that Lewis cracked out the first single for his team. In the seventh, Kiwanis threatened a rally, but the effort was short-lived, three runners getting home.

Belmonts got two counters in their first. Beavis leading off, hit to Nixon, who dropped the ball, giving the runner the bag. James was thrown out and Connors fanned. Crary scored Beavis with a double, and after stealing third, scored on a passed ball. Calladine fanned.

For Kiwanis, McDuffy was retired at first, by Calladine, the pitcher threw out Nixon, and Jennings was safe on Weston's slip. Calladine threw out Lewis.

Belmonts went out in a row in the second, and then gave the same treatment to the Kiwanis, the latter being strike-out victims.

Four runners scored for Belmonts in the third, which Henry opened with a scratch hit. He stole second, Beavis was dead-headed, and Henry was caught trying to steal third. Jones doubled, scoring Beavis, Connors was passed. A wild pitch and a passed ball scored Jones. With two strikes on him, Crary hit to the centre field for a homer, which also sent Connors across. On Crary's hit the ball was lost in the grass. Calladine fanned, Reynolds walked and Routly ended the frame by grounding out to McDuff to Marshall.

Singles by Jones and Weston gave Belmonts another run in the fourth, Kiwanis had a chance to score in their half but Lewis, who had singled and made his way to third, was nipped at the plate on Marshall's choice to Calladine.

Singles to left by Reynolds and Routly, added another for Belmonts in the fifth with one out. Weston flew out to Nixon who doubled Routly.

Kiwanis scored in their half of the fifth. Hutchison and Spencer were passed, E. Wolff fanned and Spencer was caught getting into third. McDuffy's hit scored Spencer. Nixon struck out.

Braund replacing Henry in the sixth was passed. He stole second and Beavis hit him home. Beavis was caught napping at the bag. Jones singled and went to second. On Connors' grounder to McDuffy, the latter thew out Jones at third. Crary fanned, but Spencer dropped the third strike and heaved wildly to third, Connors scoring. Crary scored on a passed ball. Calladine went out at first.

For Kiwanis, Jennings struck out. Lewis fouled out to Beavis. Marshall made second when Reynolds dropped his fly. The runner stole third and scored on a balk. Holland flew out to the pitcher.

Belmonts failed to tally in the seventh. Reynolds was safe on Hutchison's error. Routly flew out to Wolff. Weston and Braund fanned.

HAVEN FOR THE OUTCAST.

It looks as if a man can get kicked out of the United States and, without exertion, go down to Mexico and become a national hero.

Jack Johnson was the first to go down when authorities were hot on his trail. Sam Langford is the present heavyweight champion of Mexico, whatever that is.

Now, Hal Chase, the old first baseman of the New York Yankees, blacklisted by organized baseball because of unquestionable activities, is managing the Nogales team. For two years after he was kicked out, Chase worked for $3 a day in a California lumber yard and then sought fame in Mexico.

COBOURG DECIDES STAY WITH LEAGUE

Team Management and Money Matters Featured Meeting of Cobourg Outfit.

KINGSTON, July 17.—(Special).—That Cobourg will arrive in Kingston Wednesday for the scheduled game with the local seniors, and that their team would remain in the Central Ontario Baseball League for the remainder of the present season, was the substance of a telegram received here this morning by J. J. O'Neill, secretary of the Kingston team. It was also stated that a meeting of the Cobourg team and their supporters was held on Monday night, with the result that the team management and finances were reorganized, the players appear anxious to finish out the season, and it is expected that the present enthusiasm of the organization will carry them over a rather disheartening start. The decision will save a great deal of inconvenience for the officials of the League and will also be gratifying to the local players, officials and fans alike.

WORTH MONEY TO BE A CHAMPION

Jack Dempsey is Almost As Big a Financial As He Is a Ring Expert.

By PAUL R. MALLON

NEW YORK, July 17.—(United Press).—Jack Dempsey has made an even million dollars out of four afternoons' work as heavyweight champion of the world.

Figured down in minutes, it is estimated that the Iron Man worked about two hours for his cool million. Of course, he had to spend a lot of time in training, but there probably isn't any worker in the United States or any sport champion who received anything near the sum he has cashed in.

Then came Georges Carpentier, the French beau brummel, who wanted to get knocked out. Dempsey did it for 90,000 spectators for $300,000.

Then there was the Shelby affair with Tommy Gibbons. Jack Kearns, manager of the champ, after fidgeting around with the promoters for a while, whistled to himself, "My Gawd, how the money rolls in!" and plucked out $220,000.

Those four fights gave Dempsey $720,000. Movie rights and other concessions bring the total to an even million. A few exhibitions may have been necessary to swell the figure, but Jack Kearns attended to those.

Dempsey and Kearns were just about broke when the fight with Jess Willard was arranged at Toledo four years ago.

New York Stock Exchange — And Curb Prices

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, July 17.— (United Press.)—The opening of the stock market to-day was fairly active and irregular, over night changes being limited to small fractions. Studebaker, among the leaders, showed the widest fluctuation, being off 5-8 at 102 1-8.

The news developments included the agreement being reached in the Near East negotiations at Lausanne and the plan to sign a definite agreement by the Allies with Turkey in a day or two. The programme of the English Socialists and Laborites to introduce a Socialistic State in the Empire met with defeat in the House of Commons. The foreign exchange opened lower and the metal market in London closed lower.

Selling orders in Steel Common, which appeared shortly after the opening, were followed by selling in other stocks and on a fairly active turnover all stocks reacted around 10.30 the pressure appeared to have been lifted for a time and stocks recovered slightly.

This was true of Studebaker, which rallied to 102 5-8, just 1-8 short of Monday's close after selling below 102.

The re-action started when one house entered an order to sell six thousand shares of Steel Common at the market, causing it to react to 89 5-8, more than one point under the opening. Other Steels followed, Bethlehem Steel selling down a point to 44 7-8, Republic over 1 1-2 to 42 3-4, and Gulf States' Steel 1 1-4 points to 70. On this selling, floor traders sold the list short for a turn. Continued weakness in wheat prices and the unsettlement of sentiment on the reparations controversy, as well as the lower forenoon exchanges brought out selling although the volume was not heavy.

Lower wheat prices, of course, mean reduced buying power for the farmers and for this reason selling took place in International Harvester, putting it down 2 1-2 points to 75 1-2. While Sears Roebuck, which does a large part of its business with the rural population, reacted a point to 70. The Rails were inactive and fractionally lower.

TRAINS HIS OWN.

Connie Mack knows a ball player when he sees one. In his day—and it's been a long one—Mack, as manager of the Athletics, has had 400 baseball players come and go. Three years ago it was the joke of the major leagues. He would have his scouts go around and sign up young college players hardly more than half-way through their 'teens.

His perseverance has been rewarded, and he now has a ball club which will compare with any in the league.

And he grew it himself. He didn't pay a million dollars for it.

"There are too many bootleggers," says an official, failing to mention how many is enough.

The illustrious Rudolph has a new rival, who bids fair to oust the sleek, slant-eyed South American from the favour of his feminine public long before he dicides to return to the films. Charles de Roche, a tall Frenchman with aquiline features and a slender frame, is the very latest in screen heroes

With a brand new hero, at atmostphere of thrills, filmed in a nove. backgroud, "The Law of the Lawless." if the love story of a Romany chieftain and beautiful Tartar maiden. Costa, the wandering gypsy, straying into the little Tartar village buys Sahande, "The Pround One," for seven hundred gold pieces, and takes her, an unwilling bride, to his gypsy camp.

Yancu, her poverty-stricken lover. comes with a band of Tartars to rescue her, but Sahande, played with her usual fire and vigor by Dorothy Dalton, has fallen in love with the handsome gypsy, who has ridden a wild horse for her edification, and also, (this last a somewhat incongruous note), has thrown and roped a wild steer.

Unusual in its picturization of scenes far away from the ordinary run of silver sheet backgrounds, with a fiery star in Dorothy Dalton, and a gypsy king whom many a "sweet sixteen" in the audience last night sighed over. "The Law of Lawless" is a striking and interesting production, from start to finish. There are details carried out in costuming and a finish to the photography of this picture that add immeasureably to its value, and there are plenty of thrills in the attack of the Tartars on the gypsy camp, the wild ride of the gypsies and their scaling of the village walls, the firing of the minaret, and the thread of romance that is the big theme of an out of the ordinary and distinctly worth while feature. Theodore Kosloff plays the role of Yancu. the braggest sweetheart, and Tully Marshall is Ali Mechmet, the usurer who starts all the trouble, that ends in the heroine offering herself for sale in the open market.

There is a decided likeness to the singing of Cameron McLean, the Scottish baritone who delighted Peterboro audiences during the last season, in the songs of Thomas Dunn baritone, appearing as an added attraction at the Capitol Theatre during the first three days of this week Mr. Dunn came back for two encores last night, his three songs meeting with enthusiastic applause. He has a fine, dramatic voice of power and resonance.

"Bridle-Grooms" is the comedy attraction, a Percy and Ferdie picture, with the two jovial nuts engaged in a thriving academy. Their fun is complicated by the advances of a large and infuriated gentleman who loves the heroine, and they become involved with the merry go round at a country fair in their efforts to get away from him.

Calvin Gray employs three men to watch the oil field operations of Colonel Henry Nelson of Dallas, whom Gray hates. Gray loves Barbara Parker, daughter of Tom Parker. Gus Briskow strikes oil and Gray helps the family to adapt themselves to a better way of living. Allie, the daughter, adores Gray and to Bud, the son, he is a hero. Gray brings Bud from the oil fields for a visit to Dawson. Henry Nelson tells Tom Parker that Gray has been dishonorably discharged from the army. Because Gray loves Barbara her father goes to consult with his friend, Judge Halloran.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

When they had gone, Gray rose with relief and surprised Buddy by saying: "That's enough for now, thank goodness! Business is only one side of life, my boy. You are going to make this city your home, so you must begin by meeting the right people, the influential people. Nicest people in the world right here, Buddy; nicest place in the world, too!"

Now to a youth who, for months, had been immured in the oil fields, Wichita Falls did indeed resemble a city of marvelous portent. Pavements, large buildings, bright lights, theaters—Buddy was thrilled. He prepared himself for introduction to oil operators, to men of finance sitting in marble and mahogany offices; he made ready to step forth into the big world.

Great was his astonishment, therefore, when after a swift walk Gray turned into a tiny frame insurance office on a side street. Funny place to look for people of influence, Buddy cogitated.

A girl was seated at a desk; she rose at sight of Gray, and her face broke into a smile. Her greeting was warm; her hand lingered in his; for the moment neither of them seemed to remember Buddy's presence. When she did hear his name, however, her face lightened and she gave her hand to him as to an old friend. When she smiled at him, as she had smiled at his companion, Buddy dropped his hat. He had never seen anyone in the least like this creature and—she knew Allie! She knew his mother! He had missed her name, but probably she owned that Dallas department store, or was the mayor of Wichita Falls. He had never before been so embarrassed.

Mr. Gray certainly was a wonderful man. His poise, his air of respectful but easy familiarity with this—this angel raised him immeasurably in Buddy's esteem. Think of joking, chatting, making pretty speeches to an—an angel! That was going some. The gall of it!

After a while, when the two men were on the street again, Buddy inquired: "Who is that young lady? I mean—her name?"

Gray told him, then with a friendly twinkle: "Well, speak out! What do you think of her?"

"Oh— Gee!" Buddy cried, breathlessly, whereupon his companion laughed in perfect satisfaction.

CHAPTER XXVIII
A Bank Changes Hands

TWO callers were awaiting Gray when, late that afternoon, he mounted the stairs to his office—Tom Parker and Judge Halloran—and something in their formal, awkward greeting sent a quick chill of alarm through him.

The two old men were talking, one lamely supplementing the other's efforts to lead up to the object of their visit. Gray turned a set face to Tom Parker finally, and interrupted by saying:

"Permit me to ease your embarrassment, sir. You object to my attentions to your daughter. Is that it?" Tom dropped his eyes and mumbled an uncomfortable affirmative. "No, I hope, because you question the nature of my intentions?"

"Oh no!"

"I'd say yes and no to that," Halloran declared, argumentatively. "Tom and I are gentlemen of the old school; we live by the code and 'Bob' is our joint property, in a way. Any man who aspires to the honor of—well, of even paying attentions to that girl must stand the acid test. There must be no blot upon his 'scutcheon."

"You imply, then, that there is a blot upon mine?"

Tom Parker stirred; irritably he broke out, "I'm damned if I think you did it!"

"Did what?"

Tom remained silent, but when his companion drew a deep, preparatory breath, Gray lifted a hand. He rose nervously and in a changed tone continued:

"Again let me speak for you and shorten our mutual distress. First, however, I must make my own position plain. I—love your daughter, Mr. Parker." The declaration came at great cost, the speaker turned away to hide his emotion. "I think—I hope she is not indifferent to me. I would give my life to marry her and, God willing, I shall. So much for that." He swung himself about and met the eyes of first one old man, then the other. Harshly, defiantly, he added: "Understand me, nothing you can do, nothing on earth—nothing in Heaven or in hell, for that matter—will stop me from telling her about my love, when the time comes. Now then, Henry Nelson has told you that I was—that I was sent back from overseas in disgrace. You want to know if he spoke the truth. He did!"

"YOU OBJECT TO MY ATTENTIONS TO YOUR DAUGHTER. IS THAT IT?"

After a moment of silence Judge Halloran said, with stiff finality: "Under the circumstances there is nothing more to talk about. You amaze me when you say—"

"Perhaps you'll understand when I say that I propose to clear myself."

"How? When?"

"Soon, I hope."

"And in the meantime?"

Gray considered this question briefly. "In the meantime—if you will agree to say nothing to 'Bob,' I will promise not to declare my feelings, not to see her alone."

"That's a go," said the father.

Without further ado, the two men left.

The Nelsons' bank was known as the Security National, and it represented the life work of two generations of the family. Bell's father had founded it, in the early cattle days, but to the genius and industry of Bell himself had been due its growth into one of the influential institutions of the state. Other banks had finer quarters, but none in this part of the country had a more solid standing nor more powerful names upon its directorate. Bennett Swope, for instance, was the richest of the big cattle barons; Martin Murphy was known as the Arkansas hardwood king, and Herman Gage owned and operated a chain of department stores. The other two—there were but seven, including Bell and his son—were northern capitalists who took no very active interest in the bank and almost never attended its meetings. For that matter, the three local men above named considered themselves little with the actual running of the institution, for the Nelsons, who owned nine-tenths of the stock, were supreme in that sphere. It was only at the annual meetings when directors were re-elected—and invariably they succeeded themselves—that they foregathered to conduct the dull routine business which is a part of all annual meetings.

In spite of the fact that the program this year was as thoroughly cut and dried as usual, the day of the meeting found both father and son decidedly nervous, for there were certain questions of management and of policy which they did not wish to touch upon, and their nervousness manifested itself in an assumption of friendliness and good fellowship quite unusual.

Senator Lowe, the bank's attorney and secretary, was arranging his minute books, his reports, and his miscellaneous papers, Martin Murphy was telling his latest story, when a knock came at the door to the directors' room. Bell himself answered it, but his protest at the interruption died upon his lips when he beheld Calvin Gray, Gus Briskow, and the latter's son, Ozark, facing him.

Gray spoke sharply, and his words fell with the effect of a bomb, at least upon Bell and Henry, for what he said was: "We are attending this meeting as stockholders, and we came early to enable the secretary to record the necessary transfer of our shares."

Disregarding the president's gasp of astonishment, the speaker pushed past him and entered, then introduced himself and his companions to the other men present.

Henry Nelson experienced a sick moment of dizziness; the room grew black before his eyes. It was Bell who broke out, harshly:

"Stockholders? Where did you get any stock in this bank, I'd like to know?"

"We bought it. Picked it up here and there—"

"I don't believe it!" Bell glared at the speaker, then he turned his eyes upon Swope, upon Murphy, upon Gage. "Did any of you sell out?"

"We don't own enough to make it worth while," Swope said, dryly. Murphy and Gage agreed. Bell's peculiar display of emotion surprised them; they exchanged glances. "I thought there wasn't any stock outside of what's owned by our group. What's the idea?"

Gray answered, easily. "There is now a considerable amount outside of that. A very considerable amount."

Henry Nelson made himself audible for the first time, and sneered angrily. "Quite theatric, Gray, this eleventh-hour move. How much have you got? What's your—your object?" In spite of himself his voice shook.

"My object is purely selfish." Gray's tone was equally unpleasant. He had expected to create a sensation, and he was not disappointed. "Mr. Briskow and his son are looking for a secure investment, and I have convinced them of the soundness of your institution. My operations make it necessary for me to establish a close banking affiliation—one where I can ask for and receive consideration"—his mockery was now unmistakable—"so where should I turn, except to my friends? I assume you make no objection to the stock transfer? Very well." He drew from his pocket a bundle of shares and tossed them across the table to Senator Lowe.

OBITUARY

DIED IN ENGLAND.

M. T. Ephgrave, 250 McDonnel street, the well known contractor in the city, received a cablegram today bearing the sad intelligence of his father's death in Waltham Abbey, Essex, England.

Mr. Ephgrave was aware from letters received last week, that his father, Thomas Henry Ephgrave, had been ill for some time, but did not consider it serious.

Another son of the deceased gentleman, Harold Ephgrave, also resides in Peterborough, and four sons and a daughter survive in England.

ENCIRCLE GLOBE IN AIR

LISBON, July 17.—Colonel Saccadura Cabral, one of the Portuguese aviators who flew from Lisbon to Rio de Janeiro, referring recently to his poject of flying around the world, said his itinerary would be divided into three parts.

The first would be from Lisbon to Japan. 9,870 miles; second, Japan to Newfoundland, 7,580 miles; third, Newfoundland to Lisbon by way of Fayal and Punta Delgada, 2,140 miles.

On the basis of an average speed of 70 miles an hour, the aviator would expect to spend 280 hours in the air.

VIENNESE CAN'T PAY

VIENNA, July 17.—Hundreds of doctors in Vienna are having hard times, these days, keeping themselves and their families alive. The people cannot afford to pay their fees which are 10,000 crowns, of 15 centsr for a visit. Fanv physicians' families get meat only once a month, and live chiefly on bread and potatoes.

Ninety per cent of the people in Vienna belong to sick benefit associations, and seek the help of an outside doctor only as a last recourse. Furthermore, few foreigners come nowa days to Vienna in quest of medical aid. The home doctors discourage them from taking the journey, representing the local facilities for cures as good as anything to be had in Austria. It is evident the local practicioner does not want fees to slip through his fingers for the benefit of the profession in another country.

NEW CABINET MET BRIGHT AND EARLY

Ferguson Administration Assume Seats of the Mighty in Toronto.

TORONTO, July 17.—(Canadian Press).—With quietness and lack of ceremony the Ferguson administration this morning sank into their seats so recently vacated by Drury ministers. Bright and early this morning the cabinet assembled in the council chamber and held a long organization meeting. Except for a few people that gathered without the portals of the Premier's office, therewas nothilg to indicate that any thing of an unusual nature was taking place. Major part of the morning was taken up by a meeting of ministers and general discussion as to future policy.

Premier Ferguson stated after the cabinet meeting that no date had been set for return of the ministers to their ridings. He is hopeful that the Province will give the new administration its best support, and that his ministry in turn will do all in its power for the betterment of the Province.

Attorney-General Nickle made his first official move this morning when he informed the press that he was writing the Crown Attorney's of the Province regarding the better information bill which came into effect yesterday. "I am writing Crown Attorneys this morning, setting out the scope and bearing of the measure and various points of the Act as to its ultra and intra vires," he said. "The law as it now stands, is being carefully set forth and will be maintained. The Province will institute a test case if it is found necessary.

EXTEND ORANGEMEN FREEDOM OF CITY

H. C. Hocken, M. P., of Toronto, Responded to Eloquent Address of Welcome.

WINNIPEG, July 17.—(Canadian Press.)— Freedom of the city was extended to visiting Orangemen by the city of Winnipeg during the course of a luncheon at Kildonan park.

An address of welcome was delivered by Ald. J. G. Sullivan, chairman of the civic committee, which was responded to by Rev. David Ness, Imperial Grand Professor of Glasgow, Scotland, and H. C. Hocken, M.P., Toronto.

SAYS BLONDE IN U.S. NOW FACES EXTINCTION

CHICAGO, July 17. — (United Press).—The blonde, with the "large baby-blue eyes," is going the way of the American buffalo, Dr. C. Paul, optometrist, declared to-day.

Soon she will be a rarity in the United States, if she does not wear classes that screen out the destructive ultro-violet and infra-red rays of sunlight, he said.

"It's because of the intense light in this latitude. Pigment protects the retina by screening out destructive light rays, and the blonde, with not enough pigment for our intense light suffers accordingly."

The blonde, Dr. Paul pointed out, comes from northern Europe, where the light is much softer than in this county. The brunette hailed originally from the southern climes, and in the United States she has a distinct advantage over her fair-haired sister.

"The only other thing the blue-eyed baby-doll can do is wear glasses.' Dr. Paul continued. "She can wear smoked glasses or a special glass invented by Sir William Crookes, inventor of the X-ray.

Scientists recommend a daily half dozen to aid blondes. They are:

Roll your eyes.

Look up from your work frequently.

Give your eyes plenty of fresh air.

Look at green grass, flowers and the blue sky.

Sit up straight.

Bathe the eyes in cold water when tired.

BREAK DOWN AT THE LIFT LOCK

Vice-President Curtis Publishing Company Held Up in Peterboro.

Owing to a small irregularity in the working parts of the Lift Lock, boats arriving yesterday and to-day were held up in Peterborough. The repairs will be completed this evening.

One of the parties held up by this mishap includes C. H. Ludington, Vice-President of the Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. This company controls nine important publications, including Saturday Evening Post, Ladies' Home Journal and others which are known in every family. Mr. Ludington is accompanied by three reporters, one of whom comes from Pittsburgh, who were brought on the trip to write the story for the magazine controlled by the Curtis Company.

The party went to Orillia, and their itinerary called for a return to Philadelphia by July 20. The delay has upset their schedule, but they are making the best of the situation. The local Chamber of Commerce made arrangements for the party to use the golf links and the tennis court at the Y.M.C.A. during their enforced sojourn in the city.

This party travelled the length of the Rideau system and several other sections of waterway, but declare that the Trent Waterway is the paragon scenic system. The members are enthusiastic in their praises of the courtesy which has met them all along this route, and despite the unfortunate circumstances which compel them to remain here they are highly pleased with Peterborough and its environs.

A second launch, the "Roamer," upward bound, is held up at the George street wharf.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 17.—(Canadian Press).— After the morning express from the Sydney to Louisburg, had passed through Dominion No. 1 this morning, a bolt dropped out of one of the rail, near where a rail was moved out of place yesterday. The British Empire corporation, operators of the railway, do not regard to-day's happenings as an accident.

The power line from Waterford to Glace Bay, was short-circuited in the night by the throwing of hay wire over the power wires. Six or seven hours were required to restore the line to operation.

Increased quantities of coal will be moved from number two pile to Sydney, it was announced this morning.

DISPLAY BRITISH FLAG WITH THAT OF STATES

ST. CATHARINES, July 17.—(Catharines Press).—The practice of American tourists passing through Niagara district with the United States flag displayed on their cars unaccompanied by an Canadian or British flag was brought before Lincoln County Council this morning by Reeve Haynes of Grantham Township, and it is likely that this afternoon formal action will be taken to request the Federal Government to instruct customs officers at all frontier points of entry to inform tourists that if they wish to fly "old glory" from their cars, they must also display a Canadian flag while on Canadian soil.

LAKEFIELD VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

Illustrated Lecture a Real Treat—Hay Crop is Good —Sunday Observance.

LAKEFIELD, July 17.—An illustrated address was given in the basement of the Methodist church on Friday evening by Mr. L. E. Godfrey a missionary, who is at present in Canada on leave.

Rev. C. S. Reddick, occupied the chair and conveyed messages of regret at non-attendance from A. E. Higgins, president of the local branch of the Bible Society, and Rev. P. L. Jull. Rev. C. Grant King read the Bible lesson and Rev. Chorley prayed.

Mr. Godfrey went with his wife to India in 1913 to work as missionaries to the people of that great country. They were stationed in the part known as the north west provinces, which is in reality, a buffer state between India and the closed and mysterious land of Afghanistan. The people are in the main agriculturalists and use very primitive methods of cultivating the ground as the yoke of oxen and wooden plough (sometimes with a steel point) are quite commonly seen. Owing to the numerous blood feuds or vendettas it is usual to see the farmer carrying a modern rifle slung across his shoulder with which to take a pot shot at an enemy.

Conditions among women in India were terribly hard; a woman was, and is still in many parts, regarded as a chattel and could be sold anytime by her lord and master.

Mohammedanism and Hoodooism are the two great religions of India and are both strong and powerful. The pictures shown by Mr. Godfrey were very interesting and showed many types of natives viz: Sikhs, Pathans, Gurkhas etc., and also many interesting phases of life in that great country.

Rev. J. L. White made the closing prayer.

It is a matter of deep regret that that the attendance was not larger, but those who were present enjoyed the occasion very much.

Laid to Rest

The funeral took place at St. John's church on Thursday afternoon of Julia Mary Dench, wife of Roebrt Jory, Rev. C. Grant King read the funeral services and the choir sang 'Nearer My God to Thee,' At the close of the service the Nunc Dimittis was sung. Mrs. Jory was a devoted member of the W. A. and will be very much missed in the parish.

Hay Crop Good

In spite of the dry weather the hay crop has been very good in this locality. Hay was cut in large quantities during last week.

Zone of Silence

In most of the cities there is a zone of silence established about hospitals for the elimination of unnecessary noises. and would it not be a good thing to have something of the same sort in the vicinity of the churches. When devout people are engaged in the worship of God on God's own day, it seems rather hard that they should be disturbed by the honking of the motor horns and unnecessary noise from them. Also the noise of children at play, almost at the church door, is irreverent and unnecessary and the result of the thoughtlessness of pleasure-seekers in this age and generation.

Look For a Regatta.

This is the season for outdoor fetes and festivities and the time when a band is of greatest service to the community. The local band is doing its utmost to provide for the needs of the village, but cannot go far without some support from the people of the village. The regatta season is in the near future and there is absolutely no good reason why Lakefield cannot have one. We have as good natural advantages as any other place, better than the average in fact, and a regatta held some time during the first two weeks in August would draw a crowd from the upper lakes and if well advertised could be an event such as Lakefield has never yet had in its history. What is necessary? Co-operation and a small amount of time spent in the work by interested and public spirited citizens, both men and women. One citizen who loves Lakefield and believes in its future, suggested just such a gala event with the net proceeds divided between the fire brigade and the band as an evidence of public appreciation and recognition of services both past and future.

Personal and Social.

The school board have re-engaged Miss Corkery as assistant in the High school at a salary of $1,700.00 per annum.

News has been received of the death of Mrs. Bert Page, of St. Catharines. Mrs. Page who, before her marriage, was Violet Elizabeth Crawford, was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Crawford, of Lakefield. The sympathy of the community is extended to the family.

Mrs. C. S. Tanner entertained a number of lady friends at an afternoon tea on Wednesday afternoon last

Banting, Toronto, discover of insulin, as one of the outstanding figures at the Congress of the International Society of Surgery, now being held in London. FEARS BRITISH ACTION AS TO REPARATIONS

French Press Sees a Movement by Britain for Scrapping the Versailles Treaty.

MAY ISOLATE FRANCE

PARIS, July 18. — (Special).— The French officials are displaying apprehension over the forthcoming British note to Germany. a draft of which is to be forwarded here Thurs day evening. Only the most reserved comments are forthcoming. A considerable portion of the Press sees in their movement to reach agreement on reparations through other means than force in Ruhr, a scrapping of the Versailles Treaty and an end to the entente. The Journei Industriele, which speaking for the industrialists and financiers of France, charges Great Britain with of the Versailles Treaty. One a British version, bringing in the other Allies; another isolating France and depriving this country of support from the Allies against Germany. "Britain will nullify the treaty as re gards France, but continue herself to benefit thereby," the papr s say.

Premier Benis is in Czecho Slovia and who has been busying himself with attempts at mediation left today for Brussels, refusing to discuss the success of his efforts thus far. He said he merely was informing himself regarding the view points of the various allies.

The conversations in which the Czecho stateman has been playing a leading role, seeking a formula for reconsidering the Allies positio n are described as extremely delicate."

Guard the Terms

The French Foreign Office indicated to-day that it expected to receive on Friday, British communication on the reparations problem. It has been pre-arranged by both French and British Foreign Offices that precise terms of the note shall be guarded with greatest secrecy until two governments have reached an agreement or have become convinced that they cannot agree.

It is not supposed in highest political levels here that the note will be such that it can either accepted or rejected as a whole. Some important points, according to hints received from the French Embassy in London, will be of such a nature that there will have to be a further exchang, of views.

The British note, it is understood here is neither being sent as a finality, nor is it expected that it will be received here, as such. Consequently secrecy has been determined upon for the present.

Propaganda Question

A campaign has been started to force the French Government to dispatch to the United States and other countries of the world the pro-French Propaganda and explain this Nation's foreign policies.

The unfavorable criticism in the United States and Great Britain of the Ruhr had led Senator Lucien Hubort to head a movement which, if successful, will perhaps give France a propaganda service as effective as Germany had before the war.

"Re-organization of our propaganda service is necessary if France's position is to be known by other countries, Hubort declared, Hubort stated that Great Britain through her publicity department is always first to get a message before the people of the United States and that France should be as favorably situated.

MINERS' STRIKE OF NO VALUE

Was Ill-Advised Says President Tom Moore in a Statement.

OTTAWA, July 18.—(Canadian Press). — "The miners of Nova Scotia," says Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, in a statement to-day, "will do well to remain loyal to their International Union by giving their full support to the new Provincial President, Selby Barrett, and thus frustrate the efforts of J. B. MacLachlan and his colleagues to destroy the solidarity of their organization."

"Their ill-advised strike has been of no value to steel workers in their struggle for the establishment of proper conditions. On the contrary it has helped to confuse the minds of the public as to the real issue, and retard efforts being made by organized labor to have the militia removed from Nova Scotia strike area."

BULLET EXPERT WAS RECALLED

Trial of Rev. Adelard Delorme on Murder Charge Resumed This Morning

MONTREAL, July 18. Canadian Press. — William R. Jones. of New York, defence bullet expert, was recalled to the witness stand when the trial of Rev. Adelard Delorm, on the charge of murdering his halfbrother, Raoul, was resumed this morning. He was cross examined by R. L. Calder. K.C., Crown Prosecutor, who asked him:

"You say you were retained in this case last week?"

Witness said that he was notified by letter dated July 2nd. which he did not receive until July 5th. He had previously been in communication with C. H. Cahan, K. C., of counsel for the defence, who called him up two weeks ago Saturday night and asked him some questions over the phone. Then he wrote.

Mr. Calder—"Did you see Mr. Hamilton in New York in connection with this case?"

Witness—"No, sir.'

Mr. Calder—"Did you recommend him?"

Witness—"No, sir.'

Mr. Calder—"May I take it you would not recommend Mr. Hamilton?"

Witness—"I did not recommend him?"

Mr. Calder—"I am asking you whether you would, knowing him?"

Witness—"I don't think I would."

Witness said he had not consulted with Mr. Hamilton about the case before coming to Montreal. He had not seen him since 1920, prior to meeting him at Mr. Cahan's house last Sunday.

Mr. Cahan asked that the matter be explained.

POLICE SEIZED RAILWAY COACH

LINDSAY, July 18.—(Special).— Lindsay experienced a newthrill this morning when Provincial Officer Storey and License Inspector Thornbury seized a Canadian National Railway coach attached to the Port Hope train. The car was locked, but the officers forced an entrance, and their search revealed forty bottles of whiskey. The porter was placed under arrest.

The case promises to create considerable interest as it involves the question of whether the police can seize property belonging to the railway company.

For rain water to sink to the level of most wells it takes from 12 to 18 months.

SERIOUS PHASE DOCKER STRIKE HAS DEVELOPED

Extension of Trouble in Liverpool is Now Interfering With Trans-Atlantic Shipping.

FOOD PRICES JUMP

LONDON, July 18. — (Canadian Press).—Development to-day in Liverpool of a serious phase of the Docker's strike. interferring with Trans-Atlantic shipping from that port and stopping other traffic out of the Mersey River, came as a setback to the hopes of peace held out here as a result of the executive body of the Transport Union having decided to call a conference in London of strikers from all ports involved This call followed preliminary negotiations at Manchester yesterday.

A critical state of the strike situation was indicated by the decision of London Cartage contractors that unless the men return to work immediately steps must be taken to safeguard London's food supplies. Some prices, particularly those of fruits and vegetables already soaring. Lemons have increased on thousand per cent. and oranges one hundred percent. in price, and stalks of bananas are rotting in fruit shops in the harbor. People, however, have been warned that there is no justification for the increase in retail prices of other commodities.

It is estimated that thirty thousand men are on strike.

DEVOTE NIGHT TO PARSONS' REPORT

Council Will Discuss City Engineer's Scheme for Local Paving.

City Engineer Parsons' recommendations for a paving policy to be extended over five or six years, will be the subject of the council's deliberations at a future meeting, when there will be ample time to devote to it. Last night Mayor Taylor concluded that a mere passing consideration would not be doing justice to a question of such importance as that of permanent road building in the city, and the Aldermen agreed with His Worship in proposing to set aside an evening for a comprehensive discussion of the City Engineer's report.

Hydro-Communication

An enquiry from the Hydro-Electric Commission about the provisions the city was making for access to the Commission's property on Hunter street on the west side of the bridge, was received.

Ald. Maher asked what position the city would be in as the result of taking no action on this matter.

Ald. Phelan—Mr. Ireland will be down here some day and we can arrange it with him then.

Ald. Stocker—The land is lying there and they're not using it; we will stand where we always stood.

The Board of Health's request for office help and adequate means of transportation for the Sanitary Inspector, was referred to the Property Committee.

Two Accounts.

Two accounts were passed last night. One was for $35 for seven copies of the city directory, and the other was slightly more than $600 to the R. Hicks Co. for a load of pipe delivered to the Board of Works.

A. E. Dixon, representing Jos. Longo, a fruit dealer on Hunter St. notified the council that his client would expect compensation for any damage to his property by reason of the construction of a new and longer approach to the Hunter street bridge, on the west side of the river.

"He goes up three steps now, and will only have two steps with the new grade," Ald. Stocker remarked.

GRAND MASTER SPEAKS FOR NATIONAL UNITY

WINNIPEG, July 18.—(Canadian Press).—To secure national unity it is essentiaol that people of each part of Canada should understand the viewpoint of all, declared Hon. W. D. McPherson, Toronto, Grand Master of the Orange Lodge of British America, in Presenting his annual report at the opening session of Grand Lodge this morning. The "East and West must each have set of different local problems and interests, which it is desirable that all of us should appreciate and study, in the hope that as far as possible justice should be done and all should work unitedly for the upbuilding of our common country," stated Mr. McPherson.

NEGRO, WILLING TO WORK IS REFUSED EMPLOYMENT

tranger Within the Gates of Free Country Applies to the Peterborough Police Station for Food and Raiment

A giant negro, half dressed, was fitted out by the police this week, assisted by F. J. Bullied.

The negro had wandered from Montreal through the north country looking for work, and his clothes were woefully wanting. As Mr. Bullied described his condition, "He hadn't enough on to flag a wheelbarrow."

Willing to work, this man could find nothing to do. His boots were so worn he was walking on his bare feet; his clothes were in rags, and his frame was wasted away. Perhaps his color was against his employment, or perhaps it was because of his run down appearance that respectable farmers and others refused to take him on.

He was brought to the police station, where he said he had been refused food in stores where he wished to purchase; he had been refused work where there was work to be done and workers were scarce, and on being fitted out with semi-respectable covering in Peterborough he again started on his apparently fruitless search of employment.

He did not mutter at the anomaly of his homeless condition, an outcast in a free country, or rail at the social system that denied him a job. He accepted thankfully what was given him—and left the city.

MR. R. R. HALL ON TRENT CANAL

During this last three or four years construction work on the Severn River for the completion of the Trent waterway has been abandoned on the ground of national economy. Less than $2,000,000 will complete the canal.

Let us examine this ground. Down to date $18,654,195 has been spent upon the construction of the Trent waterway, upon which there is a yearly loss in interest alone of upwards of $1,000,000. In addition to that, the yearly repair bill is in the neighborhood of $90,000, and the salaries and wages of the staff to operate and maintain the canal, amounts to the yearly sum of $100,000.

Until the Trent Canal is completed and the canal can be used for the transportation of grain and other slow moving freight, this yearly national loss will continue, and this yearly loss is nothing more nor less than national wilful waste.

Transportation commissions and members of former Governments have from time to time acknowledged that the Trent waterway forms an important, essential and economic link in our national transportation system, and the very fact that former governments have spent 18,000,000 upon the system is the very best evidence that they were thoroughly convinced that their conclusions were well founded upon full knowledge of all the facts

The Trent waterway comprises about 90 miles of Rivers, 90 miles of Lakes, and about 20 miles of Canals and canalized Rivers, making in all 200 miles. 180 miles of this 200 miles has been already completed and 20 miles of the Severn River remains yet to be canalized and until it is canalized 80% or 90% of the money that has already been invested is standing idle and earning nothing. What would be said of the short sightedness of a private individual who allowed a ware house that was required in a prosperous City to remain uncompleted because he refused to borrow 10% of the cost of his investment in order to place it upon an earning basis? And yet, during this last three or four years the Dominion Government has been pursuing that short-sighted course so far as the Trent waterway is concerned.

Let me repeat again what Mr. Robert Stuart recently said in his interview: "Our own Company would be prepared to build a terminal elevator upon the "Georgian Bay near the entrance of the canal and would put on a fleet of barges "for the carrying of grain from Georgian Bay to Peterborough, and to carry "the finished products from Peterborough to Montreal."

Here is a simple illustration to show that Mr. Stuart's declaration is founded upon true economy. A horse will draw 15 tons three miles an hour on a level steel track and that same horse will draw 75 tons three miles an hour on water. That is to say, one horse will draw five times as much tonnage on water that the same horse will draw on a level steel track. In other words, it takes five times as much horse power to transport freight by rail as it does on water. But horse power requires coal to develop, and it takes 5 tons of coal to move the same tonnage by rail that a ton of coal will do by water and therefore there is a saving of 4 tons of coal by using water transportation as against every 5 tons used by rail

When steam coal was worth $4 a ton the saving was only $16, but now that steam coal is worth about $8 a ton the saving is $32.00 In other words, as the cost of coal decreases, the savinff by water transportation is all the greater and hence it is that the demand for the completion of the Trent waterway is greater now than it has ever been in the past. True national economy really means the using of our natural resources to profitable advantage even though you have to borrow money to do so.

CHEESE BOARD HAD A BRISK SESSION

Bidding Was Fast, Rising From 16 to 16 15/16.

This morning's session of the Peterborough Cheese Board was marked by the most brisk bidding of the year, although the price was low at 16 15-16 cents and the boxes boarded, 1,127, showed a decrease from last Board.

The usual buyers were present, Mr. Gillespie opening the bidding at 16 cents from which it rose by rapid-fire bids to the close. Mr. Gillespie obtained 546 boxes on first selection, and Mr. J. S. Cooke, buying for W. S. Cook and Son, obtained 411 boxes. The Canadian Packing Co. took 170 boxes.

Cheese was boarded by the following factories: Warsaw, 170; Warminster, 100; Oakdale, 75; Young's Point, 138; North Dummer, 64; East Emily, 50; Cedardale, 60; Dunsford, 80; Star, 57; South Burleigh, 29; Buckhorn, 80; Killarney, 224.

In Belleville on Saturday there were 1,931 boxes of cheese sold at 17 13-16, and on other Boards thorughout the district the price ranged from 16 1-9 cents to 17 1-2 cents.

Henry Batten was appointed assistant secretary at this morning's board.

Objection was taken to the charge for exchange made by the banks on cheques in payment of cheese.

LEADERS IRISH STATES CONFER ON BOUNDARIES

LONDON, July 18. — (United Press).—It was announced here that Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, and William Cosgrave, president of the Irish Free State, met in London to-day to discuss the boundary in question and a number of other problems affecting both governments.

The meeting, which was of the friendliest character, was designated to find a common course of action.

PREDICTS HINDUISM WILL FALL BEFORE FORCES OF ISLAM.

Mohammedans May Soon Gain Supremacy in India, Bringing Country Under Rule of Islam.

CALCUTTA, July 18.—(Associated Press).—Sir Rabindranath Tagore, Bengali poet and 1913 recipient of the Nobel Prize for Literature, says in an interview that on his last visit to America in 1920 he was greatly shocked and disappointed by the selfish, nationalistic spirit which he found, and that he did not intend to visit the country again. With regard to Indian affairs, the poet predicted that the Mohammedans would soon gain supremacy over the Hindus, bringing India again under Mohammedan rule.

Tagore was found at his home and school at Shantiniketan (the abode of Peace), which is about four and a half hours by rail from Calcutta. When asked if he intended ever to go back to Europe and America, the poet said that while his first visit to America, in 1916, had led him to believe that the United States had become so powerful and so advanced in civilization that she would be able to avoid war herself and would also, by economic pressure, be able to prevent long conflicts between other nations, his last visit had brought only shock and disappointment. The country was warmad, he said, and without the patience to listen to philosophers, poets or dreamers.

"I am afraid many of the things I had to say were unpopular," he added, "because an intense spirit of nationalism was sweeping America. I am opposed to nationalism in every form. For me every question is an international one. The press and public men were clamoring for what they called 'hundred per cent. Americanism.' Ah, but that is a dangerous pattern.

In answer to questions regarding the future of India, Tagore predicted the conquest of Mohammedanism over his own religion of Hinduism. "If is possible," he said, "that Hinduism may be a religion of the past before many years, and the inhabitants of India converted to Islam by force. And who knows but that it might be a good thing for India if the Mohammedans were to overrun it again.

"Hinduism is a religion of pacifism, while the teachings of Mohammed transform even our peaceful Hindus into fanatics with a lust to fight. Even now Mohammedanism is spreading rapidly in India. The latest figures show that there are more Mohammedans here in Bengal today than there are Hindus. So, if the Government falls into the hands of the Indian people, it probably will mean Mohammedan rule again. But even that would be preferable to the present Government, because it would be government by our own kindred."

FISHING TRIP CHEMONG LAKE NETS BIG BAG

Fishing is Picking Up at Chemong--The Park Owl Made a Meal of the Chipmunk.

CHEMONG NEWS

Several ardent disciples of Izaak Walton report good fishing at Chemong Park this season. W. Cavers and J. Reese Millard, two members of the Rendezvous Pavilion Orchestra, with Messrs. Hagerman and Lew Ingram, had good luck on a fishing trip last Monday, catching four lunge, three of which weighed respectively eleven, eight and six pounds, and seven bass, none weighing less than three pounds.

Mr. Henry Carvell, of Bridgenorth, had the unique experience of catching two lunge, weighing thirteen and seven pounds, both fish striking the two lines at the same moment.

The old pavilion, formerly owned and occupied by Mr. Dan Sullivan, has been transformed by its present owners into private dressing rooms for the convenience of patrons of the Rendezvous pavilion. The building, with its boarded-up front, now contains eight lockers for the bathers' use.

Several of the cottagers on the main road have built-in garages under their high dwellings. Mr. Dan Sullivan has just completed a very ornamental green and white garage for his car.

Mr. Pete Gettas has purchased some imported carrier pigeons to add to his ever-increasing menagerie. There are rumours also of a small brown bear. An inquiring visitor at the owl's cage, a small striped chipmunk, met with a cool reception the other day, the owl finishing up the call by making a meal of the caller.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Gliddon are spending a few days at their cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Weddell have opened up their cottage.

A visitor to Chemong, staying at Mr. C. McClelland's cottage, is Mr. Jean Gibb, of York, Pa. Mr. Gibb, who has not been at Chemong for nearly twelve years, is enthusiastic about its present condition.

Mr. and Mrs. C. McClelland are at present in Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. Felix Wolff of Hamilton, is at Mr. Harry Wolff's cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Owen and Mr. P. Kenny have taken Hudson Lodge for the month of August.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnum of Buffalo, N.Y., and daughter from Los Angeles, have arrived at the Park, and opened up their cottage.

Miss Louise Dolby is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. C. Perry, at the latter's cottage.

Bethany Tabernacle held their annual Sunday school picnic with a good attendance, at the Park yesterday afternoon. Gordon Mein's 'Comet' made eight trips to the Park yesterday.

Mrs. Pope is occupying her summer cottage at the Park.

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Warne and family are at the Park.

Mr. Victor Melhuish, of Toronto, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. Perry.

Mr. Harry Long is at Chemong this year, occupying his cottage.

FORSEES DANGER

LONDON, July 18.— (Canadian Press Cable).—Sir John Brunner, ex-M.P., addressing a Liberal gathering at Southport, said he saw a danger in the forthcoming imperial conference as protectionists party was working hard to introduce protection. The standard of living in the Dominions was higher than in Great Britain, he said, and it was no part of the duty of the British people to benefit the people of the Dominions at the expense of themselves.

Sir John expressed the fear that the Government would endeavour to impose morels in order to benefit the Dominions.

Local Indians on A Long Canoe Trip

"Hudson Bay by Canoe" is the aim of a party of Curve Lake Indians, who set out this morning.

Alfred McCue, William Smoke and Joseph Whetung Jr., compose the party, and they look forward to a splendid trip.

There are many portages to be encountered along the route, where rivers run shallow and rocks make dangerous going, but the young men are in good condition, and the long hikes, they say, will provide valuable relaxation from the cramped paddling position.

The trip will take about five or six weeks. being made in leisurely fashion and stop offs being planned wherever the fishing is good or the scenery particularly attractive.

CROPS IN WEST WASHED AWAY

Severe Storm in Saskatchewan Inflicts Considerable Damage.

REGINA, July 18. Canadian Press —At least one person has been injured, much livestock killed, and dozens of houses and farm buildings were wrecked, thousands of acres of crops laid low by hail. rain and wind, and one hundred miles of telephone wires put out of commission, in a storm that swept the province from west of Dodsland to east of Wolseley, last night.

The storm was the most severe of the year in Saskatchewan. With telephone communications cut off, but few reports were obtainable.

Mrs. Burbridge, who was at Clinton Pettigrew's farm, near Lumsden, was bruised when the house was destroyed.

At Dodsland and Plenty a cloudburst occurred which caused streams of water eight inches deep to run across the roads and over the fields, washing way the crops.

In Luxford and Marquis districts some hail fell, followed by heavy rains and a high wind, which dislodged several hundred acres of the crop.

Telephone lines and poles were blown across the roads in these districts as well as in Lumsden and district.

The greatest property damage occurred two and a half miles south of Lumsden, where the storm was in progress for about twenty minutes. Dozens of farm buildings in this area were wrecked.

KING WILL MEET DR. BANTING TODAY

Famous Scientist Eludes All Reporters and Declines Interviews.

LONDON, July 18. — (Canadian Press).— Dr. Banting of Toronto, world famous discoverer of Insulan and probably the shyest Canadian man of reputuation and fame who has ever reached England will be received by the King, this morning. Dr. Banting managed to elude all the reporters of the Anglo-American press who were lying in wait in large numbers for him and as yet has given out no interview in spite of the fact that he has been three weeks in the country, during which time he has visited Cambridge, Oxford, Edinburgh and other Acadamic centres, and has freely discussed his treatment with the leading scientists here. He has placed everyone with whom he has been in contact under a pledge of secrecy not to disclose his movements nor his whereabouts. Last night, he made his long awaited speech before the International Society of Surgeons and spoke for just two minutes. Yet this two minutes seemed a greater strain upon his nervous energy than the past two years of scientific re-search in his native city have been.

OMIT PAVEMENT ON HILL SLOPE ASHBURNHAM

Council Revises Paving Program Across the River-Several Additions Approved by Council.

WILL GET PRICE

Slight changes in the Council's paving program in Ashburnham were contemplated at last night's special meeting by proposals to extend the work on Hunter Street in front of the Westclox factory by 76 feet. to omit the pavement on the same street between Rogers Street and Armour Road, and to pave Rogers Street from Hunter Street to the entrance of the approach to St. Joseph's hospital

Notices will be given at once of the Council's intention to do the proposed Streets, and only the city's agreement with the Western Clock Company to pave Hunter Street to their factory stood in the way of a decision last night to skip the block on the face of the hill on that street between Rogers Street and Armour Road.

A Traffic Hazard

In regard to the paving of this block City Engineer Parsons said he had never approved it because of the sharp grade. Its incline is eleven per cent as compared with twelve per cent on the Avenue Road hill in Toronto. Mr. Parsons suggested that a curb and gutter be constructed in that block with a good macadam road instead of the smooth concrete pavement which at certain periods of the year would be extremely difficult for traffic mounting the hill. Rain falling and freezing would create an extremely slippery surface which vehicles might be unable to grip. It was believed that a macadam road in that block would not only be advantageous to the general public but also to the Western Clock Company. But in view of the existing agreement to pave the entire street up to the factory City Engineer Parsons was instructed to consult Mr. John H. Vernor superintendent of the plant, with respect to the proposed omission, and if his approval is obtained the Council will arrange with Mr John Carroll, the paving contractor, to leave that part of the street a blank except for the curb and gutter.

Mayor Taylor read a letter from Mr. David Conroy urging the Council to endeavor to change their plans in that particular. His Worship also communicated Mr. Vernor's request for the extension of the street pavement a slight distance beyond the terminus fixed in the original contract. The Council had decided to pave that part of Hunter Street a distance of 350 feet east of Armour Road, and Mr. Vernor has requested that it be carried 76 feet farther, or ten feet beyond the end of the main building.

"It only has to be done once," remarked Ald. Morrison, "and there's no use spoiling it. I'd say make it wide enough too, when we're at it."

Ald. Holloway had enquired whether a width of twenty feet would be sufficient, but Mr. Parson replied that he wouldn't be in favour of anything less than 24 feet and for traffic safety and convenience when cars might be passing while others were standing at the curb, the full width of 27 feet was advisable.

Ald. Morrison moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre that the company's request be granted.

A Comfort to Patients

The petition for a pavement on Rogers Street from Hunter Street to the entrance to the hospital came from Monsignor McColl who pointed out that if the city acceded to this request the driveway in the ground would be paved thereby affording a smooth riding surface from the city to the very doors of the hospital. This improvement would be a comfort to persons being taken to the hospital, Mons. McColl emphasized.

The tretch of street is 250 feet, and Mr. G. L. Hay, Mr Moloney and another resident who would be affected were reported to be favorable to the additional pavement.

Mayor Taylor moved in the Board of Works session, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that this request be granted, that the work be advertised, and that City Engineer Parsons take up with Mr. Carroll the proposed changes and obtain a price from him for this extra work.

Reversed Decision

The Council reversed its previous response to the Hamilton Realty Company for a sidewalk on the north side of Homewood Avenue from Monaghan Road to Albertus Avenue. At the preceding meeting the request was refused, but last night it was reopened and granted.

Notice will also be given of the Council's intention to construct a sewer on Dale Avenue from Engleburn Avenue to a point 150 feet west of Burnham Street.

It was also decided to lay a sidewalk on the east side of Park Street from McDonnel Street to Murray Street, and another walk on the east side of Rogers Street from Maria Street to a point 276 feet north of Maria Street.

A DELIGHTFUL TRIP TO GORE'S LANDING

Members of St. George's Sunday School Spent a Very Happy Day.

Exclamations of delight were heard on every side on Monday, when the clouds parted and the sun shone forth. It was the occasion of the annual excursion and the wee tots had been watching the weather all day Sunday to know whether the morrow would bring them pleasure or disappointment.

The day was ideal; the hot sun being tempered by a cool breeze. The trip to Gore's Landing was made in record time, and despite the reported coolness of the inhabitants, the picnickers were well received. Mrs. Harris was most kind and the picnickers were very tidy and picked up most of their rubbish. The teachers were in charge of the refreshment booth.

After dinner, the boat made the return trip to Wallace's Point, arriving about 3 o'clock.

Here the races were run and the children enjoyed the various devices, swings etc., that are there for their pleasure. The booth was well patronized, and the sign "Waste no water" on the pump, was strictly observed.

The feature of the afternoon (to the boys) was a baseball game played by a pick-up team of twelve men.

Winning Team

1st base, Charlie Allen; 2nd base, John Lesurf; Pitcher, Bill Howden; Catcher, Reginald Howden; 3rd base V. Cuffe; Centre field, E. Patterson.

Losing Team

1st base, Ted Sturgeon; 2nd base, R. Kitchen; 3rd base, Douglas Simmons; pitcher, Jim Field; Catcher, Frank Johnson; Centre Field, Bert Millard.

The score was 4-1.

After the game each boy was presented with a baseball all of which had been donated by Mr. Leslie Field.

The races, which were run under the supervision of Messrs. W. Lesurf and R. Allen as starters. Messrs L. Field and Tucker as end men and Mr. Breadman as caller-off, were much enjoyed by the younger folk, and elder folk also joined in and were rewarded for their efforts in like manner as the youngsters.

The homeward journey was commenced by a tired but happy party. All arrangements went off smoothly and with the exception of a few childish pranks and one or two minor accidents, the excursion was pronounced the finest this year.

The orchestra (Miss M. Andrews, pianist, and Messrs. R. Allen, Arnott, W. Lesurf, and Breadman, instruments), kept the younger set tripping the light fantastic toe, and sing songs were conducted in between dances.

The boat reached home about 7 p.m.

EDMONTON, Alta. — (United Press).—Romnellets, the new breed of sheep evolved by R. C. Harvey, veteran Alberta ranchman, are to be admitted to Canadian registry as a distinct type of sheep, according to an announcement of the Provincial Department of Agriculture. The new breed, which is the result of eight years of experimentation, is a scientific cross between the Romney Marsh and Rambouillet. Romnellets are said to combine the best traits of these two breeds, are possessed of superior mutton and wool qualities and are suited to prairie range conditions of the West.

DRASTIC ACTION TAKEN BY UNION HEAD IN THE N. S. MINE DIFFICULTIES

CASE REVIEWED.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 18. —(Canadian Press).—John J. Lewis, President of the International United Mine Workers in a letter to President Daniel Livingston of District 26 of the Union strongly condemned the action of the officials of that district for their action in precipitating and carry on the present strike in the Cape Briton Mines. The charter of the District was revoked and all the officers declared suspended.

In communicating his action to Daniel Livingstone, the deposed District President, Mr. Lewis bitterly denounced the officers of the District for "inciting, encouraging and conducting" the sympathetic strike.

He referred to the action of Livingstone as a "mad adventure," and said that it ruthlessly tramples upon every rule of conduct of the union.

"Your deliberate breach of the existing contract between the operators and miners of Nova Scotia is indefensible and morally reprehensible," Mr. Lewis declared.

The communication is as follows:

"Mr. Daniel Livingstone,
Care of Mine Workers' Office,
Glace Bay, N. S., Canada.

"Dear Sir:

"Since early in July some eight thousand or more of the members of the United Mine Workers in District 26 have been in a sympathetic strike. Not only did this strike interfere with the production of coal in mines working under agreement with the U. M. W. , but it resulted in the withdrawal of enginemen. pumpmen and other maintenance men with resulting jeopardy to property interests. This strike was admittedly incited, encouraged and conducted by you and your official associates who are members of the Executive Board of District 26. On July 6, after the situation had been officially drawn to my attention by the formal protest of the British Empire Steel Corporation Limited, who are arking for a statement in connection therewith. On July 6, you wired reply admitting that 9,000 men were on strike, attempting to justify the unwarrranted abrogation of contract provisions by specious argument. On the same date I telegraphed you in behalf of the International Union, a request that the men on strike be immediately directed to return to work and that provisions be made at once for the full protection of the mining properties.

"On July 8, you replied saying that my instructions would be considered at a meeting of the Executive Board of District 26 on July 10. On July 11. Alexander McIntyre, Vice-President of the District, telegraphed me that the Executive Board had declined to accede to my request and that the illegal strike would be continued until its objects were attained. Notwithstanding the lapse of time, I am informed to-day that herte is still no indication upon your part as president of Distric 26, nor on the part of your honoroble obligations under the agreement or to heed the instructions of the international union in pursurance of its low and policies.

"I am not unmindful that it is probably a fruitless task to attempt to reason with you in the midst of your mad adventure, yet in your sane moments you must recognize that the course you have been and are now pursuing violates every tenet of your organization. It ruthlessly tramples upon every rule of conduct of our union and constitutes a departure from its every tradition. Your deliberate breach of the existing contract between the operators and miners of Nova Scotia is indefensible and morally represhensible. You assault upon these lows and institutions of your Provincial and Dominion Governments cannot be countenanced by the union mine workers of America. The official statement of the District Executive Board that the strike was for political purposes is illuminating and gives additional proof, if such was needed, of your true intent. I have in mind that you are a self-proclaimed revolutionist. I am familiar with the constant intrigue between yourself and your evil genous, McLachlan, and your revolutionary masters in Moscow. I can recall the sentiments which you enunciated at a camparatively small meeting of the International Executive Board at Indianopilis when with the cold ferocity of a five-year-old defying its mother, you announced you were a believer in revolution by force.

"No doubt the present strike in Nova Scotia corresponds with your idea of a revolution against the British Government and is a nursance thereof.

"In consideration of these strange facts, the International Union feels warranted in intervening for the protection of its membership and to persumed obligations. You may as well know now as at any time in the future that the United Mine Workers organization is not a political fanatic who seeks to strike down the established institutions of his government. Neither can it be used to sustain officers of perverted business morals or individuals suffering from mentcl aberration, such as yourself, and the aggregation of papier mache revolutionists who are associated with you.

"By virtue of the authority vested in me by the constitution of the United Mine Workers of America, of which I am President, and in the conside ation of the further authority granted in the premises by the International Executive Board, I, herewith, advise that the charter of District 26, United Mine Workers of America, stands revoked, effective this date. Under this action, District 26 ceases to be an entity and you are automatically deprived of your office as president thereof. Alexander McIntyre, Vice-President, and J. B. McLachlan, as Secretary-Treasurer, likewise have their office vacated through this same precise action. All members of the Executive Board of District 26, including any and all other officers of said District are in like manner automatically removed from office and can no longer undertake to represent in any capacity the United Mine Workers of America. This applies with equal force to Alexander Stewart, member of the International Executive Board Under separate order I am to-day creating a provisional district to function within the jurisdiction of former District 26 under the direct authority and control of the International Union.

'International Representative Silby Barret, of Blace Bay, Nova Scotia, has been designated as provisional president thereof with sweeping authority to function in every proper capacity.

Mr. Hamilton withdrew from the court.

Under further cross-examination witness said he had examined the bullets with a microscope, provided by Mr. Hamilton while the same individual had made microscopic measurement s and drawings. The drawings made by Hamilton were brought with him when he met the witness. He added that he had calipered the bullets for general diameter only and not for "grooves or lands."

In regard to the different manufacturers of the "mortal bullets," the witness did not know whether the piper firm had been merged with the Fabrique Nationale. He did not think it possible that Piper bullets could have been mixed in with Fabrique Nationale cartridges when the gunsmith sold a box of the latter to a client. But he admitted it might occur in the case of a client asking for an odd number of bullets, necessitating the breaking of a box.

WOMEN MAKE EXCELLENT ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS

LONDON, July 18.—(Associated Press)—English women are turning their attention to professional vocations formerly confined exclusively to men. A number of them in London are engaged in civil, mechanical and electrical engineering, and there are at least half a dozen firms of women constructors who have completed large building contracts.

Electric lighting is a branch of domestic engineering which seems to attract many women. They perform their work more from a housewife's point of view than do men. One firm of women electricians has successfully completed several contracts for lighting country houses with electricity.

In Hertfordshire three women are lawyers, three are tinsmiths, two are dentists, four are doctors, twelve are moving picture or circus proprietors, one is a wireless operator, three are window-dressers, one is a saddler, and one an undertaker.

SAFETY CAMPAIGN.

DETROIT, July 18.— (United Press)—A great safety campaign is under way in Detroit.

Public sentiment is being aroused and the campaign is showing results in the decrease of automobile accidents, according to police.

Three local newspapers have thrown every effort into the campaign, each printing column after column of safety propaganda.

One paper fostered a boulevard system, resulting in the city council passing an ordinance. Another paper opened and operated at its own expense free automobile inspection stations. Inspections of the mechanism of automobiles resulted in discovery of many faulty machines.

The third paper started a "safety contest," giving prizes for letters making suggestions of how to make the streets safer.

STOCKS AND BONDS

... been a great boom in the mining industry. I have had many years experience in practical mining, both in Cobalt and Porcupine, and have a wide connection there. I am therefore in a position to get early and reliable information in both camps. I have made a profit for every one of my clients up to date, and shall be pleased to advise any one interested. There will be a strong market this summer and now is the time to get in.

BAD METHODS OF ELEVATORS ARE EXPLAINED

Royal Commission Was Told That Farmers Were Cheated in the Matter of Weight.

HUDSON BAY ROUTE.

MELFORT, Sask., July 18. — (Canadian Press.) — Charges of crooked dealing by an elevator company with him as a buyer were made before the Royal Grain Enquiry Commission here yesterday by F. W. Speak, a Melfort farmer and former grain buyer.

Mr. Speak swore that the company had charged him with a shortage in 1918 after he had resigned from the firm, although he had always tried to protect the company by weighing grain to deprive farmers of 15 pounds a load. He was of the opinion that the company's scales at Fort William were at fault.

Shortly after he resigned his position as buyer, he was offered a raise of $20 to go back to the company, but he had to promise to show a surplus of one per cent. This he refused. "I wouldn't do it, I couldn't do it, it was stealing," declared Mr. Speak.

The witness said the elevator used a scale from a lumber yard in weighing grain from the farmers, and a company traveller had asked: "Don't you think you could get the lumber man to fix those scales for a $5 bill?" this the witness declared, he also refused to do.

Because of the nature of the evidence the name of the company was not given by the witness, but will be disclosed when the other side of the case is presented at Moose Jaw.

Completion of the Hudson Bay route was urged by C. D. Hill of the local board of trade. He said a monopoly on shipping on the Great Lakes last fall had cost the farmers a high price per bushel. High rates on this route did not make it feasible to ship as compared with the Hudson Bay route. "The west cannot afford to raise wheat on one side of the continent and drag it to the other side. The western route is open to Alberta but we will never be able to take advantage of the route," said Mr. Hill.

Provincial Control of Schools Is Advocated.

WINNIPEG, July 18.—(Canadian Press.)—Complete control of schools in the porvince by the provincial government which would pay the salaries of the teachers was advocated as a solution for the educational problems of Mantioba by witnesses apapreaing at the first public session of the Royal Commission, appointed at the last session of the legislature, here yesterday. Another witness suggested that all the schools should be municipally controlled.

Many schools in the province are closed owing to inability to finance, according to a school inspector who testified during the morning. High cost of operating was the principal trouble.

Canadian Schooner Was Seized As Bootlegger.

BOSTON, July 18 — (Canadian Press.)— The United States Coast Guard cutter Ossipee last night was Boston-bound with two wounded rum-runners in tow, according to wireless messages intercepted here. The captive vessels were reported as the Canadian schooner Pedusak, which was said to have been taken into custody nine miles off Cape Ann and the British schooner Mattawa, bound for St. Pierre, Miq., from Havana, liquor laden, which was reported to have been captured within the three-mile limit.

The Ossipee was reported as under instructions to bring the two vessels to the outer harbor here last night and to hold them there until this morning. Instructions were also given to prevent any oft he crew of either vessel from landing.

DEALERS URGED TO STORE COAL

Canadian and American Railways Will Be Taxed to Utmost By Grain Shipments After August

That Canadian Railways will be taxed to their utmost capacity in the handling of grain and other commodities which make a great volume of business in fall, and may therefore be unable to transport coal without delay, is the warning issued by C. G. Bowker, General Manager of Central Lines, Canadian National Railways.

Mr. Bowker says: "The American Railway Association advise us it is expected that the transportation facilities of the United States Railroads will, commencing about September first, and continuing through the fall and winter, be taxed to their utmost in the movement of the crops of the country added to the usual increased movement of all commodities which invariably occurs in the fall and early winter, and to assist in relieving the contemplated crowded condition, shippers and consignees generally are being urged to take advantage of the time between now and September to get their supply of coal, thereby avoiding any annoyance which delay in transportation might cause. The railways of Canada may feel this pressure even more, as our proportion of grain and coal to our total movement is greater than in the United States.

Mr. A. MacNab, Peterborough, station agent, is asked to urge upon coal dealers and industries the importance of completing their annual contracts for their expected requirements at the earliest possible date, and of storing coal to the limit of their capacity. Prompt unloading of cars, he is told, will be a factor in helping out the situation.

"If shippers and consignees along the lines of the Canadian National Railways" Mr. Bowker continues, "will give consideration to this suggestion, and act upon it, they will assist the American and Canadian Railways to overcome a situation which it is believed will be a severe tax upon their transportation facilities, and at the same time benefit themselves."

LLOYD GEORGE HAS RETURNED TO LIMELIGHT

Obvious Co-operation Between Former Premier and Austen Chamberlain Is Cause of Comment.

RE-UNION TALK.

LONDON, July 18.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—There was an important debate in the house of commons yesterday on an amendment to the Indian Loan Bill which sought to stipulate that seventy-five per cent. of the money raised in London under the bill should be spent in the United Kingdom.

Austen Chamberlain (Conservative) and Lloyd George, (leader of the national liberals) supported the proposal and the under secretary for India, Earl Winterton opposed it and cited figures showing that ninety-five per cent of the amount spent by the Indian railway companies on materials outside of India was expected in Great Britain. He asked Mr. Chamberlain if it was intended to apply the principle to all the Dominions and Colonies who borrow in London. If so he was advocating a difficult proposition.

The amendment was negatived without a division and the bill passed the committee stage.

The surprise of the sitting was the intervention of former Premier Lloyd George and the obvious co-operation between him and Austen Chamberlain and this development is already the subject of considerable comment in political circles. It is thought the discussion may indeed have a certain reaction on the liberal re-union plans for the views expressed by Lloyd George are hardly likely to commend themselves to the Asquithians.

While Lloyd George avowed himself a free trader it appears improbable that some of the views he expressed will be accepted by the orthodox free traders and his suggestion that the country had been following a financial policy determined by the bankers rather than the industrialists is interpreted in some quarters as an indication that he is evolving a policy of imperial development.

WEDDING BELLS

TENEY—DAVIS.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday at 4 o'clock at St. Paul's Manse, Peterboro, of Estella May, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Davis, Smith township, to Clark Agnew, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Teney of Cobourg. The young couple were unattended and left on the 9 o'clock train for Rochester, where they will reside.

EXPERT THOUGHT MORE THAN ONE PISTOL USED IN DELORME SHOOTING

His Examination Led Him to Believe That Bullets Were of Different Make —Hard to Identify.

DANGEROUS WITNESS.

MONTREAL, July 18.— (Canadian Press.)— L. C. Horton, handwriting expert for the defence, resuming his evidence yesterday afternoon in the trial of Rev. Father Delorme on a charge of having murdered his half brother, Raoul, declared to the court of King's Bench that he could not state definitely whether the writing on the package addressed to Chief of Provincial Police Lorrain which contained the victim's watch was or was not in the handwriting of the accused.

His statement was: "I find throughout this specimen of handwriting here similarities are of such a chaarcter as to lead me to hte conclusion:

"'1—That I cannot with reasonable certainty say that the defendant did not write the writing on the package.

"'2—That the divergencies also are of such a character that I could not say that he may have written the writing upon this package. So my opinion cuts both ways'."

Mr. Horton went into a detailed consideration of the capital letters "P" and "Q," in the address on the package, pointing out that the "Q" belonged to an obsolete style of writing, prevalent 40 years ago, but not employed generally in the last 25 years. In the writing of the accused the modern style of "Q" appeared throughout all his writing without exception. Further, the writing on the package was the first instance he had ever seen of a questioned writing in which there was so much grace in the capitals. Witness then gave the conclusion he had arrived at, in the terms set forth above.

William A. Jones, fire-arms expert to the police department and the District Attorney's department of the city of New York was then called by the defence. He had been for 17 years in charge of the school for pistol practice of the New York police force, firing about 6,000 cartridges a day. He was familiar with the different makes of pistols and revolvers in the market at the present time in America and also with the different makes of cartridges and of the powders with which they are loaded.

THE HYDRO COMMISSION.

According to the semi-official organ of the U.F.O., the Toronto Star, the United Farmers are going to press for the privilege of nominating a representative on the Hydro-Electric Commission if the municipalities are allowed to nominate a member.

There was nothing heard from this source as to direct representation of either municipalities or rural districts on the Commission, when the the U.F.O. Government was in power.

Now, however, when at last the municipalities which are chiefly responsible for the launching and carrying out of the public ownership of power in this province are to receive proper recognition, the U.F.O. which failed for four years to see the justice of the contention of the municipalities come along with a demand for something to which they clearly have not as much claim as have the interests which were refused representation during the regime that has just ended.

The rural attitude towards Hydro power matters should be fairly well interpreted by Hon. J. R. Cooke, whose views on this question have been frequently stated.

THE LIFT LOCK'S POOR JUDGMENT.

It is difficult to get angry with one of Peterborough's greatest lions, the attraction that is mentioned everywhere that this city is talked about and to which every visitor is as a matter of course taken.

The reference is to the Lift Lock.

And yet it must be confessed that this wonderful piece of engineering skill showed a regrettable lack of judgment in selecting this week as the time for a breakdown.

This week when such important visitors as the Vice-President of the Curtis Publishing Company of Philadelphia and three representatives of prominent American newspapers are on tour through the Trent waterway, was about the most awkward period of the whole year for the Lift Lock to kick over the traces.

For these visitors spell publicity and spell it in capital letters, and while they were delighted with the canal trip and the scenic charm of the waterway, much enjoyment has been taken out of the voyage by the enforced wait here, which has seriously interfered with their schedule.

It is to be hoped they don't return home and explode their ire in flaring type all over the pages of their journals.

For they should understand that Peterborough's Lift Lock is almost always a most tractable affair, ready to do its "stuff" at all times for the benefit of visitors and residents, and not in the least the balky creation that it must seem to these unlucky journalists.

"JAY-WALKING" MOTORISTS.

Much of the argument used in defending motorists from charges of careless driving is based on what is called the "jay-walking" habits of pedestrians.

Undoubtedly there are too many people who cross streets in the middle of a block who fail to look both ways before crossing, who bury their heads in newspapers and sail blithely out into the traffic.

But if there are "jay-walking" pedestrians there are "jay-walking" motorists—if the term may be used.

Everybody knows the type—the drivers who use the paved portion of Peterborough's streets as a permanent driveway, and who spend hours nearly every evening merely driving up and down these few streets, cluttering up the traffic and appearing so frequently as to constitute their cars a nuisance.

It is nobody's place to dictate to people where or at least on what streets they should drive, and yet there is so much of this aimless, unnecessary, stupid motoring on these principal streets that it causes natural wonder.

A few years ago a favourite Sunday evening practice of a certain standard of young men was to hire a horse and buggy and drive up and down George street.

The custom of the horse era seems to have been handed down to many of the motoring fraternity, who make the same rounds as in the old days, but with more noise and more chance of an accident.

TIME FOR COOL THOUGHT.

There is an inevitable reaction after every act committed in a moment of impulse, whether of anger or any other emotion, says the Montreal Star. The miners now on strike in Cape Breton have arrived at an impasse which compels them to take thought and face contingencies they never anticipated when they quit the mines. The International Union authorities have repudiated their action. The order to return to work has been ignored. The men are without funds. Their own treasury is empty. They cannot get any aid from their own union. They are reduced to begging from various labor bodies and to appeal for credit from local merchants.

The moment has come when cool thought has a chance. The men may adopt any external attitude they please, but it is contrary to human nature for any man possessing intelligence to continue to have faith in a plan of action which brings him up against the stone wall of cold failure in every direction. The members of the union know very well that in the repudiation of their action at their own international headquarters they have been discredited not only before the general public, but in the eyes of labor generally. They cannot hope to hold out for any length of time under existing conditions. They cannot expect any more than occasional aid from an occasional labor organization. They have thrown down their tools for a principle their own international refuses to recognize as just, and they are imposing hardships upon their wives and children by adherence to a stand it is impossible for them to justify in the labor world.

There is no public feeling against labor as such in this Dominion. The general sentiment of the Canadian is with labor in all its reasonable efforts to advance its own cause and to improve working conditions and scales of pay. But it is by hasty, headstrong repudiation of agreements and reckless defiance of union orders that labor hurts itself most severely and alienates sympathy from its cause.

APPALLING FIRE LOSSES.

A report received by Fire Chief Gimblett from Grove Smith, the Dominion Superintendent of Insurance at Ottawa, gives some figures as to the fire losses in Canada last year that are startling enough to make the most careless citizen do some thinking.

There were no fewer than 26,894 fires in Canada last year, the greatest number in the history of this country.

The insurance companies paid fire losses amounting to $54,370,000, and if other charges incidental to fire protection are added to this sum the total arrived at is $104,580,000, representing an annual tax of $6.10 for every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

Here is the list of fires in the various Provinces last year, with the loss per capita:

	Fires.	Loss Per Capita.
Alberta	1,488	$3.49
British Columbia	1,659	6.15
Manitoba	1,800	5.40
New Brunswick	1,170	7.74
Nov. Scotia	1,210	4.46
Prince Edward Island	134	4.23
Ontario	10,269	7.31
Quebec	6,697	5.85
Saskatchewan	1.941	4.21

The report indicates that the tendency throughout Canada is towards an increased number of fires. Ontario, for example, had to report in 1922 a fire loss of $22,018,092.

The material damage is serious enough, but it is small compared to the loss of life. It is shocking to know that 227 people met death through fires last year as compared with 224 in the previous year and 150 in 1920.

And the sorry thing about it all is that seventy-five out of every 100 at least of the fires were preventable. Three out of every four were the result of carelessness on somebody's part.

The sooner the people of Canada—and in this respect we in Ontario seen to be the worst offenders—learned the three "C's" of fire prevention: (1) common sense, (2) cleanliness, (3) carefulness, the better it will be for this country.

We cannot go on burning up hundreds of millions of dollars in property and killing scores of people every year.

"CAN CANADA BE SAVED?"

Under this heading the Montreal Star emits this turgid wail:

"There are times when silence is treason.

"Occasions come when the Thing that every man of intelligence knows and whispers behind his hand to someone he can trust—but which he is afraid to speak aloud lest the very speaking precipitate the disaster he dreads—must be shouted boldly from the housetops if the people are to be awakened to the danger that overhangs them.

"Today in the board-rooms of powerful corporations, in the head offices of great financial institutions, in exclusive clubs and wherever the men foregather whose business it is to know about the financial condition of the country, a thing is being said that threatens the life of this nation—and yet the busy people of Canada, intent on making a living, are left in fatal ignorance of the impending peril.

"This unspeakable thing which threatens the life of the nation is the fact that, though the war has been over for nearly five years, our national debt is still rising by the hundred million—that our railways, built to serve twenty million people, are piling up deficits at the same ruinous rate—that floods of immigrants who will stay in the country, use our railways and pay taxes, constitute the only conceivable cure for this desperate condition—and yet, so little is being done to get and keep these immigrants that it is hard to credit we are not being sacrificed by a policy of deliberate neglect.

"What is whispered behind the hand is that, if this keeps up, Canada is doomed within the next quarter of a century. This is the thing we are now hiding, but which the Canadian people have every right to know."

Somebody should tie a wet towel around the Star editor's head, bathe his feet in hot water well saturated with mustard, and after his temperature gets back to normal, make him acquainted with the following facts:

That at the present time the Canadian people have $1,837,000,860 invested in Dominion of Canada bonds.

That their demand deposits in the chartered banks of Canada total $537,340,000.

That Canada's international trade is the highest since Confederation, and that our exports exceed our imports.

That our revenue is the highest in our history.

That despite the predictions and hopes of the Star and those it speaks for, the Canadian National Railways are now paying operating expenses and are in a fair way to take care of fixed charges within the near future.

That thus far in the present year immigration exceeds last year by 43 per cent., and that the main increase is from the British Isles.

That Canada's credit in the money markets of the world was never higher than at present.

And that there is every evidence—thank Providence—of a coming abundant crop.

Having properly digested these facts the Star editor ought to submit them to the noble lord who guides the Star's destinies and ask him what comparison they make with conditions in the lands across the sea which the noble gentleman has just visited.

This, aided by a little golf in the afternoon, and a little poetry before retiring at night, coupled with the reappearance of cool weather, ought to make for a complete cure.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterborough as a municipality apparently does not care whether her citizens freeze or not next winter.

A still has been captured near Trent Bridge. There are plenty of attractions left down in that neighborhood, however.

Peterborough's exhibition is only a couple of months away. It is getting time to think about that fuel supply.

Cash Grain.

MONTREAL, July 1).—(Canadian Press). — The domestic cash grain market was quite yesterday. Trade in flour is slow. The market for mill feed was without now a feature. A fair business was done in baled hay, but the market for rolled oats was quiet. The eggs market remains remarkably steady. There was a fair trade in potatoes. Business is slow both in butter and cheese.

Chicago Wheat.

CHICAGO, July 18. — (Canadian Press).—New breaks in the season's low price record for all future deliveries of wheat took place yesterday and for the first time this season, the September delivery sold under 98c a bushel. Hodging sales of newly hervested wheat, together with inadequacy of demand, had much to do with the fresh setbacks in price. Closing quotations were unsettled, varying from 5-8c net decline to 1-4c advance, September 96 5-8 to 96 3-4, anda December 99 1-4 to 99 1-2c.

MEXICO NEEDS ARTISANS

MEXICO CITY, July 18.—(Associated Press).—Storming of executive offices by office seekers at a ratio of 100 applicants for every government post has prompted General Calles, secretary of government and a presidential possibility for 1924, to declare for more manual training and less arts and science schools for Mexico.

"Mexico should create practical men, not social parasites," he is quoted as asserting. "The tendency to attempt to create professional men is a mistake. Of every 100 students hardly 20 secure degrees, and the remaining 80 dedicate themselves to securing public office."

An Orange Event.

The District Orangemen's parade held in Warsaw brought a large crowd. The visiting lodges arrived about 10 a.m. They were from North Dummer, South Dummer, Havelock, Belmont and Methuen.

HOW TO KEEP FIT AT 72

Sprightly Old Man Reveals the Secret

"I am 72 years old, and much more vigorous and active than most men of my age. I know that my excellent condition is due to the fact that I take two or three doses of Wincarnis every day, because I never felt as well before I began taking it. I used to tire very quickly and suffer from wakefulness and had to bundle myself up whenever it was damp or drafty. But since I began taking Wincarnis I have had the energy and endurance of a middle-aged man, sleep soundly and withstand the severest of weather. I have noticed that Wincarnis keeps my appetite keen and that it strengthens my nerves and heart. If my fingers tremble and my heart flutters or I feel symptoms of depression or weakness, a dose of Wincarnis gives me relief within a few minutes."

is well illustrated by the thousands of women who are entering every profession, almost every line of business and politics as well. They are bound to make good, and there is no question but what health is their greatest asset. Many women, however, develop weak, nervous conditions and cannot stand the strain of a professional or business life. Such women should remember when beset with headaches, backache, nervousness, irritability or any ailment peculiar to their sex that the greatest of all remedies for such conditions is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For nearly fifty years this old-fashioned root and herb medicine has been restoring the women of America to health and strength. It holds the remarkable record of helping 98 out of every 100 women who try it.

BABY SHOW WILL BE FAIR FEATURE

Special Prizes For Babies Who Develop Most.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, at an organization meeting this spring for the purpose of arranging a programme, decided on a baby contest in connection with the fair.

A committee was appointed and this committee met with members of the Welfare Babies' Clinic and arrangements have been completed whereby the latter organization will co-operate in every way possible with the Fair Board in making the contest a success.

The following is a general idea of what will be done.

First, second and third prizes will be given for the best baby boys in one class and baby girls in another class, up to ages 18 months. Prizes will also be given for the best baby boys and baby girls in different classes from ages 18 months to 3 years. Prizes will be given for the baby boy and the baby girl showing the most improvement in physical condition from now until the time of the exhibition. In this particular, it might be pointed out that this latter class is for children who are under-developed or under-nourished and who will go to the Welfare Babies' Clinic on Tuesday afternoon and have a record of the baby's case kept from Tuesday next, July 24th, until the date of the Fair. It does not make any difference how poorly the child is when it starts at the Clinic, if it improves sufficiently over its condition during the period to win a prize over other babies it will be the winner.

While prizes in the contest other than the under-developed children will be given to the best looking and best kept babies, still at the same time the physical test will be made which will have a bearing on the prize winners and the Welfare Babies' Clinic invites the mothers of all babies to bring their children to the Clinic, which meets at the G.W.V.A. Hall every Tuesday afternoon, where there is a staff of doctors, nurses and ladies, who can give information that will be of untold value to the health of the child.

As far as possible the committee would like all children who are going to be entered in all the contests to have records kept from Tuesday next until the contest is over. Any mother and child will be most heartily welcome at the Clinic in the G.W.V.A. Hall on Tuesday. A list of prizes will be published shortly.

Serious Forest Fires Are Menace in Quebec.

MONTREAL, July 18.— (Canadian Press.)—A despatch from Quebec to the Montreal Le Devoir states that forest fires are growing more and more menacing in the Province of Quebec and the latest reports received by the Department of Lands and Forests show that the St. Maurice district is specially affected. A great fire has broken out on the upper reaches of the Loutre river, while fires are reported at Lakes Caucher, Flamand, Soney, Dore, Manouau, Catiso and Mauster along the Pierriche river.

On the Lievere river reinforcements of fire wardens have been sent out to fight the flames. Fires are ravaging the forests at Escalana and near Baraute.

Australia Lacks Military Defence.

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 18.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The annual report of General Sir Henry George Chauvel, inspector-general of the Australian military forces, which has just been presented to parliament, is notable for its outspoken criticism of the "false ideas of security" entertained in the Commonwealth.

The report deplores the complacent acceptance by the public of the recent drastic denuding of the country"s defences, particularly in view of the rapidly diminishing value of Australia's former soldiers as a potential reserve. General Chauvel adds that it is impossible under the existing scheme to train an army for the defence of Australia.

Racing Information Was Sold in Ottawa.

OTTAWA, July 18.— (Canadian Press.)—In connection with the new racing information bill, Chief of Police Alex. Ross announced yesterday that before any action was taken locally in regard to the bill a notice would be inserted in the newspapers warning the public of the coming into force of the act. In the meantime local newspapers, in accordance with the act, have stopped publishing prices and odds laids on winners and advance tips, while outside papers from Quebec province and the United States are publishing the prohibited information and are selling unchecked here.

EXPERT THOUGHT

C. H. Cahan, K.C. for the defence, took the witness over the ground covered by the crown in respect of the three bullets found in the body of the victim and of a fourth test bullet fired from the abbe's Bayard revolver. The witness said he had examined all these bullets under a microscope and he also examined the Bayard revolver found in the possession of the accused. Mr. Cahan asked the witness to assume that the test bullet had been fired from the accused's revolver and then asked him to state if any or all of the three bullets found in the body were fired from the same pistol. Witness replied that the three so-called "mortal bullets," carried no marks anything like the marks from the accused's weapon. One of the mortal bullets moreover, was in his opinion not of Fabrique Nationale make, with which he was acquainted. It was was piper ammunition. The other two mortal bullets were modern ammunition, but in his view there was a difference between them. He gave technical details in support of his conclusion, but when asked by the crown to make a drawing of these for the information of the jury, declined on the ground that he had paarlysis of one hand and could not draw.

Mr. Cahan: From your examination of the bullets—taken from the body of Raoul Delorme, will you tell me, in your opinion as an expert, whether more than one pistol was used in firing the shots.

Witness— Yes, sir. There was more than one.

Mr. Cahan—How many pistols did you say were used in firing those three bullets?

Witness— There must have been two.

In further evidence the witness declared he had found the pistol of the accused in perfect condition as to its barrel, while the weapon showed no signs of having been over-oiled.

The defence then put in another Bayard revolver, being the next revolver in number prior to the number of the abbe's weapon. Witness said he would expect to find in such a weapon scratches or other characteristics on a bullet fired from one Bayard pistol of a certain number similar to those on a bullet fired from a Bayard pistol of the preceding number of the series or the next succeeding number of the series. He gave as his reason for this that the rifle tools used in pistols made successively in this way would be the same.

Coming to the photographs enlarged from pictures of tinfoil and carbon paper impressions of bullets, witness gave it as his opinion that it was impossible by rolling bullets on tin foil and carbon paper to produce anything like a fair representation of either the grooves or the markings of bullets which had been fired. Asked why by the court, the witness said it was because of the formation of the bullet. On account of the shape of the bullets he thought it would be impossible to get a fair impartial print of the grooving and scratchings or markings on the bullet.

Handed a number of bullets which have figured in evidence, in the case, the witness then declared that they had been fired from Colt, Browning and Mauser pistols. The final question by Mr. Cahan was:

"From your examination of the bullets found in the body of Raoul Delorme tell me whether these bullets were fired from the pistol of the accused."

Witness: "I do not think they were fired from that pistol."

R. L. Calder, K.C., for the crown, then examined.

He asked the witness where he had obtained the Bayard pistol which had been filed to-day. Witness replied that he got it from a Mr. Hamilton. This Mr. Hamilton was staying at the Windsor Hotel. Mr. Calder asked that the High Constable be at once sent to the hotel in order that Mr. Hamilton might be held at the disposal of the court. At this point an individual rose in the well-of the court and said: "He is here."

Mr. Calder then asked that Mr. Hamilton be excluded from the court while the witness gave his testimony and that he remain at the disposition of the court.

Alleyn Taschereau, K.C., protested against the exclusion of Hamilton since all the crown experts had remained in the court.

Mr. Calder: I will tell you why. I will tell you that Mr. Hamilton is a dangerous witness. On further protests by counsel for the defence Mr. Calder said: "I am instructed that Mr. Hamilton is known all over the United States as a fabricator of evidence."

How to Make Raspberry or Blackberry Jam

Crush well about 2 quarts ripe berries in separate portions, so that each berry is thoroughly mashed. This allows fruit to quickly absorb sugar during the short boil. Measure 4 level cups (2 lbs.) into large kettle, add 7 level cups (3 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for one full minute, remove from fire and stir in half bottle (scant ½ cup) Certo. From time jam is taken off fire, allow to stand not over 5 minutes, by the clock, before pouring. In the meantime, skim, and stir occasionally to cool slightly. Then pour quickly. If in open glasses, paraffin at once. If in jars, seal at once, and invert for 10 minutes to sterilize the tops.

BATTLE FOR PACIFIC SINCE GERMANY LOST HER NAVAL STRENGTH

Atlantic Ocean Lost Supremacy and England is Concentrating on Mediterranean and Pacific—Japan Looks For New Lands.

BRITAIN'S NEW BASE.

By CHAS. McCANN

LONDON, July 18 (United Press).—The Atlantic has lost its supremacy as the naval ocean. Naval history, if any, during the next few years, will be written in the Pacific and Mediterranean.

America has made the Pacific the cruising ground for her main fleet. Now Great Britain is rapidly making her Mediterranean fleet her big one. Coincidently she is keeping an eye open toward the South Pacific.

Germany's elimination from second place among maritime powers automatically eliminated the Atlantic as the chief naval danger-spot.

Turkey's comeback, which less than a year ago threatened England with a war to keep open her trade routes to the Far East, caused the British decision to concentrate in the Mediterranean.

Look to the Pacific

Japan's over-population and her imminent need for expansion, has caused both the United States and England to look toward the Pacific—the United States to protect Hawaii and the Philippines; Great Britain to assure protection to Australia and New Zealand and, a little further away, India.

News of Great Britain's changed policy is leaking out slowly.

Last autumn there was serious danger of a war in the Near East, with England and Turkey as the first, though perhaps not the only, belligerents. Reinforcements were rushed to the Mediterranean fleet from the Atlantic. These have not come back.

A few weeks ago news came from Malta that one of the destroyer flotillas sent to the Mediterranean would be relieved by another from the Atlantic fleet, instead of merely being separated from what had been intended as temporary duty. Speculation as to the reason was soon followed by indirect news that Great Britain's grand fleet in future would be that in the Mediterranean.

It is understood now that by next autumn the Mediterranean fleet already powerful, will be permanently strengthened by the five vessels of the Royal Sovereign class—the latest and greatest battleships of the British navy.

At present one of the ships—the Royal Oak — is being overhauled at Portsmouth. It is understood that when it leaves it will go to the Mediterranean with its sister ships, the Revenge, Ramillies, Resolution and Royal Sovereign, now nominally the Second Division of the first Atlantic Battle Squadron. The last four ships were all lent to the Mediterranean fleet during the recent Turkish crisis. Two of them—the Royal Sovereign and Resolution—are still there.

Powerful British Ships

These ships are of 30,000 tons, with eight 15-inch and fourteen 6-inch guns. They have a speed of 22 to 23 knots a hour, and are heavily armor-plated. Speed in them has been sacrificed to protection.

While she is building up its Mediterranean fleet to what it used to be before Germany made the Atlantic the war-ocean, Great Britain is preparing to develop her strength in the Pacific.

Australia and New Zealand, underpopulated and under-protected, are what the over-populated and navally strong Japanese need to take care of their surplus population—one of those of the Philippines.

Plans for a big naval base at Singapore, whence ships could be rushed to the Pacific, have been approved. Work on the base is soon to be started. The Mediterranean fleet will keep open the route to it, and use the route itself if necessary. Naval experts expect the Atlantic, with the United States and Great Britain as the principal maritime powers, to be another Canadian border. Great Britain will be supreme in the Mediterranean. As to the Pacific, the experts are hoping for the best.

GREAT DISCOVERY IN NEW TREATMENT FOR WHITE PLAGUE

Oxford Professor Reports Great and Valuable Results from Predicted Method of Inoculation Now Proved by Experiment — Large Scale Results a Long Way Off.

LONDON, July 18.—A very important advance in the treatment of consumption and other forms of tuberculosis was announced by Professor G. Dreyer, of Oxford University, in the course of a special lecture delivered at the Institute of Pathology and Research, attached to St. Mary's Hospital, London. This indeed, practically amounts to a new method of treating tuberculosis and many other diseases due to infection by germs, the basis of this latest method being an immensely more efficacious system of inoculation than has hitherto been known.

Before a distinguished audience of medical men and women keenly interested in scientific research, Dr. Dreyer, who is a Professor of Bacteriology at Oxford, detailed the line of thought that led him to the momentous discovery he had to announce. Starting from the admitted facts that, whereas in a few instances, such as the prevention of typhoid fever, inoculation has given us excellent results, yet in the case of many other infections the effects of vaccine injections have been uncertain, and often disappointing, an endeavor was made to find out just why some germs lent themselves so readily to the preparation of a successful vaccine and others not. In this field of research, as the result of innumerable experiments and much laborious testing, success has been finally achieved.

Stripping the Germ

The point at issue is a highly technical one, but it may be colloquially regarded as being an affair of protective covering on the part of our germ enemies. Every germ, however minute, has a "coat," and the new work has shown that that coat contains some substance that prevents the natural defensive mechanism of the body from destroying it. The next step was to discover the nature of the protective covering; and here again success rewarded the patience of Dr. Dreyer and his assistants, for they have been able to show that this is of a fatty nature. In a word, then, the fatter the germ the more dangerous it may be, and the more difficult to make a vaccine preparation from—a vaccine being that solution of dead germs which is injected into the body in the hope that it will stimulate the blood to form substances destructive of live germs of the same kind that have attacked any particular individual.

Professor Dreyer then argued that if he could by some means remove the fat from the "coats" of the germs he would make them far more amendable to vaccine preparation; in other words, if he could kill the germs and then reduce them from fat (dead) germs to thin (dead) germs he would be able to produce a vaccine of enormously increased power as compared to those hitherto used. The story of how this was accomplished is one of consummate technical method; it suffices to say that a way has been found of making fat germs thin—the result of the process being called an "antigen" —and then using them with the advantages hoped for. One of the most remarkable features of this research has been that after the initial discovery about the fat in the microbe and the part it played in protection, the predictions made about a very powerful inoculation method being within sight have come true. It has been prediction proved by experiment, rather than discovery unexpectedly following research.

Remarkable Results

Now for results. It has been proved beyond doubt that the preparations now possible have remarkable curative value in certain animals suffering from tuberculosis; and not only with tuberculosis, but with many other infections, including anthrax, have successe been obtained. Moreover, the field of investigation and successful result has now been transferred from the laboratory to the hospital with most encouraging results. Some sixty cases or more of tuberculosis of various part of the body—lungs (consumption), skin, internal organs, and so orth—have been recently under this new treatment at the London Hospital, and i is reported that the uniformity of improvement shown has been very remarkable. In one group, selected particularly on account of the duration of the tuberculous malady and its intractibility to treatment in each patient, it has been found that a steady improvement has occurred throughout. We may, indeed, be on the verge of a real and manageable method of curing tuberculosis by inoculation; the outlook is extraordinarily hopeful at the moment. But, in view of hopes that have been prematurely raised in the past by successes that seemed to point the way to a conquest of this scourge, it behoves us to be cautious in regard to this new method. Professor Dreyer himself, whilst admittedly most hopeful, is the first to advise caution, and to utter a warning that however successful at present, the method is one that can only be used by highly skilled experts and certainly cannot yet be placed in the hands of the general physician or family doctor. If successful in one form of infectious disease it is certainly to be anticipated that the new treatment will be equally successful in many other wide-spread maladies for which we now have no cure

Medical Men's Report

The cases at the London Hospital have been under the observation of Dr. Fildes and Dr. Western, and their report to Dr. Dreyer is as follows:

We have under treatment with Dreyer's antigen sixty cases of tuberculosis. Among these are thirty-six cases of tuberculosis adenitis, eleven cases of cutaneous tuberculosis, four cases of pulmonary tuberculosis, both active pyrexial and apyrexial, three cases of joint and bone tuberculosis, one case of peritonitis, one case of tuberculosis of the urinary tract, one case of iridocyclitis, and three cases of epididymitis. Most of these cases have been under our personal observation for considerable periods, up to five years, and have been slected for treatment as having shown little improvement under treatment with tuberculin B. E. (Koch). Improvement has taken place in nearly all cases, and is, in our opinion, of an order which exceeds obviously that obtainable by any other form of treatment which is applicable to these conditions. We have not observed any toxic effect following on the inoculations. With regard to the effect of these antigens on other bacterial infections, we have treated six cases of streptococcal infection, such as septicaemia, erysipelas, and ostemyelitis, seventeen cases of staphylococcal infection, such as sycosis barbae, furunculosis, &c., and five cases of gonorrhoeal infection. Undoubtedly the course of the disease in many of thes cases has been satisfactory as compared with previous experience with vaccine-treated cases. The issue, however, has not always been so straightforward, and therefore an opinion based on three week's experience must be more reserved. In due course a detailed account of these cases will be published.

The exact manner in which immunised persons are enabled to destroy bacteria is not really known. In some cases the microbes are dissolved, and disappear from the blood, while in others they are eaten up and destroyed by "phagocytic" cells in the blood. This latter method of defence against disease by phagocytosis has been made familiar in this country by Sir Almroth Wright, and his former co-workers, Sir William Leishman, Captain Douglas, Professor Bulloch, and Dr. Western. It constitutes the well-known "opsonic" theory, in which the blood produces "opsonin," a substance which acts as a "sauce" to the microbes, and makes them more palatable to the blood cells or phagocytyes which are ready to consume them.

The application of this theory takes the form of inoculating into an infected patient a dose of the infecting microbe, previously killed. This killing process makes the method harmless, and also probably increases the value of the dose as a stimulator of opsonin. This is the process which has been practised by the inoculation department for the last eighteen years with a variable degree of success. In some diseases the results have been satisfactory, but in others poor. In order to be successful, the microbes which are inoculated must be digestible by the tissues of the patient. If they are so tough that they remain under the skin like grains of sand they do not cause the production of antibodies in the blood of the patient. If a patient is fed on uncooked peas they are not digested and assimilated into his body as food; similarly, if he is injected with indigestible bacilli he does not absorb them, and so does not produce anti-bodies against them.

Now Captain Douglas showed in 1921 that the indigestibility of some microbes was due to a coating of fat which surrounded them and prevented the juices of the body from getting at them. If he dissolved away the fat these microbes could be easily digested, and if such "defatted" microbes were injected into an animal they gave rise to a better production of antibody. Unfortunately, Captain Douglas found that with most bacteria the coat of fat was stuck so hard that he could not dissolve it off, and so he was not able to apply his new idea to the treatment of disease.

The Tubercle Germ

At this point Dreyer came upon the scene. Among the bacteria which Captain Douglas failed to defat was the tubercle bacillus. The tubercle bacillus is always made visible under the microscope by straining its fatty coat with a particular aniline dye, and Professor Dreyer, years before, had noticed that this dye would not stick to the bacillus when the diseased tissue in which it was present had been "pickled" in a certain manner. It will be understood that all tissues from the post-mortem room which have to be examined are pickled in various ways to preserve them, and Professor Dreyer noticed that tuberculous tissues pickled with formalin and then preserved in spirit did not seem to contain many tubercle bacilli. He now recollected this point, and thought it possible that the tubercle bacilli which had been pickled with formalin might have been defatted more easily by the spirit in which they had been preserved, so that the stain had no fatty coat to stick to and they became invisible. He therefore took a culture of tubercle bacilli, pickled it with formalin, and then tried the same method of defatting which Douglas had used. He immediately found that his surmise was correct, that he could now easily defat the bacillus so that it became digestible. Further, as he anticipated, when these defatted tubercle bacilli were injected into animals these animals produced much more anti-body than when they had been treated with ordinary tubercle bacilli.

He was now in a position to try the effect of these defatted bacilli upon the treatment of disease in animals by inoculation. Toree remarkable experiments are described in detail in his paper. The guinea pig is extremely susceptible to tuberculosis. If inoculated with a minute dose of bacilli they always die in several weeks or months, and this is so certain that guinea pigs are used as a test for the presence of tubercle bacilli in sputum or urine when the bacilli are two few in number to find by other means. He therefore took four guinea pigs which had been inoculated with tubercle bacilli and showed signs of tuberculosis, such as great loss of weight, enlarged glands, etc. Three of these he treated by inoculation of defatted bacilli and one he left alone. The three treated guinea pigs soon began to put on weight and their enlarged glands began to get smaller. As treatment proceeded they became heavier, until they attained the same weight as normal guinea pigs of the same age; their glands became smaller and smaller until they vanished. But the untreated guinea pig remained unchanged, and is slowly going down hill. One of the cured guinea pigs was killed, and it was found that all the tuberculosis inside it had practically disappeared.

Not Exaggerating

While repeating the warning already given against immature jubilation, Dr. Fildes says that when he and Dr. Western describe the benefit from the new tubercle inoculations as being "obviously greater than any other forms of treatment" they are not exaggerating; and he states that they have evidence of the following facts:

Cases of surgical tuberculosis, such as joint or kidney tubercle, will show manifest improvement after they have been almost "given up." We have no reason to suppose that such cases, or at any rate less advanced cases, will not become arrested and cured.

Children with glandular tubercle benefit obviously; their health improves and the glands diminish progressively in size. We anticipate that they will ultimately disappear.

Skin ulcerations and lupus heal up, or are healing up, in a manner which may be described as remarkable. We estimate that this treatment will have a decisive effect upon the method of dealing with such patients.

With regard to bacteria other than the tubercle bacillus, Dr. Fildes states that good results have been obtained, particularly in the treatment of anthrax among animals. "There is no doubt," he says, "that the principle is applicable to all diseases in man;" but before the method is seen to best advantage in some of these diseases a great deal of research will be necessary upon actual cases.

Difficulties Ahead

There are two very material factors, the doctors insist, which militate against the development of this remarkable aid to suffering humanity. The first is lack of nurses and the second is lack of money. At the moment there are only twelve beds available for patients under this treatment at the London Hospital, and it is necessary to have the patient in the hospital for the initial stages of the inoculation, for if perfect quiet is not observed at this period the good results may be negatived. There are in this hospital 150 beds, some of which would be available for this purpose if the necessary number of nurses were forthcoming, but the doctors state with regret that the noblest profession of all for women seems to hold no attraction for the right type of modern girl.

The production of the vaccine on a large scale is also a difficult matter, as nine-tenths of the original substance is lost in the process of de-fatting. The supply must, therefore, remain very restricted until the production can be carried out on a commercial scale. Meanwhile the ultimate results are long way off, and without facilities for research and extension of the treatment the wonderful weapon remains forged but not fully tempered.

WINTER DISEASES, LIKE FLU, LARGELY DUE TO SUMMER HABITS

Everyone remembers the dread flu following the war. Few recall the absence of flu and most diseases during the war, or know that neither before, during, nor after the war, were flu, pneumonia, etc., prevalent among races not following civilization's food habits. Why was this?

Blood must be kept alkaline by eating alkaline foods, yet civilized races refine out of their most important foods—the grains—the alkaline salts, just to make flour white, cereals dainty. The result is acid blood. Acids leave the blood by the skin, linings of nose, throat, lungs, etc., irritating these surfaces and lowering body vitality, enabling disease germs to attack the body.

During the war acid forming white flour, refined cereals, meats, sweets were controlled. Alkaline whole grains, milk, nuts, beans, vegetables and fruits were increased. There was no flu. After the war people glutted themselves upon acid-forming white flour, refined cereals, fats, etc resulting in millions of deaths through flu. Flu will continue its ravages while stupid food habits prevail.

Roman Meal is richly alkaline, 400 parts in each 1,000 "Excess Alkali." It corrects the acids of white flour, other cereals, meats, fats and sweets, keeping the blood alkaline, Nature's own immunizer against disease which protects the savage who lives upon natural foods. Use Roman Meal some way every day. It relieves constipation, prevents, indigestion, alkalinizes the blood, keeps you well. It was designed by a physician-dietitian, aware of the "Deficiencies" of modern refined foods, for this very purpose. Delicious, easily prepared economical. At grocers.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

MANY REVISIONS TO VARIOUS LAWS GOVERNING AUTOS

Spotlight and Parking Light Legalized—Time Limit Set For Serving Summonses or Instituting Civil Actions to Recover Damages.

"The Highway Traffic Act of 1923" is the short title of the Act that simplifies, co-ordinates and consolidates the provisions of the Motor Vehicles, Highway Travel, and Load of Vehicles Acts in Ontario. The new Act does not come into force until December 31st, 1923.

While the new Act does not include all the recommendations made by the organized motorists of the Province through the Ontario Motor League, it does implement a goodly proportion of them.

A summary of some of the more important sections of the Act is here given; space does not permit a summary of all sections.

One of the most successful pieces of legislative endeavor ever undertaken by the League was the elimination from the Bill between the first and second readings, of the grotesque array of graded penalties for the various speed ranges in excess of the legal limit. In accordance with the League's insistence and despite many recommendations that the legal rate of speed be reduced, no change has been made in the existing limits.

The legalization of the use of parking lights and spotlights was another concession to the composite opinion of the motorists of the Province made articulate by and effective through the League. A spotlight when used must be fixed to the left-hand side of the vehicle so that the direct beam of projected light strikes the extreme right-hand side of the travelled portion of the highway not more than seventy-five feet in front of the vehicle, except in case of emergency such as backing in the dark and illuminating road signs, tortuous trails, unknown turns, etc.

Further concessions to League's safety campaign in the matter of lights on all vehicles are clauses requiring all bicycles to carry red lights or red reflectors clearly visible in the rear at night, and all vehicles with loads overhanging five feet or more to carry red lights at night and red flags in the daytime on the extreme rear ends of the loads.

Very severe penalties have been provided to discourage rustic jokers and arrogant urban motorists from tampering with detour signs, barriers, etc.

The provision to prevent crazy-quilt, checkerboard legislation is a laudable one. It requires that all by-laws be submitted to and approved by the Department of Public Highways before they legally can be enforced.

Another amendment of major importance secured is that requiring information to be laid and summonses issued and delivered or forwarded by registered post, for breaches of the Act within ten days of the offence. This time limit may be extended by the presiding magistrate on evidence being adduced that it was impossible to effect service of the summons within the statutory time limit. This will greatly curtail the abuse that crept in as a result of summonses being served a month or more after offences when memory had dimmed and the possibility of securing witnesses for defence was remote. A similar signal service to motorists is the time limit of six months provided for instituting civil actions for recovering damages after the time damages are sustained. In the past, such actions have been instituted six years and more after it was alleged damages were sustained, obviously much to the adverse prejudice of defence.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—You quote in your editorial concerning the vote in Manitoba statistics to show that the greatest improvement has been in B.C. and Quebec with public ownership and control of all liquors. Now, sir, don't you see, and doesn't everybody see, that the only way to get rid of small-pox is to stamp it out, and no one would leave a little behind if they could help it? So it is with drink and drugs, and many other things. We must wipe out all alcohol and all drugs. That is the only way. I know many have a little stock of spirits of ammonia and other soothers, but all must go. Drugs and drink do no good.

Thomas.

Peterboro Ont., July 17, 1923

The Examiner,
Peterborough, Ont.
Dear Sir:

The Honorable Body of the Council of the City of Peterborough; Gentelemen:

Do you think you are doing right to pave that portion of Hunter Street from Roger Street to Armour Road, up that big hill? Does that part require paving. It was never a had road but if you pave it, it will surely be bad. When the frost comes a horse can neither go up or down. To pave the face of this hill means wasting the people's money and spoiling the road.

At any rate, there is a very little traffic up that hill, it is the best unpaved road in Peterborough and always will be, by a little improvemen It is composed of blue clay and hard pan. All it requires is a little rounding and the ditches on both sides made a little deeper. We will then have a road that it is possible to travel on both winter and summer.

It is alright to pave East of the Armour Road at the top of the hill and in front of the Westclock Factory.

There are many streets in Peterboro require paving, to which you may switch your contractor.

If there is any man in the Council who understands roads he had better look it over and see for himself.

By pursing the above course you will save the city in the neighbourhood of $8000.00.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

THE KIWANIS MEN TO PLAY KIWANIS BANTAMS.

CELEBRATFD PREACHER COMING TO PETERBORO

DR. CAMPBELL MORGAN

Peterborough Is to be favored in the early part of the month of September by a visit from the celebrated preacher and expositor, Dr. Campbell Morgan, for many years minister of Westminster Chapel, London, England, He will conduct a week of services beginning on Sunday, September 16th, preaching in the two largest chuches in the city, St. Paul's in the morning and George street in the evening;; and then throughout the week he will conduct an afternoon service in St. Paul's and in the evening in George street. He would have preferred one large auditorium in which to hold all his services but as there is no such building in Peterborough, the two largest auditoriums have been selected for his meetings.

People of all denominations have been invited to share in the good which his visit is sure to result in.

It is quite possible that some in our city do not know of the name or the fame of Dr. Morgan. Ministers in all denominations acknowledge him to be the greatest of living expository preachers. A brief estimate or two of him may here be quoted, as they have appeared in some cities he has visit.d.

The Indianapolis Star says of him. "Dr. G. Campbell Morgan is without an equal in this country. as a forceful, analytical preacher. The kind of preaching that counts today is that which challenges the deepest thinking of men and women, preaching which goes to the heart of things, and which takes into account the whole of man, the whole of earth, and the whole of heaven. Such is the preaching of Dr. Morgan."

The Pilot, Norfolk, Virginia, says of him: "For accurate knowledge of the letter of the Scriptures, insight into the spiritual meaning of the sacred writers, wide vision over the past, present and future of the Kingdom of God, and skill in setting forth his views in a deeply impressive manner, Dr. Morgan's superior can scarcely be found among living men."

A few years ago the Birmingham AgeHerald said of him: "Dr. Morgan is one if the greatest expositors in the world, and is without a doubt the best known man in his specialty now living. He has been heard by the hundreds of thousands and those who will follow his series of addresses will be able to get a grip of the Truth which they have never had before."

The people of Peterborough should feel gratified that they are to be favored by a visit by so outstanding a Christian preacher as Dr. Morgan. The date should be kept open—September 16th. Invitations should also be given to friends in the surrounding country. In some missions which he has conducted in Canada people have gone as far as one hundred miles to hear him.

Lawn Social

The lawn social held under the auspices of St. Vincent's Orphanage yesterday afternoon and evening was one of the most successful affairs of its kind ever held on the Orphanage grounds. Crowds of people attended for an excellent supper, served on long tables, which were well supplied with plenty of good things. There was also splendid patronage during the evening for the various attractions. The grounds were prettily decorated with Chinese lanterns, and the band of the Salvation Army provided especially good music.

The ladies of the three city parishes were in charge of arrangements for the supper; Miss A. Gordon and Mrs. Grant had the fancy work and lottery booth; Mrs. T. McQuillan and Mrs. Jno. Lynch sold ice cream; Mrs. D. O. Legendre and Mrs. P. J. Doris sold soft drinks, the Young Ladies' Sodality supervised the sale of home-made candy, and Miss Annie Simons was in charge of the always-popular fish-pond.

Contributions to a musical programme that were much enjoyed were the dances of Jessie Hodgson and Kathleen Cooney, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Hodgson, the recitations of little Helen Brady, of Montreal, and violin solos by Miss Regina Hill, accompanied by her sister, Miss Lillian Hill.

IMPRESSIVE AND IMPORTANT EVENT

First Solemn Mass by Rev. J. B. Collins at Lindsay.

Sunday, July 1. at St. Mary's Church, Lindsay, was the scene of an important and impressive event, when Rev. John B. Collins, C.C.S.R celebrated his first solemn Mass.

Rev. Father Collins was born in St. Mary's Parish, but for the past six years has been a member of the Redemptorist Order. He was ordained recently at Esopus N.Y., by Archbishop Hayes, of New York, and returned on July 1 to celebrate his first solemn Mass in Lindsay, where his parents reside.

Assisting Father Collins at the Mass were Rev. John Spratt. C.S.B. as Deacon and Rev. Basil Markle as Sub-Deacon. Rev. P. J. Galvin acted in the capacity of Master of Ceremonies. Present in the Sanctuary were Very Rev. Dean Whibs, pastor of St. Mary's parish, Rev. Joseph McLaughlin C.S.S.R., Rev. J. J. Guiry, Lindsay, and Rev. J. V. McAuley of Ennismore. The Junior choir of St. Mary's Parish, under the able leadership of Miss Evelyn Cote, rendered the Gregorian chant of Mass in faultless manner; at the offertory, Miss Cote sang in excellent voice Gounod's "Ave Maria." The sermon of the occasion was delivered by Rev. Joseph McLaughlin C.S.S.R. of London, Ont.

At the conclusion of the Mass, Father Collins gave his blessing to every member of the large congregation present.

When the last blessing was given the members of the clergy and the friends present repaired to the young priest's home, where a banquet was prepared. The banquet was concluded by a number of speeches. Rev. V. J. Galvin, a cousin of Father Collins, acted as toast master. All the priest, and Messrs. L. V. O'Connor and Denis Fitzpatrick rose in turn to congratulate the young priest on his elevation to the priesthood, and also to congratulate his devoted parents on their having lived to see their son so singularly honored. Frequent reference was made during the speeches to the saintly lives and priestly character of the young priest's uncles. Rev. John B. Collins, C.S.B. and Rev. Timothy Collins both of whom were so well and favorably known in the dioceses. All the speakers predicted a success? ful career for the young priest and expressed the hope that he would live many years to labor as a devoted member of the Redemptorist Order

Among those present from a distant to attend the ceremony were: Mrs. B. O. Sullivan. Campbellford Mrs. (Dr.) Colwell and Misses Colwell, Scranton, Pa., Misses Mary, Irene and Alma Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Markle, Miss Gladie Markle, Mrs. H. PETERBORO BUYERS BELIEVE IN SALES

Want Sales and Find Sales "Ads" Generally Truthful—25 Per Cent, Discount Seems to Be About the Amount that Will Stimulate Business for Local Merchants.

On Saturday there appeared in the Examiner almost a half-page "ad." asking Peterborough people what they would do if they needed money and wanted to stimulate business. This "ad," was inserted by Botnick Bros., 432 George Street, with an offer of $30 in prizes in goods for the best suggestions offered to meet existing conditions.

A representative of the Examiner and one from the Botnick store, together with a third, have gone over the suggestions offered with great care, and while only 10 prizes have been offered and warded, the judges feel that this contest will be the beginning of a movement that will bring all Peterboro merchants in closer touch with the buying public, and that as a result of the wealth of information gained from the suggestions offered by the Better Business Contestants, not only will Mr. Botnick be better posted and able to serve you better, the advertising men have too, learned something, and all interested in this contest are ready to help themselves and others serve Peterboro customers better and more intelligently.

Great care was taken and much study was given by many of the contestants in the preparation of their answers and suggestions for Better Business. So frank and sincere were the answers and suggestions that in preparing and arranging for the sale of merchandise to follow, Botnick Bros. have changed and are going beyond their original plans. They have done and are doing everything to conduct and manage this sale as the citizens have asked to have it managed.

The prices have been and are being marked with great care. Losses will be taken, some profits will be made, but on the whole Mr. Botnick expects to break even or lose a little, as far as dollars and cents are concerned now, but he is making an investment in your goodwill and you will be the winner by co-operating with him now in his effort to realize cash.

The Better Business Contestants were fair in their requests. They did not want something for nothing; they wanted values, real values, but customers in any store should remember always that merchandise does not grow on the shelves of a merchant; it costs good hard cash, and prices are still high. Wholesale prices are not lower than a year ago —in fact they are higher. In going to a sale look for bargains—values. That is right and fair, but try and remember that a 50-cent piece wont buy out a store. Real good values don't always mean ridiculously low prices. The quality first, then the price—then you have the bargain.

The following is the list of prize-winners:

First prize, $10.00 in goods—Miss Bella Taylor, Bethune Street.

Second prize, $7.50 — Miss Jean Wager, 105 Lock Street.

Third prize, $5.00—W. F. Skitch, Canadian National Express.

Seventh prize, $1.00—C. Robinson, 254 Wescott Street.

Eighth prize, $1.00 — Signed M. P. M.

Ninth prize, $1.00—Katherine M. Blaney, 399 Walton Street.

Tenth prize, $1.00—Mrs. H. Claw, Edison Avenue.

Botnick Bros., 432 George Street.

CYCLIST INJURED IN ATTEMPT SAVE LADIES

Charles Telmadge, 556 Romaine street, was the victim of an accident yesterday evening when he attempted to prevent injury to two ladies who stepped in front of his bicycle. Telmadge applied his brakes suddenly, and threw himself from the wheel to avoid striking the ladies. A passing automobile ran over his bicycle and passed on without leaving an identifying number.

The accident occurred at 5.15 p.m. The victim is an overseas veteran, and the shock of this accident was felt very greatly by him. Attended by Dr. T. G. Louden, he recovered in a few hours.

LEAGUE OF VETERANS TO PREVENT ALL WAR

LONDON, July 18. — (United Press). — A League of World War Veterans of the United States and the British Empire to prevent future wars was proposed here Tuesday in resolutions passed by the British Empire Service League. The League's committee will be instructed to open negotiations toward the formation of an English-Speaking Veterans' League, including the American Legion, the British Legion and all others.

A SECOND NOAH'S ARK.

Hamburg, (United Press. — The passenger list of the steamer Marienfels, which arrived at Carl Hagenbeck's animal port Stellinger, near here, resembles the list Old Noah might have made up back in the days of his w.k. ark. The animals brought here for transfer to the United States include eleven elephants, seven Bengal tigers, six leopards, seven deer, 356 asses, 28 lizards, from one to three meters long, 137 python snakes, many poison snakes, lions, polar bears, black Indian collar bears, a zebra, Indian buffalo, wolves, antilopes, South American wild boars, flying dongs, crocodiles, marabus, cranes, parrots, etc.

MAYOR DECLINED TRIP TO LONDON

His Vote in Council Broke Tie on Division—Municipal Conference on Commission Government.

Mayor Taylor last night declined a trip to London, Ontario, to attend a convention of Municipal representatives on Wednesday, July 25, for a general discussion of commission forms of municipal administration.

In committee he declared that he didn't wish to go, and when in Council, the aldermen deadlocked on a division His Worship promptly voted to stay at home

A circular letter from the London Council invited Peterboro to send delegates to the conference at which any amendments to the Municipal Act relating to municpal government by Commission would be drafted for submission to the Legislature. The method of city control and direction by a manager was a especially mentioned in the letter as a phrase of the question that would be particularly considered.

In committee, Ald. Maher moved, seconded by Ald. Crowe, that the Mayor attend the meeting accompanied by any member he wished to take with him.

Ald. Phelan offered an amendment, seconded by Ald. Crowe, that no action be taken.

The amendment was defeated, but in Council Ald. Phelan's amendment to the committe's report, that the Lonlon convention clause be struck out, carried on the Mayor's deciding vote.

The ayes and nays were taken as follows: For the amendment, Aldermen Phelan, Holloway, Stocker, Morrison and Mayor.

Nays:— Aldermen Fife, McIntyre, Crowe and Maher.

Ald. Maher said he was interested in the question of municinal administration by commission. The London conference might bring out ideas worth while, and the city might as well be represented. Ald Maher suggested. "No manufacturing business takes a chance on changing its management every few years," he remarked.

Ald Phelan alluded to the meeting he and Ald. Holloway attended in London for the discussion of Council's relations to Police Commissions which he believed did more harm than good. He was not opposed to Peterboro being represented at the proposed conference but he did object to the possibility of the Council being committed to a resolution that might be adopted by the representatives.

SURPLUS WHEAT PRODUCTION IN U.S.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—"Too much wheat, too much corn, too many hogs, too much production!"

That seems to be the message for the farmers from the Department of Agriculture, its statisticians and economists. "The trade knows this, and the market has already discounted it," we are told by the experts, which would seem to indicate that the experts are behind instead of at the head of the procession. A fourteen-million increase in the acreage sown to wheat explains in part the phenomenon, but there was only a small increase in the number of farms reported by the census of 1920 over the number reported by the census of 1910. The land as a whole was probably less fertile in 1920 than it was ten years before. Yet in 1911 many people in Canada had the impression that the United States had reached the end of its tether as a wheat-producing country, and would soon be dependent upon Canada for at least a portion of its daily bread.

Big Surplus on Glutted Market.

Increased production by other food-exporting countries, and the impaired purchasing power of Europe, are, of course, factors in the situation. The Department of Agriculture is firmly convinced that the farmer should "regress his acreage," and curtail his production It views with alarm President Harding's promise to reclaim millions of acres of desert and add them to the farming land of the country.

However, it is a condition, not a theory, which just now is absorbing the wheat growers of the Western States. Whatever the season may be, they have an exportable surplus far above the demand of Europe. They must carry over two hundred million bushels of the 1923 wheat crop or dump it in ruinous competition on a glutted market. Moreover, their expert advisers are not at all sure that they will be in a better position a year from now. The Canadian crop is expected to smash all records. Australia and Argentina are carrying over huge surpluses, and there is talk of Russia and the Danubian countries exporting wheat in 1924 to Western Europe. Only a drastic reduction in the acreage sown to wheat can reduce the domestic supply to a point where it may be overtaken by the domestic demand. Hence the demand already becoming insistent that Congress shall come to the rescue by stabilizing the price of wheat.

Not Predominant Crop.

This demand will be resisted in the new Congress as it was in the old. Wheat is not in this country the predominant crop as it is in Canada. Corn is no less important, and the value of the cotton exported year by year usually exceeds the value of the wheat exported to the markets of the world. If the Government starts to buy sell and warehouse wheat and practically guarantee a minimum price, it will be hard to refuse a similar accommodation to the growers of corn and cotton.

Of course, it is a simpler problem in the United States, this surplus of wheat, than it is in Canada. The exportable surplus here is about 25 per cent., while in Canada it probably runs up to fully 75 per cent. of production. It would be possible here to so reduce production as to largely do away with the necessity of export, especially as the population of the country is increasing by one million five hundred thousand a year and general employment with high wages makes for increased consumption.

Testing Time Arrives.

The Farmers' co-operatives realize that their testing time has come. Through the efforts of the farm bloc they obtained from Congress practically all the legislation they considered necessary. They were not in favor of a fixed price, a compulsory pool or the entrance of the Government into the business of buying and selling grain. They asked and obtained the following legislation;

(1) A law exempting farmers' organizations to monopolize the grain supply without being subjected to prosecutions under the Sherman Anti-trust Act.

(2) A law placing under stringent regulation all dealings in grain futures restricting sales for future delivery to contract markets to be designated by the Government, and subjecting all such contracts to widespread publicity.

Farmers' Bank Created.

(3) A law creating what is practically a new Government bank, with a marginal capital furnished by the Government of sixty million dollars (which may be increased to one hundred and twenty million dollars) and power to issue non-taxable debentures to the amount of six hundred million dollars (which may be increased to one billion two hundred million dollars if necessary). The express function of this bank is to tide over the farmer until he can get a satisfactory price for his crop. The loans are not made on real estate security, but on the personal note of the farmer, to be discounted by his local bank or farm association, and the farm associations can borrow direct for their members upon the security of warehouse grain.

(4) The law practically enabling every farmer to have his grain designated as "warehouse" by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Want More Paternal Legislation.

It would, therefore, be possible for the wheat growers of the American West to "warehouse" three hundred million bushels of wheat on their own farms and through their farm organizations obtain generous credit from the Government banks for a year or even three years, if necessary. Of course this would have to be treated as no-grade wheat, but a very considerable sum could be borrowed upon it, probably three-fourths of its value.

The farm organizations, notably the American Farm Bureau Federation and the members of the Congressional farm bloc, say the wheat grower has all he needs to tide him over the present situation. On the other hand, some of the politicians, some of the smaller farm organizations and a number of the farmers themselves are not satisfied. They are pressing for more paternal legislation.

About the sickest men in public life are the members of the farm bloc who can away with the idea that they were going to solve the agricultural crisis of 1921 by the passage of the Emergency Tariff Act.

A LOVE TRAGEDY CHANGED HISTORY.

Crown Prince Rudolph Refused to Give Up Nobleman's Daughter at the Order of Emperor.

By JOHN O'BRIEN

PARIS, July 18 (United Press).—When Archduke Rudolph, crown prince of Austria-Hungary, met Marie Vetsera, daughter of an obscure Hungarian nobleman, at a ball in the imperial palace in Vienna in the late eighties, those who noticed the flame which blazed suddenly in the eyes of both of them smiled.

It was merely another of the hundred love affairs which were part and parcel of that aristocratic but intrigue-haunted court.

Had they been able to peer into the future they would not have smiled. This meeting changed the destinies of an empire. Had it not happened, Rudolph might now be sitting on the throne of his ancestors. There would have been no assassination at Sarajevo, for Franz Ferdinand would never have been heir to the throne and there would have been no world war, not, at least, in the way in which it came.

Archduke Rudolph was about 30, married to the Princess Stephanie, daughter of the King of the Belgians, handsome and accomplished, the idol of the old Emperor Francis Joseph and the Empress Elizabeth, as well of the people of Vienna. His infatuation for the beautiful girl, who loved him and became his mistress, was known to practically everybody in the capital. His parents and his wife hoped that it was only a passing fancy. But instead their passion grew day by day, absorbed their lives and wrote their death sentence.

Had Many Lovers

There were many aspirants to the heart of Marie Vetsera. Many even sought her hand in marriage. Rudolph's father tried to buy her off, tried to induce her to wed, appealed to his son and heir to abandon her. All was useless. He vowed never to give her up.

Then, one morning, January 30, 1889, the people of Vienna learned, with dismay akin to stupor, that Archduke Rudolph and Marie Vetsera had been found dead, apparently murdered, in the hunting lodge at Mayerling during the night. What had happened?

Here is where the different versions which have been given of the tragedy begin to be contradictory.

There has never been any dispute about the main fact—the scene of the final act in the drama. But who was responsible? Count Nigra, who was Italian ambassador at Vienna at the time, and Count Bettoni, his secretary, were the first persons apart from the servants in the hunting lodge to see the bodies. Both these diplomats have declared that Archduke Rudolph had a gaping wound in the side of his head several inches in extent, which could not have been the result of a revolver bullet and which, in their opinion, was the result of a violent bow by a bludgeon or perhaps a bottle. With this testimony as a basis and utilizing what she knew of the Vienna court, Countess Larisch, who acted as go-between for the lovers in the early days of the liason, has given to the world a version of the tragedy which is substantially as follows:

Story of the Tragedy

Archduke Rudolph went to Mayerling with Count Hoyos, brother of the Austrian ambassador to France, for a hunting party. Several officers joined them. Marie Vetsera appeared at the lodge in the evening without having informed anybody in Vienna of her trip. She was taken out to the country in a hack driven by Bratfisch, well known in Bohemian circles in the capital for his skill as a Tyrolean "jodler" and singer of Viennese couplets.

However, her departure was not unobserved, and the word was brought to a certain Count Waldstein, one of the disgruntled suitors for Marie Vetsera's hand. Waldstein informed Count Baltazzi, the girl's legal guardian, who, up to that time knew nothing of her liaison with the emperor's heir.

Baltazzi and Waldstein went post haste to Mayerling and succeeded in obtaining entrance to the lodge by telling one of the servants they had an important message from the emperor. They found the lover sleeping. Waldstein, in a jealous fury, fired at the girl, killing her instantly. Rudolph, awaked by the shot, seized his revolver and killed Waldstein. Then he fired at Baltazzi, but the latter dodged, grasped a champagne bottle and smashed the Archduke's skull. The bodies of Baltazzi and Marie Vetsera were interred in a convent nearby. That of the Archduke was taken back to Vienna.

That is the story as told by Countess Parisch. In the next installment will be given what seems to be the first authentic account of the scene based on first-hand evidence.

AT THE EXTREME REAR

Up toward Chateau-Thierry in the big shove of 1918, a brigade commander of the A. E. F., temporarily separated from his staff, was making a sort of private reconnaisance toward the front. It was night time. Directly ahead of him, he knew, was a Negro infantry regiment, now under fire for the first time. The fighting was quite sharp and the lone investigator was minded to the lone investigator was minded to find out how the green troops were acquitting themselves.

All at once he encountered a straggler. Perhaps it would be unfair to refer to this person as a straggler, for at the moment of his appearance, lunging out of the darkness, he was giving a spirited imitation of a foot-racer.

"Halt, there "shouted the outraged brigadier.

The fleeing private slowed up.

"What do you mean by running away in this disgraceful manner?"

"Boss," quavered the black man, "I ain't been aimin' to run away, but these yere feets of mine jest natchelly' carried me out of dat mess up yonder.'-

"Well, you face about and rejoin your company immediately."

Reluctantly the unhappy soldier reversed himself and started to obey. Then he hesitated and, over his shoulder he put a question:

"Who is you, to be givin' me dese vere awders? You ain't no cap'n ese ou?"

"I am the general commanding this brigade—that's who."

"Lawsy me " quoth the darky, half to himself. "I sho' must a' run a long ways to git clear back to where the gene'ls stay "

LOCAL DISCONTENT LESSENS STEADILY IN SOVIET RUSSIA.

Murmurings Against the Bolshevik Regime Have Not Yet Died Away — Comparatively Tranquil

MOSCOW, July 18. — (Associated Press).—Few and perhaps unimportant as they are, just enough counter-revolutionary acts and plots have been revealed in Soviet Russia in the last few months to indicate that, on the one hand, all opposition to the Bolshevik regime has not died down and, on the other, that the communist government may be justified, from its standpoint, in maintaining semi-martial law in some parts and other foreigners who spend a few weeks or months in Russia and find everything moving forward apparently smoothly under the communist dictatorship, sometimes go home and report that everybody is contented with the present state of affairs. This seems true in Moscow and other central Russian cities, but a careful day-by-day perusal of the official newspapers shows that every now and then a plot pops up, and that an undercurrent of opposition, weak but persistent, is running beneath the surface in many provinces.

One reads laconic announcements that two persons have been shot here, another there, some more in another place, for counter-revolutionary activity or participation in "banditry." This in the Ukraine and Cossack regions is just another name for roving armed opposition to the red army.

Once in a great while come announcements of more important plots, such as the one recently discovered in Georgia. This resulted in the execution of 15 persons, and had as its aim the separation of the entire Caucasus from Soviet Russia.

These counter revolutionary activities are nothing like as widespread as a year or two ago, but they are sufficiently important to keep the secret police and red army constantly on the watch.

Frogs by the thousand are needed annually for scientific research in hospitals.

A WOUND IS AN OPEN DOOR

Absorbine Jr. enables you to shut the door quickly.

The skin is Nature's own protection against germs. When it is bruised, broken or cut, that protection is withdrawn. The door is open. As quickly as possible Nature closes it by forming what we call a scab and renders you comparatively safe against infection. But this scab sometimes takes days to form and until it has fully sealed the wound, even until the wound has thoroughly healed again you must furnish the required protection yourself.

A few drops of Absorbine Jr. in the water will give you an antiseptic wash that will kill all possibility of infection and help nature to heal the wound. As well as being a very powerful germicide, Absorbine Jr. will draw out the inflammation and bring instant relief.

Absorbine Jr. is antiseptic, germicide and liniment in one container—handy to keep always in the house; easy to carry around if you travel.

THE PASSING OF SIR J. HENDRIE

Former Lieutenant - Governor of Ontario Died in John Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, July 18.—(Canadian Press.) — Sir John Hendrie, President of the Hamilton Bridge Works, and former Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, died at midnight last night at John Hopkins' Hospital here.

Sir John, who was brought here from Hamilton, Ont., about ten days ago, underwent an operation for an intestinal growth last Thursday, and his condition was reported favorable until Monday night, when pneumonia developed and he grew rapidly worse. Hospital officials early yesterday had practically given up hope for his recovery.

Two brothers, Col. Wm. Hendrie and George M. Hendrie and a son of Wm. Hendrie were with Sir John when the end came.

Lt.-Col. John Strathearn Hendrie, K.C.M.G., C.V.O., ex-Mayor of Hamilton, Ont., ex-M.L.A., and ex-Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, widely known as a statesman, manufacturer, contractor, railway builder, capitalist, sportsman, military man and a public-spiirted citizen generally, was born in Hamilton and lived in that city practically all his life.

Col. Hendrie sat for West Hamilton in the Ontario Legislature for several years, being first elected in 1902. He was a Conservative and for a number of years was a member of the government of the late Sir James Whitney without portfolio, he having been offered and declined the portfolio of Commissioner of Public Works in the Whitney Administration. As Chairman of the Railway Committee of the Ontario Legislature Col. Hendrie prepared the Railway Bill which was passed by the Legislature in 1906.

He was appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario in 1914 and held that office until 1919.

Col. Hendrie's natural gift for public service found vent in numerous avenues outside of politics. He was Mayor of Hamilton, 1901-1903; a director and a councillor of the Hamilton Board of Trade; director of the Great West Life Assurance Company director of the Hendrie Cartage Com pany, Hamilton; director of the Northern Navigation Company; director of the Niagara Navigation Company; director of the Mercantile Trust Company; director of the Bank of Hamilton; President of the Hamilton Jockey Club; member of the Royal Hydro-Electric Commission, 1906; member of the National Battlefield, Committee; a delegate to the Inter-Provincial Conference at Ottawa in 1910; was commanding officer of the 4th Field Battery of Canadian Artillery, Hamilton in 1899 commanded the Canadian artillery at Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee in London, 1897; held a life-long service decoration; was appointed C.V.O. in 1907; was a Councillor of the Red Cross Society; Vice-President of the Canadian Military Institute, and President of the Ontario Artillery Association.

Probably Col. Hendrie was best known as a lover of the race horse and as a breeder of thoroughbreds. He was associated with his brother, Lt.-Col. William Hendrie for some years in the ownership of the well-known racing stable at Valley Farm, near Hamilton. It is a question if any of the honors received by Col. Hendrie in the course of his busy and useful life was as highly valued by him as the winning of the King's Plate twice at the Ontario Jockey Club's races. He won the King's Plate in 1909 with Shimonese, four-year-old chestnut filly by Martimas uot of Lyddite, and in 1910 with Parmer, bay gelding, by The Commoner out of Placena.

Early in his business career Col. Hendrie constructed railroads in Canada and the United States. He promoted the Hamilton Bridgeworks Company and was president of the company at the time of his death.

Born in Hamilton on Aug. 15, 1857, John S. Hendrie was a son of the late William Hendrie, founder of the Hendrie Cartage Company, Hamilton, founder of the Valley Farm racing stables, for a number of years President of the Ontario Jocky Club and also winner of coveted Queen's Plate in 1902 with Lyddite. John S. Hendrie was educated at the Hamilton Grammar School and Upper Canada College, Toronto. In April, 1885 he married Lena Maude, daughter of the late P. R. Henderson, Kingston, Ontario.

He is survived by one son, Major Ian Hendrie, and one daughter, Mrs. (Col.) Hugh Owen, and by two brothers and four sisters, a brother and sister in Hamilton, a brother and sister in Detroit and a sister in Montreal and Toronto.

BRITAIN'S REPLY NOT YET READY

Rigid Silence Regarding Response to German Reparations Memorandum.

LONDON, July 18. — (Canadian Press).—Owing to the non-completion of certain clauses in the British draft of reply to the German reparations memorandum and explanatory letter to accompauy it, the Cabinet meeting that was to be held to-day was postponed until to-morrow morning.

Most rigid silence is being observed by everyone connected with the Foreign Office regarding the nature of the British response.

The task of Lord Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in composing this document, which is intended to contain at least some element pleasing to all sides, is admitted to be one of exceptional delicacy and complexity, and no intimation of the contents of the forthcoming communication has escaped the lips of any Government official. The only thing reasonably certain is that the draft reply will contain allusions to Germany's passive resistance as a barrier to the opening of negotiations, together with the fact that Great Britain is ready to accept the judgment of an international commission of experts regarding Germany's capacity to pay.

It is understood the letter will be a long document explanatory of the broader phases of the reparations problems as Great Britain sees them, which do not quite come within the scope of the formal reply to the last note from Berlin.

The prince arrived at noon dressed in the uniform of a colonel of the Welsh Guards and inspected the Officers' Training Corps. He changed into morning clothes to lunch with the headmaster, and then put on flannels for an hour at rackets. Afterwards he donned a lounge suit for tea, but he kept this on when he drove back to the palace.

NEW POSITION IN GOVERNMENT

Connecting Link Between the North Country and the Government.

TORONTO, July 18.—(Canadian Press)—Northern Ontario is to have a resident "under-secretary to Department of Mines and Lands and Forests", in person of E. H. Keefer K.C., M.P.P., of Port Arthur. Mr. Keefer was in conference with Premier Ferguson yesterday. The appointment is understood to carry a salary, and provision will be made by special legislation at next session of house. Mr. Keefer was prominently mentioned as a prospective cabinet minister after recent elections.

By novel appointment, Premier Ferguson hopes to overcome one of Northern Ontario's Greatest complaints and handicaps —that of lack of touch with Government and Departments located at Toronto. In discussion yesterday he commented upon tremendous expense incumbent upon Northern Ontario, District, in sending a small deputation to Toronto. He believes that appointment of Mr. Keefer, a resident of Port Arthur, to an under-secretaryship, wil form an important and economical link between Northern Ontario and the Government.

MONKEY GLAND PLAN EXTENDED

African Monkey Colony Started to Supply Raw Material.

LONDON, July 18. — (Canadian Press). — The hope that those in search of fountain of youth find it in an African monkey colony was expersed yesterday, by Dr. Berge Vernoff, director of experimental laboratory of college of France, known for decade for his work with gland transplantation.

He told nearly thousand eminent physicians and surgeons from all over the world attending sixth triennial congress of international surgerical society how Pasteur Institute has constructed an immense park in Africa where it will breed chimpanzees whose glands he asserts are valuable in rejuvenating humans. He said that while African apes were so diffieult to obtain grafting operations necessarily would have to be limited but he believed that colony woud place the elixier of youth within reach of everyone

The conference also discussed notable strides made last year toward conquering Tuberculois, Diabetes, Paralysis, Pneumonia, Rheumatism and even insanity, but in spite of all these remarkable advances, Sir Wm. McEwan, President of the Congress, remarked regretfully "regarding nature as whole we are still in deepest darkness."

Sir. William then asked if there was not within every one a mystery which never has been fathomed. "If we pursue our quest with single purpose in search of truth for truth's sake only," he added "we may set glimpses of spirit of nature and feel touch of hand that weaves roof."

OBITUARY

W. S. GRAHAM.

OMEMEE, July 18.—In the death of Mr. W. S. Graham, who passed away last week, a shining light has passed out of this community, a man whose death will leave a vacancy hard to fill.

The late Mr. Graham was an active member of the Mount Pleasant Methodist church and for many years was superintendent of the Sunday school. In politics he was a Liberal. Deceased had reached the good old age of eighty-three years. Three years ago, while attending church service, he was stricken with paralysis, from which, after a few weeks, he partially recovered. But while attending the Mount Pleasant garden party held two weeks ago, Mr. Graham suffered another stroke, and after lying in an unconscious condition for several days he passed peacefully away on Tuesday, July 10.

The funeral service was held at his old home in Emily, where his son, Thomas, and wife, reside. Rev. Mr. Rorke, of Cavanville, paid a glowing tribute to the life of the deceased during the service, which was most impressive throughout. Friends from for and near gathered to pay their last respects to a man of sterling quality. Interment took place in Shields' cemetery, near Mt. Pleasant.

To the sorrowing family, namely, Mrds. Shields of Gilbert Plains, Mrs. Garnet Shields of Cavan, Richard of Mount Pleasant and Thomas of Emily, is extended the sincere sympathy of a host of friends.

Elementary education in England, it is estimated, will cost $165,000,000 during this year.

MARBLE SHOOTING A MAJOR SPORT

Former Game of Gutters Now Boasts a World's Champion.

By JAMES T. KOLBERT

NEW YORK, July 17.—(United Press)—Marble shooting, long regarded as "just one of those boys' games," is taking on a new dignity—the dignity of a national institution. It is only a matter of time before it ranks in interest with the major sports of the country.

One year ago several newspapers conducted marble tournaments. Some 50,000 boys participated.

This year 40 newspapers, many of them metropolitan dailies, staged contests, and a rough estimate placed the number of participants at 500,000.

Last year no effort was made to crown a world champion. It was felt that the comparatively few cities involved could hardly be called representative. But this year the contests were pointed toward the world title.

All the ceremony and much of the enthusiasm and interest of an outstanding major athletic event surrounded the meeting of the 40 city marble champions for the world's championship on the sands of Atlantic City during the closing days of June.

When Harlin McCoy, 14, of Columbus, Ohio, took four out of six games from Sammy Schneider, diminutive 11-year-old marble star from St. Louis, thereby winning the coveted championship, he gave the boys of America a new mark to shoot at. For this is something distinctly their own. They do not have to share it with grown-ups. Only boys under 15 may participate.

All of the participants in this year's contest are normal school boys, such as may be found in any public school or in any gathering of boys. The city champions were distinguished from their unsuccessful rivals by a somewhat higher intelligence, the power to concentrate and better self-control.

RAYBESTOS LOST A RAGGED GAME

C.G.E. Won Last Evening and Carried Off Honors For First Half of the Schedule.

By defeating the Raybestos 13 to 5, in a ragged game last evening, the C.G.E nine won first honors in the first half of the Intermediate City League schedule. The game was far from being well played. Both sides made numerous errors and both managed to stick their misplays in where they would figure most in the scoring. In fact each team had but one earned run to its credit.

The C.G.E. team took an early lead. It went to bat first and piled up three runs right off the reel, on a walk, two errors and a hit. Two more tallies were added in the third on a walk, a hit and an error. The fourth and the sixth innings divided the honors for the heavy scoring with four runs registered in each. Jackson's single followed by Rose's two base clout in the fourth sent in the only earned run for the C.G.E. and an error, a walk and a hit sent in three more runs before the side was retired. Two errors and a passed ball tainted all four of the runs registered in the sixth and the C.G.E. men were breezing along in fine style till Kirn pulled a snappy double play to retire the side.

While the Raybestos managed to get men as far as the second sack in every inning most of them died on the runways. The scoring was done in the fourth, fifth and sixth frames by bunching hits and errors. Jobbitt scored in the fourth when he drew a walk, stole second and went to third when the second baseman let the ball get away from him, and romped home on Corrin's hit to right. In the fifth two hits were bunched with an error and a passed ball for three runs and in the sixth Jobbitt again scored when he singled to center, went to second when Kirn drew a walk and came home on Holyman's smash to deep center. Corrin lined out a drive to deep right in this frame that had all the ear marks of a homer, it landed, however, just outside the right field foul line, several yards past the flag. The ball landed just outside fair territory and was so close that the Raybestos playere were inclined to protest the umpire's ruling on it. One of the players said a little too much and got the gate.

Frost did the pitching for the C.G.E. He had a slight edge over Kirn in the strike out column with five to his credit againt Kirn's two. Both pitchers walked four men while Frost added another free trip by hitting Long. Frost fielded his position exceptionally well and in addition to figuring in a double play had six assists to his credit.

The players were:
C.G.E.—Primeau, lf; McCarpey, cf; Rose, rf; Ross, c; Dugan, 1b; Ranger, ss; Frost, p; Barrie, 2b; Jackson, 3b; Wolfe, lf; Webb, lf; Hall, lf; Rogers, lf; McPherson, cf.
Raybestos—Butcher, 3b; Corrin, 1b; Kirn, p; Holyman, ss; Coursey, lf; Long, cf; Hensley, 2b; Doughty, rf; Jobbitt, c; Campbell, cf; White, cf.

By innings:
C.G.E. ..... 3024040—13 11 3
Raybestos ..... 0001310— 5 8 8
Umpires—LeBarr at the plate; McMartin on bases.

COMMISSION MADE BURMAN A CHAMP

New York Boxing Commission Makes and Unmakes Ring Champions at Will.

NEW YORK, July 18.—(Canadian Press).—Following its policy of holding ring champions to the letter if the New York boxing laws, the State Athletic Commission to-day dethroned Joe Lynch, of New York as bantamweight title holder, for failure to accept within six months the challenge of Joe Burman of Chicago. Simultaneously, Budman was elevated to recognition as 116-pound champion in this State.

The decision came on the heels of announcement that Lynch and Burman had been matched tentatively for a title bout in Madison Square Garden in September. Eddie Mead Lynch's manager, also was placed under official ban.

Lynch was the second champion within a few weeks to be deprived of title recognition here. Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N.J., the welter title-holder, was ousted recently for failure to accept a challenge from Dave Shade of California, who was also awarded championship recognition as a solace for failure to obtain his title match.

An echo of Walker's disbarment today was the indefinite suspension of Nate Siegel, for boxing Walker last night at Newark, N.J. while the latter was under official ban. Siegel was knocked out by Walker.

The Commission put its statement of approval upon the world's middleweight title match scheduled at the Polo Grounds August 31, between Johnny Wilson of Boston, the champion, and Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh. This was brought about by Wilson's formal acceptance of the formed light-heavyweight champion's challenge.

One of the largest fortunes left by an artist was that of Peter Graham, who died in 1921 worth $650,000.

THREE NEW UMPIRES WERE APPOINTED FOR INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

Were Appointed to Fill the Places of Those Who Resigned on Monday.

Strike Fell Through.

NEW YORK, July 18.—(Canadian Press).—The flare-up in International League baseball circles caused by the strike of four umpires in protest of the dismissal of a fifth arbiter Monday, reached a climax late yesterday when John Conway Toole, President of the circuit, virtually placed on the blacklist the holdout indicator men and announced the appointment of three new umpires to complete his staff.

The situation that cost the League five of its regular staff of ten umpires grew out of the summary discharge of W. J. Phyle by Mr. Toole, who explained yesterday that his action was prompted by the umpire's failure to work in two games at Toronto on July 12 before reporting for duty in connection with the Baltimore-Rochester series at the latter city beginning July 13.

Believing that Phyle's dismissal was the result of a decision he had made in a game between Baltimore and Rochester last Sunday and which had aroused some dispute, his two associates, McDevitt and Geisel, wired their resignations to President Toole and refused to work in Monday's game at Rochester At the same time they communicated with the other umpires on the circuit in an effort to precipitate a general walkout, Mr. Toole said but only two of the others, Magerkurth and Derr, who were at Syracuse, joined the move.

The other five —Gaston and James at Toronto, and Carpenter, McBride and Vangrafilin at Buffalo —refused to leave their posts and wired President Toole they were not in sympathy with the outbreak.

To meet the emergency, the League Excutive yesterday assigned McBride to fill one gap in the staff at Rochester and appointed William S. Murphy, of Olean, N.Y., to work with McBride.

The two other new appointees, who will become regulars if their work is satisfactory, are Jack Egan, of Providence, R. I., and Rudolph Kraemer, of Brooklyn, both of whom will begin their duties today at Syracuse.

Prior to the trouble among the umpires, which Monday night provoked an exchange of accusations between George Stallings, manager of the Rochester Club, and Jack Dunn, manager and president of the Baltimore team, a meeting of International League Executives had been called at Rochester for this morning. Mr. Toole said that while the session was primarily intended for other matters, the umpire situation probably would come up for discussion.

Mr. Toole emphasized, however, that this action regarding Phyle had been influenced in no way by Dunn, Stallings or any others club executives. Dunn and Stalling, each had charged the other's hand was involved in the case.

DONAHUE LOST 7 NO-HIT GAMES

During His College Career He Lost Seven Out of Eight No-Hit Games.

By BILLY EVANS.

Pete Donahue of the Cincinnati Reds stands out as one of the most unusual players to ever break into the major leagues.

Donahue came direct to the big show from a Texas college team and made good right off the reel. His case is a decided exception to the rule.

This spring at Orlando, Fla., while watching the Reds in training I had a chance to give Donahue the once-over. One day, while he was pitching to the batters, I remarked to Manager Moran who was talking to me:

"Pat, that fellow Donahue reminds me of Mathewson in so many ways. He has that free motion of Matty's and works without the slightest effort."

Made Good From Start.

"He's a wonderful pitcher and just as fine a boy," answered the Cincinnati manager. "Donahue is one of the greatest pitchers I have ever seen and the strange part of it, he was a finished big leaguer when he joined my club.

"When a pitcher comes to you direct from some college, no matter how much natural ability he may have, you figure he will need at least a year's experience to polish him up. He must learn to watch the runners. Then he must change his style to suit various situations. He must learn his batters, also a score of other things.

"Donahue seemed to know all those things when he joined the Reds. He had the ability and poise of a big leaguer. He knew how from the very start."

There you have a picture of Pete Donahue as a big leaguer, as painted by his manager. He is one of the pitching stars of the major leagues.

Good Old College Days

What about his college days as a pitcher? Recently I had a chat with a Texan who was familiar with Donahue as a collegian and he related many unusual and amazing things about the Cincinnati star.

Would you believe it possible for a college pitcher to work eight no-hit games during his career and lose seven of them?

No! Well that is just what happened to Pete Donahue as a collegian. Seems as though that would have been enough to have made Donahue quit the game in disgust instead of inspiring him to win fame as a big leaguer.

Donahue's college record in baseball is without a parallel.

Loses Seven No-Hit Games.

Pitching for the Texas Christian University of Fort Worth, Tex., he on four occasions pitched no-hit games against the Southern Methodist University, and lost all of them by the scores of 1 to 0, 2 to 1 and twice by a 3 to 2 margin. Peculiarly enough in three of the games his own errors caused his downfall.

Pitching a no-hit game is out of the ordinary. When a twirler comes through with such a feat he is usually returned the winner. The fates, however, were unkind to Donahue as a collegian. To pitch eight no-hit games and lose seven of them seems like hard luck in its hardest form.

Despite his hard luck in three years of college pitching Donahue won 45 games and lost only 10, and don't forget in seven of those defeats he held the opposition hitless.

No wonder Pete Donahue is one of the pitching stars of the majors.

VETS TOO MUCH FOR THE SCOTS

Won League Game By Score of 1 to 0 — Thistle Player Sustained Broken Leg.

The second serious injury of the season marred the G.W.V.A.-Thistle League game at the Oval last evening when Bob Ralston had his leg broken in two places. His injury is similar to that sustained recently by Billy Williams, one of the G.W.V.A. players, and came about in much the same manner, through the collision of two of the players.

"The game went to the Vets by a score of 1 to 0 owing to the keen football rivalry existing between these two fast teams was witnessed by one of the largest crowds of the season. It was almost dark when the game finished.

The Vets won the toss and took advantage of the sun at their backs. Both teams were at full strength. The opening exchanges were very even and brought out some nice football. On a raid on the Scots' goal, Sharman centred the ball into the goal mouth. In the play which followed, James Wade and Ralston met and both players were noticed to be in great difficulties. Ralston fell to the ground and an examination showed his leg broken in two places just above the ankle. The ambulance was called and the player taken to the hospital. J. Wade also retired, leaving ten men a side. Play deteriorated as the result of this accident, although both goals were raided in rotation. On one occasion, Burgess crossed the ball in front of Griffin and all the players missed the ball. Stott went under the same siege at the other end. Play was very even until half time with no scoring.

On resuming, the Scots confined the play to the Vets' area and repeatedly spoiled their chances to score through poor finishing. An accidental handle by Hutton gave the Vets a splendid opening. Blowers punted the ball to Burrows who beat Rae on the run and quick as a flash landed it in the net.

The loss of this goal wakened the Scots. They repeatedly travelled into the Vets' territory, but with no success. The Scots were playing nice combination in mid-field but their work lacked the necessary finish. Two corners taken by Shewan were fruitless. Charlie Griffin was picking the ball up from all angles. McMillan was the star man on the field, time and again he tried to force the issue. From his clever tactics, he left Richmond with the ball. The centre beat man after man and finished by skinning over the cross-bar. Hutton dribbled through the whole of the Vets' defence, drew them out, and shot hard for goal, but Griffin saved. At this period, the Scots peppered the Vets' goal and darkness setting in that made it hard to follow the ball. Five minutes to go Stott made a great save with all the Vets on him. Game was in mid-field as final time arrived. Vets 1, Thistles 0.

FIND PRECIOUS STONES.

MELBOURNE, July 18.—(Associated Press)—A remarkable find of precious stones has been reported near Wyangala, about 25 miles from Cowra, New South Wales, and not far from the once-famous Mount McDonald gold and copper mines. The stones, which comprise diamonds, rubies, sapphires and turquoise, have been submitted to experts, who declare them genuine.

The diamonds were found in blue pug clay similar to the pug clay in which South African diamonds are embedded. The sapphires are of a brilliant hue, and the rubies a deep red.

PETES BEAT BELLEVILLE 6-5 IN TEN INNINGS GAME TODAY

Heckman in Great Form Didn't Allow an Earned Run—Comolli's Timely Hitting a Feature—Loss For Williams.

TOTAL OF 9 ERRORS

BELLEVILLE, July 18. (Special.)—The Petes shot out in front of the Central Ontario League race, when they beat Belleville here this morning 6 to 5 in a ten innings game, the second time in the history of the Central League that the Soloman crew have won in Belleville.

Heckman pitched great ball for the winners and did not allow Belleville an earned run, four counters coming in the sixth inning as a result of errors on plays that should have retired one side. The Petes were in front 4-1 when this bad break came and for a while it looked as if the Belleville luck was still good. The Solomon outfit kept batting however and after tying the score in the ninth won out an extra inning.

Oulette pitched the first nine innings for Belleville and Williams got in on the tenth just in time to have a defeat chalked up against him. Comolli's hitting was a big factor in the win, the big first baseman cracking up three timely hits.

Petes Started Early.

The Petes scored three in the second. Comolli led off with a single to left and advanced on a wild throw and Johnston's sacrifice. Collins walked and stole second. Helson hit to Williams, and the third baseman threw high to the plate. Comolli and Collins scored while Helson reached third, when Hagerman made a bad throw to second. Heckman struck out; Legon walked and on double steal Helson scored and Legon reached second. Wolfe fanned.

Belleville got back in their half. Weir doubled to left; ;Mills flied out to Johnston and Weir scored on the second baseman's high throw to third; Oulette fanned. There was no more scoring until the fifth,when the Petes added another. With two out Swanston singled to centre. Ansaldo duplicated to left and Comolli singled through short, filling the bases. A wild throw scored Swanston. Johnsto nrolled to Meagher.

A Bad Session.

A couple of errors on plays that should have retired the side, gave Belleville a lead in the sixth. Ross fanned, Meagher was safe when Legon missed a short fly to left. Brownscombe fanned. Weir's roller to Ansaldo should have been three out but it was fumbled and everybody was safe. Mills then hit to right scoring Meagher, and Williams followed with a triple to left scoring Weir and Mills. Casey's pop fly was lost in the sun by Helson, and went for a hit, Williams scoring. Hagerman singled through short but Oulette fanned.

The teams were blanked until the ninth when the Petes tied the score. Heckman singled to right. Solomon batting for Legon fiied to Ross back to second; Wolfe popped to Weir who dropped the ball but forced Heckman at second; Wolfe stole second and went to third on Hagerman's low throw. Swanston singled through short to score the tying run. Ansaldo fanned.

The Extra Inning.

With Williams pitching Comolli started them on the way with a double to left and Johnston sacrificed him to third. Collins' slow grounder to Mills scored the winning run and the batter was safe when Meagher failed to touch first. He was caught off that base by Williams however, and after Helson was hit, Heckman flied to Ross.

Belleville made a bid to tie it up, Weir starting it with a clean single to left. Mills hoisted a high one, which Comolli dropped, but recovered in time to force Weir at second. Williams filled to Ansaldo and Mills was doubled off first on the quick throw.

ROTARY SCORE MANY TALLIES

Hold Lead in Bantam Series by Defeating the Curlers 17 to 9.

After a swatfest at the expense of "Lefty" Guiry at King Edward school grounds last evening, which brought them from the rear and netted a lead of two counters, Curlers proceeded to demonstrate that as ball players they are good curlers. Once started on the downward path, the Curlers mussed up play after plan, and although they outhit the opposition, Rotary won the contest by the score of 17 to 9. Failure to stop the Rotarians cost the Curlers a position at the front of the Bantam parade.

But while there were plenty of errors, the game developed nice fielding plays and good hitting. The pitching also was interesting to watch, because neither Guiry or Doughty eased up in their efforts when the going was rough. Both youngsters finished strong, Guiry fanning the side in the seventh.

Curlers went out in a row in the first. Rotary scored four runs, on two singles, as many errors, a walk, a passed ball and a wild pitch, eight batters facing Doughty in this frame.

Curlers had two on in the second with one out, following single to left by Doughty and McFadden. McGee popped to Guiry and Kingdon fanned. A double play stopped Rotary in their half, Guiry who had been passed being nailed at the plate.

The third saw some lively hitting. Dillon leading off was struck out. Walton singled to right, and Martin went out at first. Elcombe singled to right, Westbrooke was passed, Doughty and McFadden singled, McGee doubled and Kingdon hit for a base. Into this bombardment Rotary threw three errors and a passed ball. Six runners crossed the plate, giving Curlers a lead of two.

In their half, Rotary scored a quartette of runs. Sowden was passed, LeBarr was hit, and when Gillespie lined out to first, Sowden counted. On Koster's choice down third, LeBarr mad the plate. An error at third on Archambault's grounder allowed Koster to get home and Archambault tallied on Guiry's triple.

A single by Martin, Elcome's double and a passed ball gave Curlers a run in the fourth. Rotary ook four on two singles, an infield out and four errors.

After two were gone in the Curlers' fifth, Kingdon was passed. Freeman hitting for Dillon hit out to Gillespie who lost the ball and before it has been returned both runners were home.

Infield errors gave Rotary thr e runs in their half of the fifth, changes in the Curlers' line-up failing to steady the team.

In the sixth, a fast double play stopped the Curlers. More errors gave Rotary a brace of runs. n the seventh the Curlers were stru k out in order.

LIST WORLD WAR DEAD IN MEMORIAL CENTRE

OAKLAND, Calif., July 18.—Names of 84,324 heroes who died in the World War today repose in a vault in the Allied Memorial Center here. The memorial, a majestic monument of steel and stone, was erected on the banks of Lake Merritt, in the heart of Oakland, for the purpose of holding the names of every Allied soldier, sailor, or nurse killed in the World War.

Dr. Leroy F. Herrick of Oakland who erected and maintains the memorial at his own expense, states that in time he hopes to have the nams of every participant of the World War in the huge vault of the Allied Memorial Center.

Dr. Herrick stated that the Canadian authorities have promised to have a complete list of the soldier and sailor dead of Canada in his hands on July 1, and he says the names will be deposited on July 4 with proper patroitic services. This the memorial founder stated, will be a departure from the usual method of depositing the names.

'I planned and since 1919 have carried out my plan of holding patriotic services for the depositing of the names on each Memorial Day and each Armistice Day," said Dr. Herrick, "However, I do not want to kep the entire Canadian list out of the vault until November 11, and I am going to break the rule of procedure this once.

"I do not know how long it is going to take me to get the names of the 1,500,000 soldier dead of France. The French war authorities have not finished compiling its list. I expect to have the Australian and New Zealand lists in time for next Armistice Day. brt I do not know how long it will take to get complete lists from England, Belgium, Italy and other Allies.

"The names in the vault today are all American, with the exception of 145 of Brazil's war dead."

The monument has the portraits of Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt and Wilson carved on the four sides, and is topped by an eagle. Dr. Herrick, a local physician for the last 30 years, was born in Wellington, Maine, in 1861.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchange — And Curb Prices —

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 18. —(Special.)—Prices were higher in the stock market to-day on fairly active trading. Rails were firm and more active, with Baltimore and Ohio up to 48 3-4, while Delaware and Hudson, Northern Pacific and Southern Pacific were all above Tuesday's closing. Expectation of dividends on Baltimore and Ohio this year is causing its firmness.

The leading industrial issues all bettered their previous closing levels, Steel Common being an exception at 90 3-4, off 1-8. Studebaker was up 1-4 at 103 1-2 and then sold to 103 3-4, the high price reached on the rally last Saturday.

The foreign news was better, including the preparations for the British to evacuate military and naval forces from Turkey and the forecast of the British reparations note to the effect that it proposes additional safeguards for France as well as an International Commission to fix the reparations.

The general list continued firm on moderate activity helped by short covering. Steels were in better demand and were reported that the Steel Corporations' unfilled tonnage in July is likely to show a much smaller drop than June. Bethlehem was the strongest of the Steels, selling up 5-8 at 46 5-8. International Harvester "A" at 75, was off 1 1-2 points, following the government suit to have the company split into three uits under separate ownership to end allied monopolization.

Opening prices included: American Sugar 62 3-4, up 1-2; United States' Steel 90, off 1-8; Pan American 63; American Can. 89 1-4, up 1-4; Baldwin 119 3-4, up 3-8; Baltimore and Ohio 48 3-4, up 1-4; Delaware and Hudson 105, up 1-4 American Loco 67 1-8, up 1-4; Pan American B 59 1-4, up 1-2; Bethlehem B 46 1-4, up 1-4; Studebaker 103 1-2, up 1-4; Northern Pacific 66 3-8, up 1-4; Utah 58 1-2, up 1-2; Southern Pac. 87, up 3-4; General Motors 13 1-2, up 1-4.

SAYS RUSSIA'S FUTURE LIES IN SPECULATORS

PETROGRAD, July 18. — (Associated Press).—"Only two profitable careers are open to Russia's bright young men to-day, and they are speculation or banditry," a bearded old civil engineer told the writer while riding on the train from Moscow to Petrograd the other day.

This engineer, who occupies an important post with the state railway administration, said that he earned a salary which is the equivalent of about $15 a month. His son, who is a speculator and admittedly not over scrupulous in the way he turns his profits, makes fifty times that amount.

"Our salaries are so low in the State service that no ambitious young man, particularly if he is married, can reconcile himself to accepting them. Therefore, to win a fortune or live comfortably, he must become one of that hated class in Russia and elsewhere, a speculator. The only other lucrative profession is that of a bandit, or holdup man.

"People who blame the speculators forget that it probably will be they, with their quickly secured profits and faculty of taking long chances, who will ultimately build up Russia. It is not a long cry from speculating in merchandise to taking a chance on building a railroad or developing a mine. They are the pioneers, breaking away from old Russian traditions and becoming men of business. Exactly the same kind of pioneers or speculators in your Wall Street helped build up America."

WM. RUSSELL MAKES FAREWELL BOW TO-NIGHT.

A combination of thrills, adventure, lightning action, political intrigue and red-blooded romance is seen in "Mixed Faces," the William Fox production starring William Russell which will be seen for the last time to-night at the Royal Theatre.

Laid in a small town just in the midst of a campaign for mayor, the story starts off with a burst of speed that continues until the final title. The theme is wrapped atound the adventures of Jimmy Gallop, live wire salesman, who is a "double" for Judge Granger, candidate for mayor of the town on the "votes for women," and reform ticket.

BETTY COMPSON IN FINE CROOK DRAMA

A woman with four faces.

Betty Compson had an oppertunity to emulate Nick Carter. Old Sleuth, Old King Brady, Sherlock Holmes and the rest of the great clan of super-sleuths in her new Paramount picture, "The Woman With Four Faces," which will be the attraction at the CAPITOL Theatre for three days beginning Thursday.

Not that Miss Compson is a detective—on the contrary, she plays the part of a girl crook engaged by the district attorney, (played by Richard Dix) to help him in ferreting out a great drug combine. Disguised, she aids him in many weys and wins his love in the bargain.

One thrill piled on top of another all played in the tense and highly dramatic manner demanded by this type of story, renders the picture exciting and compelling.

Imagine Betty Compson as an old woman, or as a young waitress in a cheap restaurant! It is easier to imagine her in the role of the girl crook because she established her ability to play a part of that sort in "The Miracle Man." And then there is th lovely sweet and alluring Betty Compson herself—as she will appear when reformation has come unbidden through the channels of love and mercy. A great supporting cast has been supplied and Richard Dix has a powerful acting role as the District Attorney.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Calvin Gray is the enemy of Colonel Henry Nelson of Dallas. Gray falls in love with Barbara Parker, daughter of Tom Parker. Nelson informs Tom that Gray has been dishonorably discharged from the army. Gray is friendly with Guy Brinkow, who strikes oil, and the daughter, Allie, and son, Bud, both think Gray is a hero. Gray and Brinkow buy enough stock in the bank where Nelson's father is president to give Brinkow control of the bank. Gray and Brinkow attend a meeting of the bank's directors. Gray shows the stock which has been bought by Brinkow and himself.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

Henry made his way to his father's side; they withdrew to a corner and bent their heads together, murmuring inaudibly. Gray watched them with unblinking intensity; he nodded to Buddy Brinkow, and the latter, as if heading some prearranged signal, removed his hands from his pockets and stepped farther into the room. He, too, watched the agitated pair.

"Why—look here!" the secretary gasped, after a moment or two. "This—this gives you control!"

Bell Nelson raised a stricken face. "Control?" he repeated, faintly. "Control!" He strode to the end of the table, and with shaking hands he ran through the sheaf of neatly folded certificates. "Sold out, by God!" He fell to cursing certain men, the names of whom caused Swope and Murphy and Gage to prick up their ears.

Gray was still staring at the junior Nelson; it was to him more than to the father he spoke: "Sold out is right! It came high, but I think it was worth the price. We intend to vote our stock."

"By that I infer that you're going to take the bank over—take its management away from Bell and Henry?" Bennett Swope ventured.

"Naturally."

The elder Nelson voiced an unintelligible exclamation.

"That's a pretty rough deal, Bell has put his life into it. It is an—an institution, a credit to the community. It would be a misfortune if it fell into the hands of—into the control of somebody who—" The rancchman hesitated, then blurted forth, angrily: "Well, I don't like the look of this thing. I want to know what it means."

"I'll tell you," Henry cried, unevenly. "I'll tell you what it means. Persecution! Revenge! Hatred! I quarreled with this man, in France. He's vindictive; he followed me here—tried every way to ruin me—cost me thousands, hundreds of thousands of dollars. Father and I were—we were pinched. We had to realize some quick money to protect our oil holdings—offsets and the like—and we sold a lot of our stock with the understanding that we could—that we would buy it back at a higher figure. We only borrowed on it, you might say—hypothecated it. We thought we were dealing with friends, but— Friends! My God!" The speaker seized his head.

"The stock was not hypothecated. You sold it," Gray said, quietly, "and we bought it in."

"It is all a personal matter, a grudge."

"Is that true, Mr. Gray?" Swope inquired.

"Substantially. But I'm waiting for Colonel Nelson to tell you more; to tell you the whole story of our antagonism."

Martin Murphy, who had been a silent onlooker up to this point, made himself heard. "Mr. Gray, I don't like the look of this any better than Swope does. You say you paid high for your stock; do you intend to wreck the institution, lose a fortune—?"

"I had ventured to hope that you three gentlemen would remain on the board."

"He doesn't want the bank," Henry Nelson exclaimed, hoarsely. "That's all a bluff. He wants his price. How much, Gray? What'll it cost us?"

"Oh, there is a price for everything! Mine will surprise you, however, it is so low. Can't you guess what it is?" The speaker's intent gaze had never left Henry Nelson's face; it was fixed there now, as cold, as relentless as the stare of a python.

Bell Nelson leaned forward, his lips parted, a new eagerness came into his purple countenance. "Well,

"I'LL TELL YOU WHAT IT MEANS. PERSECUTION! REVENGE!"

well! What is it?" he demanded, querulously.

"Vindication!"

There was a moment of silence. "What is he talking about, Henry?" Bell's eyes were strained toward his son.

"I don't know," the latter said, in a thin voice. "He's crazy—always was."

"I'm giving you a chance, Colonel. You'd better take it. Think carefully." When there came no response to this warning, Gray shrugged. "Very well! There is nothing further, except to complete the transfer and proceed with the business of the meeting. Mr. Briskow will be the next president, and I shall occupy the position of vice president and treasurer now held by you—"

The effect of this declaration was electric. With a cry the younger Nelson lunged forward. Confusion followed. It was of short duration, however, for Henry found himself locked in the arms of the Briskow giant.

Gray continued. "I have something to say to you gentlemen before we go on with the meeting, and I wish to say it in the presence of Colonel Nelson and his—"

"You'll not keep me here. I refuse to stay," Henry shouted, and he pushed past Swope toward the door.

"Wait!" It was the elder Nelson speaking, and in his voice was a new note—a note of triumph. "Stock can't be transferred at an annual meeting. It has to be done in advance—ten days, I think it is. Am I right, Senator?"

"That is the usual procedure," Senator Lowe agreed.

"Then there won't be any meeting!" Bell loudly declared.

"I think we'd better go," someone said. "This is too extraordinary—We're in no frame of mind to go ahead—"

"I must insist that you remain long enough to hear me out. You have no right to refuse. There is something you must be told."

"I'll admit I'm curious to know what the devil it all means," Murphy, the lumberman, confessed; "but I don't know that I should accept an explanation from you. Not after Henry's accusations. I've known him and Bell for years—"

"I respect your friendship for them, and I shn't expect you to put trust in my words. It seems to me, however, that yous owe it to that friendship to hear me. This incident has taken a turn wholly unexpected, and, I must confess, disappointing. I looked for a different outcome—hoped to be able to force an explanation—" The speaker shook his head and frowned again, perplexedly. When, after a moment of indecisive murmuring, the three directors seated themselves, Gray thanked them with a bow. "I'll be as brief as possible, and if you don't mind I'll stand as I talk. I'm in no mood to sit. I'll have to go back a bit—" It was several seconds before he resumed.

"When it became evident that the United States was going to war, I managed to get in at Plattsburg and took the officers' training course. It was easy for me to complete that course, because I had served in the Spanish War and had kept up my interest in military affairs. Something convinced those who ought to know that I possessed qualifications of unusual value to the country—a wide business experience at home and abroad, a knowledge of languages perhaps—anyhow, I was called to Washington. There I met Henry Nelson—a valuable man, too, in his way. We were commissioned at the same time and sent overseas on the same ship to engage in the same work—military intelligence. I didn't like the job, but it was considered important, and naturally I couldn't pick and choose. Of course it was secret, confidential work. No need of going into that here.

"Nelson's and my duties were identical, our authority was equal; we were ordered to work hand in hand, and although we were commissioned together, technically, he outranked me owing to the fact that he was given his commission a moment before I got mine.

"When we arrived in France I tackled my job with all the energy in me; I tried for results. Nelson, I discovered in time, was concerned only in taking entire credit for all that he and I and the whole organization under us accomplished and in advancing himself. I worked; he played politics.

"I rebelled. I had to, or be made ridiculous. I warned him, privately, as man to man. He ignored the warning. Then I prepared a complete report, showing by the copies of his orders, by the records of our respective accomplishments, by our correspondence, how he had systematically and maliciously endeavored to nullify my work and—and the like. It was not a pretty report to read. I turned it in to him for submission higher up.

"Then it was that he outgeneraled me. He was furious, of course, but he apologised—abjectly. He admitted that he had been wrong; that he had imposed upon me. He promised to play fair if I'd permit him to withhold the report, and—I was deceived.

"For a while we worked in harmony. I became engaged in an intricate case, having to do with a leak concerning transport sailings and routes—a matter involving the lives of thousands of our boys—millions of dollars in supplies, and I went to Brest, under cover. It had to be handled with extreme care—some danger about it, too. A very interesting case, I assure you. I lived in a house with some of the people under surveillance. One of them was a woman, extremely attractive—thoroughly unscrupulous. My avenue of approach was through her. Nelson, of course, knew what I was doing; he was about the only one who did.

CRISIS OF STRIKE IMPENDING TO-DAY

Situation is Tense in Cape Breton, Although Quiet Prevails.

SYDNEY, N.S. July 18.—(By Staff Correspondent, Canadian Press).—A crisis of Cape Breton coal-steel strike, which since the end of June has resulted in pouring into the district of about fifteen hundred troops, the major part of the permanent military force of Canada, was impending to-day. Yet, everywhere, the same quiet prevailed, which has characterized the situation for the past week. There was however, more of tenseness, and large knots of unsmiling men, talked of what was to come, as they stood on the street corners of Glace Bay, and adjacent mining towns.

Violated All Rules

Daniel Livingston, who is at present in Westville, and who intends leaving for Glace Bay, to-night, on being asked for a statement regarding action of President Lewis, in revoking the charter of District 26, said that as far as he was concerned "Lewis will not be allowed to do with this district what he did with Kansas. Lewis has violated all rules, customs and privileges of the U.M.W. This district has complete autonomy. The strike is a political question, it is not a matter of wages or agreement or contract. We will not allow any Americans to come into Nova Scotia and take away the rights of citizens of the province, nor will we be dictated to by Americans. Miners of Nova Scotia are free men, mostly native born and are different in that respect from Kansas miners. We are on strike to force the Government to withdraw Troops and the Provincial Police.

"We are not going to be cancelled that's all," was J. B. MacLachlan's comment when asked for statement regarding International President Lewis' cancellation of the charter of District 26. Mr. MacLachlan arrived on th eHalifax Express this morning, in company with Mayor D. W. Morrison of Glace Bay. Mr. MacLachlan and Mayor Morrison were at Pictou yesterday.

President Lewis' cancellation has not resulted in any action in mining districts yet, but it appears to be general topic of conversation among numerous groups of men that meet here and there throughout the area. Dan Livingstone is expected to arrive in Sydney to-night.

An International Board Member, Alex. Stewart, was in charge at the United Mine Workers' headquarters at Glace Bay to-day.

HUNTING OWNER FOR 2,500 BARRELS WHISKEY

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—(United Press.)—The U. S. District Court here is trying to find the owner of 2,500 barrels of pure Overholt whiskey, valued at $2,500,000, stored in the Philadelphia Pure Rye Whiskey Distilling Company at Eddington, Pa.

The company recently confiscated the liquor for non-payment of storage, after being unable to find the owner. When it was learned federal agents were about to seize the whiskey, they filed suit asking that six government departmental executives be refrained from removing the liquor.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Moss, Commissioner, of Internal Revenue Blair, Collector of Internal Revenue McCaughn, Collector of Customs Acker, and Federal Prohibition Director Davis were named as defendants.

Owners of the warehouse some time ago sold their holdings to a syndicate headed by Leo A. Kearns. Kearns said that the 2,500 barrels of Overholt were part of a shipment of 42,000 barrels order in France in 1920, before prohibition. Because there was no market for the entire shipment, the 2,500 barrels were returned from France and placed in the warehouse.

No storage has been paid since October, 1922. The owners of the liquor have not revealed their identity.

PETERBORO MAN IN SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Joseph Nasimok Fell on Circular Saw Sustaining Dangerous Wounds.

LINDSAY, July 18. — Joseph Nasimok, of Peterboro, who is engaged with an orchestra from that city to play at the Greenhurst pavilion, Sturgeon Lake, was the victim of a bad accident Monday night. He was playing in a game of baseball and when running after a fly-ball did not notice an old-fashioned circular saw which was lying on the ground. He tripped and fell, the blade striking him across the shoulders, cutting both, slashing his chin and gashing his throat. Dr. Shier of Lindsay attended his injuries.

Mr. J. Nazimok, George street, informed the Examiner to-day that his son's condition was not as serious as had been feared. Dr. Shier put in six stitches in the youth's chin and throat and Mr. Nazimok was able to return to his work in the orchestra.

ATTEMPT TO SET UP REPUBLIC ON RHINE

BERLIN, July 18.— (United Press.)—Despatches from Bonn declare disorders have been stirred up there by plotters endeavoring to establish a Rhenish republic, a mob stormed the post office which was apparently to be seized for headquarters of the revolutionary movement, but the rioters were repulsed and dispelled by officials and inhabitants. German circles charge that the movement for a Rhineland republic is backed surrepticiously by France, which wishes to separate the Rhine and the Ruhr from Germany and create autonomous state which can be used as a "buffer" in time of war.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Millbrook Represented at Gathering in Mariposa Township — Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, July 18. — A large gathering of the lineal descendants of Captain Samuel Brock, a cousin of General Sir Isaac Brock, of Queenston Heights fame, met recently for their annual reunion at Port Bolster Heights, in Mariposa township, members of the family being present from Toronto, Lindsay, Millbrook, Midland, Elmvale, Cannington, Oakwood, Pickering, Gamebridge, Stayner and other points. Reminiscent speeches were made by Messrs. John Brock, Howard de Geer Dr. LeRoy Reazin, H. Hart and Frank Webster. It was decided that the reunion will for the future be known as "Brock Day" and held annually on June 30. The following were elected officers and committee of management:

Pres., John Brock, Lindsay; Vice-president, Howard DeG. Victoria Road; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. H. Hart, Cannington; Committee, Mrs. A. A. Birchard, Millbrook; Mrs. P. Snodden, Cannington; Mrs. F. Gibsh, Lindsay; Mrs. G. Tompkins, Lindsay; E. Terril, Wooller; Dr. LeRoy Reazin, Toronto; J. Carson, Gamebridge; Mrs. E. Cumberland, Toronto; A. Clute, Midland.

The president and vice-president are uncle and cousin respectively of Mrs. A. A. Birchard, Millbrook, who with her mother, Mrs. S. DeGeer, attended the gathering.

Eighteen members of the committee re the Old Boys' Reunion met in the council chamber on Saturday evening to make further arrangements for the event, the time being largely spent in a discussion of the Sunday services. Messrs. J. N. McGill, J. W. McCamus, W. H. Wood, and T. H. Aiken were finally appointed a committee to wait up the ministerial association on Monday morning and request that the Association cooperate with the committee in the suggestion of having the morning service on Sunday, August 26th, take the form of a mass meeting. The local clergy with Rev R. M. Paterson of Fenerville, secretary of the Association, and the committee, the final decision apparently being to have each church hold its own service in the morning and arrange for mass meetings in the afternoon and evening.

The committee expects to meet each Saturday evening from this on to complete the necessary details.

The Sunday School of St. Thomas church is holding its annual picnic to Wallace's Point on Thursday, July 19th, cars being provided for all those wishing to attend.

Mrs. H. Rea, formerly of London, Ont., but since the recent death of her husband the late Dr. Rea, making her home in Millbrook, with her brother and sister, Mr. D. and Miss A. Hampton, has purchased Mrs. E. Whyte's cosy home on King street, taking possession the first of October.

The annual meeting of the district Women's Institute held in Millbrook, on Wednesday, July 11th, was unfortunately very poorly attended, only one branch besides the local organization being represented. Apparently the fact that so many intended going to Cobourg to the 12th celebration, the following day, made it impossible for them to be present at the Wednesday meeting also. As the officers of the Millbrook branch had prepared for a larger number of delegates, they were keenly disappointed when so few put in an appearance, especially as the year's work will naturally be considerably retarded as a result. The former officers were re-elected, the only thing possible under the circumstances, the reports for the year which had been received in writing by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, being duly tabulated and sent to headquarters as usual. The officers are as follows:

Pres., Mrs. T. A. Skitch, Bailieboro.

1st Vice-Pres., Mrs. John Allen, Millbrook.

2nd Vice-Pres., Mrs. A. C. Beatty, Garden Hill.

Sec.-Treas., Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Millbrook.

Asst. Sec.-Treas., Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Millbrook.

District Director — Mrs. S. Jemison, Bethany.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sayles, Mr. and Mrs. P. Stinson, Messrs. E. C. Richards, H. J. Grassett, W. Gray, H. Hunter, A. and M. McCorry motored over to Bethany and took in the ball game on Monday evening between that town and Janetville, the play off for the North District championship in the East Durham League.

Mrs. W. Smith and her eldest son, Mr. Austin Smith, of Kingsville who have been on a motor trip as far as Quebec, were guests of Mr. F. W. and Miss L. Burton, this week, leaving again for home on Wednesday.

Mrs. S. E. Eakins and daughter, Mary, have returned home after a two weeks visit with friends in Western Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Dawson of Rossburn, Man., and Mr. George Dawson of Winnipeg, who have been visiting at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dawson, left for their respective homes last week.

Efficient Housekeeping

The modern idea of economy extends into the household as well as into every branch of business. Most housewives pride themselves upon the fact that their homes are conducted in an efficient, business like manner.

Every housewife knows, too, that the business of running a house, providing for the wants and needs of the different members of the family and meeting the almost daily emergencies is second to none.

The Want Ads. in the Examiner are a great boon to the efficient housewife. In securing helpers, in purchasing various articles of household equipment, disposing of discarded furniture, in fact in countless ways, the Want Ads. are the housewife's most valuable assistant.

DRUNKEN CZAR CAUSED DE TH OF KITCHENER

Rasputin's Secretary Says Late Russian Emperor Betrayed the Secret of British Mission.

SPY LEARNED FACT

NEW YORK, July 19. — The drunken prattle of the Czar of Russia, and not any plot by the Jews, led to the betrayal of Lord Kitchener, according to Aaron Simonovitch, sometime secretary to the late Gregory Rasputin. Simonovitch has been in New York for the last two months and has been writing his memoirs. The Jewish Morning Journal, which has been preparing them for publication, made public the gist of that part concerning the death of Lord Kitchener.

At The Journal offices it was explained that an advance release of that portion of Simonovitch's memoirs had been decided upon in order to refute the charge of Lord Alfred Douglas that the Jews were responsible for Kitchener's death. It was these charges which precipitated an attack upon Lord Alfred Douglas by The Morning Post of London, which, in turn, led to a libel suit by Lord Alfred against that newspaper, which was decided nominally in his favor.

Czarina Tearing Her Hair.

On the morning that news of Kitchener's death transpired, so runs Simonovitch's story, he noticed that Rasputin was extremely nervous and worried. He asked what was amiss and Rasputin told him he was afraid of what "Papa" (meaning the late Czar) had done.

Rasputin went on to explain that the Germans had killed a big British General and he feared lest the people of that nation would suspect that Russia had brought about his death for fear of changes he would contrive to make if he were allowed to reach the Czar's ear. Rasputin also said tha he had seen the Czarina and that she was "crying and tearing her hair," fearing that, because of her family connections with Germany, the British would suspect her in particular of having betrayed Kitchener while he was on his way to Russia on a confidential mission.

Czar Told Boon Companion.

The Monk, so Simonovitch learned a few days later, according to the digest of his narrative, set about to discover who it was that knew Kitchener was coming, and hence who had had opportunity to let the secret slip. Simonovitch next learned fro mthe Monk, he tells, that the Czar in response to Rasputin's questions, said that he received a cipher message that Kitchener was coming one morning while he was at breakfast. At first he said the secret had been kept intact, but under a direct accusation from Rasputin, admitted that he was dining with two of his entourage that morning, they had drunk a great deal during the meal and he, the Czar, had become garrulous. Fiend Who Took Life of 6-Year-Old Child May Be Captured Tonight.

COCHRANE, July 19.—(Canadian Press).—While police officers at noon to-day decided there was nothing fresh to report in the murder case which has stunned this town, there were hints that some developments might be expected by to-night. What these were the authorities would not divulge.

Under the personal direction of Inspector Walter Moore, of this Provincial police district, the countryside is being combed for the man who sent six-year-old Monica Foster to a brutal death, but the clues are slight and the murderer had advantage of a twelve-hour start.

Say Royal Wedding May Be Postponed

LONDON, July 19. — Canadian Press. — The marriage of Crown Prince Gustave of Sweden to Lady Louise Mountbatten, sister of Princess Andrew of Greece, may be postponed, according to a Central News despatch, from Stockholm, until a change is made in the fundamental law of Sweden, which prohibits the heir to the throne from marrying a daughter of a Swedish or foreign "private man."

Investigation by member of the superior court, the despatch says revealed that the Prince's English fiancee is a daughter of a "private man," but the judge expressed the opinion that that difficulty could soon be obviated satisfactorily with the cooperation of the Swedish Royal house and people.

BANKER STILL ON THE TRAIL OF GEM THIEF

Two Thousand Dollar Watch Recovered From Woman in San Francisco—A Big Reward.

A BOLD THEFT

NEW YORK, July 19.—Determined to run down Henri Boilat, his former butler, who twice robbed him anda who, on April 2 1922, came near causing the death of him and his wife by locking them up in a vault of their home at 19 Washington square, north, Albert R. Shattuck, retired banker, sailed for Paris last week. He will try to spur on the French police in the search of the international criminal.

This fact became known last night, together with the knowledge that detectives of the staff of Inspector John Coughlin, who have been working on the case, recently succeed in recovering a diamond-studded watch worth $2,000, part of the proceeds of the first robbery of the Shattuck family by Boilat in 1917. At that time the former butler escaped with $12,000 worth of jewels.

The diamond-studded watch was a heirloom and as the property of Mrs Shattuck. Detectives of Inspector Coughlin's staff found the watch in the possession of a woman in San Francisco, a former sweetheart of Boilat, who fled with him from this city after the first Shattuck robbery.

This woman, an Italian about 42 years old, is now married to a respectable business man on the Coast. She said the watch had been given her by Boilat and she readily gave it up to the police.

To personally deliver this watch in the form of a surprise to his wife, now in Paris, is one of the reasons, it was learned that Mr. Shattuck sailed quietly from this city. Another reason is that information came to him recently causing him to believe that Boilat may be in Paris or its environs. In Paris ,Mr. Shattuck will renew his offer of a reward of $15,000 to any detective bringing about the arrest of Boilat.

This is the second time Mr. Shattuck has sailed for France in connection with his efforts to run down Boilat. He first sailed with his wife shortly after the robbery and returned after unsuccessful searching for his former butler throughout Europe.

Mrs. Shattuck remained in France, for the reason, it is said, that she still was too unnerved when her husband returned to this country to go back to their Washington Square home.

"Mrs. Shattuck has said that she never will be able to rest at ease in the Washington Square mansion so long as Boilat is at large," a friend of the family said last night. "She is afraid that the former butler coming back and forcing her and her husband through the same ordeal that came near causing their deaths in the last robbery."

Henri Boilat, whose real name is said to be Gabriel Alfonse Mauray, was born in Paris about 35 years ago. With several accomplices, he surprised Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck in their home on Sunday, April 2, 1922, and at the point of revolvers forced them into a vault and stripped the house of $75 000 worth of jewels and other valuables.

The cries of the Shattucks were heard later a nd they were released after they were on the verge of collapse. One of the robbers was captured the same day and another was taken later. Each was given sixty years in prison. Another man and Boilat are still at large.

GUN FIGHT IS LESS POPULAR OLD NEW YORK

Education in the Dark Corners of the City Has Done Much to Eliminate Them.

VICTIMS SILENT

NEW YORK, July 19.—There had been a fight with gunplay in an east side neighborhood where such encounters are not uncommon. A fusillade had disturbed the early morning calm of the tenements. Above the sound of the shots could be heard the hoarse cries of the men and the thud of fleeing feet. Then all was quiet again.

The tired tenements yawned and closed their eyes. It was a bad dream, a nightmare, at any rate it wasn't worth bothering about or decent folks losing sleep over. A policeman came running. He found a man dead in the gutter and another, conscious, nearby who was gasping out his life.

"Who shot you?" he asked. "Tell me who it was."

The wounded man opened his eyes and whispered weakly, "Thata all right. I nota tell; I get him some-a-time, maybe."

He was taken to the hospita' where he soon died without revealing his secret.

Presently two detectives arrived and began to question the few stragglers they succeeded in rounding up. But these were strangely ignorant of what had happened. They shrugged their shoulders and shook their heads, protesting they knew nothing of the tragedy.

"It is not always easy to get at the bottom of such fights," experienced detectives say. "The belligerents seldom go to the police with their troubles, preferring to settle scores in their own crude way. This type of gangster and feudist is strongly actuated by a spirit of revenge, and many of them, especially those from alien shores, insist on taking the law into their own hands. Most of their fights can be traced to three things: gambling, quarrels over the division of spoils and family feuds. Many of their feuds are of long standing and resemble those of our Kentucky mountains, being handed down from father to son. If one could trace the histories of these feuds, one would discover that some began years ago in remote corners of the Old World.

"In the ordinary feudist murder the assassin lays in wait for his victim in a cold-blooded fashion. He usually conceals himself in a dark window or hallway. When the victim passes there is a sharp report and if the aim be true that is the sorry end of the victim. But it is not always as simple as that. The victim not infrequently learns through some underground channel plans to protect himself. He keeps close to the house at night and avoids places where his enemies might surprise him. Some such men, if they can, employ bodyguards. The latter are, as a rule, desperate fellows, willing to risk their lives for a price. A certain man used to wear a vest of mail and never left his home without a bodyguard. At one time or another several of these protectors were shot down beside him, but he himself appeared to bear a charmed life. One night he visited a coffee house kept by his son, accompanied by his bodyguard. On arriving there he believed himself safe and dispatched his bodyguard on an errand. When his bodyguard had turned a corner several rough-clad men entered the place, extinguished the lights and shot him to death.

"Several years ago there was a stable of ill-repute in a certain section of the east side. It was common report that old, worn-out horses were doctored there and sold as being sound and fit. Every proprietor of this ill-fated stable came to an untimely end, until more than twenty murders could be traced to the stable or its environs. The last proprietor, a smooth, dapper fellow was rudely 'bumped off' with a sawed-off shotgun one night just as he was departing for home."

Feudist murders are by no means as common today as they were a few years ago, some detectives say. The spread of enlightenment and education into dark corners of the city has done much toward eliminating them. Most of the actors in the old criminal feuds in which one gang sought revenge upon another either have been killed in these gang conflicts or have been sent to prison for their crimes. Law-abiding citizens in neighbourhoods infested by these criminals decreed a long time ago that the gangs should not be menace to their communities and the police descended upon these criminal nests whencver they were unearthed.

An Indian spider's web only six inches in width was found to contain over 41,500 meshes.

Italy Planning to Grow Own Wheat

ROME, July 19. — (United Press)—Italy's determination to become self sufficient in its wheat supply, growing wheat at home rather than being forced to import, is emphasized, by the government appropriation of two million lire for the construction of an agricultural experimentl farm.

A small commission was appointed Wednesday, to select towns in which the farms will be established. The intsructors will at first confine themselves to teaching the peasants how to raise wheat and increase wheat production on land already devoted to this crop.

BERGDOLL MAY CHANGE VIEWS

America's Notorious Draft Dodger Anxious to Save Million Dollar Estate.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Grover C. Bergdoll, draft dodger, now living in Switzerland, is expected to return to the United States through the importunities of his mother, who is going to Europe to visit her son.

Mrs. Bergdoll told Government officials that she is anxious for her son's return and that she wants him to serve his sentence. This was the situation Chester N. Farr of Philadelphia, her counsel, outlined to Alien Property Custodian Miller, who then consented that the State Department issue Mrs. Bergdoll a passport.

Government officials to-day said that if the fugitive should return and serve his sentence, there would be no claim against his $1,300,000 estate which is now held in custody by the Alien Property Custodian. Unless this is done, it is pointed out, this money may go to pay claims of Americans against the German Government.

While is it known that Bergdoll is not anxious to serve his sentence, his lawyer said that his funds, as well a those of his mother, were getting low and necessity is forcing this man without a country to re turn to the land where he refused to respond to the colors.

Because of financial stress here and Bergdoll's inability to earn any money abroad, Government officials appear to be confident that the fugitiv, will return with his mother, serve his sentence and have his property restored.

The amended Trading-With-the-Enemy act in one section reads:

"No person shall be entitled to the rturn of any property or money under the provisions of this act who is a fugitive from justice from the United States, or any State or territory thereof."

FREE IRELAND IS THE SLOGAN

Mary McSwiney Returns Home to Ireland in a New Crusade.

PARIS, July 19. (Special.) — Mary McSwiney, Irish Joan of Arc, and widow of the late Lord Mayor McSwiney, of Cork, arrived on Wednesday from America, and rushed immediately to Dublin to aid Eamon DeValera in his fight for the recognition of the Sinn Fein.

"We must free Ireland," she told the United Press, "I expect to get arrested by doing it but I shall join two hundred and fifty Irish women already in jails for their love of freedom."

"No—I shall not go on a hunger strike if I am arrested; it is true that my husband died, but the days and the purposes of the hunger strike are over." It will be recalled Mrs. McSwiney acquiesced in her husbands hunger strike, which ended in his death.

FEAR A BREAK WITH FRANCE IS IMPENDING

British and Continental Press Pessimistic Over Outcome of the British Stand on Reparations.

AWAIT BRITISH NOTE

LONDON, July 19. — (United Press).—Great Britain's note to Germany covering letter and an explanatory document, were under final discussion by the cabinet to-day, while the Allies and the late enemy awaited anxiously the hour of publication.

Semi-official advices as the note and its accompanying documents under went last minute changes were to the effect that there was nothing in it to warrant anticipation of immediate rejection by France and Belgium The optimism from authoritative sources was not shared by the British or Continental press, nor by the public, nor by the public, however, it was generally felt the note had possibilities of a definite break with France over the subject of reparations.

It is understood, although the contents of the note have been closely guarded and were subject to eleventh hour changes. The British insists in a covering letter that the British idea on reparations in in conformity with the Versailles treaty.

Treaty Ignored.

French spokemen have been stressing the point that Britain has ignored the treaty The note may lead to a further debate between France and England, over which correctly interprets the treaty that ended the world war.

Marquis Curzon, foreign minister, received the German Ambassador, last night. At the same time Premier Theunis and foreign minister Jasper of Belgium were receiving the French Ambassador to Brussels.

The Belgians probably will go to Paris the first of next week to confer with Premier Poincaire on the reply to be made to Britain's suggestion that all the Allies endorse the note to Germany.

LAW REGARDING SUNDAY SELLING

Ice Cream For Home Use Must Be Paid For on Saturday—Sale of Tobacco Prohibited.

Some confusion exists in the city regarding the provisions of the Lord's Day Act as it concerns the sale of ice cream and tobacco.

Chief Newhall, interviewed regarding it, stated that tobacco, cigarettes and cigars come under the prohibitions of the Act except where they are to be consumed wholly as a part of a meal in a restaurant or hotel. Ice cream, similarly, may be purchased for consumption on the premises of the place where it is bought, but may not be taken away. This is modified in cases where ice cream is purchased and paid for on a day previous to Sunday and merely left in the vendor's refrigerator until Sunday. Anyone who wishes to have ice cream in his home on Sunday must pay for it on Saturday.

THE PRINCESS WAS REMANDED

Stunning Green Costume Failed to Move the Court at Murder Hearing.

LONDON, July 19. — (United Press).—Princess Margurite Fahmy has evidently concluded that British Courts are not susceptible to feminine wiles practiced by vamping husband murderers.

Taking a leaf from the book of American sisters, charged with popping off superfluous husabnd, she appeared at her last trial in a stunning green costume calculated to dazzle the judge taking evidence on the charge she shot her husband, Prince Alikmal Fahmyof Egypt.

Wednesday, however she appeared in a sober black costume, —white stockings giving the only spot of brightness in a studiedly severe dress Said Enani, secretary of the dead Prince, testified that Prince Ali had treated his wife cruelly and admitted Margurite told him the Prince had threatened to kill her. The case was adjourned until Saturday.

WILL DECLARE KU KLUX KLAN

Ancient Order of Hibernians May Take Part in a Finish Fight.

MONTREAL, July 19.— (Canadian Press.)—Celebration of Ancient Order of Hibernians as an active militant force pledged in a fight to a finish with Ku Klux Klan is confidently looked for this morning when it is expected a resolution based on Hon. Patrick O'Donnell's disclosures before the convention will be brought forward for adoption.

Julge O'Donnell, of Chicago, in account of work being done by the American Unity League, an organization founded by him to maintain racial, religious and social tolerance, made strong indictment of the Ku Klux Klan as a body treasonable to the State.

"Some of the most prominent men in the State of Illinois and Indiana, severely injured, if not ruined, through publication of their names in our official organ, "Tolerance," said the judge, in course of an interview. "In those two States alone we have already published 22,000 names and we have as many more we have no yet published."

HOTTEST DAY OF YEAR.

WINNIPEG, July 19.—(Canadian Press).—Winnipeg sizzled yesterday as the mercury climbed to the 98 mark. It was the hottest day of the year, and the weatherman gives little prospects of relief with a prediction of "mostly fair and warm." The highest temperature Tuesday was 93.

LATE TEACHER IN PETERBORO HEADS MASONS

W. J. Drope Mounts Dais as Ruler of Grand Lodge of Ontario—Violation of Secrets Scored.

WELCOME TO BRITISH

TORONTO, July 19.— W. J. Drope, of Grimsby, formerly of Peterborough, was unanimously selected Grand Master by Masons in the 68th annual Communication of the Grand Lodge of Ontario.

W. J. Drope, at present conducting a private school in Grimsby, at one time taught in the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. His Mother Lodge is "Peterborough," of this city, and he has a host of friends here, where he was very popular during his residence.

Nominations for the various offices closed last night, and W. J. Drope will to-day mount the dais as head of the Masons on declaration by acclamation.

Our Ain Folk.

True craftsmen of the Grand Masonic Lodge of Canada, in the Province of Ontario ,at their annual communication in Massey Hall yesterday, shared genial and glowing fellowship with distinguished representatives of the sister Grand jurisdictions of England, the United States and other Provinces of Canada. It was the happy privilege of Grand Lodge to welcome them with all her heart.

Grand Master Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., of Belleville, made them feel at home, when he said: "You are our ain folk, brethren of our own tribes and families."

The mother Grand Lodge of the world, the Grand Lodge of England, sent at the head of her delegation Lord Ampthill, who with his other Grand Representatives, brought cordial greetings of good-will. Grand Lodge honored itself by conferring Grand rank upon the distinguished visitors, who acknowledged the tributes to their Grand Lodges with gracious words of thanks.

The first day of the Grand Lodge communication was full of interest and vital moment to the craft. Brimming hospitality flowed all day to the distinguished visitors. The day was more than mere Masonic function or dramatic festival, and the visitors commented upon the dignified impressiveness of the whole gathering.

Grand Master's Address.

Grand Master Ponton, in his annual address, said his duty impelled him to speak of a number of matters that called for adverse comment and against which he said the Craft must be protected.

"There is a chorus of complaint as to the violation of secrecy and the leakage of transactious of the lodges through divided allegiance and through thoughtlessness. Many of the gentle, philanthropic and altogether charming ladies of the Eastern Star know within 24 hours who have been balloted for, what is the fate of candidates and what the discussions at the meetings. It is not the fault of the ladies, who do not pry and probe; it is the men who unbosom themselves, and who must be disciplined. Brethren, again let it be repeated officially from the throne that members of the Eastern Star or any other female order, dear as they are to our kind and kin, are not and never can be Masons, and that males who associate themselves in office with them, in their capacity as Masons, and who are chosen as such by reason of theier being in good standing in the Third Degree—which no one outside the Craft has the right to know—are defying the edict of this Grand Lodge passed at its last annual communication. This applies to all other organizations (not recognized by this Grand Lodge) who make Masonry itself the open test and con-

DIVISIONS IN MINERS' CAMP

Westville Coal Workers Decide to Abandon the Strike and Return to Work.

SYDNEY, N. S., July 19. Canadian Press. — Anticipated divisions among among the Nova Scotians miners, consequent upon revocation of their district charter by John L. Lewis, the International President of the United Mine Workers, have begun.

If the past indicates what the present is likely to bring, there will be a determined conflict between the opposing wings.

At Glace Bay last night a mass meeting of four thousand mine workers voted to defy President Lewis. They voted to disobey his reiterated order that the Nova Scotia strikers return to work, and to ignore any orders issued to local unions by Hilby Barrett, whom Lewis appointed provisional president of the district when he revoked its charter on Tuesday.

Accompanying these decisions were speeches by James B. MacLachlan, and other Radical leaders, including John McDonald of Workers Party, Toronto, in which Lewis was hotly denounced and accused of being in league with the British Empire Steel Corporation. Governments and corporations were assailed as allies in a plot to crush the workers.

At Springhill, another of the three major mining centres in the province the miners are standing by their international chief.

The indications are moreover that divisions will show themselves in the next few days at different points

At Sydney Mines, for instance, there is unquestionably a large group of men who are eager to return to work thouhg the radical element is making a most determined effort to prevent anything of the kind.

Feeling of Relief.

A feeling of relief spread over the community and the country generally when it was learned that at a meeting of Westville miners last night in their regular U.M.W. session it was decided to abandon the strike and return to work on Friday morning.

No reasons have been given out by the executive and the meeting was a closed one.

Work will be resumed in the Drummond colliery of the International Mining Company, at Westville this week. It is the first break in the strike situation.

TERROR OF SKIES BUILT IN ENGLAND.

New Plane Folds Its Wings to Attack—Aerial Battering-Ram.

LONDON, July 19. — (United Press).—An aerial battering-ram, that will swoop down like a hawk from the skies to prey upon slow-moving "troop planes" and transports, is being constructed secretly in England, according to newspaper reports.

Described as the most fearful air weapon conceived, the new plane is to be a heavily-armored, steel-nosed air-ram, a combination of airplane and javelin, which at the direction of its pilot would rush down to destroy larger, slower aircraft transporting soldiers or munitions.

The new machine is designed for use with the air leviathans that will act as mother planes to small battle flyers.

Its only weapon is to be a knife-like prow to disable its adversaries. It is a one-man affair.

The pilot will watch for enemy planes, and when one has been sighted detach himself from the mother ship and drop at tremendous speed. When certain of hitting his target, he will move a lever that will cause the wings to fold back under cover of the prow. After the blow has been struck, it is intended that equilibrium shall be restored by means of a peculiar rudder arrangement and a powerful engine that will operate previously-shielded air-screws. Then the wings are to be unfolded and the flight back to the mother ship begun.

The air-ram would not usually strike at the body of an airplane, but the wings, hoping to disable it.

Air experts say that a weapon against it must be sought indirectly —that the mother plane must be disabled.

But the fact that these are planned to fly at tremendous heights, out of the danger of attack, complicates the problem and leaves the air-ram the prospective terror of the skies.

Heirs of Abdul Hamid to Fight For Fortune.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 19. — (Associated Press).—American lawyers may soon begin a legal battle to establish the right of the heirs of the late Sultan Abdul Hamid to oil properties and real estate in the territories now detached from Turkey, estimated to be worth $500,000,000. The heirs of the former Sultan include four princes and four princesses, and they are headed by Prince Mehmed Selim Effendi, presumptive successor to the Caliphate.

The heirs are seeking satisfaction at Lausanne, and if this endeavor fails they will instruct their American attorneys to begin legal proceedings. They say that the Lausanne Conference seems inclined to give a decision which would class the properties in question as belonging to the Turkish Crown. This they aver is wrong, declaring that according to law the properties should pass in equal succession to Abdul Hamid's sons and daughters, and that they will take every means to secure justice.

Although the former Government of the Committee of Union and Progress usurped certain of the rights of the heirs and did its best to invalidate succession, it is claimed that it failed in its object.

A number of American concession-hunters have been after the heirs to grant them rights in the immense domains of the former sovereign of Turkey, and have competed with British promoters in their financial offers. If Lausanne decides in favor of the heirs, they will be able to farm out the properties without delay. Otherwise they will contest and make a legal fight.

DRY LAWS OF U.S. AGAIN UP IN THE HOUSE

British Foreign Office Had No Information Regarding Liquor Seized in Honolulu From British Ships.

CAUSE OF FRICTION.

LONDON, July 19.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Replying to a question in the House of Commons yesterday as to what action the government was taking in the matter of some British vessels which, while on the way from Canada to Australia, had put in at Honolulu and while in that port had been deprived of spirituous liquors by American authorities, Ronald McNeill, under-secretary for foreign affairs, said he had no official information on the matter.

The questioner indignantly asked how it was that the foreign office had no information with regard to the matter which had been referred to largely in the Canadian newspapers and protests had been made about it. He said surely it would be advisable for the foreign office to enquire into the affair. Assuming that the facts of the case were as stated, the questioner wanted to know if the attention of the government of the United States had been called to a certain despatch of that government to the Spanish government on a similar matter.

Under-Seretary McNeill rejoined ed that the questioner was elaborating a hypothetical question on the consumption that the report as to the liquor seizure at Honolulu was correct. That was as far as he went by way of reply.

BISLEY CAMP, July 19.—(Canadian Press Cable).— Thirteen Canadians are among the three hundmarksmen who will go into the second stage of the King's Prize competition on Friday and this representation may be increased in the shoot-off for nineteen places by the 4 competitors who scored 95 in the qualifying stage yesterday. GOVERNMENT REPLY TO THE SHAREHOLDERS MADE LAST EVENING

Does Not Recognize Any Claim Against the Government — Companies Themselves Were Responsible For Interest.

BRITISH PRESS.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 19—(Canadian Press)—The reply of the Government to representations made by the Grand Trunk shareholders' committee on behalf of shareholders of Grand Trunk Pacific 4 per cent. debenture stock, was issued last night. The reply recognizes the obligation of the G. T. R. and G. T. P. to meet the debentures interst charges when there are sufficient earnings but does not recognize that there is a claim against the Canadian Government, there being no government guarantee. The reply observes that the authorized issue of the G.T.P. debentures was fifty millions, of which their is outstanding $34,879,-252,86, on which the annual interest amounts to $1,395,170.12. The total amount paid to these debenture holders to March. 1919, was $12,363,-358.88 of which sum $7,944,320.17 accrued to December 31, 1915, which date, technically marked the completion of construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company.

After 1915, the reply proceeds, interest on the debentures became an income liability, but at no time between January 1, 1916, up to the abandonment of the road by the Grand Trunk Pacific Company in March, 1919, nor since that period under the receivership, have the revenues of the Grand Trunk Pacific been sufficient to meet operating expenses, let alone interest.

"As," continues the reply, "the interest was paid by the Grand Trunk Pacific Company up to and including March. 1919, it is obvious that the payments were made with borrowed money, either that derived from capital or from loans."

The reply asks why the Grand Trunk, as guarantor, did not itself make these interest payments in view of the claim of the stockholders Committee as to the sufficiency of the pre-war not surplus to meet the obligation.

It remarks that total advances by the government to the Grand Trunk Pacific to December 31, 1922, amounted to $90,558,034.75. Contrast this with the position of the debenture stock holders. The government has advanced more than ninety millions and has had no interest whatever—the debenture-holders invest less than $35,000,000 and have had interest aggregating $12,362,358.88. It may also be expressed in this fashion The G.T.P. owes the government approximately $21,000,000 in unpaid interest alone. The debenture stockholders have missed eight half-year ly interest payments amounting in all to $5.580,680.

Dealing with the legal aspect of the case, the reply continues

"There is no question but that the claim is legally enforceable against the Grand Trunk Pacific and against the Grand Trunk within the limits of the latter's conditional guarantee. There being no government guarantee, it is not enforceable against the government. On the other hand, notwithstanding the inclusion of the Grand Trunk guaranteed stock in the protected class, dividends on that security cannot be paid out of Grand Trunk funds while the interest on the senior Grand Trunk Pacific four per cent. principal debentures is not being paid. Thus the guarantee of the of the Grand Trunk four per cent guaranteed stock is at present a charge not on the earnings of the Grand Trunk but on the government direct.

"However, this legal liability is limited to the satisfaction which the property is able to provide and the deebnture stock-holders may claim only the remedy to be afforded by the sale of the property. It is singular that Grand Trunk Pacific debenture holders quite iail to appreciate that the company in which they invested their money long since, became defunct, and that in the ordinary process of law their equity would assuredly have been extinguished at that time. It had been in receivership for two years at the date of arbitration and is still in receivership."

"We recognize clearly and distinctly," the report proceeds, "the obligation of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada and of the Grand Trunk Pacific to meet the debenture interest charges as and when there are sufficient earnings. It will add to the difficulties and expense of the National lines to be obliged to maintain indefinitely separate accounting for these component parts of the system, but it is not impossible, and, as a matter of fact, is being done. We do not lose sight of the advantages that would follow a more simple method of accounting and the continuation of the present system will cause annoyance, inconvenience and loss but inasmuch as under the terms of debenture issue it is necessary to provide separate showings, the railways will continue to maintain these several accounts."

In conclusion the reply touches upon the critical attitude assumed by the British press with regard to the Canadian governmen's acquisition of the Grand Trunk properties.

"Your committee," the statement reads, "would like to correct a curious misapprehension which appears to exist abroad as to these Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific properties. To read the comments of and letters appearing in the British press, one would think that the Canadian government had selfishly acquired a most lucrative enterprise and was endeavoring to divert profits from English investors to the treasury of Canada. If that were a fact such claims as the Canadian government has been called upon to consider in this connection could scarcely be denied, but the truth is, as we have endeavored to show in the detail of our present argument the government of Canada took over properties in virtual bankruptcy and every hour since that acquisition was effected, and every day, has added to the burden to be supported by the Canadian tax-payer. In the fact that the government of Canada has poured out its money in this way to save these companies from disaster any reason whyit should now undertake new expenditures as to which it is under no moral or legal obligation It is in the highest degree important that British investors realize that these properties instead of being profitable enterprises are in point of fact adding immensely to the financial embarrassment of the Dominion.

"And there is this added thought: the Grand Trunk of 1923 is not the Grand Trunk of 1920 any more than the Grand Trunk Pacific of 1919 is the Grand Trunk Pacific of to-day. The government had had to find much credit and money before these roads were acquird. But since those dates the government has had to find more than two hundred millions in cash and fifty millions in credit. It has provided a re-organized and efficient resident management who will expect any credit there may be for improved showing. Canada has had to assume this burden whether it wished to or not and we respectfully suggest that the Canadian government and the Canadian taxpayer are under the circumstances entitled to sympathy rather than reproach or condemnation."

QUEBEC AND ITS RESORTS.

The opportunities offered by the Province of Quebec for a vacation are set forth in a beautifully illustrated and well-written folder entitled 'Resorts in Quebec' published by the Canadian Pacific Railway and distributed by its Agents.

Montreal can be reached overnight from Peterboro and one has a choice of night train or day train. From Montreal, it is but a few hours' ride to many resorts, including the Laurentian Mountains with their many beauty spots, or to the old world City of Quebec with its traditions dating back to 1535.

A visitor to Quebec, especially to its rural section, will find many reminders of the old regime and be charmed with the old world manners of the inhabitants.

Ask the nearest Canadian Pacific Agent to mail you the 'Resorts in Quebec' folder—you will be surprised at the wealth of information it contains and you will be better acquainted with your neighbor Province after reading it.

INSURANCE FOR MEN KILLED IS NOT ALLOWED

Losses to Companies Was An Indirect Result of the War and Claims Are Not Allowed By Hon. Wm. Pugsley.

MAY APPEAL.

OTTAWA, July 19. — (Canadian Press.) — Claims of life insurance companies for losses through payment of policies held by men killed during military service which run into millions of dollars, are not allowable, according to an opinion expressed in a statement issued last night by Hon. William Pugsley, Commissioner, appointed by the federal government to investigtae warfare claims.

While Mr. Pugsley makes it clear that the claimant companies need not accept his view and may, if they so desire, press their claims in the usual way, he states that he has given this class of application careful thought and has come to the conclusion that such claims do not come within the provisions of annex 1, part 8, Treaty of Versailles.

He bases this belief upon the argument that the losses of insurance companies and impairment of reserves, through death of soldiers carrying policies cannot be considered direct loss to the companies.

"The direct damage," says the statement, "was to the persons of the insured and in consequence of their death the companies were obliged under their policies to pay the insurance money. But the damage to the companies is indirect and therefore not within the provisions of Annex 1.

The commissioner mentions three other classes of claims which he feels do not come within the provisions of annex 1. The first is claims for war risk insurance premiums paid.

"In my opinion," he states, "these premiums were paid as a measure of precaution to insure indemnity against danger consequent upon the war and do not come within the provisions of Annex 1."

Continuing the commissioner expressed the view that claims in behalf of nurses who enlisted for service in the war and were killed or wounded either by the torpedoing of hospital ships or otherwise while in service are in the non-allowable category. He points out that under Annex 1 all claims for personal injury and by dependents for the loss of life are liimted to civilian population. This argument is also applied to the fourth class of claims dealt with by Mr. Pugsley which is made in behalf of soldiers who were injured or lost their lives while on leave. He maintains that the fact that a soldier is on leave does not make him a civilian.

FOOD TO PLAY A BIG PART IN FUTURE WARS

Question of a Food Supply For the Empire Will Come Before the Imperial Conference This Fall.

CANADIAN WHEAT.

LONDON, July 19. — (Canadian Press Cble).—In the House of Lords yesterday, Lord Selborne raised the question of the bearing of home food production on national defence and suggested referring the question to the committee on Imperial Defence.

Lord Salisbury, speaking for the government, replied that the subject would came before the Imperial Conference in the Autumn The Government was giving attention to the matter and fully realized its vital importance. He pointed out, however, that for the ultimate solution of the food problem in war time the country must rely on the mercantile marine and the fleet as it could never wholly be self-supporting.

Viscount Long referred to the large purchase of wheat which Great Britain had made in Canada in recent years and suggested that a definite arrangement somewhat on those lines would contribute largely to a solution of this problem.

"It might be said, "added Lord Long, 'If we entered into an arrangement with Canada to secure a large part of her crop that we would give offense to the other Dominions but I have never found among the representatives of the Dominions the slightest evidence of any feeling either of jealousy or dis-satisfaction. On the contrary, they have always urged that this country was not only entitled but it was her duty to do tha which was best for her duty to do people. Assuming it would be easier to get a large quantity of our wheat in Canada I am quite convinced that no other Dominion would enter any protest at all. The question is whether we can arrive at an arrangement which will give us a supply to prevent any possibility of starvation. The Empire contains everything we want."

Lord Long emphasized that the Dominions were more than ready to meet Great Britain half-way. They knew they had the material and would far rather it came to the United Kingdom than went elsewhere. Was it not extraordinary, he asked, that even as the House was debating this question Canada was asking herself how on earth she was to dispose of the bumper crop of wheat she was going to reap this year. He believed that by putting to one side the question of tariffs something could be done. Lord Long spoke eulogistically of the statesmen of the Dominions.

Lord Biedisloe declared that in the last resort of the country must largely depend upon its own resources and not on supplies which in the face of aircraft and submarines, had to cross the Atlantic. There was no reason why the country should not make itself much more self-supporting than at present.

DEFENCE HAS CLOSED ITS CASE IN TRIAL OF REV. FATHER DELORME

Girl Says Raoul Was in Drug Store at Cote St. Michel on the Evening Before the Tragedy.

DID NOT TELL POLICE.

MONTREAL, July 19. Canadian Press. — At the opening of the afternoon session here of the trial, R. L. Calder, K.C., counsel for the crown, announced his desire to put a couple of questions to a new expert, Col. Gaudet, after having that witness make some experiments with pistols and bullets referred to in the evidence for the defence given on Tuesday by William A. Jones. The defence strongly protested against this. The court summed up by saying that the important thing was that these matters should be made as clear as possible before the jury.

Dr. Joseph Pesant of Cote St. Michel, was then called, and testified that he kept a small drug store in that village. He had a niece, Yvonne Constantinius, who was with him at the store on January 6, 1922, the date of the crime.

During that evening his niece was attending to customers in the store.

Miss Constantineau was then called and in examination stated that a young man had come to the store that night between seven and eight and had bought a dozen aspirin tablets paying for them with a $5 gold piece. She had taken it upstairs to get change which had been given her by Mr. Lefebvre, an advocate, who was a guest. She had taken special notice of the young man and had since identified him by photographs in the newspapers as Raoul Delorme.

Cross-examined by Mr. Calder.

"Did you ever inform the police of that fact?"

"No, sir."

She had told the four people who were present at the party that "I saw that man yesterday," when the photograph of the murdered Raoul appeared in the newspapers the next day.

Mr. Calder: "None of these people reported that fact to the police?"

"No, sir."

She had seen the reports of the enquiry in the newspapers and had known that the abbe had been accused at the inquest. Mr. Calder then asked: "Here is the abbe in danger of death through the proof made against him at the enquiry, and you did not think it fit to come in and say 'I saw his brother on the last night, the sixth'?"

No answer.

"It did not come to your mind?"

"No."

"Nor to that of any person with whom you spoke?"

"I don't remember."

"Nor did it come into the minds of any of the other four persons you have mentioned?"

"Why, they say they don't remember that I told them."

She had asked them if they remembered that she had told them she had seen Raoul Delorme. That question had been put to them last Thursday and they had replied that they could not remember that she had told them.

Mr. Calder: " don't want to take you by surprise, but on your conscience and before God have you ever mentioned this thing to anyone before the month of June?"

"No sir."

The lawyer Lefebvre was then called by the defence and stated that Miss Constantineau had come upstairs on the night of the sixth with a five dollar gold piece. He had changed it and had kept it until last Sunday when he had given it to a Mr. Roussin. In further examination he gave the hour when the young man came for the aspirin tablets as being between 6.30 and 7 o'clock.

Mr. Calder: "The day after the crime you learned that a person had probably seen Raoul Delorme?"

Witness said he had telephoned to know in connection with the young man if there was not something that would connect him with Raoul Delorme. He could not remember the reply.

Mr. Calder: "Do you, or do you not, know that it is one of the crown's elements of proof that Raoul Delorme did not go out in the afternoon?"

"I did not."

Mr. Calder: "As a lawyer, that did not strike you—that the presence of Raoul at Cote St. Michel removed considerable doubts against the abbe?"

"If at that time I had known——"

The court: "Keep to the facts."

Mr. Calder: "In any event you did not communicate with Mr. Monette or Mr. Filion (counsel in the first trial) or with any of the police?"

"No."

Alfred Boussin was called to the stand and stated he was a detective. He produced the $5 gold piece that was given him by Mr. Lefebvre.

Alleyn Taschereau, K.C., for the defence, then announced that the case for the defence was closed.

Mr. Calder announced that he had proposed to take the expert Hamilton whose veracity he had questioned yesterday, but that he thought it would not be necessary to take him.

The court then adjourned until Thursday.

MANY CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES DURING WAR

Judgment Reserved in Two Cases Heard By Hon. William Pugsley Yesterday.

WOMEN INJURED.

OTTAWA, July 19. — (Canadian Press). — Hon. William Pugsley, Lieutenant Governor of New Brunswick and Commissioner appointed by the federal government to investigate war claims, heard two applications for damage here, yesterday. He reserved his decision in both cases.

Mr. Pugsley leaves for New Brunswich, to-day, and it is his intention to take up claims in the Maritime provinces first. He will work westward and expects to commence hearings in Montreal about September. He has not planned his itinerary beyond that time but will either deal with Ontario or west ern claims immediately after he concluded his hearings in Quebec.

At the present time the commissioner has before him a number of applications from dependents of Bulgarian, asking for financial assistance from the estates of their relatives who died in this country.

"I am endeavoring to deal with these at once," said Mr. Pugsley, "because in many instances the families of the deceased Bulgarians are absolutely destitute."

One of the two claims which

STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN!

News pictures of the level crossing accident at Bronte at which two young lives were snuffed out, should be enough to convince every motorist that henceforth he will "Stop, look and listen!" each time before he ventures over a railway crossing.

In this case the driver thought that he had time enough to cross in front of an express train.

Perhaps he had, but when he got fairly on the tracks found an electric "jigger" approaching an another track, and before he could extricate himself from the predicament, an express train crashed into his car.

There are scores of such railway crossings in Ontario, and while it is true that they should be removed or guarded, the fact remains that they are there and that trains run over them more or less frequently.

Racing an express under such conditions is one of the quickest forms of suicide yet devised, for that kind of a race is the only contest in which you can be tied and yet lose.

When the train and the automobile reach the crossing simultaneously the train wins every time.

Saving a few seconds in the face of such a risk is a game not worth the candle, and the Brönte tragedy should impress that fact upon everybody who drives a car.

THE ENGINEER'S REPORT.

In deciding to devote an evening to a discussion of Engineer Parsons' report on street paving, the City Council is well advised inasmuch as the proposed programme is of sufficient importance to warrant more than usual consideration being alloted to a consideration of its details.

There is no disguising the fart that in this matter of permanent roadways Peterborough has dropped far behind not only as compared with Ontario cities of her own size, but behind much smaller places as well.

We have been content to suffer bad streets and to spend freely on repairs, while other centres recognizing that permanent street surfaces represent true economy, have been steadily adding to their system of paved roads.

The City Engineer has very strongly urged the adoption of a constructive programme calling for a certain amount of road-building each year, and undoubtedly the general principle of the recommendation should be accepted.

There may be some differences of opinion as to details, but the Engineer is engaged as an expert to guide this city in these things, and his advice at least deserves careful consideration.

An evening's discussion will not be wasted if it brings the Council to a realization of the fact that the methods of years ago cannot be dovetailed into the modern scheme of things, especially in regard to road-building and maintenance.

A LINK WITH THE NORTH.

While the title of "Under Secretary to the Department of Mines and Lands and Forests," the new position to which F. H. Keefer, K.C., M.P.P. of Port Arthur, is to be appointed, seems rather unwieldly, there is much in the plan adopted by the new Cabinet to provide a connecting link between the Government and the north country that will be hailed as business-like and promising.

There has been secession talk more than once in New Ontario, and while it has not been taken seriously, it at least served to call attention to the fact that the people of that section of the Province have had many grievances in the past, and not the least of these has been the feeling that the Government was inaccessible to them.

It has been necessary for deputations, even on minor matters, to travel down to Toronto at considerable expense to get a hearing, and so often has this been the experience of the northerners that many of them have become resentful of the conditions.

The Premier's plan of having a resident Under Secretary stationed in New Ontario where he will be accessible to those who have business with the Government should be a splendid change for the better.

Mr. Keefer, already familiar with the problems of the north, should be able to make his new office of real service to his fellow-citizens in that territory, as well as a link with the Government.

The idea deserves a thorough trial.

HE MADE HIS OPPORTUNITY.

A young man who left Stratford two months ago was in London yesterday, says the London Advertiser. He left Ontario because "there was no opportunity for a young man here," and from remarks made by him his attitude now is that "there is not much chance for a young man in United States."

That is not a new complaint; it has been made by many people many times.

Instead of dealing with the case by argument, let us take the case of a foreigner who came to London about five years ago. He could not speak a word of English, and he had no trade. He had practically no money, and had to get a fellow-countryman who could speak English to go with him when he wanted to secure a bicycle. A small deposit was paid on the wheel; it was to become his business partner. He started out on that wheel, selling a few rugs and curtains that he had secured at a sale. He sold them at so much a week; it was not long before his stock was gone, and he had to secure more. He has been at that "securing more" ever since, and the process took him to night school, where he mastered the English language. Since then this man has brought his wife and family to this country; he drives in a car for pleasure or for business; he owns his home and is in a position to go ahead with further developments.

There was apparently "no opportunity for this man in Ontario" when he came here; he could not even speak our language.

The "no opportunit y" business did not both him very long. In his own crude way he went ahead and carved out an opportunity.

Of course, our young men will say: "But you don't expect me to take a bicycle and start se lling from door to door." That's where the trouble comes in with Canadian young men. As a class they are well educated, and as a class the first thing they do is look for some person else to develop a business to the stage where they can take on another hand or two, and thereby give thm a job.

It is one of our weaknesses as a race and as a nation. We lack initiative.

LAW OR MOB RULE?

Spokesmen of union labor throughout Canada are protesting in vigorous terms against the presence of the military in Cape Breton strike areas — not that the troops are doing anything wrong, but that they should not be there at all, says the Ottawa Journal. Members of the Dominion Government are sidestepping the issue by declarations that the state of the law which has enabled the calling out of troops is not satisfactory and should be changed.

The spokesmen for union labor, and the members of the Dominion Government who are giving their views about the position, are endeavoring to ignore the real issue in the case—which is that law and order should prevail in Canada.

It does not matter first what the rights or wrongs of the conflict in Cape Breton are if mob rule is attempted. What does count first is that no matter what the rights or wrongs are, the rights shall not be asserted otherwise than peacefully.

When the strikes in Cape Breton commenced, the strikers or their sympathizers attacked person and property. As the local authorities could not preserve peace with the means at their disposal, the police means at their disposal being helpless against the large number of the mob, they were right to call on the military, and it was right that troops should be sent in response to the call, and should be sent in sufficient numbers to preserve order.

Any decent Canadian who respects his country and its institutions should take this view.It would be refreshing if the responsible leaders of organized labor in this country would recognize this view as patriotic Canadians; and still more refreshing if some of our political leaders, instead of trying to side-step the real issue, would have the courage and public spirit to state plainly that where law and order in Canada need to be enforced, they are ready to take the consequence of enforcing it.

POOR CAPITALISM.

But Capitalism—poor Capitalism—that hideous and brutal monster—that oppressor of the poor—that modern Moloch—that manacled prisoner at the bar whenever social questions come into court. No one had a word to say in its defence. The case goes against it by default.

* * * *

This having happened in the Parliament of Great Britain, the British people must, of course, abandon Capitalism. The unclean thing was probably outlawed automatically at once. When Mr. Ramsay Macdonald stepped out of the House and whistled for a taxi, none came. A taxi-cab is "capital." Some unspeakable scoundrel has saved up a few pounds and invested it in a machine with four wheels and a meter—yes, and an engine—a substantial incarnation of Capital, sometimes with blood on its wheels. Either the brutal capitalist himself then mounts the box and plies it for sordid gain; or else he chains behind its steering-wheel an abject slave of Capital who is probably more careless about getting blood on the wheels than the brutal capitalist himself.

"Very well," says Ramsay Macdonald, who is nothing if not consistent. "We have abolished capital. It is quite all right that the taxis should disappear. I am one of the plain people anyway—I'll go home in a motor-bus." And he walks out into the street to jostle for a place on a truly democratic omnibus. But there are none running. Omnibuses are Capital. Parliament has abolished them. And the plain people when they realize they must walk home are using language which no distinguished Parliamentarian ought even to hear.

"All right," says Ramsay Macdonald, again, undismayed and undefeated. "I won't go home. Our brothers in Russia think that home is a capitalistic and bourgeois sort of thing anyway. I'll slip into an A. B. C. and get some tea." But our gallant Socialist finds the door closed. Tea-shops are Capital. A widespread organization like the A. B. C. is a particularly aggravated and detestable form of Capital. It is quite willing to be that devilish montrosity, that swollen blond beast of Capital, a Monopoly or Octopus. A bas le A. B. C.

And right then and there one great Parliamentarian did have some words to say in defence of Capital.

* * * *

He said that Capital is all right per se, but that it should be owned by somebody else. For this sentiment, he obtained unanimous approval. We all agree that all of the capital in the world—except the infinitesimal fragment which we each may possess, whether in the clothes we wear or the house we inhabit, or even the shop in which we trade—should belong to somebody else; and we would be quite willing to nominate the "somebody else."

When Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Snowdon set up their Socialistic State, they all want Capital. That is, they will want railways, factories, shops, houses, furniture, clothes, food, all sorts of stored-up products of the application of labor to natural resources. But they will want also to take it away from the men who made it, saved it and employed it, and give a large part of it to men who had neither the industry nor the thrift to accumulate it. They don't want to abolish Capital—they want to exchange its ownership.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The tie-up of the Lift Lock has done much to offset the value of the advertising given the Trent waterway this season.

President Tom Moore of the Trades and Labour Congress is the latest leader to condemn the Nova Scotia strike, as we advised.

Now it is claimed that Alberta coal can be delivered in the freight yards at Ottawa at $12.80. That is a statement worth looking into, in view of the probable shortage of American anthracite.

It was a rather unneighborly act on the part of the Peterborough Baseball Club to spoil Belleville's civic holiday yesterday.

The attendance at Sunday evening's band concert was a striking testimony to the popularity of the change in dates. It was twice as large as the average assemblage on Friday night.

CASH GRAIN.

MONTREAL, July 19. — (Canadian Press).—There was no change in the condition of the local market for spot supplies of oats. The flour market was without developments. An increased volume of business in bran and middlings is being done to the United States, but domestic trade was quiet. The demand for rolled oats showed no improvement. The tone of the market for baled hay remains firm. The local egg market was without any new feature to note. Potatoes supplies were not heavy and prices ruled steady. Business was quiet in butter and cheese.

There was little improvement on the cattle market yesterday, trading was slow and draggy. Best butcher classes changed hands around fairly steady prices. Stockers and feeders were plentiful but little demand came out.

The hog market advanced 15 cent over Tuesday's close, thick smooths weighing up at $8.75 and select bacons at $9.62 1-2. Fair to good lambs made $11.00 to $12.50 with good mutton sheep $5.00 to $6.50.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, July 19.— (Canadian Press).—Sudden upturns in the price of wheat took place yesterday, largely as a result of nervousness on the part of previous sellers. The nervousness was due more or less to concerted efforts which are being made to induce investors to "buy 1,00 bushels of wheat," and to have housewives "buy a barrel of flour."

After scoring in some cases an advance of 2 3-4c a bushel, wheat closed unsettled at a net gain of 1 1-2 to 2 5-8c, with September 98 1-4c to 98 3-8c and December $1.01 3-8 to $1.01 1-2. Corn finished 1-8 to 3-4c up, and oats at 3-8 and 1-2c to 7-8c advance. Provisions were 7 to 15c lower.

Judgment Was Quashed.

In May of this year the case of W. A. Tinney of Cobourg, who was charged under B.O.T.A. with selling a bottle of liquor to Bert Taylor was heard by Magistrate Floyd at Cobourg. At the hearing the Magistrate reserved judgment, but later found Tinney guilty and a fined of $400 and $12.50 was imposed. Mr. Tinney, through his solicitor appealed against the conviction and the case came up before Judge Ward, last week. According to the evidence given, it is stated, Taylor swore that he got the liquor in the middle of the day. Tinney brought witnesses to prove that on the day in question he left home at 9 o'clock in the morning for Colborne and did not return until six o'clock that night. This established an alibi, which no doubt was considered sufficient to prove the defendant's statement that he did not sell Taylor the liquor. His Honor Judge Ward quashed the conviction with costs and allowed Tinney's appeal with costs. The case was attended by a large amount of interest.

Alleged Still Discovered.

Last week License Inspector Goodrich, Provincial Constable Boyd and Excise Officer C. A. Pringle visited Trent Bridge where in a dense swamp, it is stated, they discovered what had evidently been used as a still, although the still had been removed. They discovered an arch covered with sheet metal, in which the still had apparently rested. Also a quantity of mash, a number of empty sugar bags, bottles and boxes. The outfit was screened from observation by a natural cedar ledge, and was covered with tar papers to keep out the rain. It is thought that the still was run by a foreigner, who decamped the day before the officers' visit. The swamp in which the still was found it stated to have been in the centre of a two-hundred acre forest.

Telephone System Sold.

The sale of the Frankford telephone system to the Murray-Brighton Telephone Co., which has been pending for some time, has just been consummated. It has been approved by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board and also by the Dominion Railway Board. The purchase price is stated to have been $11,000. Mr. D. S. Austin is proprietor of the Murray-Brighton Co. The change goes into effect on July 21, and after that date the present toll of 15c between Frankford and Wooler will be eliminated and the toll between Trenton and Wooler reduced to a flat rate of 10c per call. it is stated.

Light Apple Crop.

Many in this district are of the opinion that the apple crop will be light. Fungas has appeared on some trees. In some localities the trees seem to be pretty well loaded with fuirt and in other sections the set appears to be light. Where spraying has been systematically carried out the best prospects have been obtained by far. This district is considered to be the centre of the lake-front apple-growing industry and can boast of some fine orchards. The prospects for a good market do not appear to be any too promising either.

Real Estate Deal.

Mr. W. E. Kennedy, Principal of Colborne High School has purchased Mrs. Albert Hind's residence east of the Methodist church here. He takes possession on August first.

A STIRRING SERMON BY REV. S. C. MOORE

Former Cavan Parishioners Listen to Thoughtful Words of Counsel.

MILLBROOK, July 18.—Rev. S. C. Moore, B.A., B.D., of Bowmanville, took charge of the service in the Methodist church on Sunday evening, a large number of his former parishoners from the Cavan South circuit being in the congregation and gladly taking advantage of the privilege of listening once more to his words of counsel, many waiting afterwards for a hearty handshake and a few words of greeting from one evidently still holding a warm place in the hearts of those who, several years ago, were under his pastoral care.

Although the holiday time has depleted the choir attendance, a fair number were out on Sunday evening, the anthem, "God's Beautiful Out-of-Doors, being well rendered and appropriate to the season. "The Annointing at Bethany" was the subject of the Scripture lesson, read from the 26th chapter of Matthew and also from the 12th chapter of John's Gospel, the text being taken from the 3rd verse: "Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and annointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped His feet with her hair; and the house was filled with the odor of the ointment." The speaker began by sketching briefly the circumstances of the story—the feast in the house of Simon the leper, the hospitality of his home being gladly extended because he himself had been healed and helped by Jesus; Simon probably had the seat of honor at the right hand of Christ, while on the left sat Lazarus, "whom He had raised from the dead," and across the table Bartimæus, yesterday a blind beggar by the roadside and today rejoicing in his new-born sight, gazed in loving adoration into the face of the Saviour. The disciples, and special friends of Jesus completed the circle. Martha served with her customary care and kindness, but Mary, at the outset, was conspicuous by her absence, the preparation of the food in kitchen, or pantry, being her probable task. Near the conclusion of the supper, however, in a spirit of lowly devotion and heartfelt affection, Mary performed that deed of loving service which comforted the lonely heart of the Master, and won His outspoken commendation when, instigated by Judas, a murmuring arose among the disciples with the selfish query, "To what purpose is this waste?"

The thought developed by Mr. Moore throughout his discourse may be expressed in the words, "More flowers for our loved ones by the way than on the casket." Mary had the understanding heart which, knowing that her Lord was on His last sad journey to Jerusalem, could not wait until the cross had claimed His body before she poured out her affection in tangible token and costly sacrifice. "And the house was filled with the odor of the ointment," so a eautiful deed always sheds far its lovely fragrance. Plenty of people are ready to annoint the dead, to place their wreath upon the casket and speak the word of praise which, in life, would have meant so much of cheer and encouragement why are we so slow to learn the lesson plainly taught in God's word that we avoid the mistake of withholding the expression of sympathy and love until our friends are gone?

What Wor'd Needs

The world still needs o. us the broken alabaster box of precious sympathy, love and service, and indeed services and kindnesses neglected may make friendship suspected. Judas was of this type; apparently the Master's rebuke was lost upon him who so soon afterward betrayed his Lord for thirty pieces of silver, and later must retrace his steps in bitter remorse and despair. Every church, every home, every community, every individual need this spirit of loving appreciation finding expression in service to God and to others—the only service never oppressive and which finds its own reward. Our Saviour asks for th's and for our own sak s we need it because in seeking to save others we save ourselves. To lose sight of self and burn out, if need be, for the welfare of others and the glory of our Saviour means the most effectual and certain method of peace and happiness, yes, and of prosperity here, and a crown of life hereafter. "It's a good thing to be saved and know it, but it's a better thing to be saved and show it." The world says of one, "He is a good man," but the acid test which God applies is, "Whom has he saved?"

God First, Others Second

"God first, others second, self third," is the real Christian viewpoint, and our character bro dens, or narrows, according as we "build fences so as to take in, or shut out, others." A hand held out to a weaker brother re-acts upon ourselves bringing enlarged vision, deeper, abiding joy, and a heart singing as the days go by. To obey the Golden Rule, crucifying self, bridling the tongue, curbing the passions, and keeping the life strong by service may mean doing for others that which seems menial and undignified, but no soul can stand before the bar o God, unashamed, which cannot bring a record of having done something for others.

Nowhere is affectionate appreciati n more needed than in the church; the few faithful workers who bear the brunt of the activities for the Kingdom are all too often the subject of criticism and complaint, the very ones who make the unkind comparisons and are first with fault-finding over work they would not undertake themselves, being most ready with flowers and praises should one of the devoted leaders be called from the scene here. Many a discouraged one in the church of Christ, in League, choir, Sunday school, or other organization, grows fainthearted because the alabaster box of ointment is never broken for them, and the share of affection and sympathetic appreciation which should be given freely is selfishly withheld until too late to cheer the tired heart. "Ready to see and crown the goodness about us" is an attitude worth patient and persistent cultivation, making the life richer and the character broader.

Love and Devotion

In conclusion the speaker urged that we give unto God that true love and devotion which Mary bestowed, counting no sacrifice too great and no effort too costly because of the joy which it brings to His heart, Who withheld not His dearest gift from us The appreciation and affection and praise of the world for Jesus grows apace every day but if that "love which never faileth" should extend itself over the earth then we need no longer pray, "Thy kingdom come," because the prayer would be realized and a new garden of Eden begun.

She was a passenger on board the steamer Hesperian which was torpedoed on Septmber3, 1916 while bound from England to America. She applied for $3,000 to cover loss of personal property and to indemnify her for physical injuries which Dr. G. E. Booth testified were of a permanent nature. The physician expressed the view that the claim was a moderate and just one.

The other claim heard by the commissioner was made by Mrs. C. McColn of California formerly of Ottawa. She was a passenger upon the Lusintania and asked $10,000 damagse to cover physical injuries of a permanent natur, and loss of personal property. Dr. Gardiner, who treated Mrs. McColn upon her return to Ottawa, after the disaster, testified hat her claim was a reasonable one as the shock of the accident had made his patient a confirmed sufferer from nervous trouble.

Mrs. McColn's husband was upon the staff of the militia department during the war.

Claims allowed by the commissioner will be included in the British reparations demand which will be made upon Germany and her Allies.

DUBLIN, July 19.—(Associated Press).—For a week recently the public of Ireland was without reports of the proceedings in the Irish Parliament. The newspapers had boycotted Parliament because of the grievances of the reporters.

The quarters for newspapermen were so inadequate, and the restrictions against them so onerous, that the reporters voted in boycott in which they were supported by the newspaper proprietors. In less than a week the difficulties were com-

WE INVITE EVERY MAN AND WOMAN IN PETERBORO AND VICINITY

Every Person in This Section Who Is Weak, Rundown, Sick or Nervous, to Try This Great Medicine at Our Expense. Free Bottle Will Be Given to All Who Come Early.

ALL HAVE THE SAME CHANCE TO GET WELL AND STRONG

This in an invitation you can't afford to ignore. We'll tell you why. We are going to give you a free bottle of medicine that will tone you up and put an end to all chances of indigestion, rheumatism, constipation, catarrh and kindred ills.

The medicine of which William Bronson said, "It is the only medicine that eased my stomach and stopped the gas, wiped away stomach troubles and put strength and vitality in my blood."

A highly efficient stomach medicine made from roots, herbs, barks, leaves and a few other good things for the nerves, blood, stomach, kidneys and bowels.

You may be starving your blood in the midst of plenty. It isn't how much you eat that counts, but it's how you digest the food you eat.

You cannot get steam out of water without fire; you can't get brain power, nerve force, and red blood corpuscles out of food without digestion.

Thousands lack sufficient vital force and don't know why. They think they need a tonic, a vacation or a change of scenery, but they don't. It's old digestion that's the matter with them and six days of Dreco will prove it. They don't get the strength out of their food. It's like running corn through a mill with the rollers too wide apart, the corn gets through, but the mill doesn't grind.

DON'T THINK YOU MUST HAVE A PAIN TO HAVE INDIGESTION.

Lack of flesh, too much fat, pimples, blotches, sallow complexion, lack of nerve force, impoverished blood, sleeplessness, headaches, backache, sideaches, weak brain power, dizzy spells, spots floating before the eyes, may all be due to faulty digestive process either in the stomach or the bowels.

Take Dreco with your other food for a week and find out how your digestive organs are working. If the Dreco helps you greatly, gives you more force, strength and brain power, you may set it down that your liver and bowels are not doing their duty.

Only yesterday your head may have felt dull and heavy, you had the "blues", were cross, nervous or irritable, everything seemed to go wrong and you couldn't tell why.

It's ten to one it was old dyspepsia slyly getting in his work, not enough to cause you pain, but just enough to dull your brain, rob you of your vitality, upset your liver and deplete your nerve force. Maybe you don't think so, but try a bottle of Dreco and see if it doesn't change "Blues" to a bright cherry red, make the old world laugh in a merry glee, and put new vigor and vim in your life again.

Lewis A. Todd, the travelling salesman, had stomach trouble so bad he practically had to live on liquid foods. He couldn't even eat vegetables without suffering terrible pain. He took two bottles of Dreco and can now eat anything he wants without any distress whatever—sounds like a miracle? Well, we have Mr. Todd's own signed statement to that effect.

C. L. Maltick, the B. and O. conductor, says he had rheumatism so bad he had to use a cane to get around at all. On his fourth bottle of Dreco he said: "I am now feeling fine—have thrown away my cane." These are only two of hundreds, yes, thousands.

TEST THIS MEDICINE FREE.

Mr. Sufferer, have you ever heard of the wonderful medicine that talks, that really tells you itself what it can do—that's Dreco. Five minutes after you take it the medicine begins to unfold its virtues, and it will, by actual demonstration, unfold to you more in regard to its merits in ten minutes than we could probably make you believe if we wrote you ten books as large as the dictionary.

"Words cannot tell how glad we are for Dreco," declares Mrs. Treasa Copley. "The first bottle fixed me up," says Walter F. Dixon. "Am a changed man now," states Rev. Joseph L. Butler.

You may know some of these people, or know somebody who knows them. We'll send you their full addresses if you want them so that you can find out about Dreco, and the wonders it has wrought.

Probably you are now thinking whether all this can be true; stop it. Come at once to Bond's Drug Store, Peterboro; they will give you absolutely free a good sized bottle of Dreco. This offer is open to every man and woman in Peterboro and vicinity. There are no ifs, ands or buts attached to it, except that you come early, before the generous supply of free bottles has been used. You don't have to buy anything if you don't want to, all I ask is that you step in and test this wonderful medicine, and see for yourself what it can do for you. So please come as early as possible.

DR. TOLD NURSE TO TAKE DRECO

Crippled Up By Rheumatism So She Had to Hold on to Banisters. Feet Swollen, Limbs, Ankles Elbows Full of Pain.

"I am writing to say a few words in praise of your wonderful medicine, Dreco. I have often been asked to endorse this or that medicine, but always refused but Dreco is different," said said Mrs. D. S. Simpkins, of 1442 Law avenue, Evansville, Indiana.

"I have suffered greatly from rheumatism and been treated by excellent physicians, finally tried a change of climate but always my relief was temporary. While nursing I've had doctors pity me, saying I should be the one in bed with a nurse to attend me. My feet were so swollen and painful I could hardly keep my shoes on, my ankles and limbs were so sore and stiff I had to limp in my walk. I often had dark circles under my eyes and that tired look in them.

"Constipation was a source of great annoyance and I couldn't secure relief from it. I was often nauseated and had a repulsion at the sight of food.

"To-day my feelings are entirely changed. I have taken two bottles of Dreco, and I am much better the doctor told me to keep on taking it. Every ache and pain is gone, the constipation is completely relieved I am no longer nauseated but eat and relish every meal. Instead of being a sore, crippled creature, limping around. I am happy and can nurse cases to-day which I would have been forced to refuse before. I give all the credit for my grand relief to Dreco, and unhesitatingly recommend it to everyone who suffers as I did." Free samples given.

Go to Bond's Drug Store, our Agents in Peterboro, and they will explain the merits of this great remedy and hand you a free sample bottle. Come early. Dreco is also sold in Lakefield by E. H. Northey, and by a good druggist everywhere.

A bronze tablet in memory of sixteen officers and men of the United States army, who died of starvation and exposure in the Arctic in 1884, is now on the way to Cape Sabine, Ellesmere Land, where it will be placed at the scene of one of the most tragic disasters in the history of American Arctic exploration, the refuge camp of the Greely expedition. Set in the rocks at latitude 78 deg. 45 min. north, more than 800 miles above the Arctic Circle, this will be one of the most northerly monuments in the world. On the tablet is inscribed:

"To the memory of the dead, who, under Lieutenant A. W. Greely here gave their lives to ensure the final and complete success of the first scientific co-operation of the United States with other nations 1881-1884."

The tablet is being erected by the National Geographic Society and will be placed during the present summer by Donald MacMillan, Arctic explorer and lieutenant of Peary on the voyage which resulted in the discovery of the North Pole.

BRITISH LABOR IS BIG FACTOR.

But Stanley Baldwin Is Likely to Continue Premier For Five Years.

By MILTON BRONNER.

LONDON, July 19.—Because Mr. Banker, Mr. Landowner, Mr. Stockowner, Mr. Shopkeeper, Lord This and Marquis That fear plain Tom Hodge, workingman—Stanley Baldwin, new Tory Premier of Great Britain, is likely to continue in office with a Tory Government for the next five years. That is the lifetime of the newly elected Parliament.

And because of heretofore humble Tom Hodge, no serious effort will be made by Liberal party factions to put stones in Baldwin's path. They might not want to support him—but they DON'T want to turn him out. They don't want another Parliamentary election.

Their very good reason is that they fear Tom Hodge.

Tom might knock out all the old political parties and give Great Britain a Labor Government, which would also be a Socialist Government. Which is why all the great land-owing, manufacturing and merchant classes and the immense middle class unite against Labor.

Second Party.

Last election's vote showed that the Conservatives were really a minority party. They polled less votes than were cast for the two factions of the Liberal party and for the Labor party; but when the smoke cleared away they had 344 seats in Parliament, the two Liberal segments 117 and the Labor party 138.

The Labor party is therefore "His Majesty's official opposition." In all debates on Government measures it is the Labor leaders who make the first opposition speeches.

The British Tom Hodge who has brought this about is a far different person from the American John Smith. He doesn't make as much money as the American workman; he probably doesn't get as much fun out of life.

His children are not educated as well and there are not as many free amusement places for them, with space for athletic games of all kinds. But the Tom Hodge is perhaps a far more powerful factor in his country's economic and political life.

As a workingman, he acts through his labor union.

As a consumer of food and clothing, he deals with his co-operative society.

As a citizen, he acts through his Labor party.

And Tom Hodge, British workman, consumer and voter, is thoroughly dissatisfied with the world he lives in. During the war, when he and his sons entered the army, or did yeoman service in the munition factories, he heard Lloyd George eloquently proclaim that after the world was made safe for democracy, Britain was to be made a place fit for heroes to live in.

Workers' Problems.

And here is what confronts Tom Hodge:

A continuous high cost of living.

A taxation system that reaches down so far that it often gets him both directly and indirectly.

An economic slump that leaves him idle, working part time, or receiving reduced wages.

A country in which over 1,000,000 persons are still unemployed.

A trade-union world in which the treasuries have been depleted by unsuccessful strikes for better wages.

A housing shortage which seems to be growing worse instead of better.

In the coal regions the miners, beaten in a strike, worse off than they were before the war.

A competitive condition, leaving farmers unable to pay laborers a decent wage and still sell their product at a price as low as is commanded, for instance, by American, Canadian and Australian wheat.

Furthermore, Tom Hodge, workman, finds that John Brown, of the middle class, is also hard hit. They compare notes. And in many instances Tom Hodge persuades John Brown to vote Labor. Which explains the phenomenon of 138 members in Parliament and the fear of the old parties and the determination to keep Labor out of power if possible.

CONFESSED TO SHOOTING.

KAMLOOPS, B. C., July 19. — (Canadian Press). — The mystery surrounding the shooting of Mrs. Thomas W. Hall, now in hospital here in a critical condition, has been cleared up, the police say, by the confession of Eric Stanley, that he fired the shot. The boy was working in the garden with Mrs. Hall.

Arrested some distance from the Hall farm, police say the boy broke down and gave a written confession.

TRACKS OF OLD RACE ON PACIFIC ISLANDS

HONOLULU, July 19.—(Associated Press)—Traces of a hitherto unknown civilization that may have existed in the Pacific 2,000 years ago have been discovered on the little islands of Necker and Nihoa in the Hawaiian bird reservation, to the northwest of the Hawaiin group proper, accroding to the revelations made by returning members of a government scientific party which is investigating and surveying the islands aboard the U.S.S. Tanager.

For centuries past these isolated spots have sheltered the secret of once powerful colonies that may have flourished prior to the main Polynesian migration which resulted in the settlement of the Hawaiian group, according to A. L. C. Atkinson, president of the territorial board of agriculture and forestry, who was one of the scientific party.

Time and the elements have failed to obliterate the traces of the temples, houses, and the agricultural systems of long ago, and it is expected that the discoveries of the scientists may aid appreciably in the final solution of the problem of the origin and migrations of the Polynesian race.

Bowls wrought from solid stone a headless idol, and a stone adz were among the many specimens that the party brought back from the islands. The scientists told of fallen foundations that once supported houses, scores of stone monuments, the ruins of what were terraces upon which foodstuffs were grown, and the ruins of temples—evidence, it was said, that tended to show that Necker and Nihoa were cradles of civilization and the rendezvous of a people who were skilled in crude handicrafts and the art of navigation thousands of years ago. These specimens, together with all others gathered by the Tanger party are being studied by scientists here now.

THE CLOUD.

I bring fres showers for the thirsting flowers,
Fro the seas and the streams;
I bear light shade for the leaves when laid
In their noonday dreams.
From my wings are shaken the dews that waken
The sweet buds every one,
When rocked to rest on their mother's breast,
As she dances about the sun.
I wield the flail of the lashing hail,
And whiten the green plains under,
And then again I dissolve it in rain,
And laugh as I pass in thunder.

CREDIT IS DUE BABIES' CLINIC

Preventive Work Curtailed Increase in Infantile Mortality — Board of Management Met.

The Board of Management of the Well Babies' Clinic held its regular half-yearly meeting at the home of Mrs. James Kendry, with a fair attendance of members. Reports were read by the treasurer of the Board, Mrs. F. C. Neal, by the secretary, Mrs. W. A. Turner, by the Clinic secretary, Dr. Jessie Birnie, and by Mrs. G. McCartney, the Clinic nurse.

The reports showed encouraging progress, and many contributions from private sources and different societies.

Dr. Birnie, in her report, commenting on the large number of deaths among infants during the early months of this year, attributed the infantile mortality to the influenza epidemic, and the unusual amount of sickness rife during that period.

In the first five months of this year, births were as follows: January, 43; February, 55; March, 52; April, 51; May, 41: a total of 242 births registered at the City Hall during the first five months. Infantile deahs were: In January, 10; February, 17; March, 8; April, 11; May, 6, or a total of 52. The percentage of deaths to the number of birth is almost 21.5.

In the same period for last year, however, the birth rate was as follows: In January, 34; February, 57; March, 41; April, 52; May, 45; or a total of 229. The deaths were listed as: In January, 7; February, 8; March, 7; April, 7; May, 12; a total of 41 deaths, or a percentage of infantile mortality of 17.9.

Considering the very great increase in disease of various sorts during the first five months of this year in comparison with the same period last year, when influenza was not nearly as bad, the increase in the infantile death-rate of 3.6 is less than might have been anticipated, and the Well Babies' Clinic feels that a certain amount of credit is due them for their preventive work carried on with unceasing thoroughness.

The 'flu was worse, according to all reports, during the months of December until nearly June, of this year, than in any previous year. According to one physician, the very bad year some time back was not any worse, although the disease was at that time of more serious aspect. This year, the sufferers appeared to contract heavy colds, from which they were unable to recover through a long period of time. Insufficient clothing and the prevalence of a lack of fuel to adequately heat dwelling places are given as primary causes for such conditions, which had their inevitable reflection on the population of the city through the illness of mothers and consequent increase in infantile mortality.

The Attendance.

The stormy weather of the past winter interfered seriously with the regular attendance at the Clinic, and later stormy and inclement days brought few mothers out for weekly examination and advice. However, the total in the six months is quite good, amounting to 393 in attendance at the Clinic during the months from January to June, inclusive. In January, there were 68; in February, 56; in March, 32; April, 72; May, 90, and June, (incomplete returns) 75.

Unselfish Attitude.

Lectures during these months were given by Dr. J. H. Eastwood, Dr. E. E. Harvey, Dr. A. W. MacPherson and Dr. Ray Scott.

The Board expressed its appreciation for the unselfish attitude of Clinic physicians, in giving freely of their time to its service; to the different societies and individuals who had contributed to the Clinic; to the King's Daughters, who serve tea at the lecture meetings; to the voluntary workers; the Misses Ila Giles and Marjorie Best, and to the Female Voice Choir, for their kindness in putting on a repeat performance of their always-popular offerings, for the benefit of the Clinic.

The Well Babies' Clinic will cooperate with those in charge of the Baby Show at the Fall Fair, when prizes will be given for the healthiest baby.

Old Man Wants to Exchange His Wife.

Milton Guardians have been called upon to function as a matrimonial exchange.

A Borden man over seventy recently married a buxom widow from West Ham Poor Law Institution, but on bringing her down to his cottage found, he said, that she had such a big appetite that he could not keep her.

He sent her back to West Ham, but the authorities packed her off to the Milton Insitution, as she had gained a settlement in the Union through her marriage.

Milton Guardians then investigated the husband's means to contribute towards her maintenance, and they were told that the old man wanted to exchange his wife for any old dame in the institute who was receiving the old age pension.

"He is quite serious," said the relieving officer. "If there is a woman here entitled to the old age pension he wants to exchange his present wife for her." (Loud laughter).

It was decided to ask the man to contribute a shilling a week towards his wife's maintenance.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Eyes, Ears, Nose and Throat.

Before the baby's bath each morning the mother should pay special attention to the cleaning of the eyes, ears, nose, throat and genital organs. The eyes should be washed with a piece of cotton (a separate piece being used for each eye), dipped in either borice acid solution or normal salt solution. Either is made by adding a level teaspoon of salt to a half pint of boiling water, and keeping in a covered jar.

The ears should not be tampered with. Wash carefully around the outside but put nothing in the ear at any time, unless by the doctor's orders.

The nose may be cleaned by wrapping a bit of cotton about a toothpick.

The mouth should be left alone unless thrush is present. This looks like patches of milk inside the baby's mouth but when brushed off show blood underneath. When thrush is present the baby may refuse to nurse because of the soreness and tenderness of the mouth. This comes from not being careful enough in the cleaning of the baby's bottle or nipples or perhaps the breast. The baby's mouth should be washed out several times a day with a soda solution or boric acid. The nipples of the mother should be washed before and after each nursing period/and kept covered with a clean piece of gauze so that the clothes will not touch them. The bottle nipples should be washed and boiled and kept in boric acid solution when they are not in use.

As I said, if thrush is not present the mouth should be left unwashed.

The genital organs of both boy and girl babies should be carefully washed before each bath time. If there is the slightest suggestion of any discharge it should be brought to the attention of the doctor and no attempt made to treat it by home methods.

If the foreskin is hard to retract the boy may need circumcision, and no effort should ever be made to retract it forcibly. Let the doctor attend to such matter and advise what should be done.

BUFFALO HERDING A DANGEROUS JOB

By HARRY W. FRANTZ

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., July 19 (United Press).—Life in the "Wild West" has changed a lot in the last few decades. A good many of the old Fair-and-Square bartenders are jerking soda or waiting on tables, and the Old Scouts haven't been shooting tin-cans off each others heads for many moons, except in the movies.

Nevertheless the changing times have brought to the West at least one new vocation which is as wild and dangerous as the most ardent Old-Timer ever dreamed of. That is the pleasant job of buffalo herding. Of course there isn't a very big demand for buffalo punchers and the only ones we ever met are "Bob" Lacombe, chief buffalo herder at the Yellowstone National Park, and his assistant "Jimmy" Dupuis.

"Bob" and "Jimmy," aided by "Scotty" Bauman of the Tower Falls ranger station, recently drove a herd of seventeen buffalo bulls from the Buffalo Ranch, in the north-eastern part of the park, to the Buffalo Corral, near Mammoth Hot Springs, so the tourists wouldn't fail to see the animal that made William Cody famous.

Buffaloes Dangerous

"Buffalo-punching is much like cow-punching," he said, "but it's much faster—maybe five times faster. A buffalo can get over any fence lower than eight feet, and our fences at the ranch are twelve feet. Buffalo are dangerous at all times, especially in the rutting season, when the bulls are liable to charge horse and rider."

"How does one get to be a buffalo puncher?" we asked "Bob," rather ambitiously.

"Oh, you punch cattle years an' years an' years and then you punch buffalo as a post-graduate course."

I asked "Bob" to tell me something of the wonderful herd of Yellowstone buffalo, which now has grown to proportions assuring the preservation of this historic American animal.

"First you should understand," he said, "that there are two bands of wild buffalo in the park, the only wild buffalo in the park, the only wild buffalo in the world. About twenty-nine range in the Pelican Creek section and about forty-seven in the Lamar River valley.

Tame Buffalo Herd

"The 'tame' herd is kept at the Buffalo Ranch, about twenty-five square miles, from Lamar Valley to Cold Creek. There are 578 big ones. Eighty-six calves already born this spring and fifty-five more expected. The calves are weaned in the fall.

"The monarch of the herd now is 'Commodore.' He's six foot one inch high at the hump, and the buffalo on the nickel, modeled from the bull at the New York zoo, was only five foot eight inches."

"Bob" says the biggest buffalo ever about 2,800 pounds, andweighed was he thinks Commodore and one or two other bulls at the ranch are as heavy, if not heavier.

Twenty years last September, according to Lacombe, the Yellowstone herd of buffalo has been cared for. It started from eighteen cows and three bulls. The cows were originally taken from the Charley Allarr herd on the Flathead (Montana) Reservation, and the bulls from the Goodnight Herd, at Goodnight, Texas, on the Colorado River.

The ranch isnow a show-place of the world. There are splendid corrals with white-washed fences twelve feet high. Elsewhere six hundred and twenty acres of hay are under cultivation, to feed the buffalo in winter. Over one hundred acres of wild hay also are cut.

ALARM IN THE U.S. AT PULPWOOD BILL.

Paper Interests Across the Line Fear Embargo on Canadian Newsprint.

OTTAWA, July 19.—Reports from the United States of growing concern in the pulp and paper industry over the passage of the bill empowering the Canadian Government to prohibit by order-in-Council the exports of pulpwood cut on privately owned lands, coming as they have on the eve of the appointment of the commission that is to inquire into the whole subject, have attracted attention here.

The statement that as soon as the Governor-General gives assent to the bill the State Department will probably make strong representations to the Canadian Government by way of protest are rather amusing. The royal assent has already been given, but it is difficult to see how, on this ground, the American authorities can take action. All that legislation does is to empower the Governor-in-Council to do something, which, being a purely domestic matter, is of no concern to a foreign Government. Not until the Government gives notice of its intention to prohibit export can the American Government very well take action.

The policy of the Government, of course, will depend on the report made by the commission of investigation. Only a short time ago it looked as though the movement for prohibition of export would be strongly opposed, but it was not in Parliament, and Mr. Fielding's own remarks seemed to indicate that the suggested action was favored. As this would be but the repetition of Sir Lomer Gouin's policy in Quebec, naturally the Minister of Justice favors federal action, which means much.

International Complications Possible.

If the prohibition of the export of pulpwood does not come into effect, it will probably be because of the fear of international complications more than anything else. Certainly American interests will make a determined fight against it. It would probably put some of the smaller newsprint mills in a precarious position, but the biggest of them, such as the International Paper Company, would be in a better position. It is understood that in addition to having 2,000 square miles of timber land in the United States, the International has between 5,000 and 6,000 in Canada, while it also operates one of the largest and most modern of mills in this country. Having large resources it is converting some of its newsprint plants into those for the making of book and writing papers, and is also turning others into power plants. Smaller companies with slender resources cannot, of course, so take care of themselves.

It is expected that the American publishers, fearing a marked increase in the price of newsprint, should an embargo go into effect, will bring strong influence to bear on the American Government to act. Both Republicans and Democrats being desirous of enlisting the support of the press may be expected to give them strong support, and their eagerness in this respect will probably be more pronounced because of the fact that 1924 is the year of the presidential elections.

When the bill was before the Senate, remarks made by Senator Casgrain seemed to indicate that the Government wanted the powers conferred in order that it might have a stronger hand in bargaining. Nothing said by Mr. Fielding in the House, however, lent color to such a view.

HER BABY FSUFERED WITH SUMMER COMPLAINT

A fact mothers must face is that summer complaint with the prostration, often verging on collapse, which sometimes accompanies this disease, makes it one of the most serious and dangerous to contend with during the hot months.

Thousands of infants die annually whose lives could have no doubt been saved by the timely use of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and it has been the experience of thousands of mothers during the past 78 years this valuable preparation has been on the market, that it is the safest and most effective remedy for use in all cases of looseness of the bowels.

Mrs. S. Lafontaine, Great Desert, Ont., writes:—"My baby, when a year old, was suffering with summer complaint. Two doctors attended him, but nothing would stop the vomiting and diarrhoea. A friend told me to try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and after the second dose the baby was better and I can say it saved my baby's life.

I wouldn't be without a bottle of 'Dr. Fowler's' in the house for untold gold.''

QUIZ CORNER

THE INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY.

Q—When was the Intercolonial Railway opened?

A—The Intercolonial Railway was oopned on July 1, 1876. This was the second of Canada's great railway works. Our first railroad, the Grand Trunk, in 1860 had its lines from Lake Huron to the sea (at Portland Maine) but not one of its branches touched the Maritime Provinces; and one big reason that induced Nova Scotia to consent to Confederation was the promise of a railway, for then 500 miles of wilderness lay between her an Quebec. So on July 1, 1876, the first trains ran from Montreal to St. John and Halifax.

FUR-FARMING IN CANADA.

Q—What is the value of the fur-farming in Canada?

A—The total value of the pelts of fur-bearing animals taken in the Dominion during the season of 1921-1922 was $17,438,800, an increase over the previous year of $7,287,273 or 72 per cent and the number of pelts of all kinds was 4,366,790 and an increase over the previous season of 48 per cent. These figures, the Bureau points out, comprise pelts of animals taken by trappers and pelts of ranch-bred animals.

Q—Who was David Thompson?

A—David Thompson, a Canadian explorer, was the first white man to trace the great river he named the Columbia, through the Canadian Rockies and to the Pacific, which he reached on July 11, 1811. His explorations gave Canada her claim to what is now Washington State.

THE BATTLE OF CHIPPAWA.

Q—When was the battle of Chippawa fought?

A—The battle of Chippawa was fought on July 5, 1814. The invading army of Americans were entrenched at Chippawa Creek, above Niagara Falls. They had artillery and a strong position; but Riall, in command of the British and Canadians —about half the number of the enemy—made a reckless attack, in the open. Naturally he lost so heavily that he thought it best to retreat, in good order, to Queenston, while the enemy claimed the victory.

QUEBEC PROVINCE.

Q—What are some of the features of Quebec province?

A—Quebec is the largest of the nine provinces of the Dominion, and for almsot its entire length touches the banks of the St. Lawrence. To the south,Quebec is bounded by the United Sates and the Province of New Brunswick and Ontario. The north stretches to Hudson Strait, the eastern boundary is the narrow stirp of Labrador coast, while Ontario and Hudson Bay form its western limit. Quebec City is the historic capital of the Province, while Montreal is the largest city and commercial metropolis of Canada, being exceeded only by New York. The population, roughly numbering 3,000,000 is about five-sixths French and one-sixth English speaking. The latter are principally found in Montreal and other cities and towns and in the eastern townships.

Baptists Show Big Growth in Europe.

STOCKHOLM, July 19.—(United Press.)—Baptists from every continent are arriving in Sweden for the first international congress since the one held in Philadelphia twelve years ago. Many have already arrived from the United States, Canada, Great Britain, and several hundred are en route from countries of continental Europe, including the new states of Latvia, Esthonia, Poland and Czecho-Slovaka.

More than 100 Russian Baptists, ministers and members of the laiety are here with permission of the Soviet Government. It is reported that the Baptists of Russia now number one million, where as in the days of the Czar there were only 150,000.

While by far the largest single national representations are from the United States, Baptist leaders are stressing the denomination's growth in continental Europe since the war. According to Dr. J. H. Rushbrooke, Baptist Commissioner for Europe, with headquarters in London, the post-war period has witnessed one of the most phenomenal growths in religious history.

"In the year of Waterloo (1815) there was no Baptist church on the mainland of Europe," he said. (Europe in this instance is referred to exclusive of the British Isles).

In 1850 there were about 4,000 church members.

"In 1900 the number had risen to about 220,000.

"In the year 1923 there are certainly not less than 1,250,000 and the number perhaps exceeds 2,000,000."

TO MAINTAIN GARRISON

LONDON, July 19.— (Canadian Press Cable).—In view of the recent agitation in Scotland regarding the War Office decision to withdraw the resident troops from Edinburgh Castle arrangements have been made to soothe the national sentiment. It has been arranged, in addition to the men mounting guard, that a detachment from the battalion at Redford Barracks shall be stationed at the Castle and the Battalion will march from Redford to the Castle once monthly with a band of pipers, thus maintainig the Castle in the status of a garrison.

HOPI INDIAN BUILDINGS TRACED BACK TO 1620

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., July 19.—(Associated Press).—Scientists have determined that the Hopi Indian buildings of many of the villages of the tribe northeast of Flagstaff date back to about 1,620 when the Hopis revolted against the Spanish priests and tore down missions built by the Spaniards, using many timbers from the missions in constructing their own houses.

A party including Dr. A. E. Douglas of the University of Arizona and Dr. J. A. Jeancon of the Colorado State Museum returned recently from the Hopi pueblo villages, where they made a study of the wooden beams in the ancient structures.

Professor Douglas has specialized in the study of rings in Arizzona trees with the result that he has been able to determine the age of timbers.

The scientists' principal difficulty lay in securing the permission of the Indians to make borings in the beams which are held sacred by the Hopis.

When this permission was finally obtained a number of one-inch borings were made and the examination indicated that the beams had been cut about the year 1620 when tradition says the Spanish built their missions in northeastern Arizona. Some 60 years later came the Hopi revolt and the missions were torn down.

Many of the beams in the Indian dwellings are decorated with rich carvings which Dr. Douglas says are the work of the Spaniards.

In the 295 bull-fights held in Spain during 1921, four bull-fighters, 32,764 horses and 1,602 bulls were killed.

A CAR RAN WILD INJURED HORSES

Loosened Brakes Were Cause of an Accident This Morning.

Loosened brakes allowed a car parked outside Duffus Motor Sales show-rooms on Water Street to run down the steep grade to the C.P.R. freight shed and wreck itself against the sturdy side of Louis Anthony's heavy team this morning.

The injured team is described as the best the carter owned, and one horse is badly injured, having several ribs broken. A complete diagnosis of the injuries has not been completed, but the veterinary surgeon described them as severe. The second horse is suffering from shock, showing a disinclination to move.

A GREAT INCONVENIENCE

Citizens who reside on Hunter on Hunter Street east, have complained of the system followed by the contractor in tearing up both sides of the street at the same time. This causes great inconvenience, they say, as they will be unable to reach their homes by road. It is believed that they will take the matter in a body to Cty Engineer R. H. Parsons, in an endeavour to have part of the street open for traffic.

PRICE OF INSULIN HAS BEEN LOWERED

Five Firms Are Now Manufacturing the New Drug in England.

LONDON, July 19. — (Canadian Press Cable). — Replying to the charges of a newspaper correspondent, a official of the Medical Council when interviewed yesterady, stated that the Council was in a postion to entirely disprive the charge that Insulin was being sold at an exorbitant price in England and was not generally procurable.

When Insulin was first put on the market in April last, said the official there was only a limited supply and it was necessary to place restrictions on its use. The shortage, however, was pronounced only a short time. There are now five firms in Great Britain manufacturing Insulin according to Toronto formula and it is procurable on short notice at any chemist shop and most of the London hospitals have supplies for people who are unable to pay for it. There recently was a reduction of the price from half-a-crown to one shilling and in nine pence a dose and with extended facilities for manufacturing the price probably will probably come down even lower.

This year's number of registered delegates and members who voted constitute a record in the history of the Grand Lodge and this added greatly to the decision to hold next year's meeting in Toronto.

DRUNKEN CZAR,

the Czar's yacht, the Stambart, were his breakfast guests, the Czar is supposed to have admitted. Simonovitch tells that Rasputin confided to him that after he had pressed more questions upon him the Czar admitted that he had told Voyeikov, just as a bit of interesting gossip that Kitchener was on the high seas, bound for Russia.

Related to German Spy.

Rasputin's next communication to Simonovitch on the subject, according to the memoirs, followed an interview the Monk had with Voyeikov who admitted readily enough that he had conveyed the news of the distinguished Briton's voyage to Prince Andronnikov, who, according to Simonovitch, was widely known as a German spy. The Prince was publishing a newspaper in Petrograd at the time, and Voyeikov naively explained to Rasputin that the information had been given to him "because he might want it for his paper."

Rasputin, as Simonovitch relates the story, used means of his own to find out what use Prince Andronnikov made of his precious bit of gossip. The Monk told his Secretary that his researches in that direction established beyond a doubt that the Prince, eager to serve his real master, despatched word of Kitchener's movements to a German Secret Service office in Switzerland, whence it was rushed to Berlin. The torpedoing of Kitchener's ship promptly followed.

A well-attended meeting of the local Trades and Labor Council was held in the Labor Hall on Wednesday, July 18, when interesting discussions were heard and important business dealt with.

"Industrial Democracy," a book written by Glenn E. Plumb and Wm. G. Roylance—the first-named a great lawyer—shows that the programme of labor is firmly based on the constitution itself, and details are given in the volume showing how to apply the Plumb plan to the various industries. Council endorsed the sentiments conveyed in this work.

Credential forms were received for the Dominion Trades Congress of Canada, which is to be held at Vancouver, B.C., opening on September 10; and it was suggested that Secretary-Treasurer Thos. Darrah be the delegate from the Peterboro Trades and Labor body.

A letter was received from Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, stating that at a recent meeting of the Executive of the Federation at their headquarters, they discussed at considerable length the matter of observance of Labor Day and Labor Sunday, 1923. After much deliberating and discussion the local Executive endorsed the following resolution:

"That a copy of the Labor Sunday and Labor Day circular from the American Federation of Labor be handed to each minister in the jurisdiction of each local Trades Council on the continent, to be read on Labor Sunday, September 2, 1923."

The question of the play-off for the Peck football cup was discussed, and a member of the Council appointed to present same to the winning team at the Labor Day sports.

HUNT FOR CONVICTS IN CYPRESS SWAMP

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 19. —Four of the six convicts who escaped from the Eastern Penitentiary this city, last Saturday are now bedieved to be in hiding in the salt marshes and dense cypress brush that fringe the lower eastern shore of Maryland.

Those familiar with the swamp region say the convicts supplied with ample provisions could evade capture for several weeks.

The motor launch Sunbeam stolen by them at Pocomoke City early Sunday had but five or six gallons of gasoline in her tank according to Coleman F. Byrd, owner of the craft who does not believe that the convicts could have travelled further than Crisfield, Md.

With the man-haunt on in the swamps, places where the dory could have been scuttled are being dragged, and coast guards, volunteers in motorboats and shipping in Chesapeake Bay are combing the coast.

J. W. Kirwin, Chief of Police at Crisfield, and six deputies were on the trail to-night of four men who passed the town afoot in the morning. The strangers avoided meeting any one and hurried away. They tallied with the description broadcast by the local police.

From Norfolk, where revenue cutters have joined in the chase, word was received here to-night of the sghting near Cape Charles of a small craft believed to be the Sunbeam. The Cutters Manning and Mascoutin were ordered to overtake the vessel. Norfolk Police Patrol Boat No. 1 was in the vicinity at the time and also set out in the direction of the mysterious launch.

It was learned to-day that the fugitives are in possession of several thousand dollars. The money, according to information reaching detectives is a fund obtained for the convicts through intensive banditry sincethe plot to scale the penitentiary walls was first hatched a month ago.

The bandits were four members of the band that, with Thomas J. "Eggie" Gillan held up and robbed a Corn Exchange National Bank messenger. Gillen, who is believed to be leading the escaped men, refused to divulge the identity of his companions when arrested. In return for this the bandits who escaped arrest, pledged themselves to aid Gillen to escape and joined with friends of Edwards in raising the money at the point of pistols.

All few of the fugitives were indicted by the Grand Jury to-day on eleven bills charging breaking out of prison, assault of a guard, larceny of an automobile and the kidnapping of its owner, T. J. McAllister, Jr., and carrying concealed weapons.

Radio orders from the Navy Yard advised vessels in Chesapeake Bay of the convicts' description and destroyers were asked to be ready for a swift run if the trail of the convicts is picked up.

LIBERALS AND U.F.O. MAY UNITE FORCES

TORONTO, July 19.—(Canadian Press). — Elected Liberal members are holding a conference at Parliament Buildings, to-day, for the purpose of discussing the general political situation. Rumor has it that the meeting, which will be presided over by Wellington Hay, former Liberal Leader, will consider overtures that have been made from U. F. O. groups to unite with Liberals and thereby form a solid official opposition.

Wellington Hay, who was at Parliament buildings at noon, said he knew nothing of any such reported fusion.

SURPRISE PARTY GIVEN MRS. LEE; MANY GIFTS

The young ladies of the King's Own Class of St. James' Methodist Church surprised their president, Mrs. Ernest Lee (nee Clara Robinson), when they motored to her home and showered her with many useful and pretty gifts.

Several games were played, after which the bride opened the gifts, to each of which a rhyme was attached. She thanked the girls for their kind thoughts and gifts. Ice cream and cake were served, the bride cutting the cake.

Among presents which the bride received were $25 in gold from the employees of the Albion Knitting Co., where she was employed in the office; a beautiful casserole from the Colonial Weaving Co., on whose ball team she was a player; and silver carvers from the Colonial baseball girls, besides many others.

Mrs. Holmberg Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Viking, Alta.—"From the time I was 15 years old I would get such sick feelings in the lower part of my abdomen, followed by cramps and vomiting. This kept me from my work (I help my parents on the farm) as I usually had to go to bed for the rest of the day. Or at times I would have to walk the floor. I suffered in this way until a friend induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had very satisfactory results so far and am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends. I surely am glad I tried it for I feel like a different person now that I don't have these troubles." — ODELIA HOLMBERG, Box 93, Viking, Alberta.

Letters like this establish the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They tell of the relief from such pains and ailments after taking it.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills in this country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials prove this fact.

If you doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for Mrs. Pinkham's private text-book and learn more about it. C

2,500 PEOPLE AT MASONIC MEETING

Enthusiasm and Joviality Featured Gathering in Massey Hall, Toronto

TORONTO, July 19. —(Canadian Press).—Masons from the motherland of Masons, Masons from the land of the star-spangled banner, and Masons from the far-flung territories of the Dominion gathered in Massey Hall last night on the occasion of the general assembly of the Grand Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario.

Not for many a long day will the members of the ruling body of the craft in this Province, their distinguished visitors, and their friends forget the enthusiasm, the joviality, the sense of a common striving after the deeper things of life, and the glow of fellowship which made last night's gathering one of the notable events in the history of Ontario's Grand Lodge.

Fully 2,500 people re-echoed with thundering cheers Grand Master W. N. Ponton's greeting to the leader of the delegation representing Freemasonry of Great Britain, Right. Hon. Lord Ampthill, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., Provincial Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of England, and when that distinguished spokesman of an Order which includes in its membership Royalty itself, warned his brethren to take heed lest the centuries-old foundation of their craft crumble before the sweep of "a lava like crust of materialism," and when he threw out a challenge for greater service to struggling humanity and promised that Freemasonry of the Old Land stood ready to do its duty, the enthusiasm of the great audience knew no bounds.

Spent Her Money in Vain, Says London Resident

"If everybody knew what I knew about Tanlac there isn't a home in Canada that would be without it," is the high valuation placed on the medicine by Mrs. G. Bell, of 317 Grey Street, London, Ont.

"Before I took Tanlac I spent enough money trying to get relief from stomach trouble to furnish a home, and had got to where I thought nothing could help me. Gas bloating, stomach pains, awful headaches, shattered nerves and bad pains in the back were among my troubles, and usually I felt too miserable to dress and go down town shopping.

"I began taking Tanlac last Christmas and stopped taking it in February, after my health was completely restored and my weight increased 11 pounds. Nearly every day some one remarks about how well I look and I am feeling better than I ever did before. Tanlac is just wonderful."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

PULLMAN CAR WAS TRAVELLERS' OASIS

Forty Bottles of Liquor Hidden Under Mattresses — Seized in Lindsay.

LINDSAY, July 19.—J. N. Cox of Montreal, the colored C.N.R. porter, who was arrested yesterday in connection with the seizure of liquor on a pullman at the C.N.R. station, was remanded for eight days on the charge of having liquor for sale.

It would appear that for some time the local officers have had their suspicions aroused as a result of reports of passengers having received liquid refreshments on the pullman "Salisbury" travelling from Montreal to Lindsay. On Saturday last, License Inspector Thornbury, received a note to the effect that liquor was being supplied on the pullman. Constable Hartnett also received a letter relative to the same matter during the past two days, yesterday morning the officers were at the station awaiting the arrival of the 9.15 o'clock train from the east, and when the pullman was switched to a siding they proceeded to make an investigation. The porter met them at the car door and refused them entrance. Station officials advised Cox to allow the officers to enter, and later Superintendent J. D. McMillan of Belleville, who happened to be in town, appeared on the scene, and ordered the porter to allow the officers to make a search. The following was found hidden away in berths, club bags and under matresses: 12 qt. bottles Scotch whisky, 5 qt bottles Royal Reserve, 14 qt bottles export ale, 10 qt bottles old stock ale.

Cox claimed that nothing was found in his personal luggage and al so that the pullman is owned by a private company and the officers were exceeding their authority when they entered the car without a warrant.

GERMANY WILLING TO GO HALF WAY

Would Cease Passive Resistance in the Ruhr Subject to Concessions

PARIS, July 19. Canadian Press. —The German government through its embassy in London, is striving to have the forthcoming British note on reparations convey to the French government, Germany's willingness to cease passive resistance in the Ruhr, subject to certain concessions on the part of France.

This information has reached the French government on what is regarded as unquestionable but unofficial authority.

These Concessions appear to include:

First: Withdrawal of the Franco-Belgian troops of occupation, with the exception of a mere skeleton military force, which in a diplomatic sense, would be "invisible."

Second: Permission for German officials and functionaries expelled from the Ruhr to return to their posts, restoring local administration of all civil services, as it existed before January 11th, when the occupation took place.

PROTRACTED SESSION OF BRITISH CABINET

Proposed German Reparations Documents Main Topic of Discussion.

LONDON, July 19. — (Canadian Press).—The British Cabinet had protracted session, this morning, at which proposed reparation documents formed the main topic of discussion. Up to early afternoon, it was still uncertain as to whether the documents—a draft reply to Germany and accompanying note— and would be forwarded to the other governments to-nights.

It was recognized that these state papers may mark turning point in Great Britain's relations to her neighbours. Therefore, infinite care is being bestowed on their preparation by Lord Curzon, Foreign Secretary and his associates.

SEEK STANDARD NAMES PLANTS AND FLOWERS

CHICAGO, July 19.—(Associated Press).—The chaotic state of affairs in the miscalling of names of flowers, plants and other perennials, has made necessary the standardization of their names, and a report on the subject has been adopted by the American Association of Nurserymen.

The compilation of names of these perennials, the result of more than five years of actual work on the part of the sub-committee of the American Joint Committee of Horticulturalists, is heralded as a great stride forward in the horticultural world.

As an example, the committee pointed out that there are more than 2,000 names for roses. Many names are used for the same rose, and this has resulted in complication. With the completion of the new nomenclature, it is hoped that use of the standard names will become general.

Standardized perennial names, both common and scientific, will benefit the public and the grower, according to the committee, and will tend to eliminate unfair practices. Heretofore growing, buying and selling have been largely guess work, the committee said and based on personal equation rather than on fair, square, open and accepted business standards.

It is expected that the Government will accept this nomenclature as an official standard.

William Hendrie and George M. Hendrie, brothers.

PROMISE OF A GREAT HARVEST

Never Has C. P. R. Chief Been So Enthusiastic Over Prospects in the West.

WINNIPEG. Man., July 19.—(Special).—Making the rounds of the great grain areas of the West, Grant Hall, Vice-President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has returned to Winnipeg. It has been the practice of Mr. Hall to make a personal inspection of the grain fields each year about this time, as some idea can be obtained this early as to what equipment and additional facilities, if any, will be needed before the crop begins to move. "In the long term of years in which I have watched the development of the grain crop, I feel safe in saying that never have I been quite so enthusiastic about the prospects," said Mr. Hall. "Generally at this time of year there are many reports of damage by drought or rust or hot winds. but so far we have had no such reports and we are laying our plans to move the largest crop in the history of the West. My trip has covered practically all the grain growing West. Leaving Winnipeg, we went south to Souris and through Western Saskatchewan to Shaunavon; and, returning to Assiniboia, we came back to the main line and followed it to Calgary and Moose Jaw. At Calgary we visited the stampede, and I should say it is a pronounced success. Going north from Calgary to Edmonton, we came east to Kerrobert via Lacombe, and from there back to Moose Jaw. Going north again from Regina, we visited Saskatoon and came in by the north line through Brandon. For uniformity and fine growth, it is a great picture, and unless some unlooked for calamity overtakes us we shall see an inspiring sight at harvest time.

"We are preparing to move the crop and expect to keep up to all our previous good records in that line."

As being next in importance to the crop and the moving of it, Mr. Hall was asked as to the progress made on branch lines in the West, and possible extension to the program. In reply he said:

"The progress of branch lines construction was announced by Vice-President Coleman early in the season, and subsequent developments have not affected its scope or progress in any way."

Enlarging on the branch line work, Mr. Hall said that grading is proceeding on the first two sections of the Milden-Empress line, first two sections of the Rosetown south, second section of the Leader south, first section of the Cutknife northerly, second section of the Lanigan northerly, and the first two sections of the Prince Albert-Tuffnell line. Track laying is following up the grading on the Empress-Milden line, and ballasting is proceeding on the first two sections of the Leader south and on the first two sections of Consul easterly. Although somewhat retarded by wet weather, work has been proceeding satisfactorily, and it is hoped that a substantial mileage will be ready for steel this season.

Accompanying Mr. Hall on the trip was D. C. Coleman, Vice-President of the Western lines; W. A. Black, Managing Director Ogilvie Flour Mills Co.; R. R. Dobell, Western Manager Ogilvie Flour Mills Co.; Geo. W. Allen, Winnipeg; F. O. Fowler, Manager Grain Exchange Clearing House; A. E. Whitemore, Regina.

MAKING BRAVE FIGHT.

DRESDEN, July 19.—(Associated Press).—Ringing church bells is the occupation a girl student in one of the German universities has adopted as a means of piecing out her inadequate income. She also did factory work and mending until a gift from the students of Vassar College provided her with money enough to buy meal tickets for the students' mess. Now she is able to devote more time to her studies. The students' messes give two hot meals a day at a cost in American money of two cents, but many of the woman students cannot afford even this small sum.

Many girls are trying to live on only one hot meal a day, and consequently the number forced to leave the universities and high schools because of illness is very large. Even the two hot meals provided in the messes fall far short of providing adequate nourishment. They contain no meat or fats of any sort, and are chiefly boiled vegetables and cereals.

SILK EXPORTS DECREASE.

TOKIO, July 19.—(Associated Press).—There has been a marked decrease this year in the export of raw silk to America due, according to a report of the Board of Agriculture, to increased import duties imposed by America and the appreciation of quotations on the Yokohama market.

There also has been a falling off in the exports to England, owing to the depression in the re-export trade of British silk manufacturers. The same is true of the exports of silk textiles to Australia and the South Sea Islands, but there has been an improvement in the Indian trade, recovery in the exchange market helping the business there.

GOOD MONEY IN GOOD FARMING

"Let's Get to Work and Pay Off the Mortgage"

NINE years ago Canada's national debt was about one-third of a billion. It is more than two and one-third billions today.

Our debts have greatly increased—our revenues must also go up. The farmer has to bear his share of the increased burden. That means he must increase his revenue.

Complaint has been heard that farmers under present conditions in Canada cannot make farming pay. And yet many thousands of Canadian farmers do make it pay.

How Is It Done?

Patient and industrious "carry on" will do wonders, but something more is needed. Too often "patient industry" is coupled with "dull persistance" in poorly thought out methods.

Farmers today more than ever, must plan ahead, as well as "plug along"; indeed they have no option, if they wish to succeed.

Co-ordination of head and hand will mean real success. Farming in Canada has paid and pays now on many farms. It can be made to pay on almost every farm. Canadian agriculture has passed through many low profit-making eras successfully and can do so again.

With the increased cost of production, the present higher standards of living cannot be kept up by poor farm management, "boarder" milkers, scrub beeves, poor quality hogs or non-profitable hens.

That even under present conditions profits may be made is testified by many skilful, observant and non-plunging farmers, who believe more in the policy of "slow but sure" and "pay as you go" rather than speed, with excessive borrowing and the often consequent disaster.

The results on our Experimental Farms also bear testimony to the value of thorough, skilful work.

The Farmer Must Manufacture

But crops alone are not enough. The farmer must change his crops into less bulky and more high-priced products—milk, pork, beef, mutton, poultry, etc.

With fair yielding cows dairying shows good profits in Canada. The average cow has increased her yield 25% in the last ten years. She can quite readily go up another 25% and more, and there's where the profit lies. Better feeding, better selection and better breeding will do the job—feed, weed, breed.

To do better feeding means better pastures and more generous supplies of palatable roughage. Short rotations including clover and ensilage crops (corn, sunflower, pea, oats, etc.) will provide feed in abundance for both summer and winter. The experiments and investigations which the Dominion Department of Agriculture have carried on prove that farming scientifically and systematically undertaken will pay profits. The records and particulars of such work in every province are available to the Canadian farmer.

Crop Returns Should Be Increased

On the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa some crop costs and crop profits in 1922 as contrasted with all-Ontario average crop costs and crop profits are given below. The all-Ontario figures are in brackets.

	Cost per acre	Profit per acre
Hay	$21.13 ($13.50)	$11.21 ($5.09)
Corn for Forage	$47.50 ($33.75)	$10.38 ($2.86)
Oats	$26.47 ($19.32)	$ 7.33 (.04)

Experimental Farm crops are sometimes claimed to be produced at too great cost. Thousands of experiments, however, show that increased cropping costs wisely applied up to a reasonable point always increase crop profits. This is true on the Experimental Farm—it is also true on any and every farm

Petes Won In Belleville 6 to 5 -- Exhibition Game Saturday

SWEET REVENGE AT BELLEVILLE FOR THE PETES

Fought It Out Until the Last Ditch and Finally Emerged Victorious After Extra Inning.

AN EXCITING GAME.

Yesterday's win at Belleville was sweet revenge for Manager Solomon's Petes for it not only put the local crew out in front in the second section race but it atoned considerably for the tough break in Saturday's game here when the rain robbed the Petes of a chance to overcome the slender lead of one run set up by Belleville in the third.

It was Belleville's Civic holiday and a big crowd saw the battle, the finish of which they did not enjoy in the least. The final score was 6 to 5 for the Solomon crew, who won the game once, lost it again and then carved their way into the lead at the finish by nicking the tying run of Jack Oulette in the ninth and the winning marker off Jackie Williams in the tenth. Williams was sent in to make the game safe for the Grand Trunks but one inning was enough to allow the Petes to win.

It was the first game Al Heckman has won in Belleville and coming after the 15-0 beating the Petes sustained on their last visit there was doubly sweet. And at that Heckman should have won by the shout out route, Belleville's first counter being the result of a bad throw by Johnston while their four runs in the sixth came after chances to retire the side had been lost and the last of the quartette was on a pop fly which Helson lost sight of completely in the sun and which dropped for a hit instead of an easy out. Up to that inning Belleville had only secured three hits, two of them decidely lucky one. The blow up in the sixth which put Belleville ahead after the Petes had secured practically a safe lead was a heart-breaker for the pitcher, but he worked on steadily blanking the enemy for the rest of the engagement and had the reward of having the game finally pulled out of the fire for him.

Oulette was not as effective as usual, although like Heckman, he suffered from errors at critical times and the run scored by the Petes in the fifth was the only earned counter of the first nine innings, the winning run scored in the tenth inning being also an earned marker.

Neither team scored in the first. For Peterboro, Legon fanned, Wolfe walked and went to second on Swanston's infield out. He then stole third but Ansaldo rolled to Meagher.

For Belleville Ross grounded to Comolli, Meagher popped to Johnston and Helson tossed out Brownscombe, the side being retired on four balls.

The Petes got three in the second. Comolli singled to left and was sacrificed to second by Johnston after which a wild pitch put him on third. Collins walked and stole second and when J. K. Williams threw high to the plate on Helson's roller to third both Comolli and Collins scored. Hagerman threw over second on recovering the ball and Helson reached third. Heckman was called out on strikes but Legon waited Oulette out and drew a pass. He stole second on the first ball and when Hagerman threw down, Helson beat the return to the plate. Wolfe struck out, retiring the side.

In Belleville's end Weir led off with a double to left. Johnston went back and made a nice catch of Mill's fly but then threw high to third and Weir scored. Williams struck out. Casey got a cheap hit on a bounder down the third base line. Hagerman fanned.

For the Petes in the third Swanston was tossed out by Weir, Ansaldo singled to left but was forced at second on Comolli's roller to Weir and Comolli in turn was forced in the same way by Johnston.

For Belleville Oulette fanned. Ross walked but died stealing on Swanston's perfect peg to Ansaldo. Meagher hoisted a hig one to Comolli.

In the fourth Collins struck out. Helson's hard smash was gathered in by Brownscombe and Heckman's bounder to the box was knocked down by Ouelette in time to retire the runner.

Brownscombe and Weir fanned in Belleville's half and after Mills had secured a lucky hit on a ball that Ansaldo lost track of in the sun he was forced at second on William's tap to Helson.

The Petes got another in the fifth. Legon hoisted one to Hagerman and Wolfe fanned. Swanston, however, singled to right centre and Ansaldo hit safely to left centre. Comolli singled between Weir and Williams, the shortstop making a nice barehanded stop and holding Swanston at third. Oulette, however, promptely wild pitched the run in. Johnston's roller to Meagher ended the fun.

Casey first up for Belleville in the fifth rolled to Ansaldo. Hagerman flied out to Wolie and Heckman threw ou Oulette.

In the sixth Collins was tossed out by Williams, a fast peg by the third baseman. Helson rolled to Meagher. Heckman singled to center and Legon flied out to Weir.

Then came the bad inning for the Petes. It started off nicely with Heckman striking out Ross. The ever lucky Meagher got a life when Legon lost his short fly to left but Brownscombe struck out. Weir rolled an easy one to Ansaldo for what should have been the third out but the shortstop's fumble gave the hitter a life. Mills singled to right to register Meagher and then Williams cracked a fast one to left center for three bases scoring Weir and Mills. The score was tied but when Casey poped one in the air over third the trouble seemed to be over. Helson was under the ball and then lost it completely in the mid-day sun, the fly dropping safely for a hit which scored Williams. Hagerman followed with another safety but Heckman got his thrid strike out in the inning to retire Oulette and the side.

For the Petes in the seventh Wolfe was thrown out by Oulette. Swanston was safe when Weir's throw pulled Mills off the bag but Ansaldo fanned and Comolli fouled out to Mills.

Ross first up for Belleville in this frame fied to Legon. Meagher reached second when Heckman fielded his roller and made a wild throw to first. Brownscombe flied to Legon and Weir struck out.

In the eighth Johnston was tossed out by Weir. Collins singled past Williams but Helson hit into a double play via Weir and Meagher.

Belleville got two hits in their half but did not score. Mills rolled to Comolli and Williams fanned. Casey singled to right and Hagerman hit safely past second. Heckman and Johnston picked Casey off the

A run behind when they opened the ninth the Petes were fighting in the last ditch. Heckman started the battle for the tying run by singling to right. Manager Soloman elected to bat for Legon and his drive over second looked good for a hit. Ross was playing in close, however, and made a nice catch. Wolfe hoisted one to Weir, who dropped the ball but had plenty of time to force Heck at second. Wolfe stole second and went right on to third when Hagerman threw low. It was up to Swanston and his sharp grounder which bounced over Weir's head turned the trick, sending Wolfe in with the tying run.

For Belleville Oulette struck out and Ross flied to McElroy who had gone to right field when Collins shifted over to left to replace Legon. As usual the outiiled played in for Meagher and he crossed them up by hitting over Wolfe's head for a triple. The winning run was on third with two out but Heckman forced Brownscombe to tap tamely to the box and the tight corner was turned.

Belleville took Oulette out at this stage and sent Williams in to save the day. Comolli greeted him in the tenth with a double down the left field foul line and Johnston sent the winning masker over to third with a neat sacrifice which he nearly beat out. Collins' slow roller to Harry Mills sent Comolli in with the million dollar run. There was no chauce for a play at the plate and when Meagher failed to touch first on Mills' throw the runner was also safe. Williams caught him off the bag a minute later. Helson was hit but Heckman's fly was gathered in by Ross.

Weir gave Belleville a good start by a clean single to left. Mills raised a high one back of the box which Comolli dropped but recovered in time to throw Weir out at second. Then Williams flied to Ansaldo and Mills had too big a lead off first to get back before Ansaldo's throw nestled in Comolli's hands for the out that meant Belleville were beaten.

It was a fitting finish to a most exciting game.

BOUT IN SOUTH.

BUENOS AIRES, July 19.—(Canadian Press). — "While all South Americans are proud of Firpo, not all will pay big prices to see him fight. Quite a lot would be content to read about it afterwards." says the English-language newspaper, in an editorial yesterday, declaring the proposed Firpo-Dempsey bout in Buenos Aires would not be a financial success.

Declaring that the estimated gate receipts in excess of $250,000 are too large to be attained, the newspaper adds:

"Rickard better forget Argentina once for all. It is no place to stage a world's championship, because there is not enough population.

The Standard, which is also printed in English, says it is too much to expect the reported required gate of $800,000 from Argentina's population of 9.000,00.

WILLARD TAKING THE COUNT

LOUIS FIRPO HAS NOT BEEN SIGNED

Tex Rickard Says a Number of Things Are Holding Up Negotiations.

New York, July 19. Canadian Press. — Tex Rickards' efforts to sign, seal and deliver the proposed Jack Dempsey-Firpo match for the world's heavyweight championship, either in the United States or in the Argentine, apparently were no nearer completion yesterday after a series of conferences between the promoter, Firpo, the latter's trainer, Jimmy Deforest, and Jack Kearns, manager of the champion.

Rickard declined to reveal the exact state of affairs, beyond saying that a "number of things were holding up negotiations," but Kearns added that he expected definite developments within the next 48 hours. He may confer with Rickard again to-day on the match, he said.

The chief difficulty surrounding the bout was believed to be its site, although it was said an additional hitch had developed in the form of increased financial demands by Firpo.

Regardless of this angle, however, Firpo reiterated to Rickard his desire to fight Dempsey in his native city Buenos Aires, while Kearns adhered to his preference for two title bouts in this country, the first with Firpo around Labor Day, and the second with Harry Wills, the negro challenger, around world's series time.

TENNIS PHOTOS SHOCK BRITISH.

Net Body Asks Clubs to Prevent Their Being Snapped.

LONDON, July 18.—The council of the English Lawn Tennis Association, shocked by some of the newspaper photographs of women tennis players, has circularized secretaries of clubs where open tournament sare to be held, asking that press photographers be restrained from taking pictures of an "objectionable nature."

The circular says the council "strongly deprecates publication of pictures of this character" as it believes that placing them before the public will tend to bring the sport into disrepute.

Commenting upon the circular the Westminister Gazette remarks that if the objection is well founded the question arises whether the present costume worn on the court by women is suitable. The customary dress here is a simple short skirted outfit made familiar by Suzanne Lenglen.

JOINS THE OUTLAWS

TOLEDO, O., July 19.—(Canadian Press).—Bob Wright, veteran right hand pitcher of the Toledo Club of the American Association, left here for Canton, Ohio, yesterday day to join the Nash Club of the Mid West League. Wright jumped the Mud Hens at Milwaukee Tuesday. He visited club headquarters here yesterday, notifying President Roger Bresnahan of his decision to become an outlaw. Wright was the most effective hurler of the Mud Hen staff.

President Toole to Investigate Charges.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 19.—(Canadian Press).— President John Conway Toole was given full power to investigate any syndicate charges at a meeting of the International League Club owners here yesterday. The action taken by the League directors is the outgrowth of two years of bickering in which charges were flung back and forth about the alleged syndicate agreement between the Baltimore and Newark club.

A resolution was passed to amend the constitution of the League in giving the President full power to investigate but in order to put this into effect all the club owners in the League must agree.

President Toole also was commended by the club owners on his stand in the umpire controversy which started Monday with the discharge of Umpire William Phyle.

Rasmussen, Internal Revenue Collector for Montana, in a claim for $5825 income tax declared to be due from the receipts of the fight at Shelby, Montana.

The other was filed by the International News Reel Corporation, which has a claim of $5000 for taking the pictures.

LEAFS WIN BY HARD HITTING

Maple Leafs hit the offerings of two Hillcrest twirlers in a Juvenile game at King Edward School grounds last evening, and won the contest by 15 to 4. Hillcrests expressed a desire to see the umpires in the river, but as the Leafs scored a dozen runs in the third and fourth on ten hits, including a double, triple and home run, and a bunch of errors the arbiters didn't have much to say aobut the result of the game.

Johnny Marchen heaved for the Leafs and turned in a good performance. He allowed only six safeties, one a double by Mein in the third. Only in the fifth, did Hillcrests, get two in a row. At that time the side had been retired but the scorer's records were not accepted. The additional chance for Hillcrests gave Ab-Delahaye an opportunity to let loose a wild peg to third allowing Leahy to score the fourth run.

It was the Leafs' on-night with the willow. They hit the bad ones along with the good ones and had eleven runs when Mein moved over to first to be succeeded on the mound by Vinette. Corbett greeted the new pncher with a smash to left, the ball being lost in the grass at the fence, allowing two runners to score.

The best play of the game was a double killing by Hillcrests. Thirnbeck who hit in the first, stole second. Jack Hall grounded to the pitcher who get the runner to first and Vinette threw accurately to Smith who tagged Thirnbeck going into third.

BEAT THIS ONE.

One of the Yale entrants in the intercollegiate golf tourney at Siwanoy County Club pulled a funny "hole in one."

As the foursomes were teeing off from the home tee, he hit the ball with a Babe Ruth swing and it was still slicing and rising as it disappeared in the morning mists. The caddies spent half an hour looking for the ball and then gave it up as lost.

When the foursome got around to the eighth hole on the return journey along the parallel course, the ball was found in that cup.

Shooting for the first hole, the golfing Babe Ruth, has made the eight hole in one—but it didn't do him much good.

Eugene Criqui Shows Caliber of Real Champ.

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, July 19.—Eugene Criqui is a real champion.

The little featherweight hero is going to return to Paris August 2, no matter what the outcome of his bout with Johnny Dundee, scheduled for the Polo Grounds July 26. He is going back to appear FOR NOTHING against the best featherweight in France. The funds derived from admissions to the bout will be used to aid disabled war veterans.

It is quite a novel experience for a prizefighter to do anything for nothing. Jess Willard, Luis Firpo, Jack McAuliffe and Floyd Johnson recently staged a benefit for the Milk Fund of New York, and the cash they received would support a million babies for a month.

Jack Dempsey only got $220,000 for boxing fifteen rounds with Tommy Gibbons in what his manager, Jack Kearns, called "a good workout for Dempsey." He was to have received $300,000 for the show, and it was only at the last minute that he showed himself "a good sport" and decided to take a chance on his last $100,000.

If Kearns is a "good sport" what kind of a sport would you call Criqui who, in this advanced day of financial frenzy, is going back to fight FOR NOTHING for the disabled soldiers of France?

At the Top of Amateur Golf

For three or four years past it has been the opinion of professional golfers, British as well as American, that young Robert Jones, who won the open championship of the United States is the finest amateur golfer yet to appear. This does not mean that he is invincible or that he has been a frequent winner. He has never succeeded in winning the amateur championship, though expected to do so at each of the last three tournaments. In the open of 1922 he was but one stroke behind the champion. It has long seemed his fate just to fall short of seizing the crown. But it is not on the basis of success or failure in match or medal play that professional opinion of "Bobby" Jones has been formed. Too many accidents of weather or physical condition, too many smiles of fortune, enter into the winning of golf contests to make that the true test.

What the professionals say of Jones is that his marked natural aptitude for the game has been built upon by sound instruction in the niceties of golf and by assiduous practice. His teacher at Atlanta also turned out a woman champion in the person of Miss Alexa Stirling. The enthusiasts speak of "Bobby" as the shining "stylist" of golf. His form is so excellent and correct that it stands him in stead when fate frowns upon him, or when for any reason his nervous co-ordination is not perfect. When he slips, he does not fall so far as others. When he occasionally "blows up," he is not dashed to pieces. His style saves him from complete disaster. Morever, he knows all the shots. Into or across or down the wind, he has his repertory ready. Remarkable in length, he is even more remarkable in accuracy. Difficult recoveries look easy in his execution of them. And he now seems to have acquired, what he long lacked, the thing called golfing temperament. This means the ability to endure hard luck with equanimity—"tranquilis saevis in undis," which may be translated calm even in cruel bunkers—and to put away a bad stroke as soon as it is made, so as to make sure of a good one next. The way in which Jones came through the severe tests of last week, under which so many tough veterans broke, is the best evidence not only of the skill of his playing but of the stoutness of his heart. He had to call upon both yesterday in a struggle which did not end till the last hole.—New York Times.

WOMEN DECLARE BARNYARD GOLF GOOD EXERCISE

Champion Declares Horseshoe Pitching Develops Woman Physically and Mentally—Easy to Learn

CHALLENGE ISSUED.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., July 19.—Out of the daily household routine comes a challenge to the world of women for the championship in horseshoe pitching.

The challenge is sent out by Mrs. Clarence A. Lanham, champion woman horseshoe pitcher of Illinois. She is in training to meet all comers and believes that she will prove as successful during the coming season as was the case last year when she easily defeated all opponents.

Of course, Mrs. Lanham's devotion to "barnyard golf" does not keep her from her daily work at home. In fact, she advises housewives to take up this sport for their health and recreation.

"As an invigorating and healthful exercise," says Mrs Lanham, "horseshoe pitching has few equals. It isn't too difficult for women to take up, and it affords women, who work in the house most of the day, a good chance to develop themselves physically.

Healthful Exercise.

"Horseshoe pitching develops many of the body muscles. Besides, it improves the vision, and has many other helpful features. All it needs is a couple of horseshoes, stakes and a backyard.

"After the day's drudgery, two neighborly housewives can have friendly enjoyment out of the game, and at the same time gain in health and strength."

Mrs. Lanham has received many invitations to exhibit her skill at county and state fairs in Illinois and the middle west. But she says she'll get her home in order before she goes on such a tour. At the same time, she's improving her playing in her own backyard, prepared to add to her collection of trophies and prizes won last year.

Plays Men's Game.

Nearly all women pitch what is known as the 30-foot game, this being the distance between stakes. Mrs. Lanham, however, is fully as expert in the 40-foot game, preferred for men, and is believed to be the most expert of the feminine tossers in the United States.

When Mrs. Lanham first became interested in horseshoe pitching she threw what is known as the heel, or whirling, method. A year ago she was advised by experts to abandon this and practice the open shoe. In the latter game the shoe is pitched so that it makes a slow turn and falls with the points toward the stake. It is claimed that it is possible to throw more ringers with the open shoe method than with the heel throw.

Mrs. Lanham practiced the new style for several days, but could not master it and was disposed to return to the old style, believing that she could score more points. Her husband, however, encouraged her to continue practicing the open shoe and coached her in the advantages. She consented to devote two weeks more, mastered it and found she was able to improve her game.

Since then she has been extraordinarily successful, defeating all rivals at the state competition in Aurora, Ill., last August, and then winning the national championship at Des Moines, Ia.

LAST SATURDAY'S GAME.

It is hardly necessary to indicate where the following originated as the sporting tendencies of some of our contempories are well known throughout the Central League circuit. It is quite apparent that the writer not only did not see the game mentioned but also knew absolutely nothing about it but the score. Yesterday's ten-inning affair at Belleville should be ample inducation as to who the weatherman was helping when the rain put an end to last Saturday's game.

It looks like Belleville as winners of the second section. They stepped into Peterboro on Saturday and handed the Solomonites a 1 to 0 trimming and had the weatherman not interefered the chances are the score would have been bigger.—Port Hope Guide.

MOTHERS-IN-LAW SHOULDN'T MEDDLE.

Stay Away From Married Children Except on Occasional Visits.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., July 19.—Mrs. Sarah S. Farley, just graduated here with a degree of bachelor of science although past the half century mark in years, has a cure for mothers-in-law. It will make all relatives concerned contented and happy, she says. It's this:

"Mothers-in-law shouldn't meddle. They should have some definite occupation to keep them away from the young folks. If they have no such occupation or vocation, they should acquire one.'

To prove her contention, Mrs. Farley has done exactly what she advises other mothers-in-law to do—and she's happy. She visits her three sons and a daughter regularly—and her visits are anticipated with joy. Twelve grandchildren are her pets.

But she stays away from them most of the time. She has been making herself scarce by taking up a course in botany at the State College here, for which she has just received her diploma. Her college work has kept her busy enough not to interfere with her daughters-in-law and her son-in-law, and she intends to continue this by taking up advanced work in another institution.

"Of course, it cannot be expected that every mother-in-law can or would care to do what I have done," says Mrs. Farley. "That is not at all necessary, but I do not believe mothers of married children, when they can possibly avoid it, have any reason for sitting idly by, depending upon the young folks, or bearing their burdens for them, thus depriving them of the necessary discipline of life.

"I enjoy nothing better than a visit to my children, which is natural, and I know they enjoy having me. But it is indeed a great satisfaction to me to know that I can continue to provide for myself and be able to adjust my life to circumstances."

"The Woman's Side," a First National attraction soon to be presented at the Royal Theatre, is another screen success of the beautiful Katherine MacDonald under the direction of J. A. Barry.

Director Barry, after long direction of the American Beauty, prepared and adopted this original story to the screen especially as a starring vehicle for Miss MacDonald.

For many years Director Barry was known as the right-hand man of David Wark Griffith. He won much fame for his splendid work with Griffith in the filming of "Intolerance," "The Birth of a Nation," and many other Griffith successes.

As director and production manager of pictures starring Katherine MacDonald, Mr. Barry has contributed largely to their success. "The Woman's Side" is the fifth MacDonald picture he has directed for First National release.

FLOWING GOLD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Calvin Gray hates Colonel Henry Nelson of Dallas and hires three men to watch Nelson's activities in the oil fields. Gray is in love with Barbara Parker, daughter of Tom Parker, Nelson tells Parker that Gray has been dishonorably discharged from the army. Gus Brisbow becomes friendly with Gray and together they buy the controlling interest in the Nelson bank. Gray and Brisbow attend a meeting of the bank's directors. Gray tells the men assembled that he was dishonorably discharged from the army because of Henry Nelson's treachery and that later Henry had been found out and himself been dismissed.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

"I worked a long while and I was upon the verge of success—it would have been a real accomplishment, too—when, without apparent cause, the gang took warning, scattered, the whole thing blew up. Months of work for nothing! I had made worse than a failure this time."

"You mean to accuse Henry of—of treachery of that sort?" Swope inquired.

"I do. And that's not all. Out of a clear sky charges were preferred against me. Outrageous charges in which that woman figured." Up to this point Gray had spoken smoothly, rapidly, but now his tone changed, his words became hesitant, jerky. "I was amazed! John, I called it at first. Sort of a blanket indictment, it was, charging me with inefficiency, negligence, exceeding my authority, dishonesty—and things even worse. Those were some of the least serious, the least—nasty. It was all too absurd! Being peculiarly vain and sensitive, my impulse was to shoot Henry Nelson. But I couldn't believe the charges would be taken seriously.

"Well, there was an investigation. I was court-martialed. I disproved a good deal; I think I'd have exonerated myself on every count only for the woman—that one I spoke about. She turned the trick. I was found guilty, disgraced, sent back. Even though you are not military men, you can appreciate the extent of my dishonor."

"Well, I'll be damned!" Martin Murphy exclaimed.

"At least Henry played fair in this; he didn't betray your secret," Gage said, coldly.

"Oh, I meant to tell you that he didn't dare betray me, for he, too, came back in disgrace. The pot couldn't very well talk about the kettle."

"What!"

"Henry Nelson!"

"Impossible!"

"I mean exactly what I say. No man of his type could have lasted over there. Then, too, the story of our quarrel leaked out, that old report of mine turned up— Yes, he got the same medicine he gave me. But he had influence in Washington, and he managed to delay final action almost up to the day of the armistice. Even then he succeeded in pretty well covering up the reason for his dismissal."

"Why, even Bell doesn't know that!"

"Henry's been a terrible hero, hereabouts," said Gus Brisbow. After a moment he addressed the other men. "Mr. Gray told me this, an' I wanted him to tell it to you. I dunno what you-all think of his story, but I know him an' I believe every word of it. What's more, I believe this bank is goin' to be run as well as ever it was even if I am president. A man can be president an' stay at home, if he's got folks under him that know more than he does. What d'you say if we start of the bank's directors. Gray tells that meetin' we been talkin' about? I'm willing to see Mr. Gray settin' in yonder at Henry's desk if you are."

"I don't see that it makes much difference whether we're willing or not," Swope confessed. "You have the votes, between you, to do about as you choose."

"Of course we have, but, with Bell an' Henry gone, it seems like some of their neighbors ought to stay an' look out for what potaters they've left in the ground. What d'you say?"

Swope eyed his companions briefly,

"I WAS FOUND GUILTY, DISGRACED."

then he nodded. "We'll stay."

"Then, Mr. Secretray, let her go!"

CHAPTER XXIX
Age Bows to Youth

ONE morning, several days after the annual meeting, Gus Brisbow opened the door between his and Gray's office and inquired, "Busy?"

The new vice president of the Security National raised a preoccupied face to the new president and said: "I'm never too busy to talk to you. What is it?"

"No chance of Bell Nelson throwin' us out, is there? He's in Dallas tryin' to stir up money—"

"Not a chance, unless you want him to do so; unless you're afraid we'll make a failure of the business."

"We!" Gus smiled quizzically. "You won't fail. Folks around town are talkin' about how quick you're takin' hold, an' they're beginning to think you'll make a better banker than the Nelsons. Looks like Bell an' Henry are about the only ones that take it hard."

"The funny thing is"—Gray frowned, perplexedly—"they don't take it hard. At least, Henry doesn't appear to do so. That's what puzzles me. No move of any sort— That's not like him."

Gus agreed to this. "I been expectin' him to cut some capers. That's why I been hangin' around so steady."

The younger man rose and nervously paced the floor.

"I'd go back and start all over again if I could clean up that—that army record. It's a pretty fine triumph."

"Triumph! Most triumphs is. Here I am, president of a whole bank, but Ma's sick. Allie's miserable, an' I can't sleep nights for fear I'll lose what I got!"

Gray smiled affectionately at the speaker. "At least Buddy is happy. He's reaping his dividends, if I'm any judge."

"I figger he's in love again."

"Good heavens!" Gray paused in his restless pacing and turned an expression of almost comic dread upon the father. "With that woman, eh? Well, I refuse to interfere again. I haven't fully recovered from his first infatuation for her."

"I can tell the boy's symptoms. I felt the same way when I was courtin' Ma. I acted just like him."

"He has been trying to tell me something for a week, but I've been too busy and too worried to listen."

There came a rap at the door, and the accountant whom Gray had put to work upon the bank's books entered. "I'd like to talk to you about this report," the man began.

"Don't go," Gray said, as Brisbow unfolded his legs and rose.

But the president of the Security National shook his head, saying: "Bookkeepin' is all Choctaw to me. I saw one statement an' I thought 'liquid assets' meant that bottle of whisky Bell left in his desk."

"Mr. Gray," the auditor announced, when they were alone, "I wish you'd ask somebody else to take this job off my hands."

"Why?"

"Well, somebody else could probably do it better." There was a pause. "I've known Bell Nelson all my life—"

"That is why I engaged you. You've been over these books before." Again there was an instant of silence, then into Gray's face there flashed a curious alertness. "Come!" he cried, sharply. "What is it?"

"I'm sorry to be the one to—" The auditor shrugged. "If you insist on an explanation, I suppose I shall have to tell you. Perhaps it's just as well, anyhow. They say figures don't lie, but you and I know better. I only wish they didn't."

"Have you caught them lying, here?"

"I have. And—it has made me rather ill. You'd better prepare yourself for a shock."

It was nearly an hour later that Gray telephoned to Senator Lowe, the bank's attorney, and to Bennett Swope, the latter being the only member of the board available at short notice. This done, he wrote a note to Henry Nelson. In spite of his effort to control his hand, it shook when he signed his name, and on second thought he destroyed the missive. There is something ominous about the written word. If Nelson grew suspicious, he'd never come.

Gray stepped into Gus Brisbow's office and asked him to call the former vice president, first, however, explaining exactly what he wished Gus to say. The ruse succeeded; then Gray returned to his own office. He drew a deep breath. Within him he felt a ferocious eagerness take fire, for it seemed to him that the day of reckoning had come. Henry's behavior was now easily understandable; the fellow was cringing, covering in anticipation of a second blow. Well, the whip was in Gray's hands, and he proposed to use it ruthlessly—to slash the lash, to cut to the bone, to leave scars such as Henry had left upon him.

Gray, too, kept a revolver in his desk. He removed it and placed it in his pocket.

Buddy Brisbow chose this, of all moments, to thrust his grinning visage into the door and to inquire, "Got time for me now, Mr. Gray?"

"Not now, Buddy."

"When?"

"Why—almost any other time."

"I wouldn't bother you, but it's important and I—I promised a certain party—" The youth's face reddened, his smile widened vacuously.

"Later, if you don't mind."

It was plain that Buddy did mind; nevertheless, he withdrew.

When Swope and Lowe arrived, Gray could with difficulty restrain himself from blurting out the reason for his urgent summons, but he contented himself by asking them to wait in the president's office.

COALING UP THE POLICE STATION

Supply for the Winter Coming Into Bunkers the Council Had Refused to Fill.

Neither the summer solstice, the neglect of the Council nor their own reputedly precarious financial position is preventing the Police Commission from putting in their usual supply of coal.

Whe nthe Council was buying coal for the city hall they deliberately ignored the police station because of the strained relations over the police department's estimates and the Council's claim to partial control of them. Apparently the Commission's credit is still good, and evidently the Commissioners feel certain of the outcome of the dispute that is gradually approaching a climax.

At the special meeting of the Council a relayed peace suggestion was assaulted before it was expressed in the form of a motion. It was proposed from an official source that the Council send a deputation to the new Attorney-General for an opinion on the contentious amendment, but members of the Council declared that they had made all the overtures and enquiries they considered necessary.

MANY STORES HAVE DISPLAYS OF BAIT

"How to Catch the Big Ones" is Tip Often Asked For.

Artificial bait sellers in the city are doing a rushing business this season, more fishermen than ever before investing in artificial fish attractors. There are a great many converts to the sport this year, and the bait sellers are often called upon to advise as to the "best kind of bait for catching the big ones."

Among experienced fishermen, the dealers say the artificial minnow and the three spoon buffalo baits are about equally popular.

A run on silver Deven bait, very successful in attracting pickerel, cleared out at least one store. "The dying minnow" also proved popular, its eccentric movements, first on its side, then dashing ahead for a space only to fall over again, bringing many a fine fish to grace a camp breakfast table.

A great many stores have specialized in fishing bait this season, giving up entire windows to attractive displays, indicating the popularity of the sport. These displays undoubtedly catch many fishermen, who in turn, embark on a campaign to catch the fish.

LOW FIRE RECORD PETERBORO COUNTY

Only Eight Counties Had Lower Loss—Causes and Properties Tabulated.

Peterborough's first store was a little log building on Charlotte street, where the Customs House now stands. It was conducted by Mr. Stewart, who started business in 1825.

This pioneer storekeeper had not the modern idea of credit which is practiced by to-day's stores. Many of his customers were unknown to him by name, and instead of making enquiry as prudence would have prompted, he trusted to fortune to bring the information. His day book contained such information as "a bar of soap to the woman in the red cloak."

Mr. Stewart did not remain long in business, selling his stock to George Grey Bethune of Cobourg, who merged it in his own comparatively large business.

ELECTRIC-DRIVEN POSTAGE METER

Machine Will Seal and Stamp an Envelope in One Operation.

MONTREAL, July 19.—(Canadian Press).—An electrically driven postage meter that will seal and stamp an envelope, marking the requisite postage all in one operation has been approved by the Postmaster General in Ottawa and there are indications that the time is not for distant when this revice will entirely do away with stamps.

Several of the new meters are already in operation in Ottawa and Toronto and these are said to be assisting in the depatch of mail.

With their general use it is expected that a saving of many thousands of dollars will be effected in the Post Office Department in the manufacture and despatching of post age stamps. Each machine is furnished with a permit number and is under direct control of the department.

LIGHTNING RODS PREVENT FIRES.

Experts Urge Property Owners to Equip Their Buildings With Them.

NEW YORK, July 19.—(Associated Press)—Property owners throughout the country are urged to equip their buildings with lightning rods by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, which to-day declared that 99 per cent. of the fires caused by lightning could thus be prevented. The losses by fire caused by lightning total $30,000,000 annually.

A widespread indifference to this form of protection exists, however, due to the swindling methods employed by lightning rod dealers in the past, and the fact that it is highly difficult to obtain an expert who can determine whether or not installation has been correctly done.

Careful research by electrical authorities, including Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, of the General Electric Company, and Thomas A. Edison have proven conclusively the efficiency of the lightning rod as a safety device, the underwriters declare.

To guarantee property owners that their lightning rods have been properly installed and are a protection instead of a menace, the Board of Fire Underwriters has adopted a plan whereby a representative of their organization inspects all installations in his district, and affixes a "master label" to the work if it proves worthy.

"Insurance companies will grant a reduction of insurance for lightning rods, in states where reductions are allowed, only on those buildings where the master label is attached along with the identification tag of the company which made the installation," the statement declares.

Laboratory service will be provided by the Fire Underwriters, where materials submitted by lightning rod companies will be tested for certification. The master label will be attached to the work of only those companies which maintain an inspection service along with their installation service, the underwriters have ruled. No lightning rod company is barred from this laboratory service.

The adoption of the "master label" system will mark an era in preventing loss of property and life through lightning, the Fire Underwriters state, and for the first time standardize lightning rod installation. The system will cover the entire United States and Canada.

Situation in St. Maurice District, Quebec, Worse Than Ever.

QUEBEC, July 19. — (Canadian Press).—Fires in the St. Maurice district are getting worse than ever, and seeveral of them have taken a great spread and are out of control. The section most affected lies at a few miles from Manuan River. The number of men employed in fighting the fires in that section has now reached a record number of 2,500, and expectations are that within a few days still more men will be despatched unless conditions improve immediately.

Rain is wanted badly, and if it does not come to the rescue losses may be incalculable.

WILL PAVE BLOCK ON HUNTER STREET

Residents Objected to Blank Block After Waiting Three Years.

As a result of objections of Hunter Street residents between Rogers Street and Armour Road in Ashburnham, who met together in common and spontaneous indignation over the Council's proposal to omit paving that block, the work was actually started this morning by the contractor, Mr. John Carroll.

Representations were made to Mayor Taylor and members of the Council, and also to City Engineer Parsons, and it was finally agreed to let the original contract be proceeded with. Citizens along that section of the street were among those who had worked and waited for three years to get a pavement, and they were determined last night that they were not going to be deprived of the improvement when the contract was actually under way.

Attorney-General, of counsel for defence, obtained permission to introduce evidence of two witnesses who declared they saw Raoul in dance hall in outskirts of citiy on supposed ight of murder ad that shortly after he left place revolver shot was heard.

MORE CHANGES BRITISH REPLY TO GERMANY

Press Says France Will Be Ashed to Return to So-called "Invisible Occupation."

NOTE READY TONIGHT

LONDON, July 20.— (Canadian Press.)—Additional alterations were made to-day in the text of the draft reply to Germany's reparation memorandum by the British Cabinet, which met in the Premier's room in the House of Commons this morning. Unless it should seem expedient to make some eleventh hour changes, the document probably will be despatched to the Allied and United States Governments to-night.

Forceful Document.

It is understood that the suggested reply contains about 1,400 words and is up to usual standard of cogency and forcefulness usually characterizing documents prepared by Lord Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs. However, it is marked throughout by a most moderate and amicable tone. There is still some doubt as to whether the much-discussed supplementary memorandum of an explanatory nature will be sent with the draft. The second document may be confined merely to the form of a covering letter, this point to be settled by the Cabinet later in the day.

Contending Factions.

Two London newspapers to-day make the assertion that they are able "to state definitely" what the British reparations note will contain, despite the fact that the British Cabinet was not to meet until ten o'clock to decide upon its contents with two factions reliably reported to be contending for opposite proposals.

One of these, the Daily Sketch, tells its readers that among other points of the note there will be three of which it knows. The first is submission of the question of Germany's capacity to pay to International Commission. The second is a request to France to reduce the scope of its occupation of the Ruhr to its January dimensions—the so-called "invisible occupation"— in return for which Germany "will be expectd" to abandon her passive resistance; the third is an offer by Great Britain to cancel French, Italian and Belgian war debts due her.

Other "definite" information is supplied by the Daily Herald, the Labor mouthpiece, which partly agrees with that which the Daily Sketch publishes.

The Daily Herald says that Great Britain will "demand" that Germany cease passive resistance and will suggest that France in return resume "invisible occupation" and agree to the creation of an International Commission to consider Germany's reparations.

THE GRAND LODGE CONCLUDED WORK

All the Principal Officers Were Re-elected at Closing Meeting.

WINNIPEG, July 20.—(Canadian Press).—Finishing its business in record time and with unanimity never equalled in the annals of the Order, the Grand Orange Lodge of British American concluded its sessions last night by re-electing all of the principal officers of the institution by acclamation, and selecting Sault Ste Marie, Ont., as the place of meeting of the ninety-fourth convention of the Grand Lodge. Ontario city representatives were the only ones to extend an invitation to the convention, though both Vancouver and Halifax were expected to put in bids for the gathering in 1924. As a result of the speed with which the Grand Lodge concluded its deliberations, the 18th triennial convention of the Imperial Grand Orange Council of the World will open its sessions to-day, when Rev. David Ness, of Glasgow, Scotland, will deliver his presidential address. The first session of the Council was scheduled to open this afternoon and continue through until Tuesday morning, but it is now thought probable that the sessions of the Order will be completed with the morning session on Saturday.

Living Too Costly; Strikes Widespread

WARSAW, July 20— (Canadian Press).—A riot, in which one person was killed and twenty six were wounded followed yesterday's widespread strikes called on account of increasing cost of living. Quiet as restored to-day (Thursday) but there is strong probability of a country-wide general strike, which communist leaders have been urging.

The trouble was most serious at Lodz, where seventy thousand employees in textile mills quit work. Communists organized a mass eeting which the police ordered to disperese because of its alleged anti-governmental character. Armed workmen, according to authorities, attacked the police. wounding seventeen policemen and the assistant chief The polic, returned fire, killing one of the demonstrators and wounding three.

WILL DEVELOP TWO COUNTIES

To This End the Associated Boards of Trade Victoria and Haliburton Formed.

A very successful and well attended meeting was held in the Town Hall, Kinmount, on Monday last by representatives of the various districts of North Victoria and Haliburton to confer with their member, Mr. J. R. Mark, M.P.P., on matters pertaining to the general development of the riding.

Members of the Boards of Trade from Fenelon Falls, Coboconk, Kinmount and Haliburton, and the High land Board of Trade, comprising the Gooderham. Tory Hill, Wilberforce and Highland Grove Districts were present, together with prominent business men from Bobcaygeon, Burnt River and Miners Bay. Mr. T. H. Stinson, K. C. and Mr. Wm. Flavelle of Lindsay were also present.

By a unanimous vote, Mr. T. H. Stinson was elected chairman and F. G. Agnew, Secretary of the High land Board of Trade, took the minutes of the meeting.

After some preliminary discussion an Association was formed to be known as The Associated Board of Trade of Victoria and Haliburton Counties. This Board to comprise a President, Vice-President, Secretary-Treasurer and a Council of the Presidents of the local Boards of Trade and a representative from each municipal council.

W. R. Curry of Haliburton, was elected President, S. W. Reynolds of Wilberforce Vice-President, and J. A. Lucas of Haliburton secretary Treasurer.

General Development

The object of the Associated Boards will be the general development of Victoria and Haliburton Counties along the lines of highways. railway service, fisheries, reforestration, game preservation, telephone systems, fire ranging, a general scheme of advertising the country as a tourist resort and other matters of interest to the community in general.

Considerable interest was aroused when the matter of Roads was under discussion. C. J. Peters, Tory Hill, supported by S. W. Reynolds, Wilberforce ,made a strong plea for a provincial road from Kinmount to Bancroft. This would open up a big area of first class tourist country which is at present practically inaccessible. W. R. Curry, Haliburton, took the same view, stating that the roads in Glamorgan. Monmouth and Cardiff were a disgrace to Haliburton County.

G. H. Potts, Bobcaygeon, speaking in support of the same road, suggested that Bobcaygeon should first be linked with Kinmount by a good road. A. Morrison, Kinmount, agreed with G. H. Potts.

E. A. Rogers, Minden, spoke for the road from Coboconk to Minden, and H. S. Tracy, Miners Bay, supported his contention.

Survey Roads

At the suggestion of the Chairman's motion was put to the effect that Mr. Mark obtain the services of an engineer from the department to survey the roads of North Victoria and Haliburton during the present season. Engineer's report to be used when the case for improved roads is presented.

It was also moved that the Department be requested to apply at least $5000,00 of the money now being spent on the Dorset road to the road in the vicinity of Miner's Bay.

Mr. Wm. Flavelle, speaking on train service, stated that representations were made by the Lindsay Board of Trade to Sir Henry Thornton at a recent meeting in Lindsay which had already resulted in a mark ed improvement in the accommodation from Lindsay, and if the matter was presented in the proper way, there should be very little difficulty in obtaining daily service on the I. B. & O.

Mr. Mark stated that he was heartily in sypathy with any movement that would help to develop the resources of Victoria and Haliburton Counties and would do his utmost to merit the confidence reposed in him by the electors of the riding.

The meeting closed with a short address by the chairman who congratulated the members on their initial success but urged cooperation to the fullest extent, with every member accepting his full share of responsibility.

GERMANY NOW FLOODED WITH FRENCH SPIES

Not a Day Passes Without the Arrest of Some Spy or German Traitor.

WOMEN PLAY PART

BERLIN, July 20. — (Special) —Through these last days of waiting for the Allied decision on Germany's fate this country has been literally pjlastered with French spies and political agents. France does not desire to await diplomatic measures for knowledge of German affairs, she wishes every decision known in Paris the moment it is made here.

Na doy passes without the arrest of at least one French spy or a German agent in French pay. These spys, men and women, are active throughout the entire Reich, reaching even into the innermost seats of the Government Bureau

Women Active.

Women play an active part. They range from disguised Society ladies to chorus girls, bar maids, servant girls and char women, however, are not as clever spies as they are supposed to be, according to an agent of the German Secret Police, who discussed their activities The truly dangerous spy is the polished man of the world who poses as a wealthy traveller. He is far more insidious and more difficult to trap than the female agent.

"There is hardly a Government Institution in Germany in which the French have not a person in their confidence," the agent declared. "This applies even to ministers. The regretable treason of Germans has been forced upon them by the economic situation. Hungry men yield to the temptation of French Gold.

"The secretary of the French section of European Central "E" pays well for its information, and the French agent understands how to win some girl in the Government employ.

"He flirts, takes her to dinners and dances and then finally drags forth her Government secrets through bribery or because the girl is too naive to see his snare.

"So general has this sort of treason become that a movement is under way in the press to make the offense liable to capital punishment."

The spys seek political secrets, trade secrets, new inventions, and sources of hidden arms. It is claimed they are also used as agents' provocators to stir up trouble among working men.

Guar dthe Tongue.

All trains carry a sign "Guard the Tongue," as a warning that the ears of spies are always open.

The French work systematically. There is a special office in Ax La Chapelle, wherein "doors on rooms, the sign "centre Des Liaisons Francaise" (Centre of French connections). where all German information is centred and controlled. In the occupied zone side by side with the political esponage is the "surete Militaire," the military police.

In the remainder of Germany there are thirteen districts with esponage head-quarters and a complete spy organization.

Urges Recall of Envoy to Vatican

WINNIPEG, July 20—(Canadian Press).—The passage of a resolution by Imperial Grand Orange Lodge of the World, appealing to the British Government to immediately withdraw British envoy to Vatican, was appealed for by Rev. David Ness, M.A., of White Inch, Glasgow, Scotland, in his address as Imperial Grand President of the opening session of Eighteenth Triennial Convention of the Imperial Orange Council this morning.

Mr. Ness said: "We demand the recall of the British envoy to the Vatican." He discussed at considerable length the visit of King George to the Pope, and of it having attracted widespread attention all over the English-speaking world, calling forth protests from many widely separated countries which, he said, "was offensive to millions of His Majesty most loyal subjects."

BATHING BEACH BOON NOWADAYS

Hundreds of Citizens Take Advantage of Bathing Facilities at Inverlea Park.

Inverlea Park bathing beach was a boon to Peterborough. yesterday, when 136 persons were counted in the water at one time.

Aobut 300 more sat on the bank watching the swimmers and enjoying the vagrant breeze in the shade of the trees.

James Gates is the boss of the beach, and little escapes his vigilant eye. He is not only a guardian of the childrens lives, but also endeavours to improve their manners. A little girl demanded of him "What time is it?" and Mr. Gates explained to her that when he was young he was taught to say "Please' and "Thank you." The little girl said "thank you" before turning away.

About twenty little tots of all ages up to ten were splashing happily near the shore, where they had stirred up enough stand to keep the afloat. One boy had a sail boat which he pulled happily through the water, careless whether it floated mast or keel uppermost.

Mr. Gates is proud of the fact that about thirty little tots have learned to swim last year and this, those who took their first swimming lesson last season having graduated to the spring board.

Old habits die hard, as was evidenced when James, erstwhile official dog catcher of the city. chased a little black wanderer along the beach and faded out of the picture in the direction of the dressing rooms.

PETERBOROUGH PRESENTING A PRETTY SCENE

Both Parks and Laws Offer Delightful Pictures of Nature's Own Coloring.

BEAUTY SPOTS

Peterborough's parks and lawns never looked prettier than just now Victoria Park, with its flower beds and vari-tinted grass is a picture that is not easily forgotten. Along the main path are long beds of beautiful foliage plants. interspersed with brilliant spots of red, where flowering geraniums enhance the effect of the colorful shrub leaves. The urns. scattered throughout the park, contain many specimens of flowers and leafy plants.

The new drinking fountain in Victoria Park and the old memorial fountain in Central Park are popular'

The water passes through ice, which is put in the base of the drinking places periodically.

Central Park attracts many because of the seats in the shade of the trees. George Street Methodist Church has a pretty flower bed in a beautiful expans, of lawn. St. Peter's Cathedral lawn, always in good condition, seems better than ever this year, and with the fountain playing in the sunlight and the stately church as a background, makes a good appearance.

The lawns on George street north and on Water street are specially good, and in the south and west Aylmer and Charlotte make a good showing. The plot on the Canadian National property, a beauty spot talked of by travellers all along the line, is in good condition, but will not be at its best for a few weeks.

The annual inspection of lawns and gardens conducted by the Horticultural Society in connection with the competitions arranged under its auspices will be held next month. and entries will be called for next week. Present indications point to a difficult task for the judges.

ABOLITION OF SENATE ASKED FOR BY LABOR

Calls it a Hindrance to Development — Toronto Labor Men Had a Meeting.

MINERS' STRIKE

TORONTO, July 20th. Canadian Press. — The abolition of the Senate of Canada on the ground that it is "a hindrance to the development and prosperity of the country, and instance of senility of people," will be urged by the district labor council of Toronto, in a communication which will be sent to President King as a result of the adoption of a report of the legislative committee by the council at its regular meeting at the Labor Temple last evening.

The second clause of the report of this committee dealt extensively with the situation regarding shortage of coal, and a deputation will be sent from the Labor Council to the Mayor and the Board of Control, asking that all precautions be taken to prevent a shortage in Toronto this winter.

It was anticipated that some action would be taken by the council in reference to the miners' strike in Nova Scotia, but apart from slight discussion the only definite motion carried was that of supplying financial aid to the wives and children of the striking miners, be referred to the individual locals. This action arose out of a communication received from the Toronto women's labor league, which deplored the "military suppression of the workers," and pointed out that actual suffering was being experienced by the dependents of the miners.

KIWANIS WILL TAKE PART IN BOWLING MEET

Two Rinks Selected at Today's Luncheon—Addresses by Carl McLean and Harold Perry

A PICNIC COMING

"A man cannot smell the rosebuds after he is dead," was Kiwanian Charlie Cook's pointed contribution to a vote of appreciation that was tendered to Secretary George Henderson at to-day's luncheon of the Peterboro Kiwanis Club. Like all efficient hard working club secretaries, George Henderson is the pole horse of the Kiwanis organization. It is his weekly bulletins that summon the members to the weekly luncheons and keeps them informed of the current activities of the club. The mid-season vote of appreciation was moved by Lloyd Hamilton and seconded by Charlie Cook.

Before the meeting was over Alec Dick succeeded in selecting two Kiwanis rinks which he will enter in the bowling tournament here next week. Joe Wearing announced that plans were under way for a handicap golf match between Motarians and Kiwanians. Details of the Kiwanis picnic to be held in the near future were discussed and a committee headed by Dr. Graham Macdougall will complete the arrangements.

Lloyd Buckburro of Toronto was a guest at to-day's luncheon.

Speakers to-day were Carl McLean, representing the Canadian Packing Co., and Harold Perry of the Colonial Hide Co. In an interesting address on the modern Packing house, Kiwanian McLean said the packing industry was an important industry. The amount of capital invested is high and owing to the large export trade added greatly to the wealth of this country.

Probably no industry has shown such rapid growth in so short a space of time as the packing house business. In the general evolution of the business, concentration of live stock at a few central market points and the erection of plants at these points was one of the main factors of its success. Previous to the inauguration of the modern packing house the method in vogue was either to ship or drive the live stock to the point of consumption, where it was slaughtered and put on the market in a crude and expensive way as compared with the present method.

Mechanical refrigeration makes possible the high keeping qualities of our meats to-day. The removal quickly of the animal heat from the carcass and the general handling and processes keeps the meat from deteriorating, even though subjected to high temperature for a reasonable length of time. Rrefrigeration has made possible the shipment of mild cured chilled and frozen meats from one continent to another and landing the product at its destination in good condition.

The chemist who has contributed much to our present civilization has also directly helped the packing house industry in making saleable our by-products and eliminating waste. No large con ern of this kind is without its chemical laboratory.

Good Plant Here.

You have here in Peterboro, said the speaker, a modern packing house which is a credit to this community and to the company of which it belongs. Besides selling a large portion of our products at home we are also heavy exporters, principally of Wiltshire bacon. The name Wiltshire is given to a singed cured side of a hog minus the head, feet and backbone and a few trimmings. Our only market for this bacon is in England. The Englishman is a particular customer but he is quite willing to pay a good price for a good article. The side of bacon for which he will pay the highest prices is one of mild cure, long lean and evenly fleshed weighing form 55 to 65 lbs. The country which can supply this in large quantities is in an enviable position. Denmark at present enjoys this trade. The bacon requirements of the old country are very heavy and Canada supplies roughly only about eleven per cent. of her requirements, while Denmark which is a small country, not nearly the size of old Ontario, supplies one-third. Denmark takes the cream in this bacon business by producing a hog which when marketer is fit for the best market, while here in Canada, according to statistics for the past six months, from public stockyards only 13.3 per cent. of the hogs marketed are graded as

CHERRY SUPPLY NOW AT HEIGHT

Strawberries have passed on in the slowly moving procession of the season's fruits and vegetables. For three pleasant weeks they were the star attraction on the fruit stands, and their departure was a genuine regret to everyone except those to whom strawberries are a dietary incompatible.

In the meantime a veritable cornucopia of the products of far flung fields and groves is pouring into the stores, and those who prefer the food that is ripened in the sun have a wide choice in their present selections. The gardens of the world are yielding up their finest specimens for the gratification and stimulation of jaded appetites.

Here, for example, are watermelons from Georgia at $1.25 to $1.75 each; salmon flesh cantaloupes from Arizona selling at from 15c to 35c each; yellow harvest apples from Washington at $1 and $1.25 a quart; lemons from Messina, Italy, at 40c and 50c the dozen; new Spanish onions at 15c a pound or two for a quarter; Bartlett pears from California at 50c a dozen; and from the Pacific orchards also luscious plums at from 15c to 40c a dozen, and oranges ranging all the way from 30c to $1 a dozen.

The fruit stands are arrayed with vitamines and calories in the most delectable disguises. Spinach has gone to seed, but other green leafy crops are abundant with lettuce still a favorite. New cabbage, homegrown, are quoted at 15c and 20c each and Grimsby cauliflowers are 25c and 35c each. Locally produced potatoes are reported to be still in the pebble class, and are rather scarce. The price for the potatoes on display is from 75c to 90c a peck.

Raspberries Light.

Red raspberries are a disappointment so far, and the crop is said to be light. Receipts to-morrow are expected to be heavier, and the price was uncertain this afternoon. They are not expected to be under 25c a box, according to several dealers' opinions.

Blueberries are quoted at $3 per 17-pound basket; black currants 25c and 30c a box, red currants 15c or two boxes for a quarter; ditto white currants.

Cherries are now at the apogee of their season. There is considerable competition among the dealers in this line, and prices extend from 85c to $1.35. The Montmorencies, the housewife's preserving favorite, is selling at 85c to $1, and the black cherries at $1.25 to $1.50. The red napoleons are 90c and $1 a basket. This is said to be cherry week, although there will be more shipments in next week.

Common Vegetables.

Garden vegetables are down to the five-cent basis. Carrots, beets, onions, lettuce, radish are all five cents a bunch; string beans 15c a quart, and peas two quarts for 25c; cucumbers are from 5c to 15c, pineapples 35c and grapefruit 10c and 15c each. Field-grown tomatoes from Leamington are heavy demand at 25c and 30c a pound. Gooseberries 20c a quart, and bananas 40c, 50c and 60c a dozen.

Green peppers also from the Leamington district are 5c each, and other odds and ends will also be noticed by the foraging consumers.

HAND SIGNALS FOR MOTORISTS HANDY DEVICE

System Becoming More and More Popular Throu hout the Province of Ontario.

NEW YORK PLAN

Hand signals for motorists are coming more into the thoughts of the Motor Leagues throughout the country with the greatly increased traffic which is clogging the roads this summer. The Ontario Motor League sent out circular letters to all its branches asking for opinions on a system suggested for universal use. This system was adopted from the New York usuage and covers every movement a motorist makes in handling his car. Its scope, simplicity, and its being easily remembered were recommendation which were pointed out by the Motor League Headquarters.

The majority of the replies from the branches. Mr. Leon Fraser informed the Examiner, were favorable to the system, and the Peterborough Branch of the Motor League has endorsed it. It is desired that motorists adopt the system rather as a form of courtesy than as a result of legislation, and it is believed that its adoption would prevent many accidents and promote a better understanding with a consequent lessening of friction between the many thousands who come into daily contact on the highways of the country'

PENN'S INDIANS.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—(United Press.)—In the heart of Philadelphia's business district a small plot of ground given by William Penn to the Delaware Indians has been kept inviolate for more than two centuries.

Onas, as William Penn was known to the Indians, gave the ground to the Delawares of Lenni Lenapes as a common council ground, so they could camp on their own land when coming to meet him in council.

Penn promised the land would always be reserved to their use and his promise has been faithfully kept. The Indians have vanished, but should they ever return again William Penn's council grounds awaits them.

There is no deed for the land so far as known that guarantees the title to the Indians. Yet the place has been kept sacred by the white men. The little spot is in the rear of the Ritz Carlton Hotel, Broad and Walnut streets. Silence broods over the council grounds. It is kept scrupulously clean, no mercantile houses use it for shipping. It is awaiting the return of the redskin.

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday's highest temperature in the shade was 90 degrees. To-day at noon it again stood at 90, with a likelihood of reaching several degrees higher later in the afternoon. To-day is only the fourth really hot day this summer, up to 90 or over. The nights have generally been cool and when this occurs hot days are not so uncomfortable. The night temperatures this summer have varied but little, and are usually from 50 to 55 degrees. Rain is again needed.—W. P.

FILTER TO REDUCE FILM FIRE DANGER

Thin Coating of Gold on Glass Discs Makes Projection Safer.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Removing 90 per cent of the heat from light—a long step toward the scientist's dream of "cold light"—has been achieved by a device recently tested and approved by the Underwriters Laboratories, Inc., here for the Society of Visual Education.

The device is an actinic ray filter for motion picture projectors, and by its use it is possible to stop a highly inflammable film and project "still" pictures without setting fire to the film.

The filter utilizes an old principle that certain materials will break down the heat rays while allowing light rays to pass through. A thin film of gold is the substance used.

The filter consists of two small glass discs, an inch and a half in diameter, coated on one side with a spray of pure gold, and then cemented together, with the coated sides adjoining.

In use, the projector is so arranged that the disc is held above the projection aperture as long as the camera is running and the film moving. Whenever the motor is stopped, or even slows up to a dangerous degree, the disc is automatically released and drops into place between the light and the film. The light shining through the gold has a slight greenish cast, but not enough to interfere with the projection of the still pictures.

At close examination the disc appears to be opaque and looks like a mirror with a gold instead of a silver back. It will reflect objects as readily as an ordinary mirror. When held to the light, however, the thin gold film appears transparent.

Tests at the laboratory of the Underwriters showed the disc was 90 per cent efficient, only one-tenth of the heat applied on one side being recorded on the other, and that a strip of nitrocellulose film could be left motionless in the camera indefinitely without danger of fire so long as the filter was in place. As soon as the filter was raised the film burst into flames in less than one second.

THIS COUNTRY'S NEEDS

What this country needs isn't more liberty, but less people who take liberties with our liberty.

What this country needs is not a job for every man, but a real man for every job.

What this country needs isn't to get more taxes from the people, but for the people to get more from the taxes.

What this country needs is not more miles of territory, but more miles to the gallon.

What this country needs is more tractors and less detractors.

What this country needs isn't more young men making speed, but more young men planting spuds.

What this country needs is more paint on the old place and less paint on the young face.

What this country needs isn't a lower rate of interest on money, but a higher interest in work.

What this country needs is to follow the footsteps of the fathers instead of the footsteps of the dancing master.—Graphica.

CHANGING FASHION FOOLS SOME WOMEN.

Bobbed Hair and Long Skirts Don't Go Together —How to Make Up.

(By HEDDA HOYT)

NEW YORK, N. Y., July 20 (United Press).—Some physicians claim that an ill person sometimes grows a little "worse" just before getting better. It is the same way with fashions.

There is always a turning point, when fashions, changing from one extreme to another, grow decidedly "worse." Some of us are in the "worse" state at present. The change from the long, graceful skirt back to the short skirt has left us in a quandary.

Like Gaul, New York is divided into three parts, as far as dress and styles are concerned. There are the styles of Fifth Avenue, which are worn by the best-dressed women in New York; the loose-flowing gowns and low heeled shoes of the Greenwich Villagers and the odd mixture of these two which are worn by many of the up-towu flappers and the young suburbanites who are still in the "worse" stage, before getting better.

Skirts and Heels

We will pass Fifth Avenue as the women of that street seldom are in a quandry as far as dressing is concerned But one look at Upper Broadway or at certain outlying towns adjacent to New York would drive a fashion critic to a soda. There we see bobbed haired girls with long, trailing dresses that are made with matronly lines, cavorting about in flat shoes, as heel-less as the slippers of a year old babe. Their heads and feet look young, while their dresses are as mature as an old woman's. They are still clinging to the flat heels which they wore a year ago with the knee-length skirts. Long skirts simply demand high heels or heels high enough to give the ankle and instep graceful lines. If one must wear flat heels, one must turn up one's hems

Then, as to the makeup, one sees when one goes off the main highway. Makeup is permissible only if it is pretty and becoming to the wearer. In an outskirt of New York I noticed several school girls with blond hair and childish faces who were made up with yellow ochre powder that would do credit only to a South Sea Island siren. Their lips were painted a brilliant orange, their faces dark ochre with orangish cheeks, while their necks were left white like pale stalks to dark flowers. In their desire to be bewitching the girls have overlooked their necks.

Advice to Blondes

Blondes should keep to the light makeup; light flesh powder, light rose rouge and a lip-stock the color of one's gums.

A brunette with regular features and an olive complexion can sometimes get away with the "sunburn" makeup, but usually she looks neither sunburned, wholesome nor alluring, but merely as though she had been on a long trip over a dusty road. A brunette can stand more makeup than a blonde providing she does not use too bright a rouge and too white a powder. Blended powder or a regular brunette powder, dark rouge and a dark lip-stick deftly applied will be more becoming to her than light colors.

The trouble with makeup is that most of us never know when to say "when." We never know when we have too much.

A LITTLE WHILE

TWO SMALL WARS THREATEN THRONES.

Toll in Money and Men Sapping Strength of Spain and Italy.

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, July 20, Two small wars, which time has made serious, are threatening two more thrones in Europe. As wars go in these times, they're petty affairs. They don't figure much in the news. Yet they're a steady, killing drain upon the resources, the one of Spain, the other of Italy. Neither of these countries can afford it. Each is threatened, at any moment, with serious consequences from the cancer eating at her vitals.

In a way, what is happening over there may be compared to the disintegrating effect of electrolysis—the bugbear of engineers—in its attack on the foundations of seeming invulnerable structures. Little by little the formidable seepage silently attacks, until what took years to build, is toppled over.

Many Lives Lost

Both wars are in North Africa. Both began before the world conflict. Neither seems anywhere near termination.

First and last they've cost a great many Spanish and Italian lives. They take thousands of young Spaniards and Italians away from home every year and send a fair proportion of them back in the form of human wreckage.

They pile up taxes. They're incessant sources of worry to the Madrid and Rome governments.

Spain's war in Morocco first attracted attention with the revolt of the Riff riots in opposition to war in that year. It's been going ever since.

Cables say this inquiry threatens a revolution—possibly King Alfonso's overthrow.

The fact is, there's never been a time since the Barcelona riots and the execution of Ferrer in 1909 when something of the sort hasn't been simmering.. It's bound to boil up and over sooner or later—unless Spain abandons Morocco For that matter, abandonment might simply precipitate trouble, by reminding the people of all they've suffered for nothing.

Italy Whips Turks

Italy's troubles in Tripoli date from 1911, when she wrested the Tripolitan territory from the Turks, at the cost of a war with the latter. She beat the Turks, but then she had to beat the Tripolitans.

This she never thoroughly accomplished. She was just beginning to make some headway when the World War broke out and her attention was distracted to Europe.

The newspapers were too much occupied with more important matters to notice it at the time, but the Tripolitans revolted all over again.

Peace having been restored in Europe, the Italians found they'd got to make a complete new start in Tripoli

The newspapers don't entirely ignore it, but it's a long way off and such fighting doesn't seem important in comparison with what was going on from the autumn of 1914 until the armistice was signed. Every week or so you see an inconspicuously placed paragraph telling of from 200 or 300 up to maybe 1,000 casualties in an encounter between the Italians and the Tripolitans.

Censor Busy

The last such mention was May 8, when it was recorded that 200 rebels had been killed by Italian troops in the Tripolitan desert. It's always that way. So many Tripolitans killed. No reference to Italians. The Italian censor sees to that. But it's safe to assume that the losses aren't invariably on only one side.

A WILLING WORKER

The bargaining for the cow had been going on leisurely for an hour.

Finally the prospective purchaser came flatly to the point.

"How much milk does she give?" he asked.

"I don't rightly know," answered the farmer who owned her, "but she's a darn good-natured critter, and she'll give all she can."

BABSON'S ADVICE

Roger W. Babson advises newspaper advertising in a recent statement on the retail trade. Part of Mr. Babson's report is:

"During the next few months local merchants should advertise. National manufacturers are utilizing the great power of advertising in the distribution of their products.

"The successful department stores are also using large space in the newspapers; but the smaller retailer has yet failed to advertise as he should. Perhaps this is why he is small—one cannot tell. There surely is some reason why the people flock to one merchant and pass by another. Statistics certainly indicate that the reason is closely connected with the advertising.

"Let me also take this occasion to urge retailers to use the newspapers in a dignified way rather than attempting to use bill boards and novelty contrivances.

"During the past two months I have motored considerably throughout different sections of the country.

"At almost every cross road is some sort of a sign, a windmill or something else sold to some bank or merchant who thought he had discovered a cheaper or more effective method of advertising than his newspaper offered. As a matter of fact, he unconsciously disfigures the highways, endangers life and makes enemies instead of friends.

"Merchandising is a profession and should be treated in a dignified way. Moreover, how banks can adopt such cheap appearing methods of publicity is beyond the comprehension of most businessmen. Yet I understand the temptation, having once fallen for outdoor advertising myself much against the advice of the agency which handles our opy"

COUNSEL FOR DEFENCE LAYS HIS CASE BEFORE JURY IN DELORME TRIAL

Lays Stress on the Fact That Rumors and Circumstantial Evidence Played a Big Part in the Case.

MOTIVES QUESTIONED

MONTREAL, July 20—(Canadian Press).—Alleyn Taschereau, K.C., one of the counsel for the defence in the trial of Rev. Father Delorme, charged with the murder of his half-brother, Raoul, opened his address to the jury yesterday afternoon, the Crown having declared its side of the case closed.

Mr. Taschereau, after emphasizing the fact that public rumor, conversations in the streets. halls, and elsewhere, newspaper clamors, etc., been responsible for the instituting of the case, reviewed the case in retail, explaining that where possible he would be as concise as possible in order that the jury should not be kept away from their families for another Sunday.

He pointed out that Mr. Delorme, father of the abbe, died in 1916 and the abbe had administered the estate from 1916 to 1922 and experts had declared that the value of that estate had been raised on that time to $250,000. In those six years Raoul, the victim had never asked the abbe to render to him an account of the estate or anything regarding the estate of his affairs.

Circumstantial Evidence

The Crown, said Mr. Taschereau. for its proof leaned upon circumstantial evidence, and when an officer of the law whose duty it was to seek for the murderer, made statements such as "should I see the murderer of Raoul Delorme rise up before me and say: 'It is I who killed him,' I would still continue to accuse the abbe," then the jury was not obliged to believe his affirmations. He said such declarations had been made before the jury in the first days of the trial and he asked them if they were ready to accept proof from a man like that. The police had said there could only be three motives—vengeance, hatred or interest. Neither of the first two reasons could have existed. The question of interest remained. They point to a will, an insurance policy and a deficit, and immediately it is the Abbe Delorme.

But said Mr, Taschereau they overlooked another motive, that of theft. This aspect of the murder was he said, not investigated. He suggested that Raoul Delorme, led away by his friends. might have gone to some place of none too good reputation. There the murder might have been committed for some hundreds of dollars, for a gold watch or for a ring.

As to the deficit, he said that the abbe had spent about $9,000 in five or six years on automobiles, expensive repairs and trips. He had taken Raoul with him on these trips, but all the figures of the expenses had been debitted to the abbe's. Again, a promisory note payable for $4,100, for taxes was referred to. Raoul had the greater share of the property as between the two brotners, yet the abbe had been debitted with the whole amount. Further Raoul's expenses were put at an average of $1,055 a year since his father's death. But who could say that he did not spend more than that.

The abbe had also administered his sisters' estate. If all the expenses incumbent on his administration were charged against him, he would necessarily face a deficit.

Affection Between Brothers

Had Father Delorme any need of this motive. he asked. He denied it, speaking of the affection that existed between the two brohers. Had the abbe any reason to rob his brother Against this, he quoted a remark of Raoul's to the effect that he "was quite happy that my brother did the work." As to the $25,000 insurance policy, he pointed to an answer in evidence of the official of the campany in which the insurance was taken out that "he (the abbe) did not seem very anxious about a policy, it was rather a request for information.' Further the abbe would not have inherited all the $25,000 insurance policy. It would have been divided among the brother and the sisters. As to the will by which Raoul left his share of the estate in large part to the abbe, Mr. Taschereau pointed out that this was made at the time of the operation on Raoul at Ottawa and was the custom of the college he was attending.

When he had spoken to the abbe about it, the latter had said: "Give according to your heart." Nor was the abbe present when the will was made.

Mr. Taschereau then went into the investigations by the police and made special reference to the feathers arnd the pieces of string brought up in evidence. He suggested that the pieces of string had been put where the y were found by Detective Lajoie in order to provide indirect and circumstantial proof against the abbe.

History of the Crime

He then went into the history of crime. He declared that witnesses put in by the crown (the Delorme sisters) had stated that Raoul went out on the afernoon of the crime. But against that evidence the jury was being asked to believe that Raoul did not go out, and that he was killed in the house. Mr. Taschereau described that as a physical impossibility. He then went over the evidence of the Delorme sisters. Taking evidence of the crown he said it was as clear as daylight that there was no proof that Father Delorme had committed the crime.

In regard to the defence he said the evidence brought in this morning proved beyond all doubt that Raoul Delorme could not have been killed at home.

He passed from this to the evidence as to bullets and handwriting. As to the latter he said it could not be known definitely who had addressed the package containing the watch to Detective Chief Lorrain. As to the bullets, he stood upon the testimony of W . A. Jones, he expert, who delared that the scratches on the bullets were common to all bullets. and who stated that the bullets found in the victim were fired from two pistols.

Spirit of Raoul

He concluded with a passionate appeal to the jury. "Did you notice," he said, "when the young (Delorme) girls entered the witness box before you, at the side of them stood the dummy representative of their brother Raoul, with bloody cap, shirt torn, cravat twisted, clothes stiff blood, and it stayed there as their brother Raoul. It seemed to me at that moment as though the shade of Raoul Delorme passed through the voice of his little sisters said to you: 'No. No. No. It is not him. I am here to pronounce his innocence and not to seek for vengeance.' "

Abbe Delorme left the dock wiping his eyes.

BRITISH INDIGNANT OVER GRAND TRUNK

Financial Papers Say the Shareholders Asked For Bread But Were Given a Stone.

LONDON, July 20.—(Canadian Press)—Grand Trunk Pacific four per cent debentures fell to 30 here following the publication of the official statement of the Canadian government on the G.T.P. bondholders' claims. The financial papers especially make it the occasion for another outburst of indignation.

The Financier says Rear Admiral Francis Smith and G. F. Forsdicke who went to Ottawa to present the claims of the bondholders for financial consideration, made the journey in vain. They asked for bread and have been given stone, according to this paper.

The Financial News asks if the Grand Trunk property is such a white elephant as the government's reply makes out, whether the Canadian government is prepared to hand the road back again. Then it goes on to compare the action of the dominion with a third-rate Central American republic.

The Morning Post says the argument that the government is paying interest upon junior stock to the Grand Trunk four per cents is admittedly a matter of expediency determined upon by the Grand Trunk board to secure ratification of the agreement. "In other words the guaranteed stockholders had votes. Therefore in this case a vote seems to have been of more value than the debenture charge."

OBSERVERS SAY END OF STRIKE IS APPROACHING

Miners and Steel Workers Cannot Maintain Union Against the Orders of President Lewis.

LOYAL TO COUNTRY.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 20.— (Canadian Press.)—"There is no man more loyal to the institutions of this country than I am, but I intend to do all in my power to overthrow the present system of Government."

This declaration was made by deposed President Daniel Livingstone of District No. 26, United Mine Workers of America, at a mass meeting of some three thousand striking miners at Glace Bay.

Livingstone went on to say that the miners had the power in their hands and when they understood more fully the use of the franchise they would bring it about.

The meeting passed a resolution pledging those present to remain on strike as a protest against the presence of troops in Cape Breton in connection with the strike of steel workers at the British Empire Steel Corporation plant. Speakers were members of the deposed executive of the district; Secretary J. B. McLachlan, Vice-President A. S. McIntyre; Provincial Board Member A. Stewart and other officials.

Union Jacks were flying as the miners paraded before the meeting, which was orderly and enthusiastic throughout.

According to neutral observers the steel-coal strike is in process of disintegration. It would occasion no surprise, it is said, should the men be ordered back to work on the ground that the "teachings" of International President who deposed the Executive, had made this action necessary in order to preserve the union. The counsel given by the deposed officers to the rank and file of the miners is "remain united whether you continue the strike or go back to work."

At a meeting this morning these officers will formulate a reply to President Lewis' deposition action which will, says Mr. McLachlan, not be complimentary.

CURZON FINDS TROUBLE IN DRAFTING HIS REPLY

Text of Note to Germany May Not Be Despatched to the Allies Before Next Week—Seeking a Compromise

LONDON, July 20. —(Canadian Press.)—Lord Curzon is experiencing more difficulty in the preparation of his note to Germany than had been expected. It is now reported that the note and the covering letter may not be despatched to the Allies until next week, but whether the trouble has arisen from political friction within the Cabinet, as reported in some qaurters ,or from the inherent difficulty of framing a reply to Germany that would not offend France, is not evident.

After yesterday's long Cabinet Council, the Foreign Secretary had a separate conference with Premier Baldwin. This conference, which was at Downing Street, prevented Lord Curzon from seeing Count De Sainte Aulaire, the French Ambassador, who called at the Foreign Office while the conversation was proceeding.

It is believed, although nothing is known officially, that Curzon is making the greatest efforts to find a way of compromise on the question of passive resistance in the Ruhr. He has had conversations with the German Ambassador, the latest of which was yesterday, probably with the idea of finding how far the German Government might be willing to recede from its support of the passive resistance movement, provided France could be induced to revert to merely civil occupation of the Ruhr. This question is considered to present far greater difficulties than the question of assessing Germany's capacity to pay, as it is a point on which neither France nor the German Government is disposed to yield and if some method could be discovered to save the faces of the two governments, it is believed the financial points could be cleared up with less difficulty.

Lady Astor's Bill Unanimously Passed.

LONDON, July 20. — (Canadian Press.)—The House of Lords, after brief debate yesterday, unanimously passed the second reading of Lady Astro's liquor bill, which has already passed the Commons. Viscount Astor, who moved the second reading, said the bill had been piloted through the House of Commons by a relative of his by marriage, but it was not on that account that he invited the members of the Lords to support it, but because they owed a special duty to adolescence.

The measure in question prohibits the selling of liquor to any person under eighteen years of age.

BRITISH TO CONTINUE WORK ON NAVAL BASE AT FAR EASTERN PORT

Fortifications at Singapore Were Not Barred By the Washington Conference.

FOR POLICE DUTY.

LONDON, July 20. — (Canadian Press).—After a spirited debate in the House of Commons last night, on the merits and demerits of the Singapore naval base, the Government obtained a victorious vote, carrying the naval estimates under closure by 217 to 130. The opponents of the Singapore project bitterly compjlained that it was against the spirit of the Washington agreement and would lead to competition in armaments and to future wars.

The First Lord of the Admiralty, Lieutenant- Colonel L. S. Amery, in behalf of the Government, strongly repudiated these suggestions and reiterated a statement made previously by him in the House that all the delegates at Washington clearly understood that Great Britain was retaining full freedom of action regarding Singapore, which had always been a naval and military station.

During the debate, George Lambert, Liberal for Devonshire, complained that not a word in regard to the proposed strengthening of the base had been mentioned at the Washington Armament Conference The very basis of such a treaty as was negotiated at Washington, he said, must be confidence, trust and good will. and concealment was inconsistent with the best traditions of British statemenship.

It was true there was no obligation to communicate the plan, he went on, but "when you are dealing with friends it is well to treat them openly and put all the cars on the table, not keep the ace of Singapore up your sleeve."

If construction of the base was continued, he thought, Great Britain would be leading in a new race for armaments. The base was only neces sary in contemplation of a war with Japan, and he asked, if such a war were comtemplated why did the British sign the Washington? It was inconceivable that the British Grand Fleet could be sent 10,000 miles to Singapore to destroy the Japanese Fleet.

"The whole thing," he added, "is a piece of woolly thinking."

Other members contended that Singapore was unhealthy, could be invested by land and sea and could not be defended from the land side. Much play also was made of the CUTTING OUT NON-ESSENTIALS.

The announcement by Hon. Geo. S. Henry, new Minister of Public Works and Highways, that the suspension of all widening of the Provincial highways has been ordered is significant.

It has been claimed that the extra wide roads inaugurated under the Biggs regime, which involved the moving back of fences, and in some cases of buildings and an immense amount of work on each side of the road bed proper have been needlessly expensive.

There is no questioning the fact that the beauty of the highways and the general attractiveness of the provincial system have been added to by the Biggs' system.

But it has cost money, lots of money, perhaps too much money and theer has been a steadily increasing protest as it began to sink in upon the people just how much these fine driveways were going to cost.

Apparently Mr. Henry believes that so long as the roads are wide enough for safety and are smooth and level the trimmings along the sides do not matter so much and he sees in the abandonment of this feature of his predecessor's methods a chance to make a substantial saving for the benefit of the province.

In other words, the main purpose of a road is to be driven over and there is no necessity of a right-of-way nearly one hundred feet wide.

CANADA'S FUTURE.

The Montreal Star's fears for Canada's future as voiced in a front page editorial the other day, hinting at disaster, disruption and financial collapse has resulted in the discovery that the Star is the only paper in the Dominion that has any doubt of the ultimate prosperity, growth and development of this country.

Newspapermen everywhere and of all degrees of political opinion have hastened to affirm their faith in Canada and their belief that the Star is either afflicted with mid-summer madness caused by the heat or has been inspired by interests seeking the destruction of Canada's National railways, to publish the gloomy piece of propaganda.

The Montreal organ has been steadily, obstinately, persistently and pig-headedly opposed to any form of public ownership—it has never failed to attempt to tear down and destroy the confidence of the Canadian people in the Government ownership of railways.

Instead of accepting the railway problem as one which must be solved in the best interest of the people and in endeavouring to do its share in promoting the success of Canada's National railway, the Star has always attacked the people's own line and has ever lined up with the big interests to whom government ownership is something to be fought and killed.

No wonder Canadians refuse now to accept its survey of the future as either accurate or honest.

NO CONTESTS NECESSARY.

The Provincial Government has set Monday, August 27th, as the date of the by-election for the Ferguson Ministry with Thursday, August 16th, as nomination day.

While the people of Peterborough are not affected and there are to be no by-elections in this district the consensus of opinion here and doubtless generally throughout the province is that the return of the various ministers unopposed would be to the best interests of Ontario.

Not only would the expense of the elections be saved, and that is not a trifling saving, but the annoyance of a hot weather campaign at a time when the farmers are busy, would be avoided.

In addition there is a general feeling that to force the ministers to fight a contest would be a useless and profitless action.

It is not likely that any of them could be defeated, coming back to their constituents as they do with the prestige of Cabinet rank and the support of the Government with a large majority in the House, and again, the defeat of a minister would only result in another seat being opened and make necessary another by-election.

Nomination Day should find the Ferguson Cabinet endorsed by the electorate to such an extent that in none of the nine ridings in which by-elections are in order will there be a campaign.

There are many problems for the new Ministry—let the members get down to business as soon as possible seems to be the attitude of the province.

COMMERCIALIZED BOXING.

An observer of the show on Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, says that "the crowd was the thing after all," says the New York Times. About 100,000 people had paid more than $700,000 to see a stranger from the Argentine pummel an elderly dirt framer from Kansas. What they did see was not a scientific exhibition of "the manly art of self-defense," but a sluggish contest between a strong man who had no skill in boxing and a giant whose strength had been sapped. As a spectacle it did not stir the blood. Veterans of the ringside compared it ironically with the Homeric combats of only twenty years ago, when boxers contended for glory as much as for money and took a pride in their profession. There were first-class fighting men in those days, champions who evaded no opponent, challengers who did not bargain for a fortune before they made a match.

A champion is now a business man and "talks money" in large figures. He has become a capitalist, and in a year may earn as much as a successful lawyer or physician acquires in a life of devotion to his profession. A boxer, morever, need not be distinguished in his occupation to win a fortune for a brief exhibition of such skill as he can show—he may even be a "back number." In the affair at Boyle's Thirty Acres Willard was long past the age at which boxers are supposed to be at their best, and it was known that he had never been clever with the gloves. But he was accepted by the crowd and they flocked to see him beaten down by a novice, who could not have kept his feet for more than a round or two with American champions of a few years ago. The spectators certainly did not get their money's worth.

Although it was a sorry exhibition, the stage is already being set for a match between the strong man from Argentina and the reigning champion, who is a fine athlete and a boxer of approved skill. If the patrons of the sport have learned anything from what took place at Boyle's Thirty Acres, they should make known their desire for a match between the champion and a challenger who has the cleverness as well as the stamina and endurance to test his powers to the utmost. Commercialism will kill boxing if it is not held in check by public opinion.

SPEEDING TOURISTS.

The traffic officers encharged with the enforcement of the regulations in regard to speeding on Ontario's highways should have no trouble these days securing convictions, if they are attending to their duties.

The worst offenders it must be admitted, at the risk of offending some of our visitors, are tourists from the United States.

The Kingston Highway for example and the Provincial Highway from Port Hope to Peterboro on these glorious days of mid-summer see a steady procession of touring automobiles, big cars that tear along at forty miles an hour as a minimum and chase smaller vehicles into the ditches.

That the traffic officers secure convictions the experience of some of our own citizens who have been tempted to do a modest thirty miles, affords evidence but the great majority of the big cars from outside the province seem to escape.

Regulations are regulations and while Ontario welcomes tourists and has much to offer them the authorities should not allow the impression to be created that visitors are beyond the law and that the rules against speeding are to be only invoked against residents.

Granted the combination of a powerful car and a good road forms a strong temptation to the average driver, but even that is no justification for allowing the highways which have been built at such heavy expense to be used as a speedway to the peril of everybody who may be travelling.

The Lincoln County Council is protesting against the flaunting of the United States flag on visiting cars.

That is a small matter compared to the freedom with which the drivers of such cars treat the speed laws.

They should be impressed with the fact that the limit is 25 miles an hour, not 40 or 50 miles as many of them appear to think.

SINCE THE WORLD SAVED FRANCE.

Reluctantly the American people realize that the compass of events in Europe includes a vital concern of this country. This does not mean that the United States has any inclination to be a member of European councils on European problems. But there is a point where circumstances surmount local bounds and impinge on the welfare of the world. To such a pass has the eternal reparation struggle, primarily between France and Germany, arrived.

This country, in time of urgent need, can support itself. But in normal times its prosperity, and the growth of that prosperity, depends on its commercial relations with the markets of the world. Prosperity for Americans is represented by the surplus products they are able to export. This market for surplus diminishes; today it has reached an unprecedently low point. The government reports show this to be. Reports from business men all over the land prove the reports to be true.

It is a fact that the steady demoralization of Europe, dragged down remorselessly by the dead weight of failing helpless Germany has checked American welfare and must do so more in proportion as Europe's capacity to do business grows less.

However unfavorably Americans generally have regarded the Ruhr occupation, criticism has been singularly restrained. France is supporting huge armaments. She has the largest disciplined army in the world. She has more aircraft than anyone else. She has great supplies of guns and munitions and the factories to produce more. She owes money which she makes no mention of paying, although she has financed two smaller powers, on whose armed friendship she relies. With her disregard for her own debts she is furiously insistent that Germany pay the uttermost farthing, the while she seizes German workshops and snarls a surly defiance at any effort to compromise a situation that marches swiftly to general ruin and the incalculable misery of Europe.

The propaganda for her case of hatred has been considerable. In its most familiar phase it is a sentimental plea, heard here and there among our own people, that the French debts should be cancelled. These petitions come not infrequently from anxious folk who purchased or financed the purchase of French government bonds. These bonds they have no desire to see cancelled. They prefer the American taxpayer pay for them by assuming the equivalent of the French debt.

But is the French debt wholly one of the money she borrowed? Where would France stand today if the world had not leaped to her side? What would have happened to France had not Allies been there on two fronts to share her burden? Could France alone have saved Paris? Could any resource of France have checked that war machine from crushing the nation?

The world save France from becoming a third-rate debtor power. The world was with France in the war as well as in the peace. Has France forgotten that? If she remembers then she must concede the right of the world to be considered in this grave crisis her conduct has brought about. Not merely gratitude, but a true sense of national honor should dictate to her a willing defence to the counsel of those who shared their all with her in the darkest hour of her history and left their dead by the tens of thousands on the plains of France.

The world—why mince words?—has no sympathy with France's present objective. The desire of every power removed from the mesmerism of hate is for the security of a pacified Europe. Nor is it possible to conceive how France could suffer, any more than another, under that condition. The time has come for the American people to reflect seriously whither French policy tends and what its effect inevitably must be on the fortunes and future of this country.—Detroit News

(Canadian Press)—Lieut. Russell L. Maughan, passed Rawlings, Wyoming, at 4.19 p.m. (mountain time), and apparently making a speed of 200 miles an hour. It is evident that Maughan is making a desperate effort to regain the time lost on the schedule in Cheyenne.

Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out, and that is to dissolve them Get about two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts, and every blackhead will be gone. Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make large pores, and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of peroxine powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition.

A Small Sensation.

A small sensation was caused on Water street on Sunday afternoon by the appearance of a porcupine. The small boys chased it up a tree where it spent a good part of the afternoon . Its reputation for shooting its quills made the problem of catching it rather difficult.

Garden Produce Late.

Lakefield did not share in St. Swithin's day showers which fell plentiously in other places. However, the rain on Saturday evening was of untold benefit to the gardens which are fairly good in the main. Everything will be later this year owing to the cold spring. Beans and peas are being used from local gardens and are of good quality and plentiful.

At one Bavarian hotel a visitor found the tablecloths and napkins to be paper, the butter margarine, the coffee oats, and the rice breadcrumbs.

BRITISH TO CONTINUE

fact that the project was compelling Holland to increase her forces and fortify her base in the East Indies.

The proximinity of Singapore to the scene drawn in the Washington agreements also came in for much discussion, but those who favoured the project caid it was idle to make this the subject of complaint.

Commander Bellars argued that if Japan or the United States had not wished Great Britain to develop Singapore they would have drawn the prohibited area at Longitude 104 degrees East. It was perfectly obvious that unless Great Britain had Singapore she could not maintain a fleet in the Far East.

Lady Astor said if she thonght the policy of the Government would in any way encourage war she would vote against it heart and soul, but she knew that police forces would be necessary for a long time and Britain needed an army and navy, not for fighting purposes, but for peace purposes.

Captain William Wedgwood Benn declared that the Washington Conference woud have been abortive had the delegates known of the British intentions at Singapore, but Lieutenant Colonel Amery, Forst Lord of the Admirality, in winding up the debate for the Government, repeated his assurances, which he had voiced in the House of Commons on July 16, that it was clearly understood by all the delegates at Washington that Great Britain was retaining full freedom of action regarding Singapore.

If the country had reason to be proud of anything it had done in recent years, he added, t was its part in the Washington agreement and what it had done since. It was proved that Great Britain had welcomed to the full every proposal made by Secretary Hughes and its United States friends. Furthermore, Great Britain alone took immediate steps to disarm herself before the agreement was ratified, and, he believed, by so doing had insured the success of the Government.

The First Lord insisted that the Meridan 110 was chosen for one reason only, to make clear that Singapore was not in the zone of nonaction.

Replying to Mr. Lambert's demand why full details of the Singapore plans had not been given at Washington, the first Lord said that might have been the proper thing to do at Geneva but it was not done by any of the Powers at Washington. None of the Powers there gave the Powers details of what their future cruiser programme might be, and he pointed out that Japan was executing dockyards and naval base extensions planned before the Washington Conference which it had not thought its business to tell about.

The First Lord invited the members to look at a large scale map, and asked if they realized that the distance from Singapore to Yokahama was about the same as from Gibralter to Boston, and inquired if anybody would suggest if Great Britain was putting a floating dock at Gibralter that she was menacing the United States.

He maintained that Singapore was an ideal position for defence, not for offence, and there was no intention it should be developed for effence, All that was contemplated was that Great Britain would be able to do, not to-morrow, but a decade, what constituted the policy of this country during the years before concentration against Germany.

"All we mean to have in Far Eastern waters," he continued, "is a fleet of the kind and size we contemplated in 1911. Uuder our reduced one-power standard was must be able to apply that one-power standard wherever our interests are menaced. That means that our fleet must be mobile, and mobility is impossible without naval bases."

326 GEORGE STREET ARCADE

A Mid-Ocean Dream

NEW YORK, July 20.—(United Press).—John Barleycorn is to have a kingdom of his own, according to announcement made in New York papers.

The top of Iceland or Labrador or some other land where the population is rather thin is to be sawed off and towed out into the Atlantic and anchored near he vessel lane. It is to be supported by gas buoys. To furnish the gas for the buoys and for heating the island, gas mains are to be run under the sea from either Mts Etna or Vesuvius, where the supply of both gas and heat are over whelming.

Just how the physical details are to be arranged are not made public. But that is a mere detail and no one in New York questions the ability of the mechanical genius of North America enough to be seriously worried over such small problems.

As for the selection of the exact land to be decapitated, Iceland is in favor at present. It is pointed out that he British rather cling to Labrador. as their publishers are interested in the forests. Then, too, Iceland hase more glaciers than Labrador. These can be tapped for ice-water and also for cracked ice, both expected to be in great demand on the new island.

The new kingdom is expected to be the final refuge for the thirsty world. When anchored, it is to be furnished with everything the most polished drunkard or mere beginner might desire. It will have its own hospitals, D. T. refugees. etc., to say nothing of miles upon miles of glittering mirrors, brass rails and myriads of bartenders with diamond headlights and spotless white coats.

While it is expected that the population turnover of the new kingdom will be rapid, it is pointed out that the presence of the ocean on all sides of the island will make disposal of victims very easy —about the only kind thing the promoters care to say about that chemical combination of oxygen and hydrogen.

Wall street financiers believe the greatest difficulty in financing the project will come from the fact that the men who put in the $20,000,000 to start the kingdom on its way will have to moved by purely altrustic motives. as they cannot hope to live to enjoy the fruits of their labor and must build for their offspring. ome doubt is expressed by men accustomed to handling big projects whether even the most sincere drinkers will care to invest so heavily in a thirst-prevention devise for the coming generation.

No public announcement is expected for some time as to how the recapitation of the land selected and its same transportation into the ocean is to be managed. It is admitted these things involve serious problems. It is hoped that further search of the tomb of the latest pharaoh to be despoiled will give mechanical details of the construction of the pyramids which will assist.

CALLS OCTOPUS SHY; NOT THE MAN-EATER OF FICTION WRITERS

Devil Fish Are Being Caught at Santa Cruz, California, Like Flies in a Trap.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—(Associated Press).—Devilfish, better known as "polypus octopus hongkongensis," are being caught at Santa Cruz, California, like flies in a trap, and the tentacles are being shipped to fish markets in San Francisco, New York, and other cities where they are sliced and sold at from fifty to sixty cents a pound, according to C. B. Florence, Secretary of the California State Fish Exchange here. Mr. Florence says the sliced octopus tentacle makes a succulent table delicacy when properly fried.

While fishermen emulate Victor Hugo and other writers of fiction by telling of terrific battles with giant devilfish, usually ending by explaining how the fish reached one of its arms above the water and wrapped it around the boat, breaking the craft in two, Mr. Florence and Professor Harold Heath, Department of Zoology, Stanford University, California, state that this is physically impossible. Professor Heath describes the octopus as being "of a shy and retiring disposition."

"The devilfish has no bones or no structure of any kind," says Mr. Florence. "It cannot swim, but can only float on the water, or propel itself on the floor of the ocean by means of fastening its suckers on a rock and pulling itself along. Each of the eight tentacles are covered with cup shaped suckers, and these form a vacuum when fastened on an object. Fishermen haul them out of the traps with their bare hands and throw them in boxes in a manner that is extremely undignified to a fish that has an age-old fictional reputation of being a man-killer and boat-smasher."

In the picturesque food shops that line the narrow streets of San Francisco's colorful Chinatown, the tentacles of the devilfish may be seen hanging from hooks alongside many other edibles that are strange to the native American. On the floors of the wholesale fish houses here the devilfish may be seen stacked in jelly-like heaps, with tentacles, in some cases, extending ten feet across, five feet from each side of the small, egg-shaped head.

The traps at Santa Cruz, where the majority of the devilfish are caught on the Pacific Coast, are built like fly traps, only much larger. The traps are made of wire, with a cone-shaped entrance for the octopus to squeeze through in order to reach the bait fixed for him. He has no trouble in entering the ever-narrowing funnel, but finds it impossible to leave. Usually, fishermen state, two or more are caught in the same trap.

Instead of being a fighter, the devilfish protects itself from attack by changing its color and hiding from its enemy, according to Professor Heath. He says:

"To agility and naturally acute senses should be added their surprising ability to change their color to harmonize with that of their surroundings, so that prey and enemies alike are usually unaware of their proximity. Those color change is based upon minute elastic sacs filled with pigment and supplied with muscles for causing their expansion.

"As a devilfish crawls about on the sea bottom its color can be seen to change in a twinkling from deep chocolate through dull red and to grey. If sand or rock is encountered on the journey the skin is usually thrown into lumps and ridges. so that under all conditions the body is practically invisible."

However, if Professor Heath's opinion of the devilfish as a food is heeded, the fish will continue to be eaten by its celestial admirers and by a limited few who crave the unusual. Properly to place before the American epicurean a dish of tender octopus, Professor Heath says, something must be done "to destroy its rubber-like consistency."

TELLTALE SYMPTOMS OF WOMAN'S ILLS

Every woman who suffers from backache, headaches, dragging-down pains, nervousness, irregularities, displacements, irritability, or despondency should recognize in such symptoms some derangement of her system which should have attention before some more serious ailment develops. These conditions are often evidenced by a sallow complexion, dark circles under the eyes, lassitude and sleeplessness. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been pre-eminently successful in overcoming such conditions, and it is now recognized everywhere as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

EDUCATORS WILL MEET AND PLAN FOR MENTAL ERA

Mobilization of Educational Force to Establish Universal and Permanent Peace—A Good Will Day.

(By A. H. FREDERICK)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20—World-wide mobilization of educational force, to establish universal and permanent peace—

Entrance of education upon the world stage as a solver of international evils—

These will be chief among the aims of 20,000 educators from all parts of the globe who meet here and in Oakland, June 28 to July 6, for the National Educational Association's world conference on education.

From the orient and from Europe, from North and South America, from countries tucked away in far corners of the earth, teachers and professors are coming to tackle this problem which has baffled the brightest minds, statesmen, diplomats, militarists of all ages.

Possibilities growing out of the meet are unlimited, according to leaders who have been perfecting plans for the past three years. The proposed peace program will be the test indicating the arrival or non-arrival of a new era, they say.

Dominant Force

If success on this knottiest of problems shows the new era is here, future progress of the world can be planned intelligently and we will have entered upon the long predicted "mental era," they declare.

Education, established as a dominant controlling force, will wield the world into new shapes with the succeeding generations, each step forward forethought and foreschemed, according to these leaders.

The delegates to the meeting will not be confronted with any League of Nations or world court plans. The cure for war, as they will hear it unfolded, rests solely upon a better understanding of our neighbors in "the neighborhood of the world."

Education of the 400,000,000 pupils of the assembled teachers so that each will fully appreciate the human element in every foreign country, forgetting race hatreds and national jealousies, will be the proposed panacea.

Glorification of war will be diminished, without sacrificing love of flag or country. In its place will be proposed an intensive educational campaign to present to youth forcibly the valor and patriotism of peace and peace-time accomplishments for mankind.

Among measures designed to break down national barriers of hatred and suspicion and to instill in the minds of all coming citizens a feeling of friendship and understanding of their international neighbors, the following will be advocated:

Encouragement of correspondence between school children of different nations;

More extensive exchange between na ions of teachers in schools and professors in universities;

Study of world civics, covering the essential contacts necessitated by trade, travel, commerce and the exchange of inventions and learning;

Preparation of a series of international readers, presenting a choice of reading material from all nations and selected to truly present the ideas and ideals which each nation deems of universal worth;

Revision of textbooks, eliminating international animosities sometimes carried in present books, and presenting facts in a background calculated to heighten the respect of the people of one nation for those of another.

Worln Holiday

As a visible token of the "peace era" it will be proposed that a day be set apart each year to be known as "Good Will Day." Upon this day, instructors will hold special exercises to emphasize the love of foreign neighbors and the detriment of war.

The main work of constructing the peace program will be delegated to the world conference on education, a preliminary meeting of 1000 educators specially selected to carry out this work.

But the whole N. E. A. convention is expected to keep the peace versus war issue ever peramount.

However, other measures, chiefly designed to enhance the value of education, will be discussed. Among them will be:

Request for educational attaches at all embassies and legations as a means of contact between educators of various nations so that each may profit by the experience of others;

Extension of free library service and the practicability of establishing standards for such libraries;

Abolition of illiteracy where it still exists;

Encouragement of thrift, and establishment of more easily accessible schools and churches for farming people.

Both San Francisco and Oakland are planning many entertainments for the visitors. Chief among these will be a "Pageant of All Nations," in which 700 people of different countries, each dressed in his or her national costume, will participate. Miss Margaret M. Krsak of San Francisco will be in charge of this pageant and, according to present plans, will herself personify the Goddess of Liberty.

REFORMATION OF MOVIES BIG JOB.

Amusing Ideas Are Put Forward By Would-Be Reformers.

By JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK, July 20.—Many answers to the Authors' League query as to how the movies might be improved were very interesting, even though not seriously considered for prizes because they were not practicable.

For instance, one girl wrote, "If you want to improve the movies give me a chance to appear in them."

From Arizona came this one, "Put screens in the theaters so as the windows can be opened in hot weather."

Another complaint: "They ought to leave the reading on the screen longer so a fellow can get a chance to read it wright."

"There ought to be uniform lighting in theaters to kill off petting parties," wrote a Texas woman.

An Indianian cautioned, "Don't have fly screens and hoop skirts in the same period, and, few people ate with forks before 1860 and not any before 1850."

More answers came from parents than from any other source. Many ministers made suggestions, most of them advocating the filming of Bible stories. Some Ohio ministers were against censorship.

* * *

Answers to the Authors' League query suggest these strict rules for movie patrons:

Don't park chewing gum under seats. Stick it on your instep.

Leave cigar butts with man at door.

Wear a muzzle if you can't refrain from reading sub title aloud.

Do your spooning before coming to or after leaving theater.

If you have worn your socks more than a month please change them before entering theater.

Stand up when others pass you on way to their seats. This will protect your shins and corns.

* * *

The chief conclusion at the conference of authors to improve the screen was that authors should have greater say in the filming of their stories and that no story should injure any race or creed.

A recent letter from Perley Poore Sheehan indicates that these conditions were met in the filming of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." Sheehan lived in Paris for some time. In his letter one senses a deep reverence for Hugo. Sheehan says he "communed with Hugo in secret," that this spirit still lives and that it has guided him in adapting the "Hunchback" story to the sscreen.

After Sheehan had completed his script for the picture (it was almost as long as the original story) he submitted it to the archbishop of San Francusco, who delegated Mr. John Rogers to pass on it. Sheehan had transposed characters so that a situation in the story which would prove distasteful to Catholics was eliminated. "Under the changed conditions there can be no opposition whatever from the standpoint of Catholic faith," Father Rogers wrote to Sheehan.

Thus "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" appears to be the first of the new pictures to comply with the standards established by the authors' conference.

GERMAN SAVED LIVES OF FRENCH SOLDIERS

BERLIN, July 20.—(Special.) — Max Fladt, German, dived into a stream at Kehl, rescuing seven French soldiers from drowning. Asked by French officers how he might best be rewarded, Fladt replied: "It would please me most if you would release seven Germans from among your prisoners condemned to death."

The officers, moved by the plea, have forwarded his request to the proper authorities.

Tennessee to Build $2,000,000 Memorial.

NASHVILLE, July 20. —(Associated Press)—A $2,000,000 memorial, testifying to the regard of the people of Tennessee for her sons who gave their lives in the world war, soon will take its place among the most beautiful and elaborate buildings of the kind in this country.

While the majority of Tennessee's troops were returning home from the greatest war of all history in the year 1919, and were being welcomed in the larger cities with fervent celebrations and parades, patriotic citizens inaugurated a movement designed to preserve to future generations a record of the contributions and sacrifices these sons of the state has made in the gigantic struggle for world peace.

Patriotism was still at fever heat when a measure was brought up in the General Assembly to build a $2,000,000 memorial to the Tennessee world war veterans, especially to the memory of the Gold Star sons. The bill passed easily.

The State appropriated $1,000,000, the city of Nashville raised $600,000 and the county of Davidson put up $400,000 and the post-war campaign crystallized into the plans for a structure which architects claim will be one of the finest and most complete in the entire country.

The structure, according to the designs, will be fashioned after the classic Greek Doric order of architecture similar to the famous Parthenon, an exact replica of which stands in Centennial park in Nashville. There is also to be quite a similarity between this memorial and the new Lincoln memorial in Washington, the architect says.

In the new building there will be a capitol annex and a museum annex, connected by a memorial court between the two buildings and open to the skies with an allegorical statue in bronze or marble gracing the centre of the court, and tablets bearing the war records of Tennessee soldiers killed in the war upon the west wall of the court.

There will be four stories to the structure, including the ground floor, the entire length to be 385 feet and the width 115 feet.

WAXED FLOOR.

A waxed floor can be kept in good condition by sweeping it with a brush with hair bristles and dusting it with a mop. This gives a soft luster possible by no other treatment.

LOCK HORNS IN NEW STRUGGLE

England and France Vie With Each Other For Political and Economical Supremacy.

(By WM. PHILIP SIMMS)

England and France have locked horns in what may prove to be a life and death struggle for supremacy in Europe.

Cooler heads in the two countries may yet combine to save the situation, but the indications are that unless powerful neutral influences can be brought to bear, it is difficult to see how the existing rivalry, open and bitter, can fail to develop a serious peril to the peace of the world.

This rivalry—political as well as economic—is the real secret behind the failure of France and Germany to come to terms over the reparations question. Germany would never have dared face a united France and Britain. She would have come to terms long ago.

The two elements composing the rivalry—politics and economics—are hopelessly scrambled, like whites and yellows of eggs in an omelette.

You cannot make war successfully without plenty of coal and iron and steel. Nor can a trading nation like the United Kingdom go very far economically if hopelessly outstripped by a neighbor in the production of these vital commodities.

Coal Figures

This said, and remembering France is now in control of most of Germany's coal and iron and steel industries, cast your eyes over this:

France and Germany together produce in excess of 30,000,000 tons of pig iron annually as against the United Kingdom's 10,000,000 tons—more than three times as much.

France and Germany together produce about 20,000,000 tons of steel nanually as against the United Kingdom's little more than 6,000,000 tons. Again the ratio of three to one.

In coal output they are about equal, with about 270,000,000 tons a year. But that does not complete the story. Since 1885 the United Kingdom has been able to increase its output only 66 per cent while Germany increased hers by 202 per cent and France by 96 per cent.

Furthermore Germany and France have a larger supply. Of the known coal deposits the United Kingdom will have dug her last ton in less than 300 years, at the present rate, while France can go on for 500 years and Germany for 1000.

Iron Deposits

Of the iron deposits in Europe it is calculated that France and Germany together have about six times as much as the British Isles—some 7,500,000 tons as against 1,300,000,000.

Nations, plan a long time ahead if they are to survive, and England is notoriously far-sighted. Hence it is she sees France in control of the bulk of these economic necessities and with them completely dominating Europe politically as well as economically.

For without them in plenty no nation can successfully compete with a neighbor possessing them—neither in peace nor in war. So reasons the Britisher.

Given these, and France's present powerful military machine, the world's strongest air fleet, the best artillery and ample chemical plants for an intensive chemical warfare, England's hold on the "balance of power" in Europe has been utterly destroyed.

"Balance of Power"

What is this "balance of power?" I asked the French. They replied it is nothing more than a system whereby no nation or group of nations in Europe is permitted to become powerful enough to challenge British supremacy.

The French claim Britain wishes Germany to "come back" so she can play Germany against France, using the one to offset the other, while Britain makes off with the goods.

Should France follow the British plan of reparations, the French say, Germany would be strong enough successfully to defy France long before she fairly started to pay up, whereupon Britain would have the say whether France should live or die.

Hence the bitterness on both sides. And a grave peril to Europe and the world.

ACTION OF SENATE MENACE TO CANADA

Resolution to Premier Condemns Action of the Senate in Failing to Pass Branch Lines Bill.

WINNIPEG, July 20.— (Canadian Press).—Failure of the Senate to pass the Canadian National Branch Lines Bill has resulted in the abandonment of farms and has led to a cloud of pessimism, declares a resolution sent to Premier W. L. Mackenzie King by the North Battleford Board of Trade Council which asks the calling of a special session of Parliament to consider the serious situation which prevails to-day. A copy of the resolution was received in Winnipeg yesterday.

The resolution says that as a result of the Senate's action, "plows have been abandoned in mid-furrow and a blanket of discouragement has descended on all concerned evidenced not only by discontinuance of agricultural efforts but in many cases by total abandonment of farms."

The Premier is urged to call an early session of parliament to put into effect the measure defeated by the Senate and thus restore the morale of those concerned and to stay the exodus from the farms now setting in.

MINISTER BENES THE PEACEMAKER

Succeeds in Bringing the Anglo-French Premiers Together in Conference

PARIS, July 20.—(United Press)—Dropping formalities, Premier Stanley Baldwin of England and Premier Poincare will meet in the next few days to thresh out between them, the problems that seem to be forcing an Anglo-French split, according to belief expressed in well-informed circles to-day.

Foreign Miuister Benes of Czecho-Slovakia, who has recently visited London and Paris and is now in Brussels, is said to have acted the roll of the peacemaker, between the Allies and has urged such a meeting.

Poincare, it is understood, is willing to such a meeting taking place. Without specifying any reason officialdom here appears more optimistic than a break will be avoided.

HARD TIMES DANCE AT TRENT RIVER

Jolly Entertainment Furnished for Cottagers and Visitors.

TRENT RIVER, July 20.—The Riviera Pavilion here was the scene of much merriment last night, when the hard times dance was the chief attraction, proving an unqualified success, and providing good entertainment for the large gathering of cottagers and friends from outside parts. The Iola orchestra was at its best and delighted the dancers with old-time familiar airs suitable to the occasion.

So many appeared in comic costume that it was difficult for the judges to decide the honors, which were awarded as follows:

Ladies—First, Miss Vera Knocks.
Gents—First, Roy Sparrow. (Saxophone player in the Iola orchestra).
Consolation prize—Victor Stott.

Special numbers on the program consisted of fancy, community, lucky number and tag dances.

In the lucky number dance the winners were the Misses Dorothy Carnrite, of Trent River, and Blanch Wildman, of Norwood.

The management, Messrs. Davis and Knowles, are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts to assure a pleasant evening's entertainment.

Sagacious Collie Saves Tot Who Sought to See the World

Broken Paw Does Not Hinder Him in His Search For Five-Year-Old Mistress—Evidence Points to Rescue From a Watery Grave.

HALIFAX, July 20.—Kathleen O'Connor, aged five years, daughter of a railroad employee at Rockingham, four miles from Halifax, started out yesterday to see the world and but for King Tut might have followed a trail which led to quite another world altogether.

Kathleen had viewed the world from the hill back of her home for a long time. As seen from this point the world is a wide sweeping speedway, a slice of Bedford Besin with the spires and chimneys of Halifax in the distance and a long line of gleaming steel rails.

The day was sunny—a day for adventure—and shortly after midday Kathleen shook the daises and clover of her garden from her shoes anad took the trail to Halifax. By some miracle she escaped injury on a road notorious for speed artists. Her golden curls bobbed, and her eyes danced along the macadamized highway.

Kathleen is romantic but she has a practical turn of mind, too, so she carried along with her a sweater and a piece of strawberry pie. Most of the pie soon adorned the sweater.

King Tut enters the story now and but for King Tut the tale might have had a different conclusion. King Tut is a lumbering yellow collie, the playmate of Kathleen. Tut was keeping a date when the little girl set off on her adventure, and when he got home his frantic barking failed to locate her.

Tut, knowing in his wise dog way something of Kathleen's dreams and yearnings, set out down the highway. Half a mile from home he found the sweater and most of the pie, but Kathleen had disappeared. Motorists recall seeing a bounding hundle of yellow fur dashing madly down the road and trailing a dusty bundle of rose-colored wool. They thought the dog mad and one of them struck him a glancing blow sufficient to break a paw. But King tut, though sorely wounded, kept on his search, dragging the rose-colored sweater with him.

Two hours later searching parties heard the faint barking of a dog and in a heavy wooded glade along the shore of Bedford Basin they found King Tut and Kathleen. The little girl was asleep, her hands firmly clasping the collie's tail. Her cheeks were begrimed with tears and the dog with his brown eyes glazed with pain was too exhausted to greet the rescuers. Both the child and the dog were wet and apparently King Tut with his broken paw had plunged into the waters of the basin and brought Kathleen ashore. Above them on top of a bank the sweateer was found, but Kathleen can give no account of her adventure. She was taken home and the valient King Tut was brought into the city, where his leg was set by a veterinary surgeon. It is thought that he will recover.

Walkerville Woman Gets a Big Surprise

"Tanlac gave me health and happiness a year ago, after it looked like I never would be well again, and I haven't stopped praising it since," declared Mrs. Maude Whitehead, 20 Victoria Road, Walkerville, Ont.

"My appetite was so poor I often went all day without food and was so weak and run-down a few steps over to the store would exhaust me and get me out of breath until I thought I would drop in my tracks. I feared a nervous breakdown, too, for I would tremble all over even if the doorbell rang and at night little noises like a curtain rustling would keep me wide awake.

"I felt an improvement with my very first dose of Tanlac and now I am always hungry, eat like a farm hand, am never nervous, sleep all night long and am so strong I could walk the mile and a half to Windsor and hardly notice it. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

Reeve Anderson Returns

Reeve Anderson has returned from Toronto to which city he went with other members of the County Council to interview the officials of the highway department, with regard to securing a grant for repairing the Campbellford bridge. The other members of the delegates were Reeve Woodf of Millbrook, Reeve McColl of Brighton township, Warden Smith of Port Hope and County Superintendent of Roads, Greer of Cobourg. While in Toronto the delegation had a long conference with Deputy minister of Highways McLean and Engineer Muir who has charge of the municipal roads in the province.

At the June session of the County Council applications were received from a number of police and incorporated villages asking for grants for the oiling of provincial county roads, passing through such places as the regulations had been changed during the year, the burden of this outlay being thrown upon the complaining communities. No grants were made but the interested parties were assured that a delegation would go to Toronto to endeavor to secure relief.

Deputy Minister McLean assured the delegates that something would be done in the matter complained of.

With regard to making a grant for the rapairing of the Campbellford bridge he told the delegates that under the present regulations nothing can be done although it is possible that in the future the statutes may be changed to meet just such cases. The bridge here is a connecting link between county provincial roads whereas the law provides for grants only when it is provincial highways that are connected.

Representative Belford of Northumberland East will now be asked to follow up the matter with the department.

TRIPLE FATALITY IN GRAND RIVER.

Mother Saw Husband and Son Drown at Cayuga, Ont.

CAYUGA Ont., July 20.—(Canadian Press).—In an attempt to save Bruce Nichol, 42 Stirton street. Hamilton, aged 10 years, from drowning when he stepped into a deep hole while fishing in the Grand River yesterday afternoon, Archie Nichol, aged 37 years, the boy's father, and Howard Gould of 29 Douro street, Stratford, were drowned with the boy. Mrs. Nichol was on the bank with her sister, Mrs. McKay of Stratford, and heard frantic cries for help as the three went down. She witnessed the triple fatality and was prostrated when assistance came.

The drownings occurred shortly after four o'clock at a spot on the river known, as the old lower dam, which is five miles from Cayuga. While the women stopped on the bank the men waded into the water to fish, and Bruce Nichol accompanied his father. Suddenly the small boy cried for help and a minute later, he had completed disappeared from view. His father, an expert swimmer rushed to his assistance and reached the spot when he reappeared. After taking hold of the lad he was heard to cry for help, and Gould, who also went to rescue of the boy, had by this time reached the scene. Whether or not the elder Nichol was seized with cramps will never be known for after securing his son, he too, began to sink. Both had disappeared when Gould reached the hole. He likewise was an able swimmer and when the father and son come to the surface he reached their side. Later all three went down and cries for help were heard. A few moments later, the three went down for the last time.

The cries of Mrs' Nichol and Mrs. McKay attracted residents and an emergency call was immediately sent for medical assistance. Neighbors directed to the spot were able to recover the bodies in a short time. Bruce Nichol had been dead for several minutes but an attempt to revive Mr. Nichol and Mr. Gould was made by means of artificial respiration. but without success.

HAVELOCK, July 20. — Havelock Board of Education met in the school building at the hour of 7.45 p.m., on Wednesday, July 18.

From Inspector Lees re standing of the staff. Moved by Trustees Forde and Carter, that Mr. Lees' communication be received and filed.—Carried.

Moved by Trustees Forde and Carter, that Miss Johnston be written to the effect that three are no vacancies on the staff.—Carried.

From the High School Inspector, re the remodelling of the staircases and arranging a science room. Communication filed.

To Pay Bills.

Moved by Trustees Forde and Carter that the secretary treasurer have authority to pay bills pertaining to the remodelling of the school.—Carried.

On motion the meeting was adjourned until the third Wednesday in August.

Public School Staff.

The closing of a contract with Mr. Percy W. T. Yeuill, formerly of Peel county, completes the public school staff. Mr. Yeuill comes very highly recommended. He holds a second class certificate, and has had six years' experience. The Board feels that they have secured a teacher who will be a credit to the school and a citizen to be desired.

The Public school staff as it now stands is as follows:

Percy W. T. Yeuill, Fourth Book Room; Peter Buchanan, Third Book Miss Marjorie Crowe, Second Book, Miss Huston, First Book; Miss Lillian Hubbel, Second primer; Miss Annie Long, Junior Primer.

School Remodeling.

The remodeling of the school is to the extent of taking out the two present staircases, which are very awkward and dangerous, especially should their be an occasion of panic among the children; and in their place building one large straight flight of stairs to the second floor. This arrangement will add to the space available on the upper floor, which will be taken advantage of for arranging a science room for the use of the High School. The contract for this alteration has been let to Mr. James Scott of this village on the cost plus basis, the board agreeing to pay the actual cost of material and work plus 10 per cent. of the total amount. This arrangement is looked upon by the board as a saving to the ratepayers when compared with the older basis of contracting for a lump sum. It is estimated that the expense will be in the neighborhood of $250 or $300.

High School Staff.

The High School Staff is still incomplete, the board not having yet secured a principal. A new advertisement has been inserted in the Toronto dailies in which the salary quoted has been raised from $2200 to $2500. The change the Board deemed necessary if they are to secure a principal for this very important branch of Havelock's educational system.

HEY were discussing Insurance. The Broker said:

"I believe in insurance. I handle stocks and bonds and have opportunities to pick and choose investments. If I leave an estate entirely consisting of stocks and bonds it cannot be converted into immediate cash without danger of considerable loss. So I am going to leave enough insurance to provide a good proportion of ready cash to be available during the settlement of my estate. I think that is sound business."

"You are perfectly right," replied the banker. "Insurance in a company like the Mutual Life of Canada is just as safe as money in the bank, and it affords your family protection in full from the start, and, in addition, is a good investment."

"True," assented the broker. "I have a Mutual Endowment policy coming due next year. On these participating Endowment plans the Mutual Life of Canada is at present paying at maturity from 20% to 100% more than the assured pays in! The protection in the long run costs nothing!"

PRACTICALLY half of the month of July has passed, and with it the first half of our "Keep Cool Campaign." We are very much pleased with the vast number of ways in which we have been able to help the citizens of Peterborough and surrounding districts in choosing their summer apparel and merchandise needs. True, we all love the warm summer months—but how much more enjoyment one may get out of summer if their clothing and surroundings are such that will present a cool atmosphere. This is not a Sale. Do not make that mistake, for even if you find our prices remarkably low it is simply because we are striving to obtain for you the right goods in the right seasons at prices you are willing to pay.

Newsy Notes

WHAT'S IN A FRILL

Much charm, says Fall Neckwear, and immediately proceeds to flaunt more frills and ruffles than it has for many a day. Embroideries and cross stitching, claiming Chaune Souris origins are very much present, too, and to add a note of crispness, there are tiny tucks.

COME OUT OF THE KITCHEN

That is a fashion command which it would seem the household apron willingly obeyed, if we are to judge by the number of apron effects that are being continuously seen to-day in the most select drawing rooms.

TO GO "UP" IN SMOKE

Is quite the opposite to going out in Smoke Hosiery. For the first means sudden destruction, while the latter hints of the ultra in hose. You should own a pair of Chiffon Smoke Colored. They will set off your printed frock so well.

PUT RUSSIANS ON WESTERN PRAIRIE

VANCOUVER, July 20. (Special)—"It is a pity that Canada does not invite the thousands of intelligent and deserving Russians who are now stranded in China and Korea, to settle in this country," said Mr. T. Toledano, an influential bullion broker of Shanghai, who reached Vancouver on the Canadian Pacific S. S. Empress of Australia, which docked here early this morning, almost a full day ahead of her schedule, and carrying a passenger list of over 700 people.

Mr. Toledano pointed out that many of the Russian refugees are of the landed gentry class who have refused to throw in their lot with the soviet regime, and who will feel at home on the Canadian prairies.

Mr. Toledano, who has spent 30 years in the Orient, predicts that in the near future foreign powers will take a benevolent hand in straightening out China's present chaotic conditions.

THE CREED OF SUCCESS

Behind every business success there's a man—Who—Believes in himself—
Believes in his neighbors—
Believes in his business—
Believes in serving others by meeting real needs in a real way—
Believes in truth and the square deal—
Believes in the solid satisfaction of work—
Believes in health and play—
Believes in letting his neighbors know these beliefs—
Believes in advertising to expand his power to serve as well as to enlarge his profits—
Believes in his community—
Believes in contributing to its welfare—
Believes in enjoying the rewards of enterprise and honesty.

Every big business success has such a man behind it—if it's as big a success as it might be.

A STREAM OF OIL STOPS THE FLIGHT

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., July 20.—Failuret marked second attempt within ten days of Lieut. Russell L. THIRTEEN MEN FOUND GUILTY CONSPIRACY

CAIRO, Egypt, July 20. Canadian Press. — Of thirteen men found guilty July 7th of a general conspiracy to murder British officials, the court to-day sentenced five to be hanged and the remaining eight to from three years to lifeimprisonment.

The case was commonly known as the Cairo conspiracy trial and was the outgrowth of hundreds of arrests following three years of murders and political outrages, connection with which was denied by the Egyptian Nationalists.

Convictions were obtained on the testimony of an accomplice who turned King's evidence.

When the verdict was returned by the military court it was announced that sentences would not be promulgated until they weer approved by the commander in chief of the Brit-

MAKE GIRL LOVE HER HOME LIFE.

A Little Luxury and Some Finery Are Antidotes For Wanderlust.

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, July 19.—"Love of finery and jazz are the cheese that draws the little country mice into the city trap," says Miss Virginia Young.

As head deaconess of the famous No. 17 Beckman Place Shelter House here, Miss Young has listened to the confessions of thousands of runaway girls who have found their way to her ever-open door and shared the hospitality that she always extends to girls in need, irrespective of race or creed.

"The love of finely is as old as Eve herself," she explained. "We all go through it and most of us never quite get over it. It is just as natural for Sixteen to want fine feathers and a good time as it is for Seventy to want an overstuffed chair and a footstool.

"Many of the fads of flappers today seem silly to their mothers and those who have passed the flapper stage. But let them just remember the things that were dear to their hearts at that age. They were just as absurd.

Encouragement Needed.

"The wise mother knows that if you give a girl enough rope she won't hang herself. Let her have the ridiculous red sandals or the long earrings, if they will make her happy.

"It isn't the girl with the pretty clothes and the normal good times who becomes a wandering daughter. It's the little lonesome girl, who has been denied small luxuries until they have attained an exaggerated importance in her mind, who wants to snatch pleasure where she thinks it thrives—in the big city."

Miss Young believes every mother should make it her business to see that her daughter has opportunities to meet decent young men, and that she has the advantage of such wholesome pleasures as the Girl Scout organization and girls' clubs offer.

"Many a mother," she continues, "goes to the movies, leaving her daughter at home alone in the evening to care for the younger children without realizing just what rebellion goes on inside the daughter's mind.

"And probably father is so busy getting bread and potatoes for his family he doesn't sympathize with his daughter's appetite for cake.

Awaiting Opportunity.

"Frequently the girls don't complain, they nurse secret bitterness and keep back part of their wages, bid their time and strike for what seems to be freedom as soon as they can.

"Not that I do not believe every girl should have home responsibilities and should be taught to relieve her mother—certainly not. But my point is that a little luxury and some occasional finery and a little genuine understanding will keep her doing so.

"Girls can't be scared into being good, but I believe they can always be kept good if they are correctly handled at home."

THE PIONEER.

All praise to him who hoists a sail
On seas erstwhile unknown;
To him who dares to mark a trail
Through forests deep and lone;
To him who dares to dream and think,
To think, and dare, and do,
While others tremble on the brink
Afraid of conquests new.

Thank God for him who lives upon
The far frontiers of thought;
Who is the first to see the dawn
On mountain summits caught;
For him who dares to make a way
Through prejudice and fear
On to the new and better day—
The sturdy pioneer.

GERMAN MARKS STILL ON THE DOWN GRADE

LONDON, July 20. YOU ARE MISSING A GREAT SPORT IF YOU CAN'T SWIM AND YOU CAN MASTER THE ART IN FORTY MINUTES

By LYBA M. SHEFFIELD

(By Lyba M. Sheffield.)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Every year hundreds of persons miss the best of summer sports—swimming —because they "never learned to swim."

They speak of swimming as some sort of higher education that can only be gained by a long and tedious foundation of preparatory work, started early in life.

Entirely wrong. Any person applying himself sincerely and adhering to cerain fundamental rules can learn to swim in 40 minutes!

Of course he will not be a fancy diver or world record contender in that time, but he will be able to keep himself afloat and to propel himself the length of an ordinary tank. Progress from this point is a matter of practice.

Fear is the boggy that keeps many out of the water. So first you must overcome this. It can be done at home.

Water Friendly.

The water is very friendly and will do everything in its power to keep you afloat if you will co-operate with it. Always bear this in mind.

Then practice getting your face under water—the dread of many a novice. This is done with the aid of a large bowl of water.

Fill the bowl nearly full, take a deep breath and plunge your face under the water. Hold your nose if you want to. Stay under until necessity forces you to "come up for air." Repeat this until you feel quite at home "under water."

Now try the same thing without holding the nose and with the eyes open. At the beginning do not attempt to stay under more than about five seconds. Repeat, extending the time under, until done with ease, and naturally.

Remember while doing this, that the correct breathing for swimmers is a deep, slow inhalaton through the mouth and a rapid exhalation through the hose. The last bit of air always should be exhaled above the water.

If preference, you can practice this by standing in the swimming pool, grasping the railing and submerging your head.

Learn Balance.

After you have overcome fear and mastered correct breathing under water, you are ready to learn balance. You can never become expert unless you do.

Stand in the pool and grasp the railing or some other support which is about the level of the water's surface.

Extend one foot backward, keeping the leg straight, until it is as close to the surface as possible.

Then take a deep breath and quickly submerge the face, at the same time bringing both feet to the surface and extending the body. Do not let go your grasp of the railing.

As soon as you feel your airy supply becoming exhausted, regain standing position. This is done by bringing the knees up under the body until they almose touch the stomach and then lowering the feet to the bottom of the pool. Unless you do it cirrectly, you are apt to duck yourself, so it is best to take it slowly and intelligently.

When you can float yourself and regrain stainding position easily, try the same thing with only the index fingers touching the support, and then with the fingers touching the side of the tank just above the support. You regain standing position from the latter exercise by lowering the hands to the support just before it's time to"come up" and then following the correct method. I advise that you try this exercise in water about waist deep.

Be content to follow these exercises until you have thoroughly mastered them; they are the foundation of swimming.

"SEA PUSS" RAIDS A BATHING BEACH

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., —June 20.—(Canadian Press)—Hundreds of bathers were endangered here just before nightfall when a "sea puss" or whirling, offset with under drag that trebled breakers, suddenly swept in on the unprepared throngs. In twinkling scores were struggling for their lives. First series of giant cambes hurled majority into shallow water where they were able to assist one another to beach.

The sea phenoma of an intensity seldom seen here, subsided as quickly as it developed, a half hour after first batehers called for help.

WINDSOR, July 20.— (Canadian press).—While Roy Bennett, aged 26 of Walkerville, was bathing with his wife and sister in Detroit river, yesterday afternoon, two ladies were caught in undertow. Bennett swam to their assistance and kept both afloat until John Martin, 16 years old, came to their aid with row boat. Exhaustion, due to strain caused by holding two women above water until help arrived, proved too much for Bennett and he collapsed and died few minutes after reaching the shore.

NEWS OF BURNBRAE AND THE DISTRICT

Social, Church and Personal Happenings—Preparing For Anniversary.

BURNBRAE, July 20. — The Y.W.A. of St. Andrew's Church, Burnbrae, met on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roy Walker, Rawdon, for their regular monthly meeting, which is held on the second Saturday of each month.

The young ladies follow the itinerant method, holding their meetings in the homes of various members of the church. It is a real pleasure to the people of the congregation to open their homes for the conduct of such meetings, whose chief aim is to quicken interest in missionary enterprise.

There were 24 present. The devotional exercises were conducted by the president, Miss Annie Haig. The business of the day was then taken up, after which the following programme was given:

A recitation by Mrs. Frank Little, of Menie; a reading by Dorothy Baker. The President then opened up the topic assigned for the meeting: the first chapter of the book entitled "The Building of a Nation." Considerable discussion followed the very able presentation of the subject by Miss Haig.

Irene Thompson sang a solo, and Margaret Milne gave an instrumental solo on the piano.

Sailors' Mission.

Mr. George Pound, missionary in charge of sailors' work on the great lakes and waterways of Ontario, and whose headquarters is the Snug Harbor Mission for Sailors at the port of Kingston, spoke in the interests of that work at St. Andrew's Church, Burnbrae, on Sunday last.

Mr. Pound was associated in this work for many years with the late James S. Patter, of sacred memory. Mr. Patter, in the year 1889, started "The Sailors' Snug Harbor," Kingston. On the death of that devoted missionary to sailors, Mr. Pound, his colleague and fellow-worker, was appointed by the Upper Canada Tract Society as his successor.

For 30 years annually the late James S. Patter represented the work among the sailors to the people at Burnbrae. One has fond recollections of his last visit to the old congregation, that he so deeply loved, in August, 1921. He publicly confessed the likelihood of its being his last visit, and four months later he rested from his labors. His closing words to the congregation were words of thanks for their loyalty and devotion through the year to the work for which hre had given his life, and as if anticipating that his work was done, he made a passionate appeal for the same hospitality, love and loyalty to his successor which they had shown to him.

Girls' Ball Matches.

Menie is the centre of a new interest these evenings — the girls' baseball matches. For a long time the boys had been practising ball at Menie, and that of course seemed a quite common-place affair and caused no undue stir in the community. But the moment the girls organized and began to play the little hamlet was alive with interest. This was quite in evidence last Friday, but at the game on Monday night everything was excitement.

The cars came in all directions. Mothers hurried up with the milking and fathers agreed to draw one load of hay less in order to be present to see their daughters play in the game. The boys, too, who play on the Campbellford team, and were practising near by for the contest with the Colborne team on Wednesday, could practice no longer, and had to come over and watch the match.

The girls have a splendid team. The pitcher and catcher especially did very good work. A little more familiarity with the rules of the game and perhaps they will even challenge the boys to a match before the season is over.

A number of the young people motored to Colborne to see the baseball game, Colborne vs. Campbellford.

Young People Met.

The Young People's Guild met in the basement of the church. Mr. Harvey Donald acted as leader. There was a very good attendance. Mr. Black conducted the devotional exercises, reading from 2nd Timothy 2. A reading was given by Murray Meiklejohn; a piano solo by Mrs. H. Donald; a vocal solo by Mrs. C. Milne, and Rev. J. J. Black gave a talk on the exhibition of undesirable social attitudes.

The President took the chair for the conduction of business. The piano that the Guild purchased recently, the President announced, was all paid for except $2.50. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, July 24. Leader, Mitchell Rannie; topic, Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn; Mr. Black's talk of 15 minutes on "The development of Moral Attitudes."

Preparing Music.

The choir is busy preparing music for the 87th anniversary of St. Andrew's Church, Burnbrae, to be held sometime in August. The exact date will be announced shortly.

Samuel Green Dead.

The community regrets the news of the death of Mr. Samuel Green. Mr. Green has been confined to his home for over three years, as the result of a paralytic seizure. A second visitation came upon him on Friday and a third on Saturday, and he never, except for a moment or two, regained consciousness, and passed away early Wednesday morning.

Personals.

Mrs. Harold Barnum, of Rylstone, was operated on for appendicitis last week in Belleville.

Things That Interest You Most in Your Newspaper

An Interview With a Famous News Authority, Karl A. Bickel, President of the United Press Associations, Who Names the Ten Most Interesting Men and Five Most Interesting Women From the News Viewpoint—When Our Own Names Get in the Paper That is the Biggest Piece of News for Each of Us.

("Reprinted with the permission of the American Magazine from the issue of July, 1923.")

(By BRUCE BARTON)

Some months ago I was wedged into the subway between a young man and a young woman, both busy with their evening newspapers. With the curiosity that is part of the stock in trade with us reporters—but is not by any means monopolized by us—I looked out of the corner of my eye to see what they were reading. The young man was engrossed in an account of Babe Ruth's activities of the previous day; the young woman was devouring a front page item headed, —an item dealing with the behavior of the attractive wife of a young millionnaire under indictment for careless work with a gun.

MRS. WARD POWDERS HER NOSE IN THE COURT-ROOM.

In the same edition of that evening newspaper there was quite an account of the progress of the tariff bill; there were very important bulletins regarding the coal and railroad strikes; the dispatches from Germany were startling—yet none of these things mattered in comparison with Babe Ruth, and Mrs. Ward who powdered her nose.

Watching these two "average readers" I felt a sudden sympathy for the makers of newspapers. How can they tell what is news and what is not, I wondered. By what tradition of instinct do they know that Mrs. Ward's nose is more worthy of the front page than Senator Lodge's speech? I recalled the story of a newspaper editor of the sensational school who was speaking before a company of clergymen. At the close of his remarks one of the pastors took him to task:

"Sir, I object to the distortion of news values in your papers," he said emphatically. "Here is a case in point: Last night President Eliot of Harvard delivered one of the finest, most thoughtful addresses I have ever heard. I hold in my hand a copy of your morning edition. At the bottom of page seven, you report that address in two paragraphs, while here on the front page is an entire column devoted to an interview with James J. Jeffries."

The editor never faltered.

"That is as it should be," he replied.

"But I don't understand—" the clergyman protested.

"I'll explain: There are two doors opening into this room where we sit. Suppose I were to say to you gentlemen: 'In one minute President Eliot will enter through this door on the left; and at the same instant James J. Jeffries will enter the door at the right.' You gentlemen are all ministers of the Gospel, but I can tell you—whether you will admit it or not—that nine out of ten of you would turn around and look at the door on the right."

I repeated this story to Karl A. Bickel, of the United Press Associations. It is through the world-wide system of this organization that the news in hundreds of evening newspapers is gathered, edited, and distributed. Cable lines from all over the world, and fifty-two thousand miles of leased telegraph wires center in the New York offices over which Bickel presides. So wonderfully does the great machine function that the scores of the Lenglen-Mallory tennis match, played in England, were received in the United Press offices in New York two minutes after the last ball was struck; thirty seconds later they had reached Los Angeles.

THE APPEAL TO THE ELEMENTAL

"The editor in your story was right in his argument with the preachers," Bickel began. "A world's champion prize-fighter is more interesting than a college president, and the reason for that is not hard to find. The prize-fighter appeals to the elemental in us. Our civilization and culture are still comparatively new; the varnish on them is hardly dry. Wells's 'Outline of History' brings that out in dramatic fashion. Until just a few centuries ago our ancestors were savages, each man battling against his fellows in defense of his woman and children and his food.

"That's why the theatre attracts us all, because it is a living representation of man engaged in a struggle—a man like ourselves in whom we see our own problems exemplified. That, again, is why a story about Peggy Joyce, who has been loved by many millionnaires, is bigger news temporarily than a story about some maiden lady who has written a great book or developed a new scientific theory. The book and the theory appeal to our civilized superstructure; the love affairs of a beautiful woman and wealthy men go straight to our instinctive interest in love, and in money, which is the reward of men's struggles with fate and each other.

"Here's an illustration which was told me by a successful magazine writer. The publisher of a woman's magazine called this man to his office and offered him the editorship. Said the publisher:

"'I want to change the editorial policy of this magazine. It is too old-fashioned. It is filled with fiction, and recipes, and clothes; but it has nothing to appeal to the modern woman. We must bring it up to date; we must recognize that the woman of today has interests that reach far beyond the home. She is in business, and politics and philanthropy. I am going to throw away recipes and fashions, and talk to our readers as citizens and community leaders. What do you think of the idea?'

"'I think nothing of it,' the writer answered promptly.

"The publisher was nonplused.

"'What do you mean?' he demanded.

"'Simply this: Your wife is a modern woman. She's a college graduate; she belongs to clubs and has all these interests you mention. Suppose, without saying anything about it, you make a study of her reading and conversation during the next week. What percentage of her total time is occupied with these so-called wider interests? I'll tell you—about one per cent. The other ninety-nine per cent of it is occupied with just about the same interests that engaged the attention of Eve: how to keep her husband from grumbling around the house; how to serve the dishes he likes; how to clothe herself and her children and make her home look just as well as Mrs. Jones's home looks.

"'As for her conversation, what is it? What does she tell you when she meets you at the train in the country, after a week's separation? She tells you that your niece Gladys is engaged to be married; that the Smiths are to have a baby in December; that the Hortons are unhappy and may separate, and she asks you how you like her new hat. Those are the real interests that occupy about ninety-nine per cent of her time. And you, as a publisher, propose to throw over your ninety-nine per cent hold on her and expect to build up a big circulation by appealing to the things that occupy about one per cent of her time. You can try it, and you may get twenty-five thousand readers; but you'll lose most of the millions you have now.'

"That man told the truth," Mr. Bickel continued. "We are all pretty primitive. Take the three biggest news stories of recent years—excluding the war—what were they? I should say the sinking of the 'Titanic'; the San Francisco fire; and the assassination of McKinley. Every one of them dealt with struggle and death—with man in combat with his primitive enemies. If you ask me 'What is the most interesting thing in life?' I should answer 'Death.' There is nothing morbid or sensational in that statement; it is simply elemental. The greatest influence in the world is religion, largely because religion offers an explanation of the mystery of death. Our churches are crowded on Easter, partly from habit, but partly, also, because that is the one day in the year when the minds of all thinking men and women are focused upon the eternal problem of the hereafter. Death is the great adventure common to us all, and we simply cannot help being interested when a person known to us, either directly or indirectly, enters upon it.

INTERESTED IN PERSONALITIES

"We are all interested in personalities. By personalities I mean those individuals who exemplify life in its most dynamic or dramatic form, Lloyd George, for example, or Mary Pickford or Charlie Chaplin. On the surface these three names may seem to have little in common, but I do not group them together by chance. From the point of view of news interest throughout the world Lloyd George and Charlie Chaplin would find a place in any list of the ten most prominent men; Mary Pickford, I should say, is easily the most interesting woman. Of course such selections are always a matter of personal judgment, but if I were making a list of the ten most interesting men and the five most interesting women, I think it would run something like this:

TEN MOST INTERESTING MEN

Lloyd George	Clemenceau
Lenine	Pope Pius XI.
Edison	The Prince of Wales
Harding	Henry Ford
Wilson	Charlie Chaplin

FIVE MOST INTERESTING WOMEN

Mary Pickford	Lady Astor
Jane Addams	Mme. Curie

Mrs. Warren G. Harding

"While I have made no attempt to arrange them in the order of their relative news interest, there is no question in my mind that the name at the top of each list belongs there. Lloyd George, in office or out, is the leading personality in the world today as a news source. Those who have met him find it easy to understand his universal hold upon the imagination. I was his guest only a few weeks ago, at a time when a hundred problems were pressing. Yet to all outward appearance he was the least worried, least hurried man in London. For more than an hour we sat and chatted about all sorts of things, for, like Roosevelt, his information and curiosity are all embracing. He asked about prohibition, and told me that he expects it to be a success in the United States, but that it would almost certainly fail in England. 'Your conditions are entirely different,' he exclaimed. 'Your climate is bracing; your air is full of ozone; a man has only to breathe deep in your country and his energies are at top notch. But the English climate is depressing. We have fogs and dark days and dampness. The Englishman needs the stimulation of beer and wine and would hardly know how to do without it; for you in America, nature has provided stimulation in the sunlight and the air.'

"Out of office as he is, Lloyd George is still a center of interest and activity. That so dynamic a personality, still in middle life, and with such marvelous talent for playing upon the emotions and affections of the crowd, should remain permanently out of office, is hardly likely.

LENINE HAS ELEMENTS OF MYSTERY

"Taking Lenine, the next name of the list, you are reminded that mystery is one of the great elements of interest," Bickel continued; "no great figure in the history of the world was ever more successfully shrouded in mystery than his. The fate of the world depends upon Russia, and the fate of Russia depends upon him. How little we know about him in comparison with what our imaginations conjecture. The condition of his health may be of vital importance to every man, woman, and child in America. Admire him, or despise him, as you like, you cannot ignore him. Sitting in his office in Moscow he dominated the conference at Genoa, and disbanded the statesmen who gathered at The Hague in July.

* * * *

"To comment on each of the fifteen names individually would consume too much time and space; but the lists bring up thoughts worth special mention. One is suggested by the names of Mary Pickford and Charlie Chaplin. Few people realize the extent to which the motion picture has made its heroes and heroines international figures. Mary Pickford's popularity is such that she cannot step onto the street anywhere in the world without police protection. Charlie Chaplin (called 'Charlot' universally in the Latin countries) and Douglas Fairbanks are almost as well known in the interior of South America or China as they are at home. One of our men who covers the League of Nations tells me that the statesmen of Europe followed the Arbuckle case as eagerly as any group of gossips gathered in a country store.

"The Prince of Wales's presence in the list suggests the second thought. A man's position in society contributes very much to the interest in him; but position alone cannot make a man interesting. As proof of that consider the prince and his father, the king. Nobody cares very much to read about George; but the goings and comings of George's son are followed eagerly by hundreds of millions of people around the world.

"These fifteen names represent the individuals who, in my judgment, are most interesting to the world at large. If you or I were to make up a list of the people who are most interesting to us individually it would be quite different.

"Each of the readers of THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE would write his own name at the top of his list of interesting people, if he were perfectly frank. All good editors know this. Horace Greeley once received a letter from a friend who was about to start a country newspaper and wanted his advice. Two paragraphs of Greeley's reply are well worth remembering by any man who has a product to sell to large numbers of people, whether the product be news or prunes:

BIGGEST INTEREST IS IN SELF

"'Begin with a clear conception that the subject of deepest interest to the average human being is himself,' said Greeley; 'next to that he is most concerned about his neighbors. Asia and the Tongo Islands stand a long way after these in his regard. It does seem to me that most country journals are oblivious of these vital truths. If you will, as soon as may be, secure a wide-awake, judicious correspondent in each village and township of your county—some young lawyer, doctor, clerk in a store, or an assistant in a post office—who will promptly send you whatever of moment occurs in his vicinity, and will make up at least half of your journal of local matter thus collected, nobody in the country can long do without it.

"'Do not le a new church be organized or new members be added to an existing one, a farm be sold, a new house be raised, a mill set in motion, a store be opened, nor anything of interest to a dozen families occur without having the fact duly though briefly chronicled in your columns. If a farmer cuts a big tree, or grows a mammoth beet, or harvests a bounteous yield of wheat or corn, set forth the fact as concisely and unexceptionably as possible. In due time obtain and print a brief historical and statistical account of each township—who first settled it, who have been its permanent citizens, who attained advanced years therein, etc. Record every birth as well as every death. In short, make your paper a perfect mirror of everything done in the county that its citizens ought to know; and whenever a farm is sold, try to ascertain what it brought at previous sales; and how it has been managed in the meantime. One year of this, faithfully followed up, will fix the vaue of every farm in the county and render it as easily determined as that of a bushel of corn.'

"Greeley knew what he was talking about. Your name in the paper is the biggest possible piece of news to you, and next to reading about yourself you like to read about people you know. Have you ever noticed how impossible it is to conceal the name of one of your friends in a newspaper? The item about him, or her, may occupy only a single paragraph on an inside page, but the moment you open the paper it seems to jump up and hit you.

"Incidentally, most of us are bigger news when we are far away. If John Jones of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, is hit by a street car in his home town and killed it is important news, provided John amounts to anything. But if he is hit and killed by a street car in New York it is a front-page story. Distance, and imposing surroundings, lend importance to the least of us.

"So you like to read, first, about yourself; second, about the people you know; and, third, about the things you have seen. Years ago, when I was city editor of a paper in Davenport, a story went the rounds concerning a new reporter on a German daily. A fire broke out late at night in a German church and he was sent to cover it. After a time he returned, settled himself beside the cast-iron stove in the office and calmly lighted his pipe.

"'Did the church burn up?' asked the city editor.

"'Sure it burned up,' the reporter replied.

"'Well, where is the story?'

"'Vat's the use of wriding a story?' the young man responded. 'All the good Chermans was there and the bad Chermans don't care.'

"He showed very bad news sense," Bickel continued. "The very first thing the good Germans would want to read the next morning would be the paper's account of the fire. It could not possibly be too detailed to suit them. Father, who was there and saw it all, would explain to Mother, who was also there and saw it all, just what occurred, and wherein the printed account erred. And in that respect you and I are just like Father.

"You read the criticisms of a play which you have seen with far keener interest than the criticisms of one you are planning to see. I know a man who has almost no interest in sports. He attends one major league ball game a year, and reads the sporting page one morning each year, the morning after his annual game. He wants the pleasure of living through the game a second time, in memory, and correcting the reporter's mistakes. Or take the weather as an even better example. One of the oldest things in the world is a heavy rain or snow storm; yet either one is a first-page story in any city, no matter how big. Why? Because everybody in the city, having lived through it and been affected by it, wants to read about the storm in which he also got wet—the great event in which he played a little part.

ALL ARE INTERESTED IN MONEY

"We are all interested in money—that's another fact which every good newspaper man knows. It does not mean that we are all working with money as our primary aim; but the rich are objects of curiosity to all of us through their lives and even afterward. The first two questions that run through your mind when you hear of the death of a prominent man are: 'How old was he when he died?' and, 'How much did he leave?'

"Here's another queer twist: Most interesting people are interesting because something about them attracts us, but every now and then a figure occupies large space in the news because his character, or hers, inspires a general opposition or dislike. Millions of people read every scrap of news about the ex-Kaiser during the war and immediately afterward for the satisfaction of exclaiming 'Beast!' as they laid the newspaper down. The reading inspired them with a righteous indignation, a not unpleasant form of self-indulgence. Woodrow Wilson, in his last two years, was very cordially disliked by large sections of the electorate; and those who hated him most followed him in the newspapers most faithfully. Today the pednulum has swung back to considerable degree; he is one of the most important news personalities in the world.

"The immense interest in Lenine is partly accounted for by the fact that his philosophy outrages the feelings of so many respectable citizens, and the same thing is true—to quote quite a different example—of Margoth Asquith. She has had a quite extraordinary news record. Until a few years ago she was unknown outside of a very limited circle: now the mention of her name at any dinner table is enough to start a heated argument. Millions of men read everything she says or does, each one muttering to himself about what he would do if he were her husband."

I asked Mr. Bickel why it is that the Eastern newspaper prints so little news from the Middle West.

"When I moved from Chicago to New York I couldn't find any news in the New York papers at all," I said, "and for several months I continued to subscribe to the 'Chicago Tribune.' Aren't the Eastern papers more provincial in that respect than the papers farther west?"

He laughed.

"Every man who moves East makes that complaint," he said, "whether he moves from Chicago to New York or from Salt Lake City to Denver. It is probably one of the reasons why the East gets the reputation of being narrow-minded and provincial; but as a matter of fact provincialism has nothing to do with the case. The real reason is this—news travels from East to West; in other words, it follows the movement of the people of the earth. Go into almost any city and look for the slums; you will find them on the east side—old houses, once fashionable, but abandoned to the newscomers by their first owners, who have moved into newer sections to the west. So every Western community has its percentage of people who look to some place 'back East' as 'home.'

"These people want home news, and the papers give it to them. The volume of London newsprinted in New York papers is twenty times as great as the volume of New York news printed in London newspapers. Chicago papers print twenty times more news from New York and the East than the New York papers print from Chicago and the Middle West; similarly, the volume of Chicago news in San Francisco or Los Angeles papers is twenty times as great as the volume of news from the coast in Chicago papers.

NEWS A MATTER OF SELECTION

"Newspapers are citicized for a number of things for which they are not at fault," Mr. Bickel went on. "One common criticism is that the newspapers are full of a lot of stuff that nobody wants to read,' and 'that the editor must have a hard time getting enough pieces to fill up.' The truth is, of course, that editing a newspaper is a process of selection of the most rigorous sort. The news item from Moscow that occupies half a column in your afternoon paper was written first by the United Press correspondent there and telegraphed to Riga; rehandled there and cabled to London, rewritten again and cabled to New York, where it was again edited and telegraphed to your hometown paper. There it was submitted to another process of editing, prepared for the linotype machine, set up, edited in proof form, and finally printed.

"Often a single item will pass through the hands of as many as thirty skilled newspaper men before it reaches your eye, each one putting forth his best effort to make every sentence carry the maximum news value. Newspapers have no problem of filling their columns; we receive material in New York every day twenty times in excess of the capacity of our wires. It would be a very interesting educational experiment if every newspaper editor would print a photograph of his waste-paper basket every day for thirty days, or make a public record of the amount of propaganda and useless publicity stuff which he throws away. If you think the editor sometimes make a mistake in what he gives you to read, you ought to see the mass of stuff from which he saves you.

"Another common criticism is made by earnest people who are deeply interested in some cause and resent the fact that the papers do not give it more editorial attention. Such people need to be reminded that the business of a newspaper is to supply news and that whatever the personal sympathies of the editor may be he must give the largest space to the things that interest the greater number of people. Otherwise, his competitors will soon have the bulk of his readers. Study the front page of your newspaper for a few days, and you will begin to understand what it is that makes news interesting. It may be where it happens or when it happens, or it may be the personal personalities involved. For instance, if President Harding sat at a table in the Senate restaurant and wrote a message to Congress while eating a ham sandwich, there would be great news value in the where of it. If the President arose at three o'clock in the morning and wrote his message between that hour and dawn, there would be great interest in the when of it. If the President stopped on the street to speak to an average person it would constitute no sensation; but if he stopped to speak to Mary Pickford on Pennsylvania Avenue every newspaper would feature the story and print the photograph in its Sunday picture section.

NEWS VALUES COMPARATIVE

"Remember, also, in passing judgment on your editor, that all news values are comparative; the big story is constantly being crowded out by the bigger. The war furnished amazing examples of that fact. One of the biggest news stories of modern history, a story for which the whole world had waited for generations, was the abdication of the Czar. Do you realize that this tremendous news story occupied the place of honor in the afternoon papers for only one edition, and then was crowded into second place by an even greater sensation? Or, take another example: the sinking of the 'Titanic' was a sensation which lasted a solid week; it monopolized the newspapers to such an extent that the United Press did not even send out stock quotations during that week. Nobody was interested in the market; that thrilling struggle of men and women against the common enemy gripped us to the exclusion of everything else. The sinking of the 'Lusitania,' on the other hand, while an equally great sensation, was a comparatively short-lived news story. There was a war in Europe, and its thrilling developments came too fast to permit any story a monopoly.

"Do you remember reading, in the war, a one-inch item telling that a transport had been sunk in the Mediterranean with a loss of three hundred lives? Think of such a tremendous story being crowded into half a dozen lines. In the present state of the world a similar story would fling headlines across the front pages everywhere; but when men are dying by hundreds of thousands, the loss of three hundred, even under dramatic circumstances, is comparatively unimportant.

"This rule of comparative values helps to make clear many things that are otherwise puzzling to the layman in his appraisal of newspapers. In fairness to your editor, keep that in mind. And don't forget that you, important as you are to yourself, are only one of many thousand people, each one of whom has his own special field of interest. I rode into New York one morning with the general manager of a successful company, a twenty-five-thousand-dollar man. There had been a riot on Fifth Avenue the preceding day; stones were hurled through the windows of a prominent club and the police were called out to disperse the mob. Naturally, as a newspaper man, I was interested in the story, which occupied the first column on the first page, and ran over onto the second. I read every word of it, and when we stepped off at the Grand Central Station I remarked about it to my friend.

"'Bad business, that riot,' I said.

"He looked at me in surprise.

"'What riot?' he demanded.

"'Why, the riot on Fifth Avenue,' I said. 'Didn't you read about it?'

"He looked at me in surprise.

"'Nothing about it in my paper,' he answered, and started to tell me that he was going to change to another paper, because his paper never got all the news.

"I took his paper, turned to the front page and pointed to the headlines which ran across all seven columns. He read them with astonishment. In his eagerness to get over to the sporting page he had entirely overlooked the most important piece of news, and was ready to condemn his editor for failing to print a story which—because his special interest blinded him—he had failed to see.

BLINDED BY SELF-INTEREST

"We all have our special interest that blind us to the importance of other people's interests," Bickel continued. "The ardent suffragist sniffs with disdain when her taxicab is blocked by a crowd of men trying to force their way into a prize-fight; the non-golfer can't understand why columns of golf news should be allowed to clutter up his newspaper the man of business may never see the report of a sensational crime. Each buys the paper for the news that is closest to his own interest; and the editor, presiding over his multitude of readers like Neptune ruling the waves, must decide how much space to give to this interest and how much to that, in order to maintain some degree of satisfaction and harmony.

UNWED BRICKLAYERS FACE CONSCRIPTION.

Union May Make Them Work on Schools, for Less Pay.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Conscription of bachelor bricklayers now earning up to $16 a day on commercial jobs and their assignment to erecting schools at $12 a day, was proposed by union officials yesterday at a conference with contractors and Mayor John F. Hylan's committee on school construction.

Under an agreement the union entered into three weeks ago, bricklayers were to be furnished for school jobs at $12 a day. Competitive bidding for labor by contractors on commercial work has boosted the current scale until virtually all the school bricklayers have deserted for better paying jobs.

The union chiefs proposed that unmarried workers be conscripted and turned over to school contractors for a week each until buildings now under way are completed.

Another proposal was that volunteers be called to lay the school bricks at $12 day, the difference between their pay and the going rate to be made up by union assessments on the wages of other men making $15 to $16 on commercial jobs.

Govanni

He had never known his father of his mother. Wrapped in rags, he had been delivered one evening to a foundling-hospital in Parma, and the white calsomined walls of the ward in which the beds for foundlings stood were the first thing to attract the attention of his large, dark eyes as they glanced around aimlessly with the blank, helpless look that infants have.

When he had learned to walk and was beginning to talk the municipality gave him to a cobbler who lived in a nearby village, paying the man 85 lire per year for his trouble. In the cobbler's home he first gained consciousness of the world. Chickens scampered and ducks waddled over the streets of the little community where stood the vine-clad hut of his foster parents. In a nook of this hut he shared with the cobbler's four children a bed consisting of some old clothes strewn on the ground.

Negro, as the peasants of the village called his foster-father for short, and his wife were taciturn people. The former repaired the peasants' shoes—an ordinary job brought 20 centesimi—and Giuseppa, the wife, took the shoes back to the peasants and brought home more work.

There was no school in the village. The children who wished to learn rearing and writing had to walk for an hour to the nearest city. The foster-child was indispensable to Giuseppa. While she went from house to house delivering or calling for shoes, he had to watch the little ones and keep an eye on the polenta which was stewing on the hearth. And woe unto him if it had been scorched on her return.

Negro sat on his little stool all day long, at the door of his hut, under a little grape arbor, and pounded upon the boots of the peasants as if he were hammering his rancor against mankind into the boots. Since the foundling had come into the house on the day of John the Baptist, he was named Giovanni, and it being assumed that he had been born in Parma, the surname Parmigiano was given him.

When Giovanni Parmigiano was eight, the first important experience came to him. On a warm summer's day mother Giuseppa was making her usual rounds. Her family had meanwhile grown appreciably, so that little Giovanni had now to mind seven and watch the polenta for ten hungry mouths. Father Negro was seated in the nearly trattoria, seeking oblivion of the heat and dust while he drank a measure of chianti.

Giovanni, perched on a stool at the hearth, was stirring the steaming polenta ceaselessly, to keep it from getting burned. The two youngest children, Marietta and Giulietta, were crawling about on the floor. The boy lost his balance just as the two-year-old Giulietta was approaching him, and fell backward, while the large spoon that he held in his hand, poured its seething contents over Giulietta's chubby little arms. The child screamed with pain. Giovanni was at his wit's end. Overwhelmed with fear he deserted the boiling polenta and the children, and ran into the goat-stall, where he hid under a pile of straw.

His heart beat furiously. He hardly dared breathe as he lay motionless under the straw. Suddenly—he could not have been in his hiding-place longer than fifteen minutes—his breath was taken by someone violently seizing his leg and jerking him from his place. It was Negro. He was excitedly brandishing a club. Giovanni saw nothing more. He lost consciousness.

When he regained his senses he found himself in a clean, white bed. He closed his eyes, for he experienced a sharp pain in his arm. A gentle hand, gentler than any he had ever known, caressed his brow. Again he opened his eyes and looked into the face of a benign woman who wore a white cap and bent over him. He smiled faintly and dozed off again.

Discharged from the children's hospital at last, he found that his right arm was permanently lame. He did not return to Negro. The village with the vine-clad hut, the cobbler and his wife Giuseppa, the little Giulietta and the steaming polenta faded from his memory. One day he found himself in a train, accompanied by a sister of mercy, bound for the city.

The tinsmith Martinoni and his wife, who had announced ithe intention of taking the boy in custody, lived in a dingy, narrow alley which the sun's ray could never reach and which always bore the odor of salami and rice. For in the house across the way was a public kitchen at whose door there stood a boiling cauldron. From it the passers-by were given their noon-day meals.

Opulence had never visited the subterranean hovel where Martinoni dwelt. But the tinsmith had no children and so his wife had to cook only for themselves and Giovanni. The customers usually brought their leaky pails and dribbling pots and the work did not have to be delivered. This made it possible for Giovanni to go to school and learn reading and writing. But that was hard work for him. When he was ten he could hardly write his name, Giovanni Parmigiano, and in reading he hesitated and stammered incessantly. Martinoni a kindly old man, would have liked to make a tinsmith of him, but Giovanni's lame arm interfered.

When Giovanni was fifteen, the state cut off the allowance for him. But the aged tinsmith took pity and consented to the boy's remaining in the house if he would earn his own board. So Giovanni became a newsboy in Parma. To be sure, it was not a very lucrative calling, but an Italian living on polenta or risotto, can exist very cheaply. Giovanni managed, and sometimes he could even save a few centesimi, which he gave to Martinoni.

But a plague broke out in the unsanitary alley. The water supply seemed to be poisoned. Almost all the residents who had drunk from a certain well caught typhoid fever, and Martinoni and his wife died in a week. By a miracle Giovanni did not take the disease.

Now he found himself all alone in the world. People told him that newsboys in the larger cities made much more. And so he packed his bundle and left for Milan.

There he had no trouble in finding work. The paper "Secolo" was just looking for boys to sell the sheet in the cafes and restaurants and Giovanni with his pale, sorrowful face and his lame arm, seemed quite suited to arouse people's pity and to move many a diner to buy the journal out of pure compassion.

He earned as much as sixty centesimi and even a lire a day. His bed cost him forty, which left from twenty to sixty for his other needs. All day long and half of the night he had to be up and doing in order to sell the various editions.

He became a familiar figure in all the cafes of Milan. People called him Giovanni. Every morning and evening, as soon as the new edition had appeared, he could be seen at the main entrance of the Galleria Vittorio Emanuele, which faces the Piazza del Duomo, shouting: "Il Secolo di Milano, Signori, cinque centesimi, nuova editione." Again and again he repeated these words. They were about the sum total of what he spoke day in and day out. They came from his lips like from a phonograph. For he did not know a soul in all Milan and associated with no one. He lived on the streets. At one o'clock in the morning when the great arc lights over the public square were dimmed, Giovanni sought his bed. At seven in the morning he could be seen again at the Stazione Centrale offering the morning edition of the "Secolo" to early travellers.

Thus it went for years. Giovanni got to know every street and every house in Milan, but no human being. For he had to stay on the jump, in order to earn his pittance, which under the most favorable circumstances never exceeded a lire. He could not stop to talk to anyone. He had no time for that.

In the glowing heat of July and August, in the sharp blasts of December and January, he had stood countless times at the entrance to the art gallery. He got to be an indispensable part of the scene like a super in a theatre, and his regular customers reached out their hands to him like to a slot-machine.

And then came a time when people styled him—he hardly knew why himself—old Giovanni, and the newspaper-dispensing machine looked feeble as it received the coins. The machine did not seem to be functioning so well any more.

One morning the coin of a customer, who without looking had held out his money at the place where Giovanni was wont to stand, fell to the ground. The man looked up in surprise. He picked up his coin and dropped it back calmly into his pocket. For the first time, as long as he could remember, Giovanni was not at his accustomed place. And the place remained vacant.

In a very few days the old newsboy, who to everyone's surprise had disappeared from the scene, had been forgotten. But the police found him in bed with a fever and the doctor who was called in ordered his immediate transferrence to the Ospedale, since his condition was highly critical.

And so Giovanni came past the public square once more. But the vacant place, where he had stood for so many years, was not visible to him. The fever prevented that.

A sad smile could be seen in the face of the hospital attendant as he stood at the bedside of the old feverish Giovanni. How often had he, too, seen him at his post And a shudder came over the attendant as the delirious patient suddenly raised his hand to him and his parched lips whispered the words: "Il Secolo di Milano, signori, cinque centesimi, nuova editione." The doctor gave up hope. Old age, lack of proper nourishment, exposure to all sorts of weather, and many other unknown contributory causes were bound to assert themselves.

For five days Giovanni was delirious. They gave him quinine and at last the fever broke. But his strength did not return.

On the morning of the sixth day, when the fever had vanished, but with it his vitality, Giovanni had a wonderful dream. The first dream in his life

He was in heaven

The hospital ward adjoined the hospital church. It was Sunday morning. Suddenly Giovanni heard beautiful music, to which the angels were singing in a choir. He opened his eyes. Over him bent the Madonna. Giovanni stretched out both arms to her longingly, and again, as once before in his life a soft, gentle hand caressed his brow. It was the hand of the Cara Madonna. And this hand wiped all earthly care from his countenance, as with a white cloth. Softer and softer became the charming music and the heavenly singing. But the soft, gentle hand still caressed him, and a blissful smile moved his pallid lips.

He felt a warm head bending over him, the face of the Cara Madonna. His senses seemed to be leaving him. Yet he felt the mouth of the Madonna planting a kiss on his cheek, the first kiss of his life. Then all was over.

When the physician entered the room, the nurse reported that the patient in bed No. 7 had just died. The physician leaned far over the lifeless form. There was a transfigured expression on the countenance of that form.—Enrico Rodetti-Naepel.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Calvin Gray and Colonel Henry Nelson of Dallas are enemies. Gray is in love with Barbara Parker and Nelson tells her father, Tom Parker, that Gray has been dishonorably discharged from the army. Gray and his friend, Gus Briskow, buy the controlling interest in Nelson's bank. They attend a directors' meeting and Gray declares that he was dishonorably discharged from the army because of Nelson's treachery and that Nelson, having been found out, was himself discharged. Gray brings Bud Briskow, son of Gus, to Dallas and introduces him to Barbara Parker. Gray plans to make Henry Nelson admit his treachery.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

Henry Nelson entered the bank with his head up, with a contemptuous smile upon his lips and an easy confidence in his bearing. His hand was outstretched toward the knob of Briskow's door, when the one adjoining opened and, from the office he himself had so long occupied, Calvin Gray spoke to him.

"Please step in here, Colonel."

Stiffly, reluctantly, as if impelled by some force outside of himself, Nelson stepped within, but he ignored the chair that was proffered him.

"Come! I've no time to waste."

"You will soon have ample time—if not to waste, at least to meditate—"

"What do you mean by that?" The query came sharply.

"I've had an examination of the bank's books. That, as you will readily understand, explains why I sent for you."

"Why—no. I don't—"

"I wondered how you and your father got the money to keep going so long, for I discovered you were in a bad way even before I turned up. It is no longer a mystery. When you and he, as directors of the Security National, lent yourselves money, as individuals, you must have realized that you were—well, arranging leisure for yourself in which to meditate upon the stringency of the banking laws—"

"Nonsense! That's a-nothing—nothing serious." Nelson's ruddy color had slowly vanished; with uncertain hand he reached for the nearest chair, and upon it he leaned as he continued, jerkily: "Irregular, perhaps—I'll admit it was irregular, but—there's nothing wrong— Oh, you'll make it look as bad as possible, I dare say! But you don't understand the circumstances. Anyhow, father is getting it straightened out; all he needs is time. We'll be able to handle it, all right. We're good, you know, perfectly good—"

"You're broke! Everybody else knows it, if you don't. 'Irregular'! Ha! There's a choice of words!" The speaker laughed silently. "It is an irregularity that carries with it free board and lodging at the state's expense."

An incoherent protest issued from Nelson's throat. When next he managed to make himself audible, his words were such as really to amaze his hearer. "I didn't do it," he cried, in a panic-stricken voice. "It was father's idea! You had us crowded—there was no other way. I warned him—"

"Wait a minute! You blame it on him?" Gray's inquiry was harsh, incredulous. After a momentary pause his lips moved, but for once he stammered, his ready tongue refused its duty. He exploded, finally, with an oath; he jerked open a drawer in his desk. From his pocket he removed his revolver, flung it inside, then jammed the drawer back into place with a crash. "You—rat!" he exclaimed. He turned his back upon Henry Nelson and made a circuit of the little room.

"It's a thing you and I can easily fix up," the latter feebly insisted. "Now that personal matter of yours—Perhaps I could help you reopen it somehow, clear it up."

"Ah! Indeed!"

"Give and take, I say. I'm willing to do anything I can, if—"

"You'll do that, anyhow." Gray replied, in a voice that grated. He flung himself into his desk chair and, seizing pen and paper, he began to write rapidly, shakily.

"I want to see what I'm signing," Nelson warned. A growl was his answer.

For an interminable time the only sound in the office was the scratching of that pen. When at last it came to an end, Gray rose, thrust the loose sheets into Nelson's hand, then, indicating the vacant chair, said:

TOM PARKER STIRRED; IT WAS A MOMENT BEFORE HE SPOKE.

"Sign that!"

The wretched recipient of this curt command read the lines carefully. He read them twice, thrice, for his mind no longer functioned clearly. He raised a sick face, finally, and shook his head.

"Wouldn't I be a fool!" he queried.

"Listen, you—" Gray's body was shaking, his words were uneven. "I'm sorry for Bell, but not for you. I'll never forget nor forgive what you did to me. Nothing can undo that. Disgrace clings to a man. You're going to get yours, now, and you can't squirm out of it, or lie out of it, no matter how you try, for I shan't let you. You're ruined, discredited, blown up, but—I don't think I want to send you to the penitentiary. I'd rather see you walking the streets with dandruff on your collar. I'd rather keep you to look at. Anyhow, you'll have to sign that."

"If you'll guarantee to keep this bank matter quiet—if you'll protect me, I'll sign. Otherwise, you can go to hell. We'll beat it out, somehow. We can do it."

Inflexibly Gray asserted: "I'm going to turn you over, whether or no. But I'll help Bell get the money to repay those loans. He'll probably manage to save himself and—save you, too."

Like a man fighting some hypnotic influence stronger than his will, Henry Nelson took up the pen and signed his name waveringly. The next moment Gray smote the door to Briskow's office a heavy blow and, as it flew open, he barked:

"Come in here! All three of you!" He stood aside as Gus, Bennett Swope, and Senator Lowe entered. "Yonder is a statement which I want you to read and witness. When you've done that, I'm going to tell you why Henry Nelson signed it. The rest will be up to you."

It was midafternoon. Swope and Lowe had left the bank. Briskow drew a deep breath and said, with genuine relief: "I'm glad that's over. We can handle the debt between us, an', after all, Old Bell's a pretty good citizen. As for Henry, I s'pose he'll wriggle out of it, somehow. I dunno as I'd of been so easy on him if I'd been in your place."

"I'll tell you why I was easy on him," Gray confessed. "I'm tired of fighting; I'm worn out. I've won my point, and he'll carry the sort of load I've been carrying. But there is this difference: for him there will be no vindication at the end." Taking from his pocket Nelson's statement, he stared at it, then slowly his face lightened.

"D'you know why I felt this thing so keenly? Why I fought so long? Of course you don't, for I've held out on you. Fact! I've held out on my partner—had a secret for him. Now then, steel yourself for a surprise. I'm suffering from Buddy's complaint, only ten times aggravated!"

"What?" Briskow stared up at the animated countenance above him. "You thinkin' about gettin' married?"

"I'm thinking about nothing else. That's what ails me. Why, Gus, you've no idea what a perfectly charming person I can be when—when I can be what I am. I thought I was too old and too blase ever to become seriously interested in a woman, above all in a girl, but— Do you remember when Ma and Allie came to Dallas that first time? Something happened about then to upset all my ideas."

Briskow's sun-parched face slowly lightened, his bright, inquisitive eyes grew bleer, brighter. "I'm—mighty glad! I allus hoped—" He tried to finish his sentence, then shook his head and murmured, humbly, "Mighty glad!"

Here was a marvel, a miracle, for which he had never dared even hope. He thought of Allie and a lump came into his throat. She had reached the stars. His girl! She would be mighty glad, too—

Gray was speaking, and in his voice was a new, vibrant quality, a new vigor. "Now you'll know why this is the biggest day of my life; why I thought those men would never go. I'm shaking all over, Gus. You'll have to run the bank for awhile; I'm too young and irresponsible. I'm going out to buy a hoop and a jumping rope and a pair of roller skates."

When he beheld the familiar painted sign, "Tom and Bob Parker, Real Estate and Insurance," he paused. The mere sight of the little wooden building, the name, gave him an odd shortness of breath. It was weeks since he had been here.

It was a disappointment to find the office empty, except for the father himself, but Gray began with a rush. "Well, I told you I'd clear myself, and—here I am, walking on air."

"You did it, eh! That's good news."

"We had a show-down at the bank. Henry Nelson and I locked horns and— But here! Read what he signed. That cleans the slate. He'll do anything further that may be necessary, officially. Where's 'Bob'?"

"They're fishin' for a bit in one of your Avenger wells. She's out there."

"Bo? I'd forgotten."

"Did you see—? Did Buddy have a talk with you? Today, I mean?"

"Buddy? Oh, Buddy Briskow! I saw him for a moment only. She'll be back soon, I dare say?"

Tom Parker stirred; it was a moment before he spoke, then it was with apparent irrelevance that he said: "I'm sorry you and he didn't have a good talk, 'Bob' asked him to see you—sent him there a-purpose." The sight of Gray's smiling, eager, uncomprehending face caused the old man's steady gaze to waver. He cleared his throat. "Buddy's a fine boy."

HOUSEKEEPERS' FOOD PROBLEMS

How to Obtain Colories is a Perennial Household Puzzle.

Housekeepers often feel the need of some simple plan by which the foods used in their families can be compared in kind and quantity with those really needed. The kinds of food needed and, in a general way, the proportions in which these foods should be used can easily be stated. But since families differ greatly in size and in the ages and occupations of their members it is very difficult to state the amounts needed in such a way as to be universally helpful.

"The number of different food materials available," says Caroline L. Hunt in a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture, "is constantly increasing as a result of improved methods of agriculture, the invention of new manufacturing processes, the introduction of foreign food plants, and the cultivation of wild varieties. There is no one of all these many foods that cannot be introduced into the diet in such a way as to contribute to its wholesomeness or its attractiveness, but the number of different kinds of food needed is very small. Many food materials, the various cereals, for example, are practically interchangeable in the diet. In fact, most of the common foods may, as suggested in other publications of this department, be classified into five groups, namely, (1) vegetables and fruits, (2) meat, milk, and other foods depended on for complete, or efficient, protein, (3) cereals, (4) sugar and sugary foods, and (5) fats and fat food.

"A meal, a day's ration, or a weekly food supply made up from representatives of all these five groups is likely to provide all the substances required to make the diet wholesome and attractive, and for this reason the classification should serve as a guide in the selection of foods and the planning of meals. It should be of some help, too, in comparing the cost of different foods, for it separates foods that have little or nothing in common, and brings together under one head food materials that are enough alike to be compared in price. For example, to know that a pound of salt codfish costs 10 cents more than a pound of prunes does not make economical meal planning easier. It is helpful, however, to know that one kind of breakfast cereal costs 15 cents, while another that might be substituted for it costs 7 cents, or that a certain amount spent for an inexpensive kind of fruit will bring as good returns in food value as twice that amount spent for some out-of-season variety.

"Vegetables and fruits are depended on for flavor, bulk, mineral substance, particularly iron, and for vitamins, of which at least three kinds, called A, B, and C, are now considered necessary. Spinach stands out among the other foods of this group be ause of its exceptionally large percentage of iron. The greenleaf vegetables as a class, including lettuce, spinach, kale, dandelion greens, the green tops of turnips, or of beets, or of radishes, and many other vegetables commonly used for salads and greens are especially useful in supplying vitamin A, which is now believed to be necessary for normal growth and for the continued bodily well-being even of adults.

COAT DRESSES.

Broadcloth coat dresses are to be very popular this fall, style authorities believe. Metal trimmings and touches of bright color are featured on them.

ALL RIGHT, PARSON, LEAD THE WAY

A colored minister in Louisville announced to his faithful flock the following: "Brethren and sistern, dis mornin' I'se gwine to preach a powerful sermon. I'se gwine to bind de unboundable; I'se gwine to define de undefinable; I'se gwine to unscrew the unscrutable, and I'se gwine to lead you all through de impassable paths to infernal happiness."—By Omaha Office.

THEATRES

Capitol Entertainment

A novel and interesting feature picture is the high-class crook photo-drama showing at the Capitol Theatre for this week-end, with Betty Compson, in "The Woman With Four Faces." There are plenty of thrills and action of a unique type in the play which stars a woman of the crook kingdom, who decides to go straight.

A condemnation of the organized drug traffic is also a part of this picture, which shows in detail some of the workings of the big "dope" ring; the price which conceals the contraband opium, the secret code of the inner ring, the respectable exterior of the master-minds behind the huge traffic. When the District Attorney fails to get help in the proper quarters in his efforts to smash the combine, he goes to Elizabeth West, a clever crook, and the ensuing scenes are dramatic to a degree.

Betty Compson does some good work in this picture. She has the stage throughout, and there is nothing forced in her sudden change from the role of a master crook to the helper of the man who is trying to catch and convict a band of wealthy and influential criminals.

For a decidedly new type of interesting photo-play, for sustained suspense and thrilling situations, "The Woman With Four Faces" holds a major place in the run of Paramount pictures. It is the sort of play that one watches with increasing interest, right from the moment when the heroine holds up a jewel-laden prima donna, on through the scenes where she goes through torture in her desire to help the District Attorney, on to the last satisfactory moment.

The comedy, "Bucking Broadway," features Neal Burns, in a unique stage setting for a hilarious farce, in which the young man and his father fall in love with a musical comedy star, and pursue her through an infatuated series of episodes, winding through the mazes of stage settings and props. The final scene, a hasty marriage, takes place behind the asbestos curtain, with the father searching frantically for the pair back of the long curtain.

There are some interesting bits in the News reels, including the racing prangs of China, 'Whirling Waters,' in colors, and a breath of snow and winter coolness in a pretty framing.

The music of the Capitol orchestra is particularly pleasing, with an attractive programme of pretty selections.

A SALESMAN'S PRAYER

Look with a forgiving eye, we beseech Thee, on the buyers who lie to us about the low prices our competitors give them.

Strengthen the memory of those purchasing agents who are always going to give us a good order the next time we come around.

Soften the hearts of those buyers who, as soon as they see a salesman come, get as busy as a hen with chickens, and keep us standing around until our feet get webbed and then buy as much as two dollars and sixty-five cents worth and want that billed out the first of next month.

Teach us not to complain at the roller towels that the multitude have used before we got there.

Give us stomachs like alligators that we may digest the stale bread, and loinsteaks cut from the neck where the yoke worked.

Teach us to be thankful for the coffee.

Toughen our hides, that we may sleep soundly in hotel beds that are already inhabited.

Cause us to look charitably upon our competitors who are a sorry lot anyway.

And please, above all things, grant our wives patience so they won't expect our wages until we get them.—The Live Wire.

Deloro - Peterboro Clash Begins at 2.30 p.m. and Will Be Followed By Big Soccer Game.

A DOUBLE-HEADER.

The ball game between the fast Deloro team of the Trent Valley League and the Peterborough Central Ontario League team at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon will start at 2.3 oo'clock sharp and not at 3 o'clock as at first announced. The fans are asked to note the earlier beginning which is caused by the fact that there is to be an unique double header to-morrow, the ball game to be followed by the biggest football clash of the year, the elemination game between the G.W.V.A. and Thistles to determine which team will represent Peterborough in the Ontario series. One price of admission will entitle one to see both the baseball game and the football fixture and it should be a great afternoon's sport.

This Deloro team should not be underestimated. Their players hail from different centres and some real stars will be seen in action. Manager Solomon will send Scott Hutchinson, his left handed recruit, in against the Miners and the big fellow should turn the trick.

The Petes are playing in Kingston this evening and will return home from the east to-morrow morning. They shold get a good reception from the fans at Riverside Park to-morrow.

Colonial Girls Will Play All-Star Team.

The Colonials, winners of the first half in the Girls' Softball League added another victory to their string by defeating the DeLaval last evening 12 to 10. The closeness of the score indicated the keenness with which the game was contested and the Colonial girls only won out after a hard battle.

Arrangements are being made for games to be played on Wednesday and Saturday nights beginning next week. On next Wednesday the C.G.E. and Woollens will play and a special game is scheduled for Saturday.

The Saturday fixture will be a battle royal between the Colonials and a picked team from the other teams in the league. No admission is charged at these games but a collection is taken and the proceeds of next Saturday's game will be devoted entirely to the Health Association.

All games are being played at Riverside Park.

FIGHTERS ARE IN BEST CONDITION

Len Tendler and Benny Leonard Will Meet For the Lightweight Title on Monday.

NEW YORK, July 20.—(Candain Press). Benny Leonard, light-weight champion and Lew Tendler, his challenger in a 15-round title match at the Yankee Stadium next Monday night, have reached the peak of condition, according to word to-day from the rival quarters. They will have only light work-outs to-morrow and Saturday, before breaking up camp to rest up for the battle.

Leonard, putting the finishing touches to his four weeks of training at Ttannerville, N. Y., has announced he is down to the weight limit, 135 pounds.

Tendler who came close to winning the championship at one stage of his last battle with Leonard, has done his training at Delanco, N. J., and is declarded to be showing exceptionally fine form.

Jimmy Johnson, matchmaker of the Cromwell A. C., under whose auspices the bout will be staged, anoiunced to-day that the advance sale had reached approximately $350,000. He predicted a new record for receipts as well as attendance for a light-weight championship bout.

A year ago the Tendler-Leonard scrap attracted approximately 60,000 fans and receipts of nearly $375,000.

DE LAVALS OPENED BASEBALL SEASON

The Scribe Says That the First Game Had All the Earmarks of a Big League Battle.

The De Laval Baseball League got off to a good start Wednesday night at the King Edward School grounds, when the Alphas won from the Acmes, 6 to 5. Bradley and Kennedy did the battery work for the Acmes and Frick and McGee for the Alphas. Bradley turned in a good game for the Acmes, but poor support robbed him of a win. Frick had ten strike outs, he having a fast breaking drop that had Hagerman and Williamson fanning the air. Downing hit a homer in the sixth—he sure shakes a wicked bat.

For the Alphas Baird had a perfect day in the field, taking nine chances without an error. He poled out two singles and a double and had a run in with the umpire, a perfect day for Jimmie Baird. The umpiring was well looked after by Messrs. Perks and Bullied. The DeLaval band played the players to the school grounds where the opening ceremonies were performed by Mr. Ruiter in the box, Mr. Stacey at bat and Mr. Sangster catching.

Next game, Friday night. Let's go!

THE SCRIBE.

Body of Youth Was Found in the River.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 20. —(Canadian Press.)—What is believed to be the body of Leo Castle (of Nadeau), eighteen year old adventurer, who is thought to have been drowned in the Saskatchewan river on July 5, was recovered yesterday morning. While positive identification has not yet been made, it is practically certain that the body is that of young Castle.

Young Leo Castle, it will be remembered, was believed to have been drowned in the course of a chase which followed the stealing of bottles of "pop" from a truck.

The boy was well known throughout the country by reason of his exploits in attempting to gain entry to the United States by travelling across the girders of the Niagara Falls suspension bridge.

NEW KIND OF LIQUOR.

VICTORIA, B.C., July 20.—(Canadian Press.)— Japanese whiskey, made of rice and called "sake" is to be made in British Columbia in large quantities, it was announced yesterday, when Vancouver interests obtained approval for the organization of the Vancouver Malt and Sake Brewing Company, Limited, with a capital of $100,000. Products of the company will be sold through government liquor stores.

ELIMINATION GAME FOR ONTARIO CUP

Vets and Thistles Will Meet at Riverside Park To-Morrow Afternoon.

The elimination game between the Vets and Thistles for the Ontario Cup, originally scheduled for last Saturday will be played tomorrow at Riverside Park immediately after the exhibition baseball game between Deloro and Peterboro. This game promises to be one of the best football contests of the season. The two teams are very evenly match ! and a keen football rivalry exists between them. They have met five times this season with the honors evenly divided. The Vets downed the Thistles in the battle for the Gordon cup but were held to a scoreless draw in the first league game. The play off of the league game was a victory for the Scots and they followed that up by trimming the Vets in the semi-finals for the Phelan Cup. On Thursday the Vets came back and evened things up by winning the second of the league games. They have now each won two and lost two with the fifth game a scoreless draw.

The winner of tomorrow's game will represent Peterboro in the Ontario Cup games.

The baseball game is being started at 2.30 o'clock in order to allow the footballers to get under way at 4.

SHELBY FIASCO WAS A BLESSING

Fight Promoters Will Now Talk More Sense and Less Money.

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, July 20.—Fight promoters are beginning to talk more sense and less money every day.

Tex Rickard, the premier, says the day of $300,000 purses passed with the fiasco out in Shelby, Montana—remembered by some as the scene of some bout or other between one Jack Dempsey and Mr. Thomas Gibbons.

He hastens to add, however, in the next breath, that "around New York" there may be some daredevil promoter who will try to offer somebody that much, but he expresses doubt as to whether it will ever be paid.

The 90,000 crowd at the Dempsey-Carpentier affair, which stirred up more interest in this country than any previous sporting event, will also remain the peak in attendance for some time to come, Rickard believes.

The Shelby affair seemed to awaken everyone in the fight game to the fact that fighters were getting too much money.

Dempsey is the only one who pulled out of the fight with enough money to wad a shotgun. Everyone else lost. Jack got $220,000, and the consensus of opinion is that was plenty.

Rickard showed his genius for promotion when he got Firpo and Willard into the ring for a percentage of the gate. He is not talking six figures to anyone, nowadays, without knowing what he is talking about.

The $2 0,000 Dempsey received would keep an ordinary man in luxury for a lifetime.

There have been arranged what the fighters call "benefit bouts" all over the country, for one charitable cause of another. The only thing that charity gets out of these fights is what is left over after the fighters get their purses.

Of course, no one is going to say that a fighter should not make a living. Bricklayers are making $12 a day, and they may be worth it. Some fighters are getting purses in six figures and they may be worth it—probably not.

But somehow or another, Eugene Criqui, the featherweight champion of the world, who never cashed any of these big purses, is finding time enough to go to France and fight for the disabled soldiers, and he is not taking a centime.

There should be more of the spirit displayed by Criqui and Tommy Gibbons. The man who stood 15 rounds with Dempsey didn't get a cent of the purse. He knew a week ahead that he wouldn't. Jack Kearns already had $200,000 and he threatened to leave the state if he wasn't given the remaining $100,000 that had been promised him by a bunch of bankrupt promoters. Just how much the sentiment of the populace had to do with Kearn's decision to let Dempsey fight, is perhaps irrelevant, but no one heard Gibbons threaten to back out.

Gibbons wanted a chance at the heavyweight title and he was willing to fight for nothing to get it.

It is also worthy of note that George Carpentier, dethroned idol of France, demanded pay to fight at the same show for disabled veterans that Criqui is entering for nothing.

Kingston Player Had His Arm Amputated.

KINGSTON, July 20.—(Special) —Clifford Hepburn, one of the star ball players in the City League, who had his right arm badly mangled in a machine at A. Davis and Sons tannery on Tuesday, underwent an operation at the General Hospital yesterday afternoon for the amputation of the arm. He is doing nicely.

THISTLES WON A FRIENDLY GAME

Field Was Not in the Best Condition So League Fixture Was Postponed.

The league game scheduled last evening between the Thistles and Quakers was declared a "friendly" contest by the referee after an examination of the playing field had showed conditions unsatisfactory for good football. The game was won by the Thistles by a score of 3 to 0.

After a few minutes of play Mackay sent a stringing shot into Griffin. The goal-keeper could not hold the ball, and the outside right followed up to open the scoring. Immediately after Stott saved a penalty from G. Logan. Curtis, C.P.C. junior, now playing at full back for Quakers, made a good impression through his clean kicking and tackling. Play ran from end to end until just before half time Williams' fooled the backs in front of goal. He lifted the ball into the far corner of the goal, Griffin saved in mid-air but unfortunately the ball dropped through the goal. Thistles 2, Quakers 1.

The second half opened up at a fast pace with each team making raid after raid. Joe Mayette worked a corner-kick of Richmond. He centered nicely to Logan who shot hard to see his shot punted out by Stott. Foster lying close in had no difficulty in beating the Scots' goalkeeper. McMillan transferred the play to the other end where Miller converted. Although a friendly game it did not lack thrills. A beautiful placed corner by Mackay let Williams make it three just before the final. Thistles 3, Quakers 0.

Tht teams were:

Quakers—Griffin, goal; Young and Curtis, backs; Hepburn, W. Logan and Croft, half-backs; Mayette, Montgomery, G. Logan and Foster, forwards.

Thistles—Stott, goal; Rae and McAlpine, backs; Jackson, McMillan and Miller, half-backs; Mackay, Williams, Richmond, Rickard and Burgess, forwards.

Referee—J. Clark.

In the Yeotes Cup game last Monday evening, the DeLaval and C.P.C. drew—one each. Both goals were scored in the first half by Elliot, De Laval, and James, Packers.

The following players will represent the Woollens in the game with the C.P.C. on Monday evening: Chambers, Reid, Cridland, Frost, Monkman, Sayers, Mitchell, Gaskell, Shaw, Roberts, Downer. Reserves, Bramhall, Crow, Lauchlan.

Hot Election Campaign in Prince Edward Island.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., July 20.—(Canadian Press).—Thirty Liberals, thirty Concervatives and seven Progressives were nominated to-day for thirty seats to be filled by Provincial Election on July 26. Two Progressives are running in the first district of Prince, two in the second and one in the fourth. There is one Probressive in the third district of Queens and one in the third district of King. Premier Bell in the fourth Prince has a conservative and Progressive opponent.

NO BREAKDOWN YET IN DOCKERS' STRIKE

Decision of the Liverpool Dockers to Return to Work Is One of Few Hopeful Factors in the Situation.

LONDON, July 20. — (Canadian Press).—Threre is no sign as yet of a breakdown in the docker's strike here. Ernest Bavin, Secretary of the Transport Union, said last night, that the situation was full of difficulties owing to the menacing attiude of the hot-headed atcion of the strikers against those who are wavering. The sailing of the steamer Saxonia to-day from London by way of Southhampton has been affected by the strike After a prolonged meeting last evening at Poplar, the strike committee declared there was hardly a man working on the Tilbury docks and that by Saturday not a tug or a lighter woud be in operation.

The decision of the Liverpool dockers to return towork is regarded as a hopeful factor in the general situation, although the resolution to cease the strike was adopted my only a small majority.

The delegates of the striking dock m enhave been told by the executive of the Transport Workers' Union that their grievances can be considered only if they resume work. The parleys having peace as their object will continue to-morrow.

Building Permits Show a Decline For Last June.

OTTAWA, —July 20.—(Canadian Press).—According to reports tabulated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, there was a decline of 23.6 per cent. in the value of building permits isued in June as compared with May.

This decrease according to the report is often experienced during June the largest aggregate of permits granted usually occuring in April or May, when the buildoing season is commencing.

The comparison with June, 1922, also shows less projected activity during the month under review, there being a reduction of 15.9 per cent. England and France Can Not Afford a Rupture.

PARIS, July 20.—(Canadian Press) —Dr. Edward Benes, Foreign Minister of Czecho-Slovakia, after consultations yesterday between Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jasper said he was convinced that despite the divergencies in view between the French and British Governments the Entente would not be broken. A break, he thought woud be avoided because neither London nor Paris would be willing to assume the responsibility for a rupture, one of the consequences of which would be to encourage inevitably the war-like spirit in Germany and Russia, of which the Balkan and Southern European States would feel the effects.

Farmers May Form Three-Province Pool.

WINNIPEG, July 20.—(Canadian Press.)—Executives of the farmers' organizations of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will meet in Regina on July 23 to formulate a definite decision on the wheat pool problem and to discover if it will be possible to organize a three province pool this year, it was stated here yesterday.

"We expect the outcome of the Regina conference to decide our stand for this year," said H. W. Wood, secretary of the United Farmers' of Manitoba, in discussing the conference to-day. "I could give no indication now as to what the stand will be. It may not be possible to organize all the farmers of the three provinces into a co-operative movement for handling this year's crop."

Colin N. Burnell, president of the U.F.O., D. C. McKenzie, vice-president, and Peter Wright, of Birtle, will represent the agrarians of this province at the Regina meeting.

MERRY BATTLE BY JUVENILES

Lock Works Made Sacred Heart Hustle to Win by 12-8 Score.

The rejuvenated Lock Works Juveniles threw a scare into the Sacred Heart camp at King Edward grounds last evening by giving the south-end team a battle for six wildly exciting innings. Sacred Heart won the contest by a count of 12 to 8, but the lockmakers went away with the deep-rooted conviction that the score will be reversed when the teams meet again. Lock Works claimed they did not get a fair break in the decisions at the bases, and at times, members of the team kicked with all the vigor of Dan Howley. It was one of these games with a bunch of hard decisions for the umpires, and the teams alternating in the lead.

Griffin started for the Lock Works but could not locate the plate. With three runs against him, he retired to right field, in favor of Connors, who did good work by holding Sacred Heart to one run while the side was being subdued. Connors got along well until the fourth, when Sacred Heart scored five runs, due to some considerable assistance given by his team-mates and several lusty hits. Sacred Heart went out in order in the fifth, only to break out again in the sixth, scoring three counters.

Lock Works got their runs in pairs, scoring in each of the first four frames. They received a lot of valuable assistance from Jack McDonough, who was wild, and infield errors also helped. In the second, third and fourth, nineteen batsmen went to the plate but only six made the circuit. Three free passes and a couple of wild pegs with one out gave Lock Works two runs in the fourth, and a threatened rally was stopped when Connors was called out at first after a grounder to Milloy. This was one of the decisions that raised the tire of the team. Batley at the time was getting home with the tieing run. Four runs down in the sixth, Lock Works made a bid for the game, but D. Hunt and Hunter, who singled, went out trying to steal second, and L. Hunt fanned.

A LARGE SHIPMENT OF THRESHING MACHINES

Harvesting activities are reflected in a large shipment of threshing machines, received this week by the Duffus Motor Sales. This shipment is unique in that it is the first full carload of grain saving separators ever shipped into the city of Peterborough.

This shipment of four machines, was unloaded on Monday, and the principal threshermen and farmers from the district have made enquiries regarding them.

All of those who have inspected the threshers have been profuse in their admiration, Mr. Duffus said, and the most experienced threshers and most extensive farmers of Peterborough County, frankly admit that it is absolutely the best constructed and most practical threshing machine. they have had the opportunity of seeing operated.

In order to show the possibilities of the machine to the best advantage, a unit has been assembled in the Duffus Show Rooms, driven by a Ford tractor.

GAME BY DEFALUT

The game between the Mercantiles and Raybestos, scheduled for last evening, went to the Raybestos team by default, the Mercantiles failing to have a full team out.

The next Intermediate city league game will be played on Tuesday evening when the C.G.E. and Raybestos will meet.

MIDGET GAMES TO-NIGHT.

Midget series games for this evening are: Sacred Heart vs. Curlers, at Sacred Heart grounds, and Hillcrests vs. Maple Leafs at King Edward School grounds.

SOME HINTS TO MOTOR CAMPERS

The night's rest is the keynote of success or failure in motor camping. If it is poor—then the tourist goes home disgusted or takes to the hotels. If it is refreshing, then the rest of the game is pretty sure to be delightful. There is a tendency among the newcomers to the sport to take along any old kind of shake-down. This is wrong. There is no need to rough it.

There are so many kinds of beds for camping that it would take a volume to describe them. One of the simplest affairs is the folding army cot, quite satisfactory if it is made up correctly and provision taken for keeping cold from coming up through. The various stell frame beds with springs which set up on the running board of the car are comfortable.

Air Mattress Popular.

One very comfy type of bed is the air mattress, made of rubber and enclosed in a cloth envelope. This is blown up to the desired pressure at night and carried deflated in a small roll while on the road. It makes an admirable thing to rest upon when care is taken to have adequate warmth between the mattress and the sleeper.

One of the newest ideas is the bed which slings inside the car, usually made with a wood frame with canvas stretched upon it. For two adults this makes a fine bed, and, of course, as weather-proof as the car itself permits. It appeals to many owing to the fact that it is high above the ground.

The sleeping bag, of many types which primarily designed for sleeping on the ground, can be used successfully on a cot or other bed. The sleeper cannot get uncovered in the night; it has the advantage. It has another good point, too, in its remarkable warmth.

As to Covers.
